THERE is to be seen in the Monasticon, King Edward III.'s Charter for St. Stephen's Chapel: And by Patent, dated 22. of his Reigns he gave it to his great House in Lumbard-street, LONDON, with some Advoufons. By another Patent, 32. of his Reign, he gave the Dean and Canons a Tower in Bokelesbury, LONDON, called Sewtes Tour, with the Appurtenances. In the 43. of his Reign, he gave them another House in LONDON, called The Reol. And in further Augmentation of the said Foundation, he granted them all the Ground from the said Chapel Northward, to the Receipt of the Exchequer, between Westminster-Hall and the Thames, for making a Cloister and other necessary Buildings; with free Entrance Day and Night at the Gate adjoining to the King's Bridge: Also a Chamber within the said Gate, formerly belonging to his Clerk of the Kitchen, with the Houses formerly used for Stables of War-Horses, and other Horses; and with a free Passage to the said Chapel, by Day-light, through the Great Hall. And lastly, he exempted the said Dean and Canons, and all their Lands, from the Payment of any Aids or Taxes whatsoever. Richard II. compleated the full Endowments of this College, by settling on it divers Lands and Manours in Kent, according to the Direction and Desire of his Grandfather in his Testament.

It was called The Free Chapel of St. Mary the Virgin and St. Stephen. The Dean was commonly of great Confidence with the King, and often preferred to some Bishoprick. Such was Sampson, Bishop of Litchfield and Coventry. It was richly endowed, but the Revenues were made away, and alienated upon the Dissolution of religious Houses. Among which was a Messuage, called The Helmet, in King's-street, belonging to it, which was granted to Richard Audely and John Rede, in the 2. Edw. VI. There were also certain Manours and Lordships belonging to it, called The Manours and Lordship of Esstetisford, alias Asstetford in the County of Kent; which, with other Lands, were sold to Sir Anthony Aucher and Henry Polstred, Esquires, in 3. Edward VI.

SINCE the Dissolution, the same Chapel hath served as a Parliament-House: The High Court of Parliament, consisting of Knights, Citizens, and Burgeses of Parliament, was formerly in the Chapter-House of the Abbot of Westminster: And this continued till the Statute of 1. Edw. VI. which gave to the King Colleges, Free-Chapels, &c. Whereby the King enjoyed to his own Use this antient Free-Chapel of St. Stephen. Since which Time it hath served, by the King's Permission, for the House of Commons to sit in.

By this Chapel of St. Stephen was some Time one other smaller Chapel, called, Our Lady of the Piew: To the which Lady, great Offerings were used to be made. Amongst other Things, King Richard II. upon the Coming of the Rebel Wat Tyler, with his Rout of Kentish Men in Arms to LONDON, went first to Westminster, to the High Altar there, and offered; and, after that, confessed himself to an Anchorite, and then betook himself to this Chapel of our Lady in the Piew, and there said his Devotions, and then went to Smithfield to meet this Fellow and his Company.

AFTER the Overthrow of Wat Tyler, and other the Rebels, in the fourth of his Reign, he went to Westminster, and there giving Thanks to God for his Victory, made his Offering in this Chapel; but, as divers have noted, namely, John Pigot, in the Year 1252, on the 17th of February, by Negligence of a Scholar, appointed by his School-master to put forth the Lights of this Chapel, the Image of our Lady, richly decked with Jewels, precious Pearls and Rings, more than any Jeweller could judge the Price of, (for so says my Author) was all this Apparel, Ornaments, and Chapel itself, burnt; but since again re-edified by Anthony Earl Rivers, Lord Scales, and the Isle of Wight, Uncle and Governor to the Prince of Wales, that should have been King Edward V. &c.

THERE is a Warrant from King Richard III. to this Tenor: Sir John Cave, Priest, Keeper of our Lady of Piew, an Annuity of ten Marks, until the Time he be better promoted.

IN the Passage out of Westminster-hall into the Old Palace-yard, a little beyond the Stairs going up to St. Stephen's Chapel, (now the Parliament-House) on the Left Hand, was the House belonging to the antient and noble Family of the Cottons; wherein was kept a most inestimable Library of Manuscript Volumes, famed both at Home and Abroad.

THIS choice Library in Cotton-house, had for its first Founder Sir Robert Cotton, of Connington in the County of Huntingdon, Bart. who, at his own great Charge and Expence, and by the Assistance of most learned Antiquaries of the Time, collected and purchased (as it runs in the Act for the Settlement of this Library) the most useful Manuscripts, written Books, Papers, Parchments, Records, and other Materials in most Languages; of great Use and Service for the Knowledge and Preservation of our Constitution both in Church and State. Which Manuscripts, and other Writings, were procured as well from the Parts beyond the Seas, as from several private Collectors of such Antiquities within the Realm, and are generally esteemed the best Collection of its Kind now any where extant.

THERE was therefore, for the Preservation of it for After-times, an Act of Parliament, made 12 and 13 Will. 3. for settling and preserving the said Library in the House at Westminster, called Cotton-house, in the Name and Family of the Cottons, for the Benefit of the Publick. This Library hath been preserved with the utmost Care and Diligence, by the late Sir Tho. Cotton, Son of Sir Robert, and Sir John Cotton of Westminster, his his Grandson; and very much augmented and enlarged by them. The said Sir John, in Pursuance of the Desire and Intention of his Father and Grandfather, was content and willing that the said Mansion-House and Library should continue in the Family and Name, and not be sold, or otherwise disposed and imbezzeled; and should be kept and preserved by the Name of the Cottonian Library, for publick Use and Advantage.

AND so, by the said Act, immediately upon the Death of Sir John Cotton, it was, together with the Mansion-House, Garden, &c. settled and vested in Trustees, who were to take Care of the said Library, and appoint Orders and Rules for the reading and using the same, and for the better Preservation of Books: And to nominate and appoint a good and sufficient Person, well read in Antiquities and Records, to have the immediate Care and Custody of it, and to give Security to the Value of 500 l. by Recognizance with certain Sureties, that none of the Manuscripts, written Books, &c. should be lost or imbezzeled; and likewise to take an Oath before the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, to use his utmost Care and Endeavour for preserving the same. That the said House, with the Appurtenances and Library, be never subject or liable to any Judgments, Statutes, Recognizances, or any other Incumbrances. The Trustees to be the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper for the Time being, the Speaker of the House of Commons for the Time being, Sir Robert Cotton of Hatley, St. George in the County of Cambridge, Knt. Philip Cotton of Connington in the same County, Esq; Robert Cotton of Giddin in Huntingdonshire, and William Hundbury of the Inner Temple, LONDON, Esqrs; And in Case of the Decease of the last four Persons, the said John Cotton, or other Heir Males of the said Family, who shall be in Possession of the Mansion House, shall nominate or appoint one or more fit Persons to succeed him or them. And that all Bargains, Sales, Gifts, Grants, Devises, or other Alienations whatsoever, of any of the Manuscripts, Parchments, &c. or other Memorials, in the Schedule now remaining in the said Library; and also all Coins, Medals, and other Rarities, therein contained, are hereby declared to be absolutely void, and of none Effect. That within six Months after the Library-Keeper shall undertake the said Office, he shall cause another Schedule to be made in Parchment, which shall contain the Names and Titles of all the said Manuscripts, &c. and all the Number of Pages and Folio's thereunto belonging, and cause the same to be enrolled in the High Court of Chancery.

THERE was a new Catalogue of this Library printed at the Oxford Theatre, Anno 1696, from a careful and serious Review thereof, taken by Tho. Smith, D. D. prefixing the Life of Sir Robert Cotton, the learned Founder, and an History and Survey of the said Library.

THE said Palace, before the Entry thereunto, had a large Court, and in the same a Tower of Stone, containing a Clock, which struck every Hour on a great Bell, to be heard into the Hall in Sitting-time of the Courts, or otherwise: For the same Clock, in a Calm, could be heard into the City of LONDON. King Henry VI. gave the Keeping of this Clock, with the Tower, called The Clock-house, and the Appurtenances, unto William Walsby, Dean of St. Stephen's, with the Wages of Six-pence the Day, out of his Exchequer.

It was first built and furnished with a Clock out of a Fine which one Justice Ingham was obliged to pay, being 800 Marks, for erasing a Roll: For that a poor Man being fined in an Act of Debt at 13 s. 4 d. the said Justice, moved with Pity, caused the Roll to be erased, and made it 6 s. 8 d. This Case Justice Southcote remembered, when Catlyn, Chief Justice of the King's Bench in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, would have ordered a Rasure of a Roll, Southcote; being one of the Judges of that Court, utterly denied to assent to it, and said openly, That he meant not to build a Clock-house.

By this Tower stood a Fountain, which, at Coronations and great Triumphs, was made to run with Wine out of divers Spouts.

ON the East Side of this Court was an arched Gate to the River Thames; with a fair Bridge and Landing-place, for all Men that had Occasion.

ON the North Side was the South End of St. Stephen's-alley, or Chanon-row, and also a Way into the Old Wool Staple: And on the West Side was a handsome Gate, began by K. Richard III. in the Year 1484, and was by him built a great Height, and many good Lodgings in it; but left unfinished, and was called, The High Tower at Westminster.

IN the Palace-yard were antiently Pales, within which were two Messes, the one called Paradise, and the other called the Constabulary; both which were granted to John Duke of Bedford, 13 Hen. 6.

THE Keeper of the Palace of Westminster was also customarily the Keeper of the Prison of the Fleet. This Place Edmund de Cheney had granted to him, with the Fee, 5 and 13 Edw. 3.

THUS much for the Monastery and Palace may suffice. And now we will speak of the Gate-house, and of Tothill-street, stretching from the West Part of the Close.

THE Gate-house is so called of two Gates, the one out of the College-Court toward the North, on the East Side whereof was the Bishop of LONDON's Prison, for Clerks convict: And the other Gate adjoining to the first; but towards the West, is a Jail or Prison, for Offenders thither committed. Walter Warfield, Cellerer to the Monastery, caused both these Gates (with the Appurtenances) to be built in the Reign of King Edward III.

ON the South Side of this Gate, King Henry VII. founded an Alms-house for thirteen poor Men, one of them to be a Priest aged five and forty Years, a good Grammarian; the other 12 to be aged fifty Years, without Wives. Every Saturday the Priest to receive of the Abbot, or Prior, four Pence by the Day, and each other two Pence Half-penny by the Day for ever, for their Sustenance: And every Year to each one a Gown and a Hood ready made. And to three Women that dressed their Meat, and kept them in their Sickness, each to have every Saturday sixteen Pence, and every Year a Gown ready made. More to the thirteen poor Men yearly fourscore Quarters of Coals, and one thousand of good Faggots to their Use. In the Hall and Kitchen of their Mansion, a discreet Monk to be Overseer of them, and he to have forty Shillings by the Year, &c. And hereunto was every Abbot and Prior sworn.

AND the said King, in his last Will, mentioning this Hospital, assured to the Abbot and Convent of Westminster, for the Maintenance thereof, in Lands, to the yearly Value of one thousand Marks.

NEAR this House Westward was an old Chapel of St. Anne, over-against which the Lady Margaret, Mother to King Henry VII. erected an Alms-house for poor Women. Which was afterwards turned into Lodgings for the singing Men of the College. The Place wherein this Chapel and Alms-house standeth, was called the Eleemosynary or Almonry, now corruptly the Ambry; for that the Alms of the Abbey are there distributed to the Poor.

AND

AND therein Islip, Abbot of Westminster, first practised, and erected the first Press of Book-Printing that ever was in England, about the Year of Christ 1471. W. Caxton, Citizen of LONDON, Mercer, brought it into England, and was the first that practised it in the said Abbey. After which Time, the like was practised in the Abbeyes of St. Augustine at Canterbury, St. Alban's, and other Monasteries.

FROM the West Gate runneth along Tothill-Street. Wherein was a House of the Lord Gray of Wilton; and on the other Side, at the Entry into Tothill Field, Stourton House, which Giles, the last Lord Dacre of the South, purchased and built new. Whose Lady and Wife Anne, (Sister to Thomas Lord Buckhurst) left Money to her Executors, to build an Hospital for 20 poor Women, and so many Children to be brought up under them; for whose Maintenance she assigned Lands, to the Value of one hundred Pounds by the Year. Which Hospital her Executors built in the Field adjoining.

FROM the Entry into Tothill Field, the Street is called Petty France: In which, and upon St. Hermit's Hill, on the South Side thereof, Corne- lius van Dun (a Brabander born, Yeoman of the Guard to King Henry VIII. King Edward VI. Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth) built twenty Houses for poor Women to dwell, Rent-free: And near hereunto was a Chapel of Mary Magdalen, now wholly ruined.

IN the Year of Christ 1256, the 40th of Henry III. John Mansell, the King's Counsellour, and a Priest, did invite to a stately Dinner the Kings and Queens of England and Scotland, Edward the King's Son, Earls, Barons, and Knights, the Bishop of LONDON, and divers Citizens. Whereby his Guests did grow to such a Number, that his House at Tothill could not receive them, but that he was forced to set up Tents and Pavilions, to receive his Guests; whereof there was such a Multitude, that seven hundred Messes of Meat did not serve for the first Dinner.

THERE was antiently an House in Westminster, called The Mote, (but where it stood is not known at present); it is called in the Records, Le Mote in Villa de Westminster, granted to John Stonere, 13 Rich. 2.

CHAP. IV.

Of the Government of the City of WESTMINSTER.

THE City of Westminster, for Civil Government, is divided into twelve several Wards: For the which, the Dean of the Collegiate Church of Westminster, or the High Steward, do elect twelve Burgesses, and as many Assistants, that is, one Burgess, and one Assistant, for every Ward. Out of the which twelve Burgesses, two are nominated yearly, upon Thursday in Easter Week, for Chief Burgesses, to continue for one Year next following, who have Authority given them by the Act of Parliament in the 27th of Queen Elizabeth, to hear, examine, determine, and punish, according to the Laws of the Realm, and lawful Customs of the City of LONDON, Matters of Incontinency, common Scolds, Inmates, and common Annoyances; and likewise to commit such Persons as shall offend against the Peace, and thereof to give Notice within twenty-four Hours to some Justice of Peace within the County of Middlesex.

WE shall give some farther Account of this Government, particularly as it was in the Days of Queen Elizabeth: The Burgesses, which were also called Headboroughs, and their Assistants, Answer to the Aldermen of the Wards of LONDON, and their respective Deputies. The Wards belonging to each Burgess or Headborough were not called as they are in LONDON, by some certain fixed Name, but after the Names of the Burgesses that were appointed over them. And here we shall first shew how the twelve Wards of Westminster were bounded, and the Constables belonging to each; and then the Manner of chusing Burgesses, and their Assistants, with other Officers, for the better governing of the Wards.

IN St. Margaret's Parish were eight Wards; in St. Martin's, three; and in St. Clement's and the Strand, one; which were thus bounded, beginning with those in St. Margaret's Parish: The first Ward was from St. Stephen's Alley to the Sanctuary Gate on the East Side of King-Street, the Round Woolstaple only excepted. Of this Ward John Dodington, Gent. was Headborough; and it was commonly called John Dodington's Ward. The second Ward was from the Clowson to the Sanctuary Gate, on the West Side of the same Street, and St. Stephen's Alley. Of this Ward John Fisher, Yeoman, was Headborough, and commonly called John Fisher's Ward. The third Ward was from the Queen's Majesty's Gate in King-street to the Clowson on the West Part, and to St. Stephen's Alley on the East Part of the said Street. Of this Ward, William Staunton, Gent. was Headborough, and commonly called William Staunton's Ward. The fourth Ward was Thieving-lane and Longditch. Of this Ward, John Savage, Yeoman, was Headborough, and it was commonly called John Savage's Ward. The fifth Ward was the new Palace, and Long Woolstaple. Of this Ward, Richard Garret, Ale-brewer, was Headborough, and it was called Richard Garret's Ward. The sixth Ward was the Old Palace, Round Woolstaple, and the Bowling-alley. John Jennings, Inn-keeper, was Headborough of this Ward, and it was called John Jennings's Ward. The seventh Ward was Tothill-street, and Petty France. Thomas Clarke, Cook and Servant to her Majesty, was Headborough of this Ward, and called it Thomas Clarke's Ward. The eighth Ward was the Sanctuary. This Ward was called the Sanctuary Ward. John Collier was called Headborough of this Ward. And then there were three Wards more in the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, and the Headboroughs were as follow: The first Ward here, being the Ninth in Number, was from the Mansion-House of John Shortridge, called the Goats's-head, unto the House of Thomas Fowel, over-against Durham-place, on the Land-side, and from the House of Robert Mansfield, over-against St. Martin's-lane, unto Durham-place on the Water-side. Of this Ward, Ward, Thomas Fowler, Gent. was Headborough, and it was Thomas Fowler's Ward. The second Ward in this Parish, being the tenth Ward in the City of Westminster, was from the House of Thomas Fowel, over-against Durham-place unto the Lord Treasurer Burghley's House, on the Land-side; and from Durham-place unto Ivy-Bridge, on the Water-side of this Ward; John Colbrand, Gent. was Headborough, and it was called John Colbrand's Ward. The third Ward in this Parish, being the eleventh in Number, was from the Goat's-head aforesaid unto the Mews on the Land-side; and from the Mews to the Timber-yard on the Land-side; and from the said Mansfield-house unto the Wall called Scotland-wall, on the Water-side; of this Ward; Davy Powel, Gent. was Headborough.

THE twelfth and last Ward was in the Parish of St. Clement's and Strand, within the Liberty of Westminster. The Bounds of this Ward were from Temple-bar to the White Hart in the Strand. Christopher Gibson, Inn-keeper, was the Headborough of this Ward, and it was called as the rest, by his Name, viz. Christopher Gibson's Ward.

To this City and Liberties belong one High Constable, and to these twelve Wards thirty Petty Constables; that is, to the first Ward, two; to the second, three; to the third, three; to the fourth, three; to the fifth, one; to the sixth, two; to the seventh, five; to the eighth, four; to the ninth, two; to the tenth, one; to the eleventh, one; to the twelfth, which contains St. Clement's and the Strand, three.

IN Case any Ward fell vacant by the Death of the Headborough, or otherwise, the Court usually held in Easter Week, presented three Persons, Inhabitants of the said Ward, to the High Steward, to choose one of the three, according as he thought good; and it was done by them in these Words in Writing, as is found in the Year 1585. "May it please your Honour to be informed, that whereas at this present there is wanting one of the Headboroughs, and so hath continued since the Death of Richard Gibbes; for the Supply whereof may it please your Honour to accept any of these three Persons, whose Names follows." [And then the Names and Qualities of them are set down.]

THE Way of choosing Assistants, was, that the Names of three Persons resident in each respective Ward, were written down, and presented likewise to the High Steward, for Choice by him to be made of one out of the three for each Ward.

AND an High Constable being also to be elected at the aforesaid Court, three fit Persons were likewise presented to him to choose one; and in this Form of Words written: Also there is to be elected and chosen for the said City and Liberties, one other to be High Constable in Place of ——— Staunton. "May it therefore please your Honour to accept one of these three Persons, whose Names follow." [And their Names and Qualities are subscribed.]

AT the same Court, after the twelve Burgeses were elected, then out of them two were elected, which are called Chief, or Head Burgeses.

THERE is also a Chief Officer, which is called the Bailiff of Westminster, who hath his Deputy.

The present Government of WESTMINSTER.

THE City of Westminster it self consists but of one Parish, called St. Margaret's, which is of large Extent; but the Liberties comprehend nine Parishes beside, viz. St. Martin's in the Fields, St. James's, St. George's in Hanover-square, St. Anne's, St. Paul's Covent-Garden, St. Mary Savoy, St. Mary le Strand, St. Clement Danes, and St. John Evangelist in Westminster. For the Government of both the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of St. Peter, are invested with Ecclesiastical and Civil Jurisdiction, and not only within the said City and Liberties, but likewise within the Precincts of St. Martin's le Grand, near Cheapside, LONDON, and in some Towns of Essex, exempted as well from the Jurisdiction of the Bishop of LONDON, as from that of the Archbishop of Canterbury: But the Management of the Civil Part, since the Reformation, is left in the Hands of Laymen, elected for that Purpose from Time to Time, and confirmed by the Dean and Chapter.

OF these Magistrates, the Principal is the High Steward, usually one of the Prime Nobility, who is chosen by the Dean and Chapter, and holds this Office durante vita, the Nature of it being not much unlike the Chancellorship of an University: But upon his Death and Resignation, a Chapter is called for the Election of another, in which the Dean sits as High Steward, till the Election is over. The Deputy Steward, or Under Steward of Westminster, is likewise an Officer of great Note, chosen by the High Steward, and confirmed by the Dean and Chapter.

He holds this honourable Office durante vita, and, as it were, supplies the Place of a Sheriff; for he keeps the Court-Leet, or Town-Court, with the other Magistrates, and is always Chairman at the Quarter-Sessions. Next to him is the High-Bailiff, an Officer of Honour, named by the Dean, and confirmed by the High Steward, holding likewise for Life: He summons the Juries, manages in chief the Election of Members of Parliament for the City, and has all the Bailiffs of Westminster subordinate to him. In the Court-Leet he sits next to the Stewards. All Fines, Forfeitures and Strays belonging to him, which makes his Place beneficial; but is commonly managed by a Deputy Bailiff, a Person well versed in the Law.

THERE are also sixteen Burgeses for the City, and nine for the Liberty, and each of them has an Assistant, whose Office is much like that of the Aldermen of the City of LONDON, every one having a proper Ward under his Jurisdiction; out of their Number two are elected by the Title of Head Burgeses, one for the City, and the other for the Liberties, who take Place in the Court Leet, next to the Head Bailiff. Then there is an High Constable, chosen as the said Burgeses, by the Court Leet, who has all the other Constables under his Direction, and usually continues two Years in his Office.

FOR Ecclesiastical Causes and Probat of Wills there is a Royal Jurisdiction, under a Commissary, from whom no Appeal must be, only to the King in his High Court of Chancery.

Ecclesiastical Government:

Joseph Lord Bishop of Rochester, Dean.
The Rev. Mr. Edward Willis, Subdean, together with eleven other Prebendaries:
Chapter-Clerk, Daniel Gell, Esq;
The Receiver, Owen Davies, Esq;

Civil Government:

The Right Hon. Charles Earl of Arran, High Steward.
His Deputy, John Cotton, Esq;
High Bailiff, David Patton, Esq;
His Deputy, Samuel Baldwyn, Gent.

Chief Burgeses:

Mr. Edw. Hampstead, Mr. Will. Leeson,
Mr. Tho. Churchill, Mr. Will. Baker,
Mr. William Skelton, Mr. James Steadman, Mr. ...

Mr. Philip Davis,	Mr. John Mackreth,
Mr. Will. French,	Mr. Samuel Copley,
Mr. Richard Croft,	Mr. Jeremiah Ridge,
Mr. Thomas Cuthbert,	Mr. Thomas Green.
Mr. Edward York,

Assistants.

Mr. Thomas Carne,	Mr. Thomas Powel,
Mr. Thomas Nowel,	Mr. George Hall,
Mr. John Partridge,	Mr. John Hodgson,
Mr. Richard Ellys,	Mr. Tho. Richmond,
Mr. Roger Jackson,	Mr. Richard Bridge,
Mr. John Williams,	Mr. Geo. Shakespear,
Mr. Charles Napier,	Mr. James Gordon,

Mr. Arthur Rawlinson, Oilman, High Constable.

THE Senior Assistant Burgefs is always chosen High Constable, at the Easter Court-Leet, and holds his Office for a Year or longer: All the Petty Constables in Westminster are in Subordination to him.

Clerk of the Court, Mr. Humphrey Drew.

Coroner, Robert White, Gent.

appointed by the Dean and Chapter, and holds his Office for Life.

THE City and Liberty of Westminster have their Common Jail, the Keeper whereof is appointed by the Dean and Chapter.

THEY have likewise their General Quarter-Sessions of the Peace and Jail-Delivery.

Peter Forbes, Esq; is Clerk of the Peace, and appointed by the Custos Rotulorum.

His Deputy, Samuel Benson, Gent.

Assistant, Mr. Higgs.

AND now to gather up a few Things relating to this City in former Times: Certain Orders were taken at a Court-Leet holden at Westminster the 8th Day of October, in the 25th Year of Queen Elizabeth, by the Right Hon. William Cecil, of the most Noble Order of the Garter, Knight, Baron of Burghley, Lord High Treasurer of England, and High Steward of the City and Liberties of Westminster; and the Right Worshipful Mr. Gabriel Goodman, D. D. and Dean of the Collegiate Church of St. Peter in Westminster, with the Assents and Consents of Richard Gybbes, Thomas Fowler, John Colbrand, &c. Headboroughs of the same City and Liberties, to be observed, performed and kept by the Butchers and Poulterers, as well inhabiting within the said City and Liberties, as all others that should at any Time hereafter utter or sell any Flesh-meat or Poultry-wares within the said City.

First, That there should be chosen, at the Court holden for the said City yearly, and every Year hereafter, two or more discreet and honest Inhabitants, being Residents within the said City and Liberties, Butchers or others, as should be thought most meet, by the Advice, Consent, and Agreement of the said Court; which being elect and sworn, should well and duly, every Market Day, and oftner, as Need should require, search, view, oversee, and peruse all the Butchers and Poulterers, and others, that should put to Sale any Flesh-meat, or Poultry-ware, as well in their several Shops, as also in the Markets: To the Intent that they might not sell any Flesh, or Poultry-ware, but only such as should be wholesome and good for Man's Body: And if they should find any corrupt or unwholesome Flesh, or Fish-meat, or Poultry-ware to be sold or put to Sale, then it should be lawful for them to take it away, and to give it presently among the poor Inhabitants of that Parish where the said Offence should happen to be committed; to be done by the Advice of the Bailiff of the said City, or his Deputy, or one of the Headboroughs.

Item, No Butcher, Poulterer, or Fishmonger, should hang, or lay forth upon their Stalls, any of their Flesh, Fish, or Poultry upon any Sunday, or other usual Holiday; nor upon any other Day not usually accustomed within the City of London; nor to let their Shop Windows stand open after the Hour of Eight of the Clock in the Forenoon, upon any Sunday, or any other usual Holiday, upon Pain to forfeit 3 s. 4 d.

Item, No Butcher to kill any Bull, to the Intent to sell the same, except every such Bull were first chased and baited, presently before the Killing, upon Pain of 3 s. 4 d.

Item, No Butcher to sell or put to Sale any Pieces of Flesh-meat upon the Saturday, which happened to be left upon the Thursday before, only except the same be a whole Quarter of Beef, upon Pain for every such Piece sold or put to Sale, to pay 2 s.

Item, No Butcher or Poulterer, nor any other Person, to put to Sale their Meat or Poultry-ware, but only in their open Shops, and in the common and usual Market-place, and upon the usual Market Day, viz. Saturday, upon Pain to forfeit all such Meat and Ware, and the same to be employed to the Use of the Poor. Notwithstanding this Article, it might be lawful for any Butcher inhabiting within the Parish of St. Margaret's, and not having any Shop in King-street, to keep a Standing in the Market-place in King-street, every Monday, and there to put to Sale their Flesh-meat.

Item, No Butcher nor Poulterer, during such Time as they have any Shops in King-street, not to keep any Standing, nor put to Sale any Flesh or Poultry in the Market-place, but only in their Shops. No Butcher to kill any Flesh-meat out of their Slaughter-house or Shop, in the common Street, nor to scald any Hogs in any of the common Streets and Highways; nor to kill and put to Sale any Pork before the Feast of All Saints. And if any should do to the contrary in any of the said Premises, to forfeit for every such Offence 3 s. 4 d.

Item, No Butcher to pelt or propt any Veal, or cut up the Lean of the Veal with the Kidney, upon Pain to forfeit every Time 12 d.

Item, No Butcher to kill any Yow after the Feast Day of St. Andrew, until the Week next before the Feast of Easter, upon Pain to forfeit, for every Yow so killed, 12 d.

Item, No Butcher, nor any other, to kill and put to Sale any Lamb, after the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel, before the Feast of the Nativity of our Lord, nor blow nor stoppe the Kidney of any Lamb, upon Pain to forfeit 12 d.

Item, If any Butcher or Poulterer, their Wives, Families, or Servants, shall hereafter disobey or misuse those Persons now authorized, or hereafter to be authorized, for the Search and Survey, as aforesaid, in the executing of their said Office, every such Person, so offending, to forfeit for every Time 10 s.

Item, No Butcher, his Wife or Servants, to cast or lay, either in the common Street, or common Sewer, the Head, or Chawld-bone of any Ox, Cow, Bull, or other Beast; neither the Offal of Sheep, or other Beast; neither the Horns of any Beasts, upon Pain to forfeit for any such Offence 12 d.

Item, The Bailiff of the said City, or his Deputy, when, and as often as the said Offences should happen to be committed, and found by Verdict, or otherwise, upon sufficient and apparent Proof, to collect, receive, and take of every such Inhabitant, and others offending in any of the Premises, the Penalties and Sums of Money:

Money : And, according to the Rates aforesaid, the one Moiety to be to the Use of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, and the other Moiety to the Use of the poor People of that Parish where any of the said Offences shall be committed.

AND if any Person offending in the Premises, refuse to make Payment to the said Bailiff or his Deputy, according to the Rates as aforesaid, then it shall and may be lawful for him to distrain so much of the Goods Chattels of every such Person offending, as shall be sufficient for the answering of the same according to the said several Rates; and the said Distress to take, drive, or bear away, and the same to detain and keep, until such Time as he be fully satisfied and paid according to the Intent, Effect and true Meaning of these Presents.

NOW to add a few Things concerning the State of the Poor of this City and the Liberties in former Times, and what the Expences were by the Inhabitants in the several Districts thereof for their Maintenance, and what Care hath been taken for erecting Work-houses and Hospitals, for the poorer Sort, whether Beggars, Vagabonds, or antient decayed People and poor Children.

HERE follows a brief Abstract of the particular yearly Receipts and Payments for the Poor as well of the City of Westminster and Liberties of the same, as also of the Parishes of St. Clement's Danes and Strand, Parcel of the Dutchy of Lancaster; made November 14, 1572.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the poor People within the Parish of St. Margaret's Westminster, 115 l. 5 s. 5 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Receipt of the Parishioners within the said Parish for the Relief of the said Poor, 119 l. 5 s. 4 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the Poor within the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, amounted to 29 l. 8 s.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Receipt of the Parishioners within the said Parish for the Relief of the said Poor, 27 l. 1 s. 8 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the Poor within the Parish of St. Clement's Danes amount to 32 l. 1 s. 4 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Receipts of the Parishioners within the said Parish, for their Relief, 32 l. 18 s. 2 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the Poor within the Parish of Strand, alias Savoy, amounted to 10 l. 16 s. 8 d.

The Sum Total of the Receipts of the Parishioners within the said Parish for the same, 10 l. 15 s. 1 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Charge of the poor People within the Savoy Rents, amounted to 3 l. 9 s. 4 d.

The Sum Total of the Yearly Receipts of the Inhabitants within the said Rents, for their Relief 4 l. 6 s. 8 d.

So that the Sum Total of all the Yearly Charge of the Poor aforesaid, within the several Parishes aforesaid, viz. in the City of Westminster, and the Liberties thereof, for the Year 1572, amounted to 190 l. 13 s. 4 d.

And the Sum Total of all the Yearly Receipts of the several Parishes aforesaid in the said City and Liberties, for the Use of the poor People aforesaid, was 194 l. 7 s.

WHENCE, among other Observations that may be made hence, this is one, how by the vast Increase of the Charges for Maintenance of the present Poor in these Parts, may be conjectured the vast and prodigious Increase of the Inhabitants within an 160 Years, or little more.

THE following Account was brought in to the Lord Burghley, High Steward of Westminster, of the Quantity of Corn and Meal weekly brought, uttered and sold in the Markets at Westminster; and of such Meal as is brought, uttered and sold to the several Bakers at their several Houses; Dec. 8. Ann. Reg. Eliz. 29. 1586, and in a Time (as it seems) of Dearth.

Sum Total of all the Wheat Meal, uttered and sold in Bread by the said Bakers weekly during the Term Time, CLVI Quarters.

Sum Total of all the Wheat-Meal uttered and sold in Bread by the Bakers weekly, out of the Term Time, as aforesaid, LXXXXVI Quarters.

Sum Total of all the Meal uttered and sold weekly as aforesaid, CCLII Quarters.

Sum Total of the Meal and Bread sold in the Market, and the Meal in the Chandlers Shops weekly, XII Quarters.

Sum Total of all the said Meal uttered and sold weekly, CCLXIV Quarters.

Memorand. That there be sundry of the Inhabitants of the said City (who usually from Time to Time do make their own several Provisions of Meal, as well of Wheat as of Rye, and do bake and make Bread of the same for their several Households); the Sum thereof is great, but the Certainty and Number of the same is not perfectly known.

Memorand. The said Bakers, nor any of them will confess, that they bake or put to Sale any Bread made of Rye, but only of Wheat, as aforesaid: And as touching any Store of Corn or Meal as yet it doth not appear, that the said Bakers have any other Provision, but as they from Time to Time make their Provision as aforesaid: And that they do pay for every Bushel of Wheat-Meal, bought as aforesaid, 5 s. 8 d. and sometimes more.

IN the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, about the Year 1560, for the employing of the Idle Poor, and for the relieving of the honest Poor, decayed through Age or Misfortunes, an Hospital was propounded to be erected: Whereof Sir William Cecyl, Knt. Secretary of State, and High Steward of Westminster, was a great Mover. The Way thought on for raising Money to do it, was by a voluntary Contribution of the Inhabitants: And that every Constable should be authorized to gather in their Wards as they could obtain willingly for such an Use; and that those they found backward, and refusing to give, should have their Names taken, and to make Use of a Statute upon them, namely, to fells them 12 d. for every Day's Absence from the Church at the accustomed Service there performed: And, moreover, to take by Way of Loan, a Portion of Money to this Use, to be repaid by a reasonable Space, as should be convented and agreed upon.

That 40 l. at least might reasonably be expected of Cox, Bishop of Ely, who being Dean of Westminster in King Edward VI's Time, had voluntarily promised that Sum for the said Use.

That there should be appointed certain Assistants, as one Prebendary, four Headboroughs, seven Constables, and five Commoners, to be Overseers of the said Hospital, privy to all Things in the House, both of receiving and laying out.

Then for the Works of such as should be taken into the House: That old Women, or middle Aged Aged, that might work, and went a Gooding, should be Hatchilers of the Flax; and one Matron over them.

That common Hedgers, and such like lusty naughty Packs, should be set to Spinning: And one accordingly to be set over them.

That Vagabonds, such as were stout, stubborn, and strong, should make clean the Streets; some to carry away with Wheelbarrows, as the rest did fill them.

Among whom, if any chanced to be Taylors or Shoe-makers, these to be likewise set to their Stitch, to work for the Household.

That young Springals, of whom might be good Hope hereafter, should learn to weave, by one of the Science, who should have a Stipend, and be as Master to them.

Likewise, that Children that were above six, and not twelve Years of Age, should be set to wind Quills to the Weavers.

BUT what Issue and Effect this good Proposal had, is uncertain. Many Years after, Gregory Fines Lord Dacre, and Anne his Wife, intended the founding of an Hospital in Westminster, for which Queen Elizabeth granted Letters Patents to confirm it. This was to have been for the good Education and Nurture of poor Children and Boys, born and to be born within the Parish of St. Margaret in the said City; and for the Relief and Nourishment of poor aged People, and lame and diseased Persons, and for the Correction and Restraint of sturdy Beggars, and idle Vagabonds within the City and Liberty, and Precinct of the same, and within the Parishes of St. Margaret's, St. Martin's in the Fields, the Savoy, and St. Clements Danes. That by this Means poor Children deprived of their Parents, being well educated and instructed, when they shall attain to elder Age, may learn honest Arts and Trades, whereby they may themselves live honestly, and get their own Living: And likewise, that infirm, aged People, weak, lame, and sick Persons, might want nothing necessary to their Life; and other being strong in their Limbs, might be compelled to Labours, and to honest and wholesome Works and Exercises, whereby they might maintain and cherish themselves and others, for the Profit and Benefit of the Commonwealth, and not be permitted to live idly, and wander about the Streets and beg, to the great Offence and Trouble of the Nobles, honourable Persons, Justices, Judges, and Officers of the Queen and her other Subjects, frequently passing towards Westminster, and returning thence, as well in Time of Parliament, as of the Terms.

THIS Hospital was in the Letters Patents to be called, The Hospital of Jesus, in the Parish of St. Margaret in Westminster. And was by Virtue thereof, to be governed by eight discreet and honest Men, who should be called, The Masters the said Hospital of Jesus. The first Masters whereof to be nominated by the said Gregory Lord Dacre, and Anne his Wife, or their Executors, after the Foundation thereof. And the said Masters, and their Successors, to be one Body Corporate and Politick for ever, and to have a common Seal. And upon the Death of any of these eight, or Vacancy of any of their Places, the Survivors and those that remain, might nominate and elect others out of St. Margaret's Parish to succeed: And upon their not so nominating and electing in six Months, the Dean of Westminster to put in one or more fit Person or Persons.

THAT moreover the said Gregory Lord Dacre, and Anne his Wife, might make Statutes and Laws for the Government of the said Hospital, with the Consent of the Dean of Westminster, or

Bishop of London. Four Acres of Land, besides Gardens and Orchards, allowed to be laid to the said Hospital; and the value of five hundred Marks in Manours, Messuages, Lands, Tenements, Rectories, Tithes, or other Hereditaments, for the sustaining and Maintinance of it. This Hospital was founded in Totehill Fields, where it still is; but the present Use of it different from the Contents of these Letters Patents, as will be seen afterwards.

THERE belonged to the Inhabitants of Westminster divers peculiar Privileges and Liberties, which one Thomas Bland, an Under-Sheriff, in the latter end of Queen Elizabeth's Reign invading, viz. 1593, complaint was made thereof to the Lord Burghley, the High Steward: What those Liberties were, and what the Wrongs done thereunto were, the two or three following Papers will shew.

ARTICLES objected against Thomas Bland, Under Sherife of Middlesex, for Wrongs done against the Libertie of Westminster, 22 May, 1593.

1. Item, That the said Undersherife refuseth to make Warrants upon Writts unto him directed, being thereunto required: Whereby the Baliffe is damified, and the Plaintiff hindered.

2. Item, That he resteth by himselfe and his Officers, in both Pallaces at Westminster.

3. Item, That he chardgeth Prisoners in the Gatehouse with Writts, the Prison being within the Libertie of Westminster, and wholly to the Use of the Officers there.

4. Item, That he removeth out of the same Prison by Writ of Habeas Corpus, Prisoners committed by the Baliffe.

5. Item, That upon a Capias ut legat. he arresteth within the Libertie by special Baliffes, notwithstanding that the Graunt made and confirmed by her Majestie, to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster; wherein Authoritie is given to the Baliffe, to execute and retorne all Bills, Warrants, Precepts, and Writts, although they concerne any Way the King's Person; and that it shall not be lawfull for any Steward, Marshall, or Sheriffe, to enter, for any Cause, without Licence of the Officers for the Time being, as more at large appeareth in the Graunt.

And these are the Causes that he mainteyneth, and partly to be answered in the Common Pleas.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Burghley, Lord High Treasurer of England.

MAIE it please your good Lordship, to be informed, that Thomas Bland, now Deputie Sheriffe of the Countie of Middlesex, hath, within three Daies paste, called in Question, before the Judges of the Common Pleas, your Lordship's Authoritie within the Libertie of Westminster; and summoned me, as Deputie to your Lordship's Baliffe there, to hear and answer his Objections; which I cannot do, without your Lordship's Pleasure therein knowne. And forasmuche as the like Enterprise hath not been done by any Undersheriffe that I can learne of, since her Majestie came to the Crowne, nor any Time before, for the Space of one hundreth Yeres. It maie therefore please your Lordship, in respect that the Baliffe of Westminster hath the executing and retorning of all the King's Writts by speciall Wordes, to direct your honourable Letters to the said Undersheriffe; that he may surcease his Suite at his Perill untill further Councell maie be taken of of the Cause : Or else such further Order as unto your Lordship's Wisdom shall be thought meete.

Your Lordship's most bounden,

RALPHE DOBBINSON.

UPON which Petition, the Lord Burghley made this Order : " To repaire to Mr. Sergeant Owen, whom I pray to report to me his Opinion touching this Cause.

W. BURGHLEY.

Lastly, let me subjoin the Act or Acts of Parliament for the standing Government of this City.

IN the 27 Eliz. was an Act of Parliament made for the good Government of the City and Burrough of Westminster. This was but temporary ; but it continued from one Parliament to another, until the 17 Car. I. then to continue till some Act of Parliament should be made touching the Continuance or Discontinuance of this and other Acts and Statutes made in the 3d of the said King. The Act 27 Eliz. was printed Anno 1678, the Contents whereof are, " That this City and Burrough, and the Liberties thereof, be for ever hereafter severed and divided, as it hath been accustomed, into twelve Wards. That the Dean of Westminster, or High Steward, or his Deputy, yearly, on Thursday in Easter Week, for ever, do nominate or elect twelve sufficient Persons to be Burgeses ; and they to be Merchants, Artificers, or others using any Trade within the City or Burrough, or other Persons as are willing thereunto. The Dean and High Steward, or his Deputy, to appoint the Government of a Ward to every one of the said Burgeses. They to continue for one Year : And so from Year to Year, during their natural Lives ; except for some Offence or Mismanagement : Then to be displaced by the Dean or High Steward. Any Person resiant, refusing to accept the said Room, to forfeit 10 l. to the Use of the Poor, to be levied by the Bailiff of the Liberties of the Dean and Chapter, by Way of Distress. The Burgeses to take the Oath of Supremacy, and a Corporal Oath, to do and execute all Things to them appointed and authorized by this Act. The Dean, High Steward, or Deputy, with the Burgeses, or the better Part of them, within ten Days after the Election of the said Burgeses, to nominate twelve other able Persons within the same Burrough, Merchants, Artificers, &c. to be Assistants to the twelve Burgeses. They to accept the same Charge, upon Forfeiture of 5 l. to be employed as before ; and to take the like Oaths as before said. Unto every of the twelve Wards, one of these Assistants to be appointed. The said twelve Burgeses and twelve Assistants, and every two of them, within the several Wards to them appointed, to deal in every thing as Aldermen's Deputies in LONDON do, or may do. These Assistants to continue in their Places one whole Year. If any of the Burgeses or Assistants die, or otherwise upon reasonable Cause be removed, then the Dean, High Steward, or his Deputy, from Time to Time to nominate and appoint other meet and able Persons of State, Faculty, and Quality, as afore said, to supply the Place, to continue in the same until Thursday in Easter Week. On that Day, the Dean, High Steward, or his lawful Deputy, to appoint two Persons out of the said Burgeses, to be called or known by the name of the two Chief Burgeses, to continue one Year. And this upon pain of 10 l. to be paid as afore said. The Dean, High Steward, or Deputy, the two Chief Burgeses, the ten Burgeses, or any three

" of them, whereof the Dean, High Steward, or Deputy, to be one, and, one of the Chief Burgeses to be another, may hear, examine, determine, and punish, according to the Law of the Realm, or laudable and lawful Customs of the City of LONDON, all Matters of Incontinency, common Scolds, and of Inmates, common Annoyances, &c. And to have Authority to commit to Prison such Persons as within the said City offend against the Peace, and within 24 Hours to give Notice of it to some Justice of the Peace of the County. All good Orders, and Ordinances, made by the Dean and High Steward, with the Assistance of the Burgeses, concerning the Government of the said Inhabitants, not repugnant to the Queen's Prerogative, nor the Laws of the Land, shall stand in full Force and Strength. Nothing in this Act to be prejudicial to the Steward, Marshal, or Coroner of the Queen's Household, nor to the Authority of Justices of Peace, nor to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, nor to the High Steward there, or his Deputy, nor to the Mayor, Society, and Clerk of the Staple, High Constable, Bailiff of the Liberty, Town Clerk, or Clerk of the Market : Nor any Search to be made by any other Officer in the City of Westminster.

" If the Dean of Westminster, and the High Steward, or his Deputy, be remiss and negligent in chusing and nominating the Burgeses at the Time limited, then it shall be lawful for two Justices of the Peace of Middlesex to nominate and chuse the said Burgeses : Who being so chosen, shall occupy and enjoy the said Rooms upon Pains afore said. These Burgeses not compellable by this Act to remain in their Place above one Year next after such Choice. And such Persons as have paid any Sums of Money for Refusal, shall not be nominated again to any the said Place, within the space of five Years next following. The Chancellor or Steward of the Dutchy of Lancaster to have Power as the Dean of Westminster, &c. within that Dutchy Liberty. This Act not to extend to the College or Cloze of Westminster, for any Offence within the Circuit thereof. The Burgeses not to hear or determine any thing without the Consent of the said Dean, or High Steward, or Deputy. The Searchers of the Sanctuary of Westminster shall have, within the said Sanctuary, the Execution and serving of all Proceses, Commandments, and Warrants, and the Attachment and Apprehension of all Manner of Offenders within the Sanctuary, and within the Scite, Circuit, and Precinct thereof.

The present State of the City of WESTMINSTER.

WE are now to shew the modern and present State of this City, which is grown vastly populous, and improved within these hundred Years. For whereas antiently it was about a Mile from LONDON, Fields lying between, except Houses thinly built in the Road from one City to the other, now all is built contiguously, in Length and Breadth containing a great Compass, and that with very noble and magnificent Structures. This City is of great Renown, containing two Royal Palaces, namely, St. James's, and Somerset-house, the ordinary Places of Residence for the Kings and Queens of England ; likewise many other noble Palaces for the Habitation of the Peers, and Persons of the highest Rank in the Kingdom : Famous also for the Tribunals, and publick Courts of Justice, where the Lord Chancellor, the Lords Chief Justices, and the rest of the King's Judges sit, to hear and determine the Causes of the People of the Land, according cording to Equity and Truth, and the Laws, Statutes, and original Customs: And, lastly, a City of peculiar and extraordinary Honour for the Parliament-Houses of Lords and Commons situate here; whereby is occasioned a frequent Resort hither of all the great Estates of the Kingdom.

WE shall now describe the several Parts, Parishes and Places as they now are:

St. Margaret's.

THIS Parish is of large Extent, and bounded mostly by the Parishes of St. Martin's in the Fields, and St. John Evangelist. It has in it the following Streets, Lanes, &c.

IN Petty France Division are: Chapel-street, Dacre-street, Castle-yard, White-bart-yard, Pipe-alley, St. Ermin's-hill, the Broad-way, Petty France, Codpiece-court, George-and-Plough-yard, Gardener's-lane, Pump-alley, Smith's-court; Part of Knight's-bridge; Part of Kensington, Edward's-court, Horse-shoe-alley, Hopkin's-row, Kitter's-yard, White-bart-lane, Castle-lane, Powder-beef-court, Mustard-court, James's-street, Ship-yard, Queen's-square.

In Sanctuary and Deanry Ward, are:

Part of King-street, Little-sanctuary, Broad-sanctuary, Green's-alley, Love-lane, St. Margaret's-church-yard, Dean's-yard, part of Stable-yard, part of College-street.

In Long Ditch Ward, are:

Thieving-lane alias Bow-street, Bell-alley, Star-alley, Rose-court, Broken-cross, Long-ditch, Ogleby's-court, Angel-court, Prince's-court, Queen-street, Park-prospect, John-street, Bennet's-street, Cork-cutter's-alley.

In King-street West Ward, are:

In King-street North Ward are:

Part of King-street; Part of Duke-street; Part of Charles-street, Crown-court, Bell-yard, Sea-alley, Axe-yard, Duffin's-court, Downing-street, Privy-garden, Tilt-yard, Battersby's-court, Pensioners-alley, Brewers-yard, and Rhenish-wine-yard.

In Tothill-street North Ward are:

Tothill-street, Wyatt's-alley, Dartmouth-street, Carteret-street, Park-street, Broad-way, Little Almonry, Dukes-court, Great Almonry, New-way, and New Tothill-street.

In New Palace-yard Ward are:

NUMBER of Houses in this Parish are about 2350.

King-street begins at the Confines of the Palace of Whitehall, and leads from thence to Westminster Abbey: And by a turning Passage Eastward through the Gatehouse, leads into the New Palace-yard; which is a spacious Place, convenient for the Reception and Standing of Coaches in the Term-time, and Sessions of Parliament; and is graced with Buildings well inhabited. Here is the common Entrance into Westminster- hall, where the Judges sit; and here is Westminster-bridge, for taking Boat, for such as are minded to go to LONDON, or elsewhere, by Water. On the South is a narrow Passage into Channel [or Chanon] Row. Out of this New Palace-yard is a Passage on the West through St. Margaret's-lane, North into the Old Palace-yard, a spacious Place, also well built. Here, toward the East, the Lords of Parliament, brought in their Coaches or Chairs, go up to their House, as do the Kings and Queens, when they go to Parliament. More on the Left Hand is a narrow and darkish Passage, in which is Cotton-house; wherein was kept that invaluable Collection of Manuscripts, known by the Name of the Cotton Library. A little farther in this Passage on the Left, is a Pair of Stone Stairs leading up to St. Stephen's Chapel, now the House of Commons. By the same Passage we are led into Westminster-hall, entering Northward. In this Old Palace-yard, in the North-West Corner, is an House, where the Originals of the Rolls of Parliament are repositied. Westward from this Palace-yard is a Passage along by King Henry VII's Chapel into Westminster Abbey, by the little East Door.

King-street is better inhabited than built, the Houses being generally built after the old Way, with Timber and Plaster, and the Street somewhat narrow, which causes Stoppage sometimes by Reason of Multitudes of Coaches passing backwards and forwards; for it is a very great Thorough-fare, being the common Passage to Westminster-hall, and the Parliament-house. And, for the Accommodation of such as come to Town in the Terms, here are in this Street some good Inns for their Reception, and not a few Taverns for Entertainment, as is not unusual in Places of great Confluence.

ON both Sides of this Street are several Alleys and Courts, and we shall begin with those on the East Side, next the Gatehouse.

THE said Gatehouse is a Prison for the Liberty of Westminster, the Prison being some Years since removed from the old Gatehouse by Tothill-street, this being more convenient. The Market, called King-street, or Westminster Market, a large open Place, with a Market-house in the Midst, with Stalls and Shops round about, made use of by Butchers, Poulterers, and others, for Sale of Provisions, the Market being well served and resorted unto. Whitehouse-yard has a Passage into Channel-row; but since the last Fire that happened there, most of the Houses still lie in their Rubbish. Ladies-alley, very small and inconsiderable. Stephen's-alley, a handsome Street, it being the Passage for Coaches into Channel-row. The Rhenish-wine-yard, an ordinary Place, so called from the Rhenish-wine-house at the upper End, seated in Channel-row. Brewers-yard, a Passage for Carts to the Wood-wharf by the Thames towards the upper End, where it hath a Passage into Channel-row, indifferent good. Pensioners-alley, a very narrow Passage out of King-street; but the upper End, where it falls into Brewers-yard, is indifferent broad: Out of this Place there is a Door into the Privy-garden of Whitehall, generally kept open during the Sessions of Parliament, and in Term-times, by Favour; which much facilitates the Passage to Westminster-hall from Whitehall.

Channel, or Chanon-row, running from South to North, formerly called St. Stephen's-alley, as belonging to the Dean and Canons of St. Stephen's Chapel, who were there lodged; but afterwards became inhabited by divers of the Nobility and Gentry, having then good Houses, with Gardens towards the Thames; amongst which, was one belonging to the Earls of Derby, which was made use of in the Reign of King Charles II. for the Admiralty Office, now the greatest Part being converted converted into Dwelling-houses, which are well inhabited, and bears the name of Derby-court, which goeth as far as the Thames, having a good Freestone Pavement, always cleanly kept, and lying something higher than Channel-row. Near where the Lord Derby's House stood, was another handsome House belonging to Henry Clinton, Earl of Lincoln; also another large House belonging to the Montagues, lately built into a very fine Court, which hath a handsome Freestone Pavement, and good Houses well inhabited, and bears the Name of Manchester-court, very pleasant towards the Thames. Dorset-court, built on the place where Dorset-house stood: It is a very handsome open Place, containing but six Houses, which are large and well built, fit for Gentry to dwell in; of which those towards the Thames have Gardens towards the Water side very pleasant, The Woolstaple, a very ordinary Place or Lane, but lying on the Backside of the new Palace-yard, unto which it hath a Passage out of Channel-row, and another into the Market, as also into King's-street by the Gatehouse: This Place was of greater Note when the Woolstaple was here kept than now it is, only now retaining its old Name: At the upper End of this Place, near the Thames, are the King's Alms-houses for eight Men, each having two Rooms, which they let out to profit, besides about 5 l. per Ann. Bennet's-court, a very handsome place, with good built Houses, well inhabited, with pretty Gardens before them, and hath a handsome Freestone Pavement to the Thames side; but the Entrance into this Court is narrow, and not ornamental, as those of Derby or Manchester-courts. The other side of Channel-row is but ordinary.

WE shall next speak of the Places on the West Side of King's-street, beginning with those next Whitehall, and the first that offers itself is,

Downing-street, a pretty open Place, especially at the upper End, where are four or five very large and well built Houses, fit for Persons of Honour and Quality; each House having a pleasant prospect into St. James's-park, with a Terras Walk. Duffin's-alley, which at present hath but a few Houses; but those are well built, and in time the whole Alley, without doubt, will be built. Ax-yard, a Place of no great Beauty for Buildings, having a very narrow and ill Entrance; but the Part towards St. James's-park is the best, as enjoying something of a Prospect into the Park: The Houses here are much used by Lodgers. Sea-alley of mean Account in all Respects. Bell-court, a pretty large Place, with good Buildings; at the upper End, ascending by Stone Steps, is Rose and Crown-court, a fine, large, and well built Place, the Houses fit for Gentry, with a good Freestone Pavement: The upper End of this Court cometh into Duke-street, and hath a Passage into Charles-street. Gardiner's-lane, of a great length, running up into Duke-street; a Place not over well built or inhabited: On the North side is Poultry-yard, very inconsiderable; and on the South side is Bowman's-court, a pretty handsome square, and well built Place; and on the other side is Cherry-court, an indifferent good Place; Antelope-alley, indifferent good; Blue-boar-inn, a place of good Custom, the Yard being large, with some Houses in it. George-yard and Inn, also a considerable large Place for Stablings, and hath a Passage, as hath the Blue-boar-inn into De-la-hay-street, adjoining to Duke-street. Bell-alley, but small and ordinary, the greatest Part at present not built. Fountain-court, very inconsiderable. Thieving-lane, so called, for that Thieves were led that Way to the Gatehouse by Tutthil-street, whilst the Sanctuary continued in force: This Place by some is called Bow-lane, from its turning passage into Broken-cross or Long-ditch, like a bent Bow: The Houses are not over well built, and divers of its Inhabitants drive a Trade in second hand Goods: In this Lane are these Alleys, viz. Eagle-alley, also Star-alley or Court, with a Passage into Scot's-alley, Froget's-alley, all small Places of little Account. Round-court, a pretty handsome new built Place, which hath a Passage in Thieving-lane, and another into Angel-court.

BEHIND this North Side of King's-street, is Charles-street, a fine large Street, not many Years built, with good Houses well inhabited: And Duke-street, new built with good Houses well inhabited, especially that side towards St. James's-park, the back Windows having a pleasant Prospect thereon, and many of the Inhabitants have the Favour of a Door out of their Garden into the Park, which is no small Benefit.

At the South End of this Street was seated a large House, made Use of for the Admiralty Office, until it was thence removed to Wallingford House against Whitehall, as more convenient, and built at King William's Charge. This House was first built for the late Lord Jeffreys, Lord Chancellor to King James II., and for his Accommodation the said King permitted a fair pair of Freestone Stairs to be made into the Park. Then passing by this House on the same Side, beginneth a short Street called De-la-hay-street, which falleth into Long-ditch, so called from the Ditch which almost encompassed this Part of Westminster; now all dried up, and converted into Streets and Houses: A Place of no great Account for Houses or Inhabitants.

IN this Street are these Courts and Alleys; Prince's-court, ascended to by Stone Steps, a very handsome open Place, with a Freestone Pavement, and having well built and inhabited Houses, especially on that Side that fronteth St. James's-park. Angel-court, a new built Place, with a Passage into Round-court, and thence into Thieving-lane. Maiden-lane, somewhat large, but not well built; at the upper End is a Passage up Freestone Steps into a pretty handsome Place, with good Buildings, called Park-prospect, as having a Prospect on the Park, and hath its Passage into it out of Queen-street. White's-alley, a long but inconsiderable Place. Golden-lyon-court, also very ordinary. Ogilbey's-alley, and Red-cross-alley, both very small Places.

THE Broad Sanctuary, formerly of more Note than at present, when it enjoyed the Privilege of a Sanctuary. It is a very handsome broad and open Place, adjoining to St. Margaret's Church-yard, from whence it is severed by a Wall, and hath the Prospect of the Abbey: At the West End is a Place called Love-lane, being against the old Gatehouse. About the Middle of this Place is a handsome Court called Green's-alley, which hath a Passage into Thieving-lane; and more Eastwards is the Little Sanctuary, which cometh into King-street, near St. Margaret's Church, an indifferently large Place, with well built Houses: Then is St. Margaret's Church, a very decent large Church, being the Parish Church, for the Use of the Inhabitants.

THE Gatehouse, West of St. Peter's, which gives Entrance into Tutthil-street, is a Place so called, of two Gates; the one out of the College-court, or Great Dean's-yard: On the East Side whereof was the Bishop of London's Prison for Clerks Convict; and the other Gate adjoining to the first, but towards the West of the Prison, for Offenders thither committed for the Liberty or City of Westminster.

ON the South side of this Gatehouse, King Henry VII. founded an Alms House for 13 poor aged Men that were single, and one of them to be a Priest, and a good Grammarian; and this Priest was to receive of the Prior or Abbot, every Sunday,

Sunday, 4 d. a Day for himself, and 2 d. ob. by the Day for every one of the 13 Men, for their Maintenance for ever; likewise every one to have yearly a Gown and a Hood: Besides, there was allowed to the 13 Men, 80 Quarters of Coals, and 1000 Faggots for their Fuel: To these 13 Men, there were three Women allowed to dress their Meat, and to attend them, and each to have, every Saturday, 16 d. besides a Gown every Year; and in the Hall and Kitchen, there was appointed a discreet Monk to be their Overseer, for which he was to have 40 s. a Year. These Alms Houses are now called the King's Alms Houses, and are for 12 Men and their Wives, each Man and his Wife having the Allowance of 6 l. 6 s. 8 d. per Ann. besides Coals, &c.

NEAR unto this House, Westward, was an old Chapel of St. Ann, over-against which the Lady Margaret, Mother to King Henry VII. built an Alms House for — poor Women. Which was afterwards converted into Lodgings for the Singing Men of the College, now called the Choiristers Rents; which are so ruinous, that they are not inhabited. This Place, wherein this Chapel and Alms House stood, was called the Eleemosynary, now called the great Almshouse: For that the Alms of the Abbey were there given to the Poor; and here Islop, the Abbot of Westminster, in the Year 1471, set up the first Printing-Press that ever was in England; and after that, the like was done in the Abbeys of St. Augustine at Canterbury, also at St. Albans, and other Monasteries. This is a handsome open Place, with good Buildings, and hath a Passage into the New-way which leadeth into Orchard-street, another into the little Almshouse, which is an indifferent good Court, and another into Tutthil-street, thro' a small Alley called the Paved-alley.

Great-dean's-yard, a fine open Square, enclosed with Rails and Elm Trees; the East side is taken up with the Dean's House, the School, and other Buildings; and the South and West sides also with good Buildings: On the East side is the Little-dean's-yard, with a Passage into the Cloysters that belongs to the Abbey, a very handsome open Place, with good Buildings, inhabited by Gentry and Persons of Quality. And on the North Side is a Place called the Stable-yards, at the Entrance into which are good Houses, but that Part leading to Orchard-street, is taken for Stabling and Coach-houses, but near the Entrance is a new built Court, called College-court, with handsome genteel Houses, with a Freestone Pavement, which hath a Thorough-fare Passage; and Westward this Dean's-yard openeth itself into the Bowling-alley by the dead Wall, now called Dean's-street.

Tutthil-street hath good Buildings, and is well inhabited by Shopkeepers and others. In this Street are these Alleys and Places of Name; Walker's-yard, a very ordinary Place; Swan-inn, indifferent good; Frying-pan-alley, a small narrow Place; Fleece-yard, a good handsome Inn; Threc-tun-alley, a little small Passage into the Great Almshouse; Cock-inn, or Yard, a Place for Stabling.

Dartmouth-street, a very handsome open Street, graced with good Buildings, fit for the Reception of Gentry; the Upper End of it butts against John-street, being a Row of new built Houses.

MORE Westward in Tutthil-street is Park-street, the Upper End of which is a handsome open Square, with very good Houses, well inhabited, especially that Side that fronts St. James's-park, having a delightful Prospect therein, with the Conveniency of Doors out of their Gardens into the same; and here is a very fine Cock-pit, called the King's Cock-pit, well resorted unto. George and Plough-yard, an ordinary built Place.

Pipe-alley, a narrow Place, with ordinary Buildings. White-hart-yard, a good handsome Court, nigh unto which is White-hart-lane, an ordinary Place. Green-dragon-court, but mean and narrow. Twiford-alley, very ordinary.

Petty-france, a good handsome Street, which cometh out of Tutthil-street, and runneth into James's-street; and here, upon St. Hermit's-hill, Cornelius Van Dun, a Brabanter, one of the Yeomen of the Guards to K. Hen. VIII. Edw. VI. Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, built Alms-houses for 20 poor Women, each to have seven Groats a Week: And adjoining hereunto was a Chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, long since converted to other Uses. Kidder's-yard, an ordinary Place. Codpiece-court, but indifferent. Gardener's-lane, a pretty handsome thorough-fare into Tutthil-fields, against more Alms-houses. Ship-yard, a pretty handsome Court. Scotford's-alley, hath a narrow Passage into Tutthil-fields.

Cabbage-lane, very long, but ordinary, at the Upper End of which is Green's Brewhouse, being a very low Place, with a handsome new Brick House, pleasantly seated in an open Air. In this Lane is Powder-beef-alley, and Mustard-alley, both very ordinary.

At the Upper End of Petty-france, is James-street, which runneth beyond Tart-hall (belonging to the L. Stafford's) unto Buckingham-house, pleasantly seated by St. James's-park: One Side of this Street hath good built Houses well inhabited, and the other Side the Wall of St. James's-park; and at Stafford's House the Bounds of this Parish ends; one Part being in this, and the other Part in the Parish of St. Martin's-in-the-fields.

Chapel-street, so called from the new Chapel there seated:

THIS Chapel belongs to the Parish of St. Margaret's. There is a South Window given by Sir William Wheeler having this Inscription:

Deo & huic Sacello Gulielmus Wheeler, Mil. & Baronettus hanc fenestram consecravat.

THE Vestry raiseth the Minister's Salary by taxing the Pews; so much upon those that sit in them. The last Friday in every Month is a Preparation Sermon for the Sacrament here preached.

MONUMENTS against the Wall, and on the Ground, for Persons here buried, are these:

Against the North Wall. Jane Catharine 'Squire. On whose immature Death the Father made these Verses.

The Grandame, the full fourscore Years and two, Wrought in this Vineyard: Left she nought to do. For you, my Babes, who had but just begun, To tread the Winepress, and your Work is done: Yet blessed be Jesus, who will freely pay, You even with those, who wrought out all the Day. In his safe Arms, I leave your Souls, who said, Being such to me, of such my Kingdoms made.

1674.

Hugh 'Squire.

Also of his Son William, 1677.

Bereav'd I am of those; there was left one, But now he (tho' my Benjamin) is gone, And I must die, whose Lot 'tis now to have My gray Hairs go with Sorrow to the Grave. God is my Comfort still, when none survive, The News may come; Joseph is still alive: If not, yet God can turn all to the Best, Therefore my Soul, return unto thy Rest.

South Isle. Robert Blagden, 1697; and Joanna his Wife, 1694; and Elizabeth his Daughter, Wife of Thomas Long, Citizen of London, 1696; and Jonathan Blagden, their Son, 1699.

Jonathan Glover, Son of Thomas, 1703.

Mary Searche, Daughter of Robert Searche of London, Merchant, 1665.

This Chappel-street is a handsome broad Place with good Buildings, which falleth into Stretton Ground. Out of this Place is Torment's-hill, which leads to Torment's-rents, where there are some Alms-houses, and other ordinary Buildings, with Stable Yards and a Brewhouse. It falleth in Tutbill-fields; and there are Alms-houses for 28 poor old Women; the Gift of one Mr. Hill; but the Overseers of the Poor of this Parish, being left Trustees, they are call'd, The Parish Alms-houses.

Passing out of Chappel-street, more towards the Chapel, is a Place call'd Tutbill-side, which falls into Tutbill-fields, in this Place are these Alms-houses, viz. Butler's Alms-house, for four Men and their Wives, which have the Allowance of 10 s. the Month. And if either the Man or the Wife die, then the Survivor to continue in the same Room, with the Allowance of 5 s. a Month; These Alms-rooms are very neat built, with a pretty Garden-plot to each behind, and a handsome Wall before, in common to them, with a Row of Trees. And joining to this Alms-house, are Mr. Wicher's Alms-houses, very handsomely built, with a Chapel in the Midst, for reading of Prayers, and a Garden-plot behind to each, with a handsome Freestone Paved Walk, and a Row of Trees, as was to Mr. Butler's: It is for six antient Men, and to each the Allowance of 10 s. a Month, besides Coals and a blue Gown every two Years.

On the Back-side of these Alms-houses, are those of Mr. Palmer's, built in his Life, for six Men, and as many Women, all single Persons. And each to have the Allowance of 7 s. a Month, besides half a Chaldron of Coals, and a black Gown, with a Badge on it every two Years: There is also allowed, a Reader for Prayers to the Alms-People twice a Day, who hath a handsome Apartment for himself and his Wife, if any; together with a yearly Allowance in Money; and, besides his reading of Prayers, he is to teach about twenty Boys gratis: But what more he teaches, he is paid for; and these Boys have Black Gowns and Caps, which they are to wear when they are to attend at the Funerals of any of the Governors of this Hospital, to whom the Care of the Management is committed, according to the Donor's Will. And these Houses have Backsides or Gardens, with a handsome Walk, and a Row of Trees before them; the Chapel and School is in the Midst.

St. Margaret's-lane falls into the Old Palace-yard, a great Thorough-fare for Horse and Coach, to the Horse-ferry, and especially for Coaches, in the Time of the Sessions of Parliament, into the Old Palace-yard, to the House of Lords: Here is a Place on the East Side, called the Fish-yard; which is pretty square, but hath no good Buildings; and this Lane being but narrow, and so pestered with Coaches, which renders it dirty and incommodious, doth occasion it to be but ordinarily inhabited. Near the Entrance of this Lane, out of the New Palace, is a Place with a Free-stone Pavement, indifferent well built, which hath a narrow Passage into King-street by the Horn-Tavern, and another Passage into the New Palace-yard.

THE Old Palace-yard is a good large Place, fit for the Reception of Noblemens Coaches in the Time of Parliament, and has very good Houses round about, except that Part taken up by King Henry VII's Chapel into St. Margaret's Church-yard, which serves at such Times, when the Abbey is shut up.

THE next is the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields.

ALTHOUGH such large Portions of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields have been, by Acts of Parliament, taken away from it, and proportioned out into three distinct Parishes; as, St. Paul Covent-garden long since, St. James and St. Anne's more lately; yet it remains a very great Parish, and too populous for one Church to receive the Inhabitants.

FOR an Account of the Saint to whom this Church is dedicated, see Vol. I. Book III. pag. 686.

THIS Church is said to be in the Fields because there were not any Streets, or Houses near it, when it was first built.

WE can give no Account when the last Church was founded, History being silent therein; it was very small till the Year 1607, when the Chancel was taken out of the Church-yard, and built on; and about that Time it was repaired and beautified. It was new beautified wholly in the Year 1688, and again in 1701. The Enlargement above-mentioned was done partly at the Expence of King James I. and Prince Henry his eldest Son, who was then the Glorious Hope of England; the rest at the Parish Charge. It was rebuilt by Act of Parliament, and finished Anno 1726, partly at the Expence of the Owners of Lands, Houses, and Tenements, and partly by the Inhabitants. At the West End are these Words in Capitals:

D. SACRAM.ÆDEM. S. MARTINI PAROCHIANI EXTRUI FECIT,
A. D. MDCCXXVI,

And underneath:

JACOBO GIBBS ARCHITECTO.

" THE Portico of this Church (says the Author of A Critical Review of the Publick Buildings) is at once elegant and august, and the Steeple above it ought to be considered as one of the most tolerable in Town: If the Steps arising from the Street to the Front could have been made regular, and on a Line from End to End, it could have given it a very considerable Grace; but as the Situation of the Ground would not allow it, this is to be esteemed rather a Misfortune than a Fault. The round Columns, at each Angle of the Church, are very well conceived, and have a very fine Effect in the Profile of the Building. The East End is remarkably elegant, and very justly challenges a particular Applause. In short, if there is any Thing wanting in this Fabrick, 'tis a little more Elevation, which, I presume, is apparently wanted within, and would create an additional Beauty without. I can't help thinking too, that in Complaisance to the Galleries, the Architect has reversed the Order of the Windows, it being always usual to have the large ones nearest the Eye, and the small (by Way of Attick-Story) on the Top.

MONUMENTS of old Time in St. Martin's Church in the Fields, were these ensuing.

ON the South Side is a fair Monument, with this Inscription:

Arthur Gregory married Christian.

Otho Maudit married Elizabeth.
Here lies buried William Downes whom God hath taken to his Mercy; who believed that he should rise at the last Day, and see the glorious Majesty of God, and receive Life everlasting. Who while he lived here had two Wives, Margaret Ward, and Elizabeth Rolfe. Who had by his first Wife one Son and one Daughter, and by his second Wife two Sons and four Daughters. Who died the 26th of September 1589.

John Thorp married Margaret.

William Brest married Mary.

ANOTHER Monument there also, with this Inscription:

Here lieth the Body of Thomas Foulter, Esq; borne in Wicam, in the County of Lancaster; who was Controulor and Paymaster of the Works to Queen Mary, and to our Sovereigne Lady Queene Elizabeth, by the Space of ten Yeeres. He was very charitable to the Poore in his Lifetime, and at his Death he gave by Will out of his Dwelling-house, a perpetual Annuity of 40 Shillings by the Yeere, to be given to 20 poore Householders of this Parish at Christmas for ever. He had in Marriage three Wives, Ellen, Margaret, and Elizabeth, which also lye here intombed. He surviving them, having no Child at his Death, made three of his old Servants, namely, Henry Bludder, Matthew Switzer, and William Humphrey, his Executors. Who, in Remembrance of him, have caused this Monument to be made.

ANOTHER on the South Side thus inscribed:

Expectans Gloriam.

Juxta hoc requiescit John Bembow, Arm. deputatus clerici Coronæ in curia Cancellarii D. Regis. In quo officio, per spatium 40 An. Industriam præstitit, expiravit die Veneris 7 Octob. An. 1625. Termino sexaginta Annor. Ætatis suæ finito. Très habuit uxores, Dorotheam Prowde, & Catherinam Sparkes, eodem tumulo sepultas. Per quas genuit liberos etiam perfunctos, & Elizabetham Hodges modo extantem, quæ sibi duos peperit filios, Gulielmum Bembowe, Ætatis 4. & 6. Mensium: Et Johannem Bembowe posthumum, tres tantum Hebdomadas viventem, cum patre humatum.

THIS Monument was near unto the other, and hath this Inscription:

Here lieth the Corpes of John Worsley [born in Whitchurch in Salop] Gentleman, who was Messenger to Queen Elizabeth, by 20 Yeeres Space. He died the 25th of March, 1595. in the 37th Yeere of her Raigne, being aged 40 Yeeres. He gave to be paid yeerely upon each Christmas Day, during the Space of 21 Yeeres, as well 15 Shillings to the Poor of St. Martin's Parish in the Field, where he was Parishioner, as also 10 Shillings to the Poor of the Parish of Whitchurch in Salop.

IN the same Isle, on the South Side, is this Inscription:

To the Memory of Sir Carew Keynell, Knt. late Gentleman-Pensioner to Queene Elizabeth, and Gentleman-Usher of the Privy-Chamber to King James. Hee died the 7th of December 1624, in the 61st Yeere of his Age.

ANOTHER Monument on the same Side, with this Inscription:

Hic jacet Thomas Heron, Armiger, Filius Thomæ Heronis de Edgecombe, in provincia Surrey, Armigeri, Scaccarii Marefchallus. Uxorem cepit Olivam, Thomæ Britton generosi de Flemingham Norfolciæ filiam. Cum qua viginti novem annos vixit; atque ex ea unico dolatus Filio Edvardo. Diem obiit Martii 1590. Marito plurimum dilecto, predicta conjux Amantissima, mœrore & lachrymis perfusa, Monumentum hoc Amoris & Fidei Conjugalis Ergo, posuit & sacrauit.

ON the same Side is another Monument, with this Inscription:

Hic jacet Maria Uxor Thomæ Clopton, Arm. Filia Domini Willi. Waldgrave, Militis, utriusque tam Mariti, quam Patris illustrata Familiis. Obiit 19. Decemb. 1599, De qua sunt superstites 4. Liberi, Willielmus, Gualterus, Elizabetha, & Maria.

Cloptoni jacet hic Conjux, Waldgravia proles, Uxor digna viro, Filia digna Patre: Alter in alterius splendet virtutibus, ut lux Sitque viro, & Patri, virque paterque sibi.

THIS Monument was in the South Side of the Chancel, with this Inscription:

Hic sita est Elizabetha Dutton filia primogenita Thomæ Egerton, Equitis Aurati, filii primogeniti Tho. Egerton, Equitis Aurat. Dom. magni sigilli Angliæ Custodis. Qui nunc honorem summi Angliæ Cancellarii & Baronis de Elefmere gerit. Nupta fuit Johan. Dutton ex antiquissima familia Duttonorum in Comitatu Cestriæ: Sed uxorem, viduam & virginem ab avo pie educatam, venustate, pietate & modestia prestantissimam præmatura mors ad loca excelsa & beatissima (quo omnes tendimus) non sine multorum lachrymis præmisit. Obiit die secundo Octobris 1611, vixit annos 16. M. iiij. D. xxi.

Idem

Idem nobilissimus Baro de Elefmere, Angliæ Cancellarius, avus indulgentissimus mœstissimus-que nepoti charissimæ amoris Ergo posuit.

ANOTHER Monument in the same Church, with this Inscription :

To the worthy, learned, and godly Gentleman, William Cooke, Esquire, her deare Husband, Sonne to the Right Worshipful Sir Anth. Cooke, Knight, Frances his most loving Wife, Daughter to that most noble Gentleman, the Lord John Gray, Brother to the sometime High and Mighty Prince Henry Gray, the last Duke of Suffolke, hath dedicated this Monument in Memory of his Vertue and her Love. Died the 14th Day of May, and in the Yeere of his Age 56.

This Tombe for her deare Spouse, hath Noble Frances placed;
Lamenting much, with greater Gifts
this Tombe should not be graced:
And grieves as much Companion-like,
this Tombe should not containe
Their Wills in Earth, since both on Earth
one Will they did retaine.

ON the North Side of the Chancel is this Inscription :

Honoratissimo Patri Dauncio [Amicio] Pouleto Equiti aurato, insulæ Jerseæ Præfecto, apud Christianissimum regem quondam Legato, nobilissimi ordinis Garterii, Cancellario, & Serenissimæ principis Elizabethæ Consiliario, Antonius Pouletus Filius, hoc pietatis Monumentum Mœrens posuit.

Gardez la foy.

Quod verbo fervare fidem (Poulete) solebas,
Quam bene conveniunt hæc tria verba tibi:
Quod gladio fervare fidem, Poulete, solebas,
Quam bene conveniunt hæc tria signa tibi.
Patria se sensit, sensit Regina fidelem,
Sic fidus Civis, sicque Senator eras.
Te fidum Christus, te fidum Ecclesia sensit,
Sic servus inter multa pericla fidem,
Ergo quod servo princeps, Ecclesia nato,
Patria quod fido cive sit orba, dolet,
Interea Christus defuncti facta coronat,
A quo servatam viderat esse fidem.

Margareta Poulet hoc Epitaphium mœroris simul & amoris sui perpetuum testem amico conjugii suo charissimo clarissimoque dicavit.

ANOTHER Monument in the same Church, with this Inscription :

Hic-jacet Maria Domina Cheeke, filia R. Hill, Armig. fœmina pia & prudens, & quæ fuit usque ad obitum una dominarum in privata Camera Reginæ Elizabethæ, (quæ fuit tunc dignitas in præcipuo honore.) Nupta fuit primo Johanni Cheeke, Mil. Magistro [&] principali Secretario Regis Edwardi 6. viro optimo & eruditissimo. Cui peperit Henricum hæredem paternæ virtutis, & Regiæ Majestatis a Secretis in Concilio Eboracensi, Johan. Cheeke, virum egregium & magnanimum & Edwardum Cheeke.

Obiit Nouemb. 30. 1616.

Secundo nupta Henrico Mackwilliams, Arm. Viro ex Nobiliss. Familia Hibernorum. Cui peperit Henricum, qui sine prole obiit, & Margaretam seniore filiam, nuptam viro honorabili Johanni Domino Stanhope; Baroni de Harrington, Vicecamerario Reginæ Eliz. & R. Jacobo thesaurario camera, & Magistro curiarum Regio: Sufannam nuptam Edwardo Sandeys, Arm. deinde Gothardo Pemberton; Mil. & ultimo Thomæ Ireland, Mil. Ambrosiam nuptam Willielmo Kingwell, Mil. Cassandram Georgio Cotton, Mil. & Ceciliam nuptam Thomæ Ridgway, Mil. Dom. thesaurario Regio in Hibernia.

A very fair Table fastened to a Pillar near the Pulpit: in which was curiously drawn the Figure of an Angel holding a Coat of Arms of the living Husband and dead Wife, for whom it was there set up: Also of a Death's Head, with an Hour-glass upon it: The border of the Table filled (excellent in Proportion and Colours) with Deaths Heads, Branches of Palm, and other fresh and beautiful Flowers.

Quid Cranii sibi forma novi vult ista? Quid Hora?
Quidque super Cranio, lumen nova nota, segesque?
Nempe dies mortis, vitæ fit origo perennis;
Quæ moritur mundo, nascitur illa Deo.

What doth this Scull? What doth this Hourn-glass show?

The Corne and Palme, that on the Scull doth grow?

It meaneth this, that Death the End of Strife,
Is the Beginning to Eternal Life:
Death is the Door to Immortality,
She's borne to God, that to the World doth dye:
The burning Taper to his End doth waste,
Whilst Life and Death to meet each other haste;
Then happy she, that did her Life apply,
Here and above to live eternally:

To the permanent Honour and Rembrance of the Pious and All-vertuous Gentlewoman, Mistress Susan Price, Daughter to the Honourable Baronet, Sir Paul Tracy, of Stanway in Glocester; and the late dearly beloved Wife of the religious, learned, and truly vertuous Gentleman, William Price, of Winchester, Esquire, one of his Majesties most honourable Privy Chamber. She died the 13th of March, 1632.

Ye holy Angels, and Powers of Light,
The glad enjoyers of God's glorious Sight;
You that in faithful Abraham's Bosome rest,
You have received your sanctified Guest:
Faire Susan Price hath blessed Heaven obtain'd,
And for her well run Race, God's Glory gain'd,
Shining in Robes of Immortality,
Contemns the Earth, and Wordly Vanity.
True Christian Faith indued her constant Minde;
And unto her the Promise was assign'd:
Most honoured be her Memory, outlasting
All Genealogies, and ever lasting.
Whilst there be Elements, Stars, Orbés, or Spears,
Day's Sunne, or Night's Moone, to direct the Yeeres,
The Heavens possess her Soule, the World her Fame,
And faire Example, her Vertues, Worth, and Name;
What Nature, Goodness, Institution, Fact,
Could heape to a Perfection, was her Act.
The Angels sing her Glory, who did call
Her sweet Soul home to its Original,
And now shees gone hence for to pass the Time
She ought her Husband, in a better Clime.
There shall her Harvest and her Summer be,
Where she shall never any Winter see.
Then, Price, grieve you no more, she lives in Joy;
Wipe you your Teares, her Teares are wip'd away.

Ladies, when you your purest Beauties see,
 Think them but Tenants to Mortalitie:
 There's no Content on Earth, Joyes soon are fled,
 Healthful to Day we live, to Morrow dead:
 I was as you are now, young, faire, and cleere,
 And you shall once be as you see me heere:

Moriendo Nascimur.

Upon her Tomb Stone, at the Foot of this Monument.

Mistress Sufanna Price, the Wife of William Price, Esquire, one of the Groomes of his Majesties most Honourable Privy Chamber, Daughter of Sir Paul Tracy, Baronet, departed this Life the 13. of March, 1632, before she had beene married full 14 Weekes.

She was so full of Vertue and Goodness, few might compare with her, none could excel her.

A fair Tomb Stone in the Chancel, with this Inscription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Mistresse Dorothy Harvy; that honourable matchlesse Virgin, the Daughter of the Right Honourable, William Lord Harvey, Baron of Kidbrooke, and of the religious Lady his Wife, the Lady Cordelia Harvey, Daughter and Heire to Master Brian Ansley, Esquire, of Lee in Kent, who departed this transitory Life the 19. of February, Anno. 1632.

Glorious Dorothy here intombed lies.
 Lord Harvie's Daughter, and fair Vertues Prize.
 Modell of Honour, Graces Paragon,
 In whose great Losse, her Parents Joyes are gone.
 Her Life was such, as well may be deny'd,
 That she did ever ill, but when she dy'd:
 Pity, so soone, so rare a Virgin must,
 Stoop to Corruption, and be cloath'd in Dust.
 Heaven and the World being Sutors who should have her.

To end the Strife, she went to him that gave her.

Nascendo Morimur.

A very fair Table, with a rich Coat of Arms hanging on the North side of the Chancel, with this Inscription:

Sweetest Creature ; here she lyes,
Snatch'd early from our wondring Eyes.
Why should Mortals prize this Light ?
Since her's obscur'd by envious Night.
Beauty, Wit, and Modesty,
All charming Things, tho' born to die :
If these perish, what can save
The most accomplish'd from the Grave ?
In Pity, courteous Reader, haste away,
Thy Foot ne'er trampled on such lovely Clay.

SOME Persons had Monuments in this Church, who were good Benefactors to the Parish, viz.

Thomas Fowler, Esq; charitable to the Poor in his Life time ; and at his Death, gave by Will, out of his Dwelling-house, a perpetual Annuity of 40 s. to be given to 20 poor Householders of this Parish at Christmas for ever.

John Worsley, Gent. gave to be paid yearly, upon each Christmas-day, during the space of 21
Years, as well 15 s. to the Poor of St. Martin's Parish ; as, also 10 s. to the Parish of Whitchurch, in Salop.

Thomas Evans, Gent, gave by his last Will divers charitable Legacies, viz. 50 l. to be for a Stock for ever, the yearly Profits to be raised thence, for the Repair of the Church where his Body should be interred.

Fifty Pounds to be a Stock, to be in like manner employed for the Repair of Chelsea Church.

And another 50 l. for the Relief of the Poor within the said Parish of Chelsea.

Also 50 l. for the like Relief of the Poor within the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields.

And 100 l. towards building Houses on the new Church-yard in the said Parish of St. Martin's ; to be for the Benefit of the Poor of this said Parish.

He also gave divers good Legacies to sundry of his Kindred and Friends.

Henry Lidgould left 5 l. a Year, for ever, to be distributed to the Poor on Maunday Thursday, which is mentioned before.

THIS Living is an Impropriation, in the Gift of the King, worth upwards of 600 l. per Ann.
Rated in the King's Books at 12 l.

THE present Vicar is the Reverend Dr. Pierce, and the Lecturers are the Rev. Dr. Trapp, and the Rev. Dr. Hudson.

PRAYERS are at six o'Clock in the Morning from Lady-day to Michaelmas, and at seven all the rest of the Year : The Gift of Dr. Wallis, an eminent Physician of this Parish. Prayers are also at 10 in the Morning on Wednesday's, Friday's and Holidays. Here is an Organ, and 12 Bells.

THE Vestry is Select.

THE PARISH-OFFICERS
are,

2 Church-Wardens.
4 Side-men.
9 Overseers of the Poor.

THE PEACE OFFICERS
are,

5 Burgesses.
5 Assistant Burgesses,
8 Constables.
10 Scavengers.
2 Surveyors of the High-way.
2 Surveyors of the Streets.

IN Hungerford-market is a Charity School ; but the Number of Children is uncertain ; 'tis supported by Subscription : The Boys are clothed, some of them maintained, and taught to Read, Write, and cast Accounts. The Sum of 5 l. is given with each of them, when put Apprentice.
The Girls are clothed and taught to Work, Knit, and Sew, 2 l. 10 s. is given with each of them, when put out to Service, &c.

IN Castle-street, by the Meuse, is a Free-school, erected and endowed by that truly charitable Divine, Dr. Thomas Tenison, late Archbishop of Canterbury, when he was Vicar of this Parish, at his own Cost and Charges ; and a Library also well stored with Books.

THIS School hath two Masters to govern it, an Upper and a Lower, the former hath 30 l. a Year Salary for teaching the Scholars ; the latter hath also 30 l. a Year Salary ; and for teaching to write hath 10 l. a Year more. There is only a certain Number of Boys taught freely, the rest that come pay for their Schooling, as at other Schools.

OVER the School-Room is the Library, which is handsome and spacious. The Books with the Backs gilt, are set on Shelves. There are divers Tables set in convenient Places, for the Use of such as read or transcribe. The Librarian is the Upper Master of the School, who hath for keeping the Library 10 l. a Year, besides his Salary aforesaid. His Name is Mr. Worsden, the last Master was Mr. Richardson, and he succeeded Dr.
Pofflethwaite, who was the first Master after it was founded ; but he quitted this for St. Paul's School. The Upper Master here likewise reads six a Clock Prayers at St. Martin's Church, founded by Dr. Wallis, for which he hath 20 l. per Ann. more.

IN this Library, on a Friday, meet the Society, for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts ;
and close adjoining to the School is a new Workhouse, for employing the Poor.

THIS Parish was so exceeding populous and greatly increased, that two Parishes were taken out of it, viz. St. James's and St. Anne's, and there are besides, certain Chapels erected in it, for the Use of the Parishioners, as Oxendon Chapel, in Oxendon-street, near Leicester-fields. Russel-court Chapel near Drury-lane, which had formerly been a Dissenting Meeting-House, under the Care of the famous Mr. Daniel Burgess ; another Chapel in Long-acre, founded by the Rev. Dr.
James King, who had before the Building of it,
another in Spring-garden, leading into the Park, which was pulled down to make some additional Building to a House, then occupied by Mr. Secretary Craggs ; near the same Place is now lately built another Chapel, by the Right Honourable Edward Southwell, Esq; for the Use of the Inhabitants of Spring-garden, chiefly his Tenants.

THE Poor's Rate in this Parish comes to about 6000 l. per Annum, and there die here one Year with another, about 16,000 Persons. Dr. Lamplugh, some Time Incumbent here, afterwards
Archbishop of York, would say, that in this Parish were as many Souls, as in all his Metropolis, the City of York, with the Suburbs.

THE Number of Houses in this Parish are about 5000.

PASSING by the Parsonage-House, you are led into Church-lane.

A little beyond the Church is Moor's-yard, a large Place for Stabling, with several ordinary Houses, and hath a Passage into Church-lane, and another into Thackham's-court, and so into Chandois-street ; and beyond this Street are several Alleys and Places ; most of which have a Passage into Bedfordbury, but are very narrow, ill-built, and as ill inhabited, viz.

Dawson's-alley, Bedford-alley, Feather-alley, and Kenison's-alley. The Hop-yard, indifferent good for Stabling, and hath an open Passage into Bedfordbury. King's-Arms-Inn, or Yard, a Place for Stabling. Goodwin's-court, but small, having about two or three Houses.

THEN beyond New-street, near the Turning into Long Acre, is Castle-court, which is but small and ordinary ; and near unto this is the Cross-keys Inn, which is large, and of a good Resort.

Bedfordbury, on the Backside of St. Martin's-Lane, of no great Account either for Buildings or Inhabitants ; in which are these Yards and Places, viz. White-horse-yard, but ordinary ; Bell-yard, only for some Stables. Goat-yard, also for Stabling. Key-yard, now converted into a Brewhouse ; and Pipe-maker's-alley, (so called from a Pipe-maker there dwelling) a very ordinary Place.

Chandois-street, reacheth from Bedford-street unto St. Martin's-lane ; but that Part of this Parish begins by Round-court, and so to St. Martin's-lane, where it is narrowest and the most ordinary : On the Backside is a Place called the Back of Round-court, but ordinary.

New-street comes out of St. Martin's-lane, and falls into King-street Covent-garden ; a pretty good Street.

Long Acre, a very handsome broad Street, with good Buildings, well inhabited both by Tradesmen and others, especially of the first ; it comes out of Drury-lane, and runs down to St. Martin's-lane.

For the Description of the Alleys and Courts in this Street, we shall begin on the South Side, next to St. Martin's-lane; and the first in Angel Alley, which, with a long and narrow Passage, leads into Rose-street, a Place of an ordinary Building, and as ill inhabited. Rose-street, of which there are three, and all indifferent well built and inhabited; but the best is that next to King-street, called White-rose-street, which is in Covent-garden Parish, with some Part of Red-rose-street, where the Parish-stone is fixed on the Houses; that Part towards Long Acre being also White-rose-street.

Conduit-court, indifferent broad, with a Freestone Pavement and Passage into Hart-street; a Court indifferently well built and inhabited, having on the West Side an open Place like unto a Court. Red-lyon-Inn, a large Yard for Coaches and Stables, which hath a Passage into Hart-street. Nigh to this Place was the Bagnio, a well contrived House for Sweating, and much resorted unto, there being Days for Men, and others for Women; but this is now turned into a private House.

Leg-alley, (by some called Elmes-street.) a Place of no great Account for Building or Inhabitants; and it hath a Passage into Hart-street. James-street; but the greatest Part of it being in Covent-garden Parish, it will be spoke of there; for there is no more of this Street in this Parish than to the Nag's-head-Inn. White-hart-Inn, hath a Passage into Hart-street, and is of no great Account. Phoenix-alley, a pretty open Alley, but ill inhabited, and nastily kept; hath also a Passage into Hart-street. Prince's-court, very inconsiderable. Red-lyon-court, very large, with a Freestone Pavement, better built than inhabited; it is a good Thorough-fare, having a Passage into Bow-street, another into Earl's-court, and a third into Drury-lane: And thus much for the South Side. Now for the Alleys, &c. on the North Side of Long Acre. We shall begin next to Drury-lane, and then the first Place, Dirty-lane, (by some called Charles-street) an open broad Place, but not over-well inhabited; it falls into Castle-street, and on the West Side is Bell-Inn, a large Yard for Stabling. George-Inn, a Place well accommodated for Stables and Coach-houses. Hill's-alley, a narrow Passage, with a Freestone Pavement into Castle-street. Knuckle's-alley, pretty large, and leads into Castle-street.

Cross-lane, a pretty open Street, fronting King-street, and is of some Trade: On the East Side are two small and ordinary Places, called Mace-alley, and Terret's-court. The Wood-yard, almost opposite to James's-street, a large but ordinary Place, having towards the lower End a large Stable-yard, and farther downwards, a large Brewhouse. Langley-street, a handsome open Place, with indifferent Buildings, and falls into Castle-street. Mercer's-street, of no great Account for Building, or Inhabitants, who are a great Part French; it falls into Castle-street, against the Dial in the new Buildings in Cock and Pye Fields; betwixt this Street and that of Langley, there are three ordinary Places, viz. Ascue-alley, very narrow, and falls into Coxe's-court, and that into Crown-court.

Castle-street, situate on the Backside of Long Acre, the South Side being in this Parish, the other in St. Giles's in the Fields; a Street very ordinary both for Buildings and Inhabitants. Besides the several Alleys that come out of Long Acre, already named, there are two very ordinary Places scarce worth mentioning, viz. Plunket's-court, and Bacchus-court.

Drury-lane, very long, coming out of St. Giles's, and running down into the Strand, and is a Place of great Resort, replenished with good Houses that are well inhabited by Tradesmen, as being so great a Thorough-fare both for Man and Horse: This Street, as before noted, is Part in the Parish of St. Clement's, Part in that of St. Maryle Strand, and Part in that of St. Giles's in the Fields; and the Part that belongs to this Parish, is only the West Side, from the Corner of Brownlow-street in the North, where the Parish-stone Mark is set upon the House-wall, unto the Corner of White-hart-yard; in this Part of the Lane, there are these Courts and Outlets, viz. Turnstile-alley, a Place of indifferent Trade for old Household Goods that are very ordinary: It hath a Passage into Castle-street, by the back Gate of the Red-lyon Inn in Brownlow-street. Middlesex-court, but ordinary inhabited, hath an open Passage by a Freestone Pavement into Dirty-lane; Cradle-alley, but narrow and ordinary; Red-lyon-court, already treated of; Earl's-court, a very handsome broad Court, with a Freestone Pavement cleanly kept, having very good new built Houses well inhabited; this Court hath a Passage into Bow-street, and another into Red-lyon-court, already named; Martlet's-court, a very handsome open Place, with a good Freestone Pavement cleanly kept, having good Houses well inhabited on the North Side; the other Side lieth open into Gardens; the chief Entrance is out of Bow-street; Windsor-court, indifferent good, with a Freestone Pavement, having formerly a Passage through a House called the Half-way-house, into Crown-court, which leadeth into Russel-street; Angel-court, a very handsome, well built and inhabited Court, with a good Freestone Pavement cleanly kept.

Russel-street, a great Thorough-fare from Lincoln's-inn-fields into Covent-garden, and those Parts; a Street well inhabited by good Tradesmen: It is all in this Parish on both Sides, except two or three Doors on this Side the Rose-tavern, and on the other Side, as far as Jackson's-alley: On the North Side is Crown-court, a pretty broad Place, with indifferent good Houses. Farther Westward is King's-court, with a Freestone Pavement, and a new Row of pretty good Houses on the West Side, which hath the Prospect into the Garden belonging to the Woollen-draper at the Wooll-pack in Russel-street. This Court, at the upper End, hath a turning Passage into Bow-street.

THEN passing by Russel-street, is the Playhouse Yard, or Passage into the Theatre; next Vinegar-yard, indifferent broad, but ordinarily built and inhabited: It falleth into Little-bridges-street, and that into Great-bridges-street, in Covent-garden Parish. Out of Vinegar-yard is an open Freestone Passage into Russel-court, a very handsome large Place with good Buildings well inhabited, hath a Freestone Passage into Bridges-street, and another Passage against Russel-court Chapel into White-hart-yard, through Red-lyon-alley, which is but ordinary; and on the East Side of the said Chapel, is Megg's-alley, which with a turning Passage also falleth into Bridges-street, a Place of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants; Nelson's-court, almost over-against Blackmore-street, a Court of no great Account, being long and narrow. White-hart-yard comes out of Drury-lane, and falls into Bridges-street, against Exeter-street, a Place of some Trade, especially for Upholsterers for second hand Goods, and some new: The South Side of this Street is in the Savoy Parish, as far as Eagle-court, where the Girt Line of this Parish crosseth into the said Court; and thence falls into Little Catherine-street, or rather Alley, being but narrow, with a Freestone Pavement, and cannot much boast of its Houses or Inhabitants: On North Side of this White-hart-yard is Pump-court, court, but indifferent; as also Red-lyon-alley, already mentioned.

Exeter-street, a good Street; with handsome built Houses, well inhabited; especially the North Side, which is in Covent-garden Parish. It cometh out of Catherine-street, and runneth up as far as the Back of the Bedford Tavern Door: And out of this Place there is a Passage into the Strand through Denmark-court, a very handsome, well built, and inhabited Place; which beginneth at the End of Exeter-street, and runs down into the Strand: And in that Part of the Court it hath but one Row of Houses on the West Side, which hath a Prospect into a handsome Garden.

Burleigh-street butts against Exeter-street, and falls into the Strand against the Savoy; an indifferent good Street, the West Side of which is only in this Parish; and on this Side is Bull-head-court, which is but small and ordinary.

We shall next walk into the Strand, and view the Alleys and Courts therein: And first begin with those on the North Side, and next, pass to Burleigh-street, as far as St. Martin's-lane; then to those on the South Side, beginning at Salisbury-buildings. And according to this Method, the first is,

Mary-gold-alley, a pretty large Place, but indifferent as to Building and Inhabitants. It hath a Passage up Steps in another Place of an ordinary Building, also so called; and thence it hath a Passage into Bennet's-court, which hath but a narrow Entry into the Strand; but after a little way up Steps it hath pretty good Buildings. Denmark-court already spoken of. Curle-court hath a pretty good Row of Building on the East Side, which hath a Yard, and at the Upper End is a good House much better than the rest. Then is Southampton-street, which with Tavistock-street, &c. were not many Years since built upon the Ground where Bedford House and Gardens stood, next is Half-moon-street, between these Places are; Oliver's-alley, which is but small and ordinary; Lumley-court, indifferent good; Globe-alley, but ordinary Buildings; Bull-inn-court, a good large Place, better built than inhabited, hath a Passage with a Freestone Pavement into Maiden-lane; Blue-ball-court, of no great account; Baylies-alley, very narrow, with a Passage into Maiden-lane; Heathcock-court hath pretty handsome Buildings; The Thatched-alley, but narrow, and not over good, hath a Passage into Maiden-lane; Exchange-court hath indifferent good Buildings with a Freestone Pavement.

Half-moon-street, against the New-Exchange, runneth into Bedford-street in Covent-garden, and here the Passage is but narrow, and very troublesome for Coaches to pass. All this Street, except some few Houses near Chandois-street and Maiden-lane, is in this Parish; and the Street is well inhabited by Tradesmen, except in the narrow Passage next the Strand: Then beyond this Street, unto St. Martin's-lane are these Places; Harvey-court, a pretty handsome open Place, with good Buildings; Long-court or Alley hath a narrow Passage through Entries into Chandois-street; Round-court, after a narrow Passage through an Entry out of the Strand, openeth into a pretty square Court, and from that into another Place which leadeth into another Entry, and so into Chandois-street: This Place is of considerable Note, and much resorted to, as being inhabited by Silk-mercens and Lace-men, who drive a considerable Trade, occasioned from the Opinion that the Females have, that they there buy better Pennyworths than elsewhere. Out of this Court there is made a Passage into New-round-court, designed for Shop-keepers, as the other; but whether it will take, time must shew: This Court is more open, and the Buildings far better than the other, and hath a better Passage into it out of the Strand, and therefore the more probability of its taking; Robin-hood-court very ordinary, and ill built. Church-lane, very ordinary, which runneth up into Thackam's-court, a pretty handsome square Place, with a Freestone Pavement; which Court hath two Passages into a Street called the Backside of Round-court, which falleth into Chandois-street near St. Martin's-lane: This Place hath a Passage into Moor's-yard, which leadeth into St. Martin's-lane; also another Passage into New Round-court, and another turning Passage to St. Martin's Church, all but indifferently built or inhabited; Hewit's-court, a pretty good Court, with a Freestone Pavement into Church-lane; St. Martin's-court, a new built Court, with good Houses and a Freestone Pavement into Church-lane near the Church; King's-head-inn and Star-inn, both Places well resorted unto: Then a little beyond St. Martin's-lane, is the Checquer-inn and Court, already spoken of; and almost against the Statue of the King on Horseback in Charing-cross, is a pretty Court, called Woodstock-court.

Thus having spoken of the North Side of the Strand, next the South Side is to be perambulated, beginning at Salisbury-buildings, and then the first is called Cecil-street, built on the Ground where great Salisbury-house stood; a very handsome new built Street, which leadeth down to the Thames, the East Side being in St. Clement's Parish. Salisbury-street, better built than inhabited, by reason of its Narrowness, and steep Descent towards the Water Side, where there is a Pair of Stairs to take Water at. Ivy-bridge, now very bad and scarce fit for Use, by Reason of the Unpassableness of the Way; it hath an Inlet into Durham-yard. Durham-yard, anciently Duresme-house, as being the Residence of the Bishops of Durham.

In the Place where certain old Stables stood, belonging to this House, is the New Exchange, being furnished with Shops on both Sides the Walks, both below and above Stairs, were for Milleners, Sempstresses, and other Trades that furnish Dresses; and was once a Place of great Resort and Trade for the Nobility and Gentry; but is lately very much decayed, the upper Parts being let intire for a Warehouse for Glasses, Cabinets, &c.

Of later Times this Durham-yard came to Philip Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, in Consideration (some say) to pay to the See of Durham 200 l. per Ann. which Grant was confirmed by Act of Parliament, dated the 16th of Charles the First. And it was by his Son built into Tenements or Houses, as now they are standing, being a handsome Street descending down out of the Strand, which falls into another much better inhabited, especially on the South Side, where there are Gardens fronting the Thames, very pleasant, with two Woodmongers Wharfs for the Sale of Fuel: Besides, where the Dairy House stood, now taken down, is a more open Passage to another Row of Houses, fronting the Backside of the New Exchange. And on the North Side of the Street, near Ivy-bridge, is a pretty handsome Court, with a Freestone Pavement, called Bishop's-court. These said Buildings of Durham-yard, are now the Inheritance of Sir Thomas Mompeyson of Bathampton in the County of Wilts, Knight.

FARTHER West was York-house; which, in Time, came into the Possession of George Villars Duke of Buckingham; who added much to the old Building, and would have had it called by his Title, yet it retained its Name of York-house; and so it continued until the next Duke of Buckingham disposed of it, and then it was built into fair Streets, as now it is, and called York-buildings:

ings: In which are these Streets and Alleys: Next the New-exchange is a narrow Passage down Steps into George-street, which runneth to the Thames, a handsome Street, with good Houses well inhabited; at the upper End of which, next the Strand, is George-alley, which leadeth into Buckingham-street, and from thence into Off-alley, which falleth into Villars-street; both which Alleys are but narrow and indifferently built but have a Freestone Pavement. Buckingham-street comes out of the Strand, and runs down to the River Thames, where there is a stately Portico and Stairs of Freestone, for the Convenience of the Water, and Watermen always plying there. This Portico and the Ornaments belonging to it, are thus spoke of by an ingenious Author: "York-stairs is unquestionably the most perfect Piece of Building, that does Honour to the Name of Inigo Jones. It is Plann'd with so exquisite a Taste, form'd of such equal and harmonious Parts, and adorned with such proper and elegant Decorations, that nothing can be censured or added. It is at once happy in its Situation, beyond Comparison, and fancied in a Style exactly suited to that Situation. The Rock-work, or Rustick, can never be introduced better, than in Buildings by the Side of the Water. This Street is very spacious, with very good Houses, well inhabited by Gentry, especially those on each Side fronting the Thames: That on the West Side is so large, that it was the Habitation of the late Earl of Oxford, while Lord High Treasurer of England.

The Salt Office.

IN this Street is the Office for the Duty on Salt, which Duty was granted to the Crown in 9th Year of William III. and was at first only 1 s. per Bushel, but is now 4 s.

THE Office was at first managed by the Commissioners of the Excise; but the Revenue increasing, by a greater Number of Salt-works erected, it was thought proper to separate them, and the Commissioners, and Chief Officers employed under them at their Office, are such as are inserted. There are likewise employed in this Office two Under Accomptants, with an Assistant Clerk, a Clerk to the Correspondent, one to the Assistant Secretary, a House-keeper, Store-keeper, Door-keeper, Messengers, Porters, and two Watchmen; a Collector of Salt at LONDON, and a Searcher, at 60 l. per Ann. each; two Surveyors at 50 l. each, and two Boatmen, at 30 l. each; besides the Establishment in the several Counties, of Collectors, Supervisors, Officers, which is very large.

Commissioners. Ja. Cardonnel, Wm. Churchill, Edw. Astry, Wm. Winde, Esqrs, 500 l. per Ann. each.

Comptroller. Edward Weston, Esq; for himself and Clerks, 350 l. per Ann.

Cashier. Joseph Wyndham, Esq; for himself and Clerks, 430 l. per Ann.

Secretary. Edward Davies, Esq; 200 l. per Annum.

Correspondent Clerk of the Securities. Miles Greenwood, and Assistant Secretary, 130 l. per Annum.

Sollicitor. Wm. Johnson, 100 l. per Ann.

Chief Accomptant. Wm. Sumpter, 100 l. per Annum.

Other Accomptants. William Stuart, Thomas Hughton, Henry Folket, William Spinkes; 70 l. per Ann. each.

Surveyors for the Port of LONDON.

Mairest. Benj. Davies, 50 l. per Ann. each.

Messenger. John Bampfield, 40 l. per Ann.

Porter. Thomas Fey, 30 l. per Ann.

Two Watchmen. 20 l. per Ann. each.

Door-keeper. Josbua Ellis. 40 l. per Ann.

THIS Street is crossed by Duke-street, a pretty good Street, which butts upon George-street, and Villars-street, which also comes out of the Strand, and runneth down to the Thames; being a very handsome Street, with good Houses, well inhabited; at the lower End of which is a Water-house, very considerable, serving abundance of Families at this End of the Town. Next the Thames there is a handsome Tarraf's Walk, which reacheth almost the Breadth of York-buildings, which gives a fine Prospect to the Houses, as lying open to the Thames.

Charles-court, a very handsome new built Court, with Houses fit for Inhabitants; having a Stone Pavement down to the Thames, where there is a Pair of Stairs for the Convenience of the Water. Out of this Court there is a Passage into Villars-street, and another into Hungerford-market.

Hungerford-market, built on the Ground where stood a large but old House, with a Garden, the Seat of Sir Edward Hungerford, which he converted into Buildings, as it is, having a handsome Street out of the Strand, and leading into the Market; where there is a good Market-house, and over it, the School for the Charity Children of St. Martin's Parish. This Market at first was very likely to have taken well, especially for Fruit and Herbs, as lying so convenient for the Gardeners to land their Goods at the Stairs, without the Charge and Trouble of Porters to carry them farther by Land, as now to Covent-garden-market; but being bank'd at first, it turns to little Account, and that of Covent-garden hath got the Start; which is much resorted unto, and well served with all Fruits and Herbs, good in their Kind. By the One-tun-tavern, there is a Passage into Heley-alley, which falleth into Hungerford-market. Brewer's-yard, a very ordinary Place, both for Houses and Inhabitants, and chiefly resorted unto by Carmen for the bringing up Goods and Coals from the Wharfs by the Thames Side, and the frequent passing of the Carts with heavy Loading, breaks up the Passage, and causeth it to be bad and dirty.

NEXT was a Place called Spur-alley, which had a very narrow and ordinary Passage into the Strand, but was something better at the Bottom towards the Thames: This Place is now lately rebuilt with good Houses, the Ground is levelled, which before ran with a great Descent, and is become a very handsome Street, called Craven-street, out of which is Cross-lane, a Place of small account, which leadeth into Harts-born-lane; and here is a small and ordinary Alley, called Baker's-alley, which hath a Passage into Brewer's-yard, and another into Harts-born-lane.

Harts-born-lane, also a Place much clogged and pestered with Carts repairing to the Wharfs; and therefore not well inhabited. On the East Side is Plough-court, which is but small; and lower down is a Place called the Lime-wharf, a Place indifferent well built and inhabited.

Somerset-court, a handsome new built Court, with Houses fit for Inhabitants, especially being near the Court. It hath a good Freestone Pavement.

Northumberland-house, a noble and spacious Building; having a large square Court at the Entrance, with Buildings round it; at the upper End of which Court, is a Piazza, with Buildings over it, sustained by Stone Pillars, and behind the Buildings there is a curious Garden, which runneth down to the Thames; all which makes it a stately Habitation, fit to receive such a Person of Quality as is the Owner thereof, viz. Charles Duke of Somerset: This House came to him in Right of his first Lady, viz. Lady Elizabeth, Heiress of of Jocelin, late Earl of Northumberland; it is a magnificent Building, and the Furniture within is equal to it; among which, it is said, there is one Picture valued at thirty thousand Pounds, representing the Family of the Cornaro's, an ancient Venetian Family, and painted by the celebrated Titian.

A little beyond this House, more towards Whitehall, is Angel-court, indifferent large, but ordinary built or inhabited. Next to it is another small Alley called Hermitage-alley. Then Cragg's-court, a very handsome large Court, with new Buildings fit for Gentry of Repute, especially those on the Side fronting the Thames, or Northumberland Garden. This Court is very near to Scotland-yard.

THEN is Whitehall, where was for many Years the Royal Palace, and Residence of the Kings and Queens of England, no less pleasantly than commodiously seated on the Bank of the Thames on the South, and having on the North the delectable Park of St. James's.

KING Henry VIII. who was the first Royal Possessor of it, built a sumptuous Gallery, with a beautiful Gatehouse thwart the Street into St. James's Park.

SINCE the Days of King Henry VIII. it was much enlarged and beautified in its Buildings by the succeeding Kings and Queens; and especially by King Charles I. and II. King James II. and King William III. who added a noble Terrace Walk by the Thames, under the King and Queen's Lodgings, then not long built, and were very stately and convenient: But the stateliest Room is the Banqueting-House, facing the Street, for the Reception of Ambassadors, Members of Parliament, and other publick Uses; which for its Spaciousness, exact Proportion, and beautiful Painting, done by the Hand of the famous Sir P. Paul Reubens, and hath scarce any Thing equal to it in all Europe. This Palace, which was extreme large and very commodious, was all burnt to the Ground in the Year 1698, except the Banqueting-House before-mentioned, and some of the Offices, as the Treasury, the Secretary's Office, the Signet Office, the Lord Chamberlain's Office, the Green Cloth, the Jewel Office, the Wardrobe, &c. The TREASURY is now rebuilding in a magnificent Manner.

THERE is a Place, which was a Garden to the Old Palace, called the Privy Garden, where are several Houses now built for Noblemen and others, particularly one belonging to the Earl of Pembroke, another to the Duke of Montagu, and a third to the Duke of Richmond; on which Houses the Author of the Critical Review makes these Remarks: "The Earl of Pembroke's, which " some Months ago seem'd, at least, to be pretty,
" and wanted but little of being elegant; but
" now his Lordship has thought proper to alter
" it in such a Manner that it would be hardly
" known by either of these Epithets; to hide
" the whole Front of a House for the Sake of the " Offices, is certainly something of a Mistake;
" but these have neither Manner, nor so much
" as Materials to render them tolerable.

" THE Duke of Montagu's new House was " intended to be plain and simple, but, I presume,
" at the same Time beautiful and harmonious;
" and yet, with all Submission to better Judges, it appears to me heavy and insipid,
" loaded with Roof, and incumbered with irregular Offices. I might add too, that the " Stone Projection towards the Thames is an " Excrescence which has neither Taste nor Ornament to recommend it; the Alcove may " answer very gracefully within, for what I can " tell; but, without, I am positive 'tis a Blemish which hardly any Convenience can pardon.

" His Grace of Richmond's is next, and has " greatly the Advantage of its Neighbour; there " is something of Manner as well as Simplicity in
" this; it satisfies the Eye, and answers in the " Prospect; and yet even here the Entrance is " intolerable; not only because 'tis bad in it " self, but because it hides all the lower Part " of the House, and of course spoils the Proportion,
" without adding a single Beauty to make " an Atonement.

THIS Garden is parted from the Street, on the North, by a fine high Wall lately erected; at the End of which was an old Gatehouse, not many Years since taken down. On the opposite Side of the Way, adjoining to where this Gatehouse stood, is a new built House for the Right Hon. Horatio Walpole, Esq; to dwell in as Auditor of the Accompts of the Lords Commissioners of Trade and Plantations, whose Office is on the other Side where the Gatehouse stood, and fronts Charing-Cross:

The COMMISSIONERS of Trade and Plantations are:

THE Right Hon. Thomas Earl of Westmorland,
Thomas Pelham, Esq; Martin Bladen, Esq; The Plantation Office, Edward Ashe, Esq; Sir Orlando Bridgeman,
Bart. Sir Archer Crofts, Bart. the Hon. James Brudenel, Esq; and Sir Edward Bacon, Bart.

Auditor, Horatio Walpole, Esq; 300 l. per Annum.

With several Clerks, from 70 to 40 l. per Annum.

ADJOINING to Mr. Walpole's House are Lodgings belonging to his Grace the Duke of Montague, as Master of the Wardrobe; between which, and the Apartment of his Grace the Duke of Dorset, was a Passage leading thro' the Cockpit, as it is commonly called, to the Parade in St. James's Park; on one Side of which, is the Front of the New Treasury, and close to it the House of the Right Hon. Sir Robert Walpole, first Lord of the Treasury, and Chancellor of the Exchequer. Next to the Cockpit is a House belonging to the Lord Viscount Falmouth, the back Part of which joins to another Gatehouse, yet standing, which is a very curious Piece of Gothick Architecture. Somewhat more Eastward, beyond the Horse-Guards, is erected a new House and Office for the Pay-master General of the Army; and a little farther the Admiralty Office, this is a new and an expensive Building; but is thought, by Persons of Taste, to be very far from a beautiful one.

The COMMISSIONERS for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of Great Britain, are:

Sir Charles Wager, Kt. first Commissioner, The Admiralty Office, 3000 l. per Annum.

Sir Thomas Littleton, Kt.

Lord Archibald Hamilton.

Chief Clerk, Thomas Corbet, Esq; 400 l. per Annum.

Other

Other Clerks :

Mr. Thomas Hawes, 200 l. per Annum.
 Mr. Robert Osborne, 120 l. per Annum.
 Mr. Andrew Ram, 100 l. per Ann.
 Mr. Will. Mills, 90 l. per Annum.
 Mr. Jasper Arris Borrodale, 80 l. per Ann.
 Mr. George-Anne Burchett, 70 l. per Ann.
 Mr. Troughton, 60 l. per Annum.
 Besides two supernumerary Clerks.

COUNSEL at Law for the Affairs of the BOARD.

Mr. Serjeant Baynes. Solicitor, Mr. Hick-Advocate, Dr. Fuller. man.
 Proctor, Dr. Isham. Marshal, John Cheeke.

Messengers, Luke Bennet, John Rogers, and John Wolley.

Porter, Henry Meires.

Mr. Bennet has 50 l. per Ann. Mr. Rogers 40 l. per Ann. Mr. Wolley 30 l. per Annum, and the Porter 30 l. per Annum, besides three Watchmen at 20 l. each. Mr. Bennet has likewise 300 l.
 per Annum to find the Office in Coals, Candles, and all other Necessaries.

House-keeper, Mrs. Holland, 40 l. per Ann.

Gardiner, Mr. Cook, 20 l. per Annum.

BEHIND this Office is a handsome Garden-Plot, taken out of that Part of Spring-garden next the Park. Adjoining to this Office is Buckingham-court, so called as built on Buckingham Garden; it hath a Free-stone Pavement, and a Passage into Spring-garden, and the Houses are better built than inhabited. Stanhope-court, a good handsome Place, with a Free-stone Pavement, and well built Houses, especially those which front Spring-garden. Pump-court, but small, and ordinary built and inhabited, with a narrow Passage up Steps into Spring-garden.
 Mermaid-court, over-against the Meuse, with a Passage also into Spring-garden, a Place of small Account. White-horse-court, adjoining to Warwick-street, of no great Account. Warwick-street, the greatest and best Part of which is in the Parish of St. James's.

Spring-garden, a large open Place well built, with many handsome Houses, and a good Chapel; besides which, there is at the upper End a handsome French Church, where Divine Service is performed according to the Liturgy of the Church of England.

ON the other Side the Way, next Whitehall, is Scotland-yard, and then we come to Charing-Cross, a large open Place fronting the Strand, the Hay-market, and Whitehall, in a triangular manner: In the Midst of this Place is a curious Statue of King Charles I. on Horseback, bigger than the Life, done in Brass, standing on a high Pedestal of White Marble, curiously adorned with Warlike Trophies, all in-circled with Iron Bars or Rails: Which said Statue was made by that famous Statuary Lafeur, who made that curious Brass Monument of the Duke of Buckingham in the Chapel of Henry VII.

 at Westminster. And in the Place where this Statue stands there was formerly a stately Cross of Marble, adorned with divers Figures about it, and called Charing-Cross, which was erected by King Edward I. in Honour of his Queen Eleanor; which said Cross, as likewise that in Cheapside, by the said King erected for that Purpose, was pulled down and destroyed by the Zealots of the Long Parliament, Anno 1643. This Statue of King Charles I. was made for the Earl of Arundel; and, to prevent demolishing, was purchased, and concealed by one Mr. John Revet, in Holbourn, a Brazier, who, upon the Restauration of King Charles II. presented it to his Majesty, and he caused it to be erected where it now stands, upon an oval Pedestal of Free-stone, as aforesaid.

HERE at Charing-Cross is the Meuse, used for the King's Horses. The Stables, Coach-houses, &c. in this Place are now rebuilding, and the principal Range at the upper End, is already finished, in a very grand and magnificent Manner, the Plan of which Building is said to have been designed by a Nobleman, eminent for his fine Taste in Architecture.

ALSO West of Charing-Cross stands at St.
 James's, once a Religious House, now a Royal Palace, built by King Henry VIII. King Edward I. granted a Fair to be kept here, which held a Fortnight, and was called St. James's Fair, which of late Years was kept in the Road leading to Tyburn; but such great Debauchery and Lewdness were practised here, that it was suppressed by King Charles II.

St. James's is made, by successive Kings and Queens, far better and larger than it was at first, and was last beautified and enlarged for the Reception of their Royal Highnesses Prince George and the Princess Anne of Denmark, our late most Noble Queen.

To this Palace belongs a very pleasant Park, which hath been much enlarged and improved by King Charles II. having purchased several Fields, which ran up to the Road, and as far as Hide Park, now enclosed with a Brick Wall; and made the Pall-Mall half a Mile long, with curious Rows of Lime-Trees round about, set in uniform Ranks: He made likewise the stately Canal 100 Feet broad, and 2800 Feet long, with a Decoy, and other Ponds for Ducks and Water-Fowl. There is also a Garden with curious Walks, and excellent Fruit in it, much improved since Mr. George London, the late King William's principal Gardener, had the Care and Management thereof, where he had a very good House to dwell in.

NEAR the King's Palace is Marlborough
 House, built by the late Glorious and ever-memorable Duke of Marlborough; it is a strong well built House, but has not many Ornaments about it.

AT the upper End of the Park Westward is Buckingham House, which, says the Author of Buckingham House.
 the Critical Review, "is a Building that attracts " more Eyes, and has more Admirers than al" most any other about Town; not that it is in " Fact the most beautiful, but because it ap" pears so; an Advantage that it derives only
 " from its Situation, and the Liberty it allows
 " the Spectator of seeing it in what Point of Buckingham House, though mentioned in this Place, as in former Surveys, is not now in the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, but is taken into the new Parish of St. George's Hanover-square.

IN this Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, was a Field, called St. James's Field, and a Hill called Mellebille, and a Place called The Doune. As I find in Record, six Acres of Land in St. James's Field, and Mellebille, three Roods of Land, and one Acre apud Le Doune in St. Martin. in campis, granted to Stephen Chise, 9 Rich. 2. This Downe was a large Place, and Part thereof was in St. Giles's Parish. For I find also five Acres of Land, Sur Le Doune in St. Giles's, were granted to John de Bellomonte, Kt. 20 Rich. 2. with one Toft and one Croft, near Charing-Cross, and eight Acres of Land near the Meuse, and three Acres near the Hospital of St. James, in the Parish of St. Margaret Westminster, and three Acres in the Parish of Tyburn, granted to the same Person.

WITHIN this Parish of St. Martin's, and that of St. Margaret's Westminster, formerly was large Commoning for the Benefit of those Parishes, of Lands laid open, according to antient Custom, from Lammas Day; which were, in Q. Elizabeth's Reign, enclosed with Gates and Hedges, so that the Inhabitants were deprived of that Benefit, which occasioned their Complaint, in the Year 1592, to the Lord Burghley, High Steward of Westminster, and a Petition to him in that Behalf. Whereupon he gave Order to Mr. Tenche, his Under-steward, to impanel an Inquest for Enquiry into this Matter, which seemed to favour them: And the Parishioners having, as they supposed, the Lord's Countenance, sent divers Persons on the First of August, being Lammas Day, who, with Pickaxes, and such like Instruments, pulled down the Fences, and brake the Gates, having with them the Bailiffs and Constables, to keep the Peace.

OF this there was presently a grievous Complaint made to the L. Burghley, by such, especially, as held those Lands of the Queen, claimed by the Inhabitants to lie open for Common: Particularly these:

The Neat, containing 108 Acres.

St. James's Farm, containing 100 Acres.

Divers Parcels of the Possession of Burton St. John Lazarus of Jerusalem, containing 50 Acres.
In all 688 Acres.

THE said Lord, upon this Report brought him, immediately sent Orders to the Under-steward, to enquire diligently into this Matter; who, August the 3d, gave his Lordship this Answer; which will shew us the State of the Cause:

“ THAT whereas upon Petition of the Inhabitants of St. Martin's in the Fields, concerning their antient Commons, called Lammas-Grounds, complained to be enclosed, that it pleased his Lordship to direct his Letters to him (his Under-steward) for the impannelling of an Inquest, and for other lawful Proceedings in that Behalf: That it had Yesterday happened, that certain of the Parishioners of St. Martin's, and St. Margaret's, about the Number of forty, being ignorant of the Contents of his Lordship's Letter, and of his (the Under-steward's) Direction, assembled together, and made an Entry into such Commons as they found enclosed, by digging down, with Spade and Pickaxes, some small Breach in every

VOL. II.

Enclosure. And, among the rest, they opened a Piece belonging to the City of LONDON, where their Conduit-Heads are. Which being known to the Lord Mayor, he sent Mr. Tonge, Justice of the Peace, among them, who saw what was done by them, and was present with Mr. Den and himself at the Examination of the Cause: And that upon Examination they found that they did this only, presuming upon an antient Custom by them, they said, yearly observed, as that Day to lay open their Commons.

HE added, “ That some of them thus assembled, were of the best and most antient of the Parishes; that they carried with them no Weapon, and had only four or five Shovels and Pickaxes; and had divers Constables with them to keep her Majesty's Peace. And having thus laid open such Grounds, as they challenged to be their Commons, they quietly returned to their Houses, without any farther Hurt doing.

“ AND that because his Honour might happen to be informed herein against them from the Lord Mayor, or some others, otherwise than the Case did require, he had thought fit to certify his Lordship of the very Truth of their whole Proceeding; and had taken Order, that no such Course should hereafter be attempted by them.” This was dated at Westminster, August 3, 1592, and subscribed, His Lordship's most bounden Under-steward of Westminster, RICH. TENCHE.

WITH this Letter came also certain Confessions of this Matter, one of Peter Dod and Anthony Matthew.

Peter Dod, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, aged 65 Years, or thereabouts, saith, That upon Lammas Day last, being August 1, he being near unto the City's Conduit-Heads in Middlesex, about half a Mile Westward from St. Giles's in the Fields, attending upon certain of the City's Works, touching conveying of Water from thence to LONDON, saw, betwixt five and Six o'Clock in the Afternoon the same Day, the Number of 40 Persons, at least, (how many more he knoweth not) in a Close there, through which the City Pipes are laid to convey Water to LONDON: And they divided themselves: And some of them, with Pickaxes and Shovels, brake down the Fence of the same Close, and other some of them passed to the next Close Westward, and brake open the Fence of that Close: And that he, with some of the Citizens Workmen, went unto them, seeing some of them to be Men that carried a Shew of some Countenance, and talked with them, demanding of them whence they were; and one of them answered, That they were of St. Martin's Parish, and St. Margaret's at Westminster. And he, the said Dod, said unto them, Why do ye this? It was answered, “ It was Lammas-tide; and we throw it down for Common. And if we take here any Cattle of any other Mens than theirs of the Parishes of St. Martin's or St. Margaret's, after this Day, we will carry them to the Pound.” I never saw the like of this, said Dod: If you may do this by Authority, it is well, otherwise it is not well. It was answered, “ We have here the Bailiff of Westminster, and the Officers of St. Martin's; and we have our Authority from the Queen's Majesty and the Council, granted by King Henry, confirmed by her Majesty, and named the Lord Treasurer to be one, from whom they had their Authority.” And it was also added, That the next Day there would be two hundred there, there, and that they must break open up to Knights-bridge and Chelsea.

AND Dod said farther, That that Evening they threw down one Gate in one Close, which the City holds, and abated the Banks; and in another Close threw open another Gate, and pulled down a Rail, and broke open the Fences in three other Places beside; and in the Morning, their Herdmen brought in about 30 Beasts into one of the Closes, and kept them there feeding in one of the Closes which the City holds. This was signed by Dod and Matthew, and others.

THE said Dod and Matthew say farther, That the next Day in the Morning, Dod went to the Herdman, as he was keeping the Cattle in the Close, and asked him, Who willed him to put the Cattle in there? He answered, That did Mr. Hen. Wells, Bailiff of Westminster, Mr. Coles, Burgeſſs, Mr. Peack and Mr. Racie, Bailiffs, and they will, said he, bear me out in it. And the said Examinants say, That they saw them next Day passing along Westward, breaking sundry Fences, being about the Number of 60 Persons, sometimes together, and sometimes divided in Parts.

ANOTHER testified, viz. one Ra. Wood of St. Giles's in the Fields, Yeoman and Constable, That the 2d of August, he going to look to his Fields, and save his Gates from breaking, found a Number of them near to a Place called Aubery-Farm, towards Chelsea, to the Number of 105, as he told them, where they were breaking open Fences; and so they crossed from thence to a Field called Crow-Field, at the upper End of Hide-Park, where they found the Gate opened before they came; and yet they would not be satisfied, but broke upon the Fence beside the Gate, and from thence they passed to the Highway, to High-Hill, where they broke open the Fences into four Fields, (of divers Persons that had held Land there;) many of them said, That they had no Authority to do so, but their Purpose was to lay all Common; but they generally said, We have my Lord Treasurer's Warrant, and we have my Lord Treasurer's Bailiff that keeps Tibbalds, and one Jones, his Lordship's Man, being then present, said, he would drive the Commons within this seven-night, as soon as they had charged a Jury; and many of them said, They had the Councils Letter. There were present Mr. Cole, Westminster High Constable the last Year, and divers others named; and said farther, That Cole led them the Way from Field to Field, with a written Roll in his Hand.

THE Farmers of the Grounds belonging to the Queen's Manor of St. James's, and the rest possessed of Lands and Closes belonging to the said Manor, soon put up a Petition to the Lord Treasurer; shewing how they had enjoyed them Time out of Mind, and at all Times of the Year, till the 1st of August; at what Time certain Persons of the City of Westminster, and the Liberties of the same, to the Number of 60 Persons, or more, in forcible Manner arrayed, brake down all the Hedges of the said Grounds, &c. giving out that they had his Honour's Consent and Warrant. That if it were so, all her Majesty's poor Tenants and Farmers were utterly undone. That it might stand with his Honour's good Liking to commit the Riot to the Star-chamber. And in the mean Time, being about, by a Jury to be chosen among them, to procure a Verdict to warrant their Doings, to stay their Proceedings, and to grant, that the Title being her Majesty's, may be heard and determined before his Honour, and the Barons of the Chequer-chamber.

THE Plea, on the other Hand, of the Inhabitants of Westminster and St. Martin's, was to this Import:

THAT Aubery-farm, containing 430 Acres, Meadow and Pasture, which was holden of her Majesty by Lease, was granted to one Whaske, who paid 21 l. per Ann. And the same was let to divers Persons, who, for their private Commodity, did enclose the same, and had made Pastures of Arable Land; thereby not only annoying her Majesty in her Walks and Passages, but to the Hindrance of her Game, and great Injury to the Common, which at Lammas was wont to be laid open, for the most Part; as by antient Precedents thereof made, do more particularly appear, both in the Time of Henry VIII. Edward VI. and Queen Mary: And by the Grant made from her Majesty to the new Tenants, it appeareth, that they are to enjoy the same Lands in such Sort as their Predecessors did, which was then always Lammas Ground, and now enclosed about 20 Years past.

St. James's Farm, containing about an 100 Acres, is holden of her Majesty, renting per Ann. 7 l. 16 s. The Ground is held by Potteney, enclosed after Lammas; whereas, in the Time of his Predecessor, that, and divers other Parts were laid open; as Sandpit-close, and Pennyleſs-bench. And now he threatneth Death to any that shall presume to open the same; altho' it pleaseth her Majesty to grant the same to him none otherwise than they have been granted before, that is Lammas-ground.

THERE is belonging to the Neat the Quantity of 108 Acres, or thereabouts, which is her Majesty's, and is now in Lease to one Linde and Turner, who keep the same inclosed, converting the same to Pasture, with Divisions and new Hedges; whereas the most Part thereof ought to be Common, and hath been usually Common at Lammas, until within these 19 Years.

THERE are certain Parcels of Land, by Estimation 50 Acres, holden of her Majesty by Lease, sometime in the Possession of Burton St. John Lazarus of Jerusalem, which in Time past hath been Lammas, and Arable; now divided, hedged and ditched for Meadow and Pasture, and ought to be common at Lammas: And now in the Tenure of John Dawson, and by him withholden, contrary to her Majesty's Grant, and contrary to this Liberty.

THERE be also divers others Parcels of Land, some the Inheritance of Wilson, a Brewer, &c. And others, whereof some are laid open at Lammas, according to Custom, and some ought to be, which are now kept inclosed.

AND of these Enclosures, it may please your good Lordship (as the Plea proceeded) to be informed, that at her Majesty's last being at St. James's, she greatly misliked, and said, she had for them but 8 d. an Acre, and that the Inhabitants abused her greatly therein; whereupon she commanded some of the Tenants to be by the Lord Chamberlain committed to the Marshalsea; which was done: And yet, notwithstanding, they have proceeded to a farther Enclosure. These Passages above-written are taken out of the Original Papers belonging to the before-said Lord Treasurer Burleigh.

C H A P. V.

The PARISH of St. JAMES'S.

THIS Parish was formerly Part of St. Martin's in the Fields; being from thence separated by Act of Parliament; which was occasioned by the large Encrease of Buildings, especially in those Parts; so that the Parish Church of St. Martin's was not sufficient to receive so great an Auditory, besides other Inconveniencies the Inhabitants of these Parts were subject to.

THIS Parish has for its Northern and Western Bounds, chiefly the new Parish of St. George's in Hanover-square. For its Eastern Bounds, the East Side of Wardour-street and Whitcombe-street, which belongs to St. Ann's Parish; then the South Side of Coventry-street to the Haymarket, and then against the East Side of the Haymarket, where at the Entrance of Pall-Mall it crosses the Houses, and Warwick-street, to the Wall of the King's Garden in St. James's-park, running along by the said Wall to the Limits of St. James's House; which are its Southern Bounds, and there it crosses into St. James's-street, and runs up into Piccadilly, Bond-street, Swallow-street, &c.

THIS Parish of St. James's is large, well replenished with fine open Streets, which are graced with good Buildings, and generally well inhabited.

THE Parochial Church here, and the Church-Yard (which is divided into two Parts, called the Upper and the Lower Church-Yard) stand near Germain-street, within the Bounds and Limits of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, on two Parcels of Ground, which at the Time of the building of the said Church, were in the Possession of Henry, late Earl of St. Alban's, for a certain Term of Years, then unexpired, who caused the Fabrick of the Church to be built on one of them, and the remaining Part of it, and the other he caused to be allotted for a Church-Yard; after whose Decease Thomas Lord Germain, Baron of St. Edmundsbury, his Nephew and Heir, and one of his Executors, and others interested in the said two Parcels of Ground, assigned over the same, and the Fabrick of the said Church, to Sir Walter Clarges, Bar. and others, for and during the rest of the said Term of Years unexpired, in Trust, to be disposed and continued to and for the Religious Uses for which the same was designed.

KING Charles II. by his Letters Patents bearing Date May 31, in the 36th Year of his Reign, granted to the said Lord Germain and his Heirs for ever, the said Ground and Church Fabrick, in Trust, for the pious Uses aforesaid; which Trust he accordingly executed, and on Sunday the 13th of July both the Church and Church-Yards were consecrated by the Right Reverend Father in God Dr. Henry Compton, Lord Bishop of LONDON, for the Parishioners and Inhabitants of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields; and the said Church was dedicated to the Honour of GOD, by the Name of St. James's in the Fields, since called St. James's Westminster.

It is a very fair and large Church, being in Length from East to West 117 Feet, or thereabouts, and in Breadth, from North to South, 75 Feet, or thereabouts, the Chancel whereof contains 121 Feet square and two Inches. There was a lofty Spire erecting upon the Steeple of this Church, but was taken down again by Reason the Steeple did not prove strong enough to uphold it, but since there is another Spire erected upon it.

AFTER the consecrating of the said Church and Church-Yard, viz. in the first Year of the Reign of King James II. an Act of Parliament passed for the making a Part or Precinct of the said Parish of St. Martin's, for the better Accommodation and Conveniency of the said Precinct, which was for the future to be called, The Parish of St. James's within the Liberty of Westminster; and the said Precinct was thereby discharged from all Dependency on the said Parish of St. Martin's, and this Church and Church-Yard, made this Parish Church and Church-Yard of the said Parish of St. James's.

It is also thereby enacted, That there be a Rector to have Cure of the Souls of the said Parish, and that Dr. Thomas Tennison, the then Vicar of St. Martin's, is thereby constituted the first Rector thereof; and he, and his Successors, Rectors of the said Parish, be incorporated and enabled to sue and be sued, and to have a House erected for them, on Part of the Church-Yard, and to purchase Lands above the present Endowment, not exceeding 200 l. per Annum.

It is farther also enacted, That the Advowson, after the first Avoidance, shall be in the Bishop of LONDON, and his Successors, and Thomas Lord Germain and his Heirs for ever; the first Rector to be collated by the Bishop for the Time being, and the next to be presented by the Lord Germain and his Heirs; and after that two Turns to be in the Lord Bishop and his Successors, and one in the Lord Germain and his Heirs, in Succession for all Times to come, and to be collated, presented and instituted as other Rectors are, and to have and enjoy the like Ecclesiastical Duties, as the Vicar of St. Martin's now enjoys.

THIS Church-Yard is also thereby endowed with one Toft on the North Side and East End of the said Church-Yard, containing 33 Feet in Front, and 32 Feet six Inches backward; and also with another Parcel of Ground whereon Sir Thomas Bond's Stables and Tenements are built, containing 40 Feet in Front, and 75 Feet in Depth, and with the Rents, &c. thereof, after the Expiration of Sir Thomas Bond's Lease; and also with five Houses in Germain-street, in the Tenure of Sir Caesar Wood, alias Cranmer, containing in Front 126 Feet, and in Depth 83 Feet; and also with the yearly Rent of 60 l. reserved upon a Demise thereof to the said Sir Caesar Wood, dated March 10, 1683, for 56 Years, five Months and 20 Days, and all the Rents thereof after Expiration of the said Term, and the Reversion of the Premises, and every one of them; of which, at the Expiration of the Leases, the Rector

Rector for the Time being is enabled to grant Leafes for 41 Years, upon improved yearly Rent, without taking any Fine.

THE Inhabitants of this Parish are likewise thereby made subject to the Law, for the Choice of Church Wardens, and other Parish Officers, and Parochial Duties, as the Inhabitants of St. Martin's are: John Haynes and William Nott, are thereby constituted the first Church Wardens, who are to hold the Office till after Easter, 1686. and they, and their Successors, are to receive such Duties as the Church Wardens of St. Martin's do, and are to be accountable for the same, and all other Money that shall come to them, as other Parishes within the Liberties of Westminster are.

It is farther provided by this Act, that the Vestry-Men of St. Martin's, inhabiting in St. James's Parish, and all such others as are now constituted Supervisors or Commissioners of this Church of St. James's, by the Lord Bishop of LONDON, shall be Vestry-Men thereof; and they, with the Rector, and any Six or more of them, are hereby authoriz'd at their first or second Meeting, after the End of this Session of Parliament, to elect so many additional Vestry-Men, Inhabitants and Houtholders, within this Parish, as shall make the Number of the whole, with the Rector and Church Wardens for the Time being, to be 34; and any Six of which (whereof the Rector, or his Assistant, or Clerk by his Appointment, and one of the Church Wardens to be two) shall have the like Power as the Vestry-Men of St. Martin's, and upon the Death or Voidance of any such Vestry-Man, shall choose another in his Room.

It is also thereby farther provided, that no Pews shall be dispos'd of, but by Consent of the Vestry-Men.

Also, that the Rector, with Consent of the Vestry-Men, may nominate a Preacher to be Assistant to him, and also a Clerk, who is to be in Priest's Orders; and one or more Sexton or Sextons, who shall have the like Fees, as the Clerk and Sexton of St. Martin's; which Preacher-Assistent, Clerk, and Sexton or Sextons, shall respectively continue for Life, if they so long inhabit there; unless for some Offence, or reasonable Cause proved, they shall be displaced by the said Rector, with the Consent of the Vestry-Men, or any Six or more of them. The Clerk is to have 30 l. a Year, to be paid by the Church Wardens, Quarterly, out of the Profits of the Pews, and other Duties, Profits, and Perquisites to them accruing as aforesaid.

AN Estimate is to be made of the Charge of finishing the Steeple, building a House for the Rector, and paying the Debts incurr'd for the Building of the said Church, which shall be charg'd on the Owners and Occupiers of the Houses, to be paid in four Years, by 16 Quarterly Payments, which Quarterly Payments shall be assess'd by the Church Wardens and Vestry-Men, and shall be confirmed by two Justices of the Peace; but no Tenant shall be taxed at less than a fifth Part of the Tax on the Landlord; and if the Estimate be not sufficient, a new Charge may be made, so as the whole Tax do not exceed 2000 l. which Tax is to be paid by the Tenant, and to be allow'd by the Landlord. Debts and Contracts with the Artificers shall be register'd, and out of the Money collected by the said Tax, the Incumbrances of the Houses settied on the Rector shall be first discharg'd, and after that, the Artificers and Work-men in Course, and moderate Interest for Forbearance.

Also 100 l. per Ann. shall be yearly taxed for the Preacher, to be collected by, and paid to the Church-wardens, and by them to the Preacher Quarterly, without any Deduction; and upon Default of Payment to the Preacher or Clerk, the Justices shall give Relief, and imprison the Church-wardens till Payment be made.

Lastly, The Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of this Parish is reserv'd to the Bishop, in the same Manner as it was before in the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields.

THE Altar of this Church hath most admirable Work about it, beside the large Cedar-work, and the other curious carved Wood-work in Flowers, Doves and Pelicans, hanging about against the East Wall over the Table. There is a large Organ, under which is written, This Organ was given to the Parish by her most excellent Majesty the Queen [MARY] and erected at the Charge of several of the Inhabitants, Anno Dom. 1691. They say this Organ was made by King James's Order, and designed for his Popish Chapel at Whitehall, but the Revolution prevented it.

THERE is a Table hangs in the Vestry, with the Names of such as had been Benefactors towards the Ornaments and finishing of the Church, and of those that subscribed towards the erecting the Spire upon the Tower of St. James's.

There was paid for this Charge 397 l. 12 s. 2d. Half-penny.

Received by the Collectors, 331 l. 5 s.

The great Clock was given by Henry Massey. The Painting and Gilding of the Vane and Dials, was given by Mr. Highmore. He was Serjeant Painter to the late Queen.

This came to 6 l.

The Clock within the Church was given by Anthony Plewit.

John L. Osulston gave towards building of the Vestry, 100 l.

Sir Robert Geer gave the Altar, and all the Furniture and Plate, which they say came to 3000 l.

It is wainscotted with Cedar, hath much Marble about it, and the Table is of Cedar.

To this Parish is a Chapel of Ease, in King-street by Golden-square, built in the Year 1702, at the sole Expence of Dr. Thomas Tennison, late Archbishop of Canterbury, who endowed the same as follows, viz. There are Prayers and Sermons every Sunday Morning and Afternoon, before Ten and before Three o'Clock; and Prayers every Week-Day four Times as at the Church, and every Christmas-Day, and other solemn Fasts and Thanksgivings. The Morning Preacher's Salary is 70 l. per Annum, the Afternoon Preacher hath 50 l. per Annum; and the two Curates, who read Prayers, have 20 l. per Annum each.

IN Berwick-street there is likewise a Chapel, in which are Prayers and Sermons every Sunday Morning and Evening, before Ten, and before Three o'Clock. Prayers every Week-Day at Eleven and Five; every Christmas-Day, and other solemn Fasts and Thanksgivings, as at the Church. The Morning Preacher has 30 l. per Annum; and the Afternoon Preacher has 20 l. per Annum. In the same Street is a French Chapel; in Swallow-street is a Presbyterian Meeting-House; in Glass-house-street an Anabaptist Meeting-House.

THERE is a Charity-School in King-street for thirty-six Boys, who are the Children of poor Inhabitants, for Schooling only, and maintained by the Charity left by the late Archbishop Dr. Tennison. The Master is in Priest's Orders; there is also a Writing-Master, who attends three Times a Week.

THERE is another Charity-School over the Watch-House, for forty Boys who are taught to read, write, &c. at the Charge of the Offertory; they are cloathed once a Year, put Apprentices when capable, and Forty Shillings given with each of them; sometimes more, according to the Genius of the Boys, and the Interest that can be made for them. The Master's Salary is 30 l. per Annum, who has a small Lodging-Room, and allow'd Fire and Candles. The Charity-School, which was formerly in Carnaby-street, is removed to a handsome Edifice on the North Part of Burlington Gardens, where eighty Girls are boarded, cloathed, taught, and placed out to Service, &c. at the Charge of divers Subscribers, and by Collections made at the Church-doors twice in a Year, after the Charity Sermons are ended. This School is in Trust; there is a Clerk to teach to write, and a Mistress belonging to it.

THERE is a Work-house in the upper Burial-Ground, which cost about 4000 l. in the Building and Furniture; it is capable to contain three hundred poor People. Here is a Governor, a Matron, a Clerk to read Prayers twice a Day, a Cook, a Spinning-master, a Laundry-woman, and other inferior Servants. The Boys and Girls who are in this Workhouse, are allowed 30 s. each when apprenticed. Here is a Committee held every Wednesday to inspect into the Affairs of the House. There is also a Midwife, who takes Care of such Women as are sent thither when they are pregnant, being Parishioners, when the Fathers of the Children cannot be found. When any of the Poor fall sick, they are removed to the Infirmary, which is in a Street, called the Gravel-Pits near Broad-street, a Surgeon and an Apothecary to attend them, a Matron, and other Servants, take Care of the Infirmary; and a Clergyman in Priest's Orders, whose Salary is 15 l. per Annum; and visits the Sick.

Number of Houses about 4300.

St. James's-street, begins at the Palace of St. James's, and runs up to the Road against Albemarle-buildings, being a spacious Street, with very good Houses well inhabited by Gentry: At the upper End of which towards the Road are the best, having before them a Terrass Walk, ascended by Steps, with a Freestone Pavement. Out of this Street, on the West Side, it hath a Passage into these Places, fronting Pall-mall. A Passage to Cleveland-court, formerly one large House, and called Berkshire-house; which being purchased by the Dutches of Cleveland, took her Name; now divided into several Houses, the chief of which are now inhabited by his Grace the Duke of Bridgwater, the Right Honourable Sir Paul Methuen, &c. Then in the said Street is a large Yard for Stabling, with some Houses run running down to St. James's-park, viz. on the West Side, one inhabited by the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Godolphin, Groom of the Stole to his Majesty, another by the Rt. Hon. the Lord Harrington, one of the Principal Secretaries of State. Then is James's-place, a good Street; which towards the upper End, openeth wide, and receiveth the fresh Air out of the Park: The Houses are well built, and inhabited by Gentry, especially the upper Part, where the Houses are larger and better built and inhabited.

Park-place, a handsome, open, broad Street, with good Buildings, fit for Gentry.

St. James's-square is situated between St. James's Church on the North, and Pall-mall on the South, the Area containing near four Acres of Ground; the North, East, and West Sides, consist chiefly of Noblemen's Houses. This Square is finely paved with Headingstone all over, in which there is a most curious Basen (in most Places seven Feet deep) which is Oval, and 150 Feet Diameter; in the Centre there is a Pedestal about 15 Feet square, designed for a Statue of King William III. on Horseback; the whole is invironed with Iron Rails, Octogonal, or eight Square, and at each Angle without the Rails, is a Stone Pillar about nine Feet high, and a Lamp on the Top: The Gravel-walk within the Rails, is in breadth from each Angle to the Margin of the Basen, about 26 Feet. All this was done at the Expence of the Inhabitants, who got an Act of Parliament for that Purpose. In this Square are the Houses of the Dukes of Norfolk, Southampton, Kent, and Chandos; the Earls of Pembroke, Essex, Chesterfield, Stafford, Bristol, Brodalbin, Tankerville, and Wilmington; the Lord Bathurst, Sir Robert Walpole, &c.

Pall-mall is a fine long Street, which from the Hay-market runs in a straight Line Westwards into St. James's-street. The Houses on the South Side gives a pleasant Prospect into the Prince of Wales's Garden; and besides, they have small Gardens behind them, which reach to the Wall, and to many of them there are raised Mounts, which give them the Prospect of the said Garden, and of the Park. On this Side, and overagainst St. Alban's-street, is Stone-cutter's-alley, paved with Freestone, which leads into Warwick-street, and likewise to the Gate of Carlton-house, and Gardens, lately purchased by the Prince of Wales, in which his Royal Highness has made great Improvements. A little higher is the new House of Mr. Doddington, built after the Italian manner; which as an ingenious Architect says, has, at first View, very much the Aspect of a Bottle Glass-House, by the Chimneys being collected into one Stack, placed in the Vertex of the Roof. Somewhat farther is a House, which, if not remarkably magnificent, is very pleasing to the Spectator, and has something in it of that Elegance and Propriety which accompany every Word and Action of its Owner, the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Egmont. Then about the Middle of this Street is Pall-mall-court, a very neat Place, with fine new built Houses, fit for Gentlemen; the back Windows pleasantly opening into the Prince's Garden. This Court hath a handsome Freestone Pavement, and at the Entrance there are Iron Bars made open, with the Door of the same, to shut up at Nights, for the Security of the Inhabitants. Farther Westward is a large, but no Way remarkable House; belonging formerly to Duke Schomberg, and at present to the Earl of Fitzwater, who married one of the said Duke's Daughters. Next, adjoining to St. James's House, is a Place called the Priory-court, in which is the House of her Grace the Dutches of Marlborough, before-mentioned.

Then on the North Side of Pall-mall, near St. James's-street, is Crown-court, a Place of ordinary Building, and as meanly inhabited. It is a good Thorough-fare into King's-street; and likewise falleth into another Court, which bears the same Name, and openeth into St. James's-street.

BETWEEN Rider-street and Little Fermaine-street, is a small Court called Crown and Scepter-court.

King's-street, a good handsome Street, which fronts St. James's-square Eastwards, and Westwards it hath a Pallage through an open paved Alley, called Little King's-street; into St. James's-street. On the South Side is Angel-court, not over well built or inhabited; and near unto this, is a long Yard for Coaches and Stablings, useful for the Gentry in these Parts.

Berry-street, a handsome open Street; which runs up into Fermaine-street; on the West Side is Painter's-court; and on the other Side, almost opposite to it, is Guy of Warwick's-court; both very small and inconsiderable.

Rider's-street comes out of St. James's-street; and crossing Berry-street, falls into Duke-street.

Duke-street comes out of Piccadilly, crosses Fermaine-street, and falls into King-street. Here are several well built Houses, which seem to be better inhabited than Berry-street, or Rider-street. On the West Side are two small Courts; the one called Feather-court, and the other Gray's-court; opposite this Court is a very large Yard for Coaches and Stabling, with some Houses; of which one is very good, with a handsome Garden to it, in which lately dwelt the Duke of Shrewsbury. This Yard is called St. Alban's-meuse, and hath two Passages into Duke-street; of which one is for Coaches and Carts, and hath another Passage into Blackmore-street. More towards King's-street is a pretty neat Court, called Prince's-court, with a Freestone Pavement neatly kept, and not meanly inhabited: It hath a Door with open Iron Bars half way, to shut up a-Nights, for the Security of the Inhabitants.

York-street comes out of St. James's-square, runs up to the Church; a broad Street, but the greatest Part is taken up by the Garden Walls of the Duke of Chandos's House, and one on the other Side, so that towards the Church, there are not above two or three Houses on each Side. On the East Side is Angier-street, and on the West Black-a-moor-street, both taken up for Coaches and Stables, and of no great Account, being back Streets.

Charles-street, being large and handsome, which comes out of St. James's-square on the East Side, and crosseth St. Alban's-street.

St. Alban's-street, another handsome well built Street, which goes out of the Pall-mall and fronts the Market; St. James's-market is well replenished with the best of Flesh, Poultry, Fish, and Garden-stuff, that can be met with, but usually a fourth Part dearer than in the Markets about the City of LONDON, most of the Provisions being brought from thence, and bought up here by the Stewards of People of Quality, who spare no Price to furnish their Lords Houses with what is nice and delicate. On the outh West Corner is the Paved-alley, a good Thorough-fare into Charles-street, and so into St. James's-square, and those Parts; but is of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants. On each Side, or Square of this Market, is a Row of Houses, inhabited by such as have a Dependence on the Market, kept twice a Week, but that on Saturdays is the most considerable.

Market-street, so called from the Market, which it fronts against Fermaine-street, a pretty good Street, and of some Trade; here is a very small Place called Comb's-alley.

Market-lane, which also takes its Name from the Market near adjoining, and lieth on the Back-side of the Haymarket, into which it hath an ordinary ordinary and narrow Passage through Six-bell-alley, a Place for Stabling. There is likewise here a back Passage into the Opera House in the Haymarket. In this Lane is Salter's-court, a small square Place, ill inhabited. Here is also another small Place called Parson's-court.

Norris-street, but short, which comes out of the Haymarket, and fronts the Market, a Place of pretty good Trade for Salesmen.

THE Haymarket, a spacious Street of great Resort, full of Inns, and Houses of Entertainment; especially on the West Side, which is in this Parish. The Market for Hay and Straw, here kept every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, makes it to be of good Account. The Inns, or Yards, on this Side, beginning next towards Piccadilly, are, Black-horse-yard, and David's-yard, both for Stabling. Nag's-head-inn, indifferent large. Cock-yard, for Stabling. White-horse-inn, a Place of good Resort. Phoenix-yard and Unicorn-yard, both for Stabling, and Coach-houses, much resorted unto. In this Street are two Theatres, the first built by Sir John Vanbrugh, in which Opera's are performed in the Italian Language, and Singers for that Purpose brought from Italy at an excessive Price, such as 1000 and 1500 Pounds a Year a Piece to some of them, who are otherwise so much encouraged, that it is said, one who is here at present, Signor Farinello, had Presents from the Nobility on his Benefit-Night, to the Amount of 2000 Pounds, an Extravagance that perhaps will not be believed in the next Age.

THE other Theatre is at present taken up by a Pack of French Strollers, who are likewise much caressed and followed by Persons of the greatest Quality: So much do we admire at this Time every Thing that is Foreign!

Piccadilly, a large Street, and a great Thorough-fare, as seated in the Western Road, well inhabited, especially that Part towards Albemarle Buildings. We shall begin with the South Side next to St. James's-street, and then proceed to the North. The first is White-horse-inn, then Elephant-inn; next beyond Duke-street is the King's-arms-inn; all three Inns of an indifferent Trade. Then beyond Church-lane, already spoken of, is Eagle-street, which falls into Germain Street: Next unto it is Fleece-yard, near the Haymarket, which hath a Passage into Germain Street, very ordinary built and inhabited: And near unto this Yard is Sadler's-court, which is but small and mean. Then, on the North Side of Piccadilly, is Burlington House; where, says the Critical Review, "We are entertained with " a Sight of the most expensive Wall in England;
" I mean that before Burlington House: No" thing material can be objected to it, and much
" may be said in its Praise! 'Tis certain the " Height is wonderfully well proportion'd to
" the Length, and the Decorations are both
" simple and magnificent; the Grand Entrance " is august and beautiful, and by covering the " House entirely from the Eye, gives Pleasure
" and Surprise, at the opening of the whole " Front, with the Area before it, at once. If " any thing can be found Fault with in this " Structure, 'tis this; that the Wall itself is not " exactly on a Line; that the Columns of the " Gate are meerly ornamental, and support no" thing at all; that the Rustick has not all the " Propriety in the World for a Palace; and that
" the main Body of the Pile is hardly equal to " the Outside.

NEXT to Burlington House is the Duke of Marlborough's, with a high Wall likewise before it which hides it from the Street; and though it be inferior to the former in many other Respects, yet the Library is looked upon as one of the compleatest in England, whether we regard the Beauty of the Building, or the Books that fill it. This Edifice is an hundred and fifty Feet in Length, divided into five Apartments, having an upper and lower Range of Windows and Galleries that go round the Whole for the Convenience of taking down the Books: It was collected chiefly by his Grace's Father the late Earl of Sunderland, who left no Library unsearch'd to replenish it with the most valuable Books; among the rest here is a greater Variety of Editions of the Classicks than is to be met with in any other Library; and it is said the whole Number of Books cost at least 30,000*l*.

NEAR this House is Sackville-street, a pretty handsome open Place, as having a Prospect into the Gardens of those Houses in Piccadilly; it has a turning Passage into Swallow-street. Near this Street, and in Piccadilly is Maggot's-court, a handsome Place, with a Free-stone Pavement, and has a Passage into Little Swallow-street. Bear-alley but small, with a Passage into Castle-street, near the End of the Haymarket falls in Shug-lane, where is George-yard, a Place for Stabling; and against the Haymarket is Windmill-street; and here begins Coventry-street, which falls into Whitcombe-street, on the Backside of Leicester-fields. Near to the Corner of Windmill-street is Crown-yard, a Place for Stabling: And a little farther is Panton-square, once a Place for Stabling and Coach-houses, having one large Yard within another.

Rupert-street, a pretty handsome, well built Street, which comes out of Coventry-street, and runs up a good Length, as far as Edmund's-court, which has a pretty broad Passage, with a Free-stone Pavement, into Whitcombe-street, over-against St. Anne's Church.

Richmond-street, a pretty handsome but short Street, which falls into Rupert-street.

Whitcombe-street, runs Northwards, by St. Anne's Church, into Wardour-street, and begins at the Corner of Coventry-street, over-against Lisle-street; there is a very small Court of about two or three Houses, called Coopers-court; a little farther is the Nag's-head-inn, with two more Inns, or Stable-Yards, both having the Sign of the Plough. Then passing by Richmond-street, and Edmund's-court, already named, is Cock-and-swan-alley, over-against Compton-street, a very narrow, dirty, ill-built and inhabited Place.

Knave's Acre, or Poultney-street, falls into Brewers-street by Windmill-street End, and so runs Westward as far as Marybone-street, and Warwick-street End; and crossing the same, and Swallow-street, falls into Glass-house-street, which leads into the Fields on the Backside of Burlington Garden, and thence to Albemarle Buildings. This Knave's Acre is but narrow, and chiefly inhabited by those that deal in old Goods, and Glass Bottles. On the South Side is a small Place, called Spur-alley; and another, called Prince's-court. And on the North Side is Walker's-court, with a pretty Free-stone Pavement, which falls into Peter's-street: And a little beyond this Court is another small Place, called Cymball's-alley, which also leads into Peter-street.

Wardour-street hath only the West Side (which is the best) in this Parish, and runs Northwards into Tyburn Road; the East Side being in the Parish of St. Anne's. This Side hath all new Buildings, as the greatest Part of the other Side hath, except towards the End next the Road, which Time will accomplish. Out of this Street goes Peter-street, which, crossing Berwick-street, falls into waste and unbuilt Ground; a Street not over well inhabited. Here is a small Court, but the right Name is not yet given. Farther Northward is Edward-street, which also crosses Berwick-street, and falls into waste and unbuilt Ground;

Ground; nor is this Street over well inhabited: And so is another a little farther, begun to be built, called Tweed-street.

Berwick-street, on the West of Wardour-street. It begins at Peter-street, and runs Northwards as far as Tyburn Road; a pretty handsome strait Street, with new well-built Houses, much inhabited by the French, where they have a Church; near unto which is a pretty handsome Court, with a Freestone Pavement, called Kemp's Court. About the Middle of this Street is a Place designed for a Hay-market, and a great Part of the low Ground raised, with some of the Houses built Piazza-wise, and sustained by Stone Pillars; but whether it will be finished, Time will make appear. Westwards of this Street is a large Tract of waste Ground, reaching to the Wall of the Pest-house, built by the Earl of Craven, which runs from the Backside of Golden-square, to a Piece of Clofe or Meadow Ground which reaches to Tyburn Road.

Windmill-street, indifferent good and broad; it comes out of Piccadilly against the Haymarket, and falls into Brewers-street. On the West Side is Conde-court, very inconsiderable for Building or Inhabitants. Opposite to this is Black-horse-yard, a Place of good Account for Stabling. Then farther Northwards is Windmill-yard, another such like Place for Stabling. And opposite unto it is a short Street, called Orchard-street, broad, but of no great Account; which runs up to the Backside of Rupert-street; into which it hath a Passage through a narrow Entry or Alley. Then a little farther, on the same Side, is Feathers-alley, which hath a Passage into Knave's Acre, being but very small and inconsiderable, as is Salton's-court, on the other Side of the Way.

Queen-street, a neat, clean, and quiet Street, with good Houses, well inhabited: It comes out of Windmill-street, and falls into Sherard-street. About the Middle of this Street is Trum-ball-yard, a pretty large Place for Coaches and Stabling.

Sherard-street, a handsome, broad, well built and inhabited Place, which takes its Beginning at Marybone-street, passes by Queen-street, and runs up into Brewer's-street, against St. James's-street, that leads into Golden-square.

Marybone-street takes its Beginning at the End of Brewer's-street, against Warwick-street, and falls into Shug-lane, and thence into Piccadilly by the Haymarket.

THIS Shug-lane is but meanly built, neither are its Inhabitants much to be boasted of. On the North Side are two very ordinary Places, viz. Hunt's-court and Brown's-court: And on the South Side is Gibson's-court, a neat and new built Place, with a Free-stone Passage into Castle-street.

Ayre-street comes out of Piccadilly, and falls into Marybone-street. On the East Side is Castle-street, very ordinary built and inhabited; hath a small Passage into Piccadilly.

Francis-street, but short, takes its Rise from Marybone-street, and falls into Brewer's-street, against John's-street, which leads into Golden-square.

Vine-street, a Place of no great Account; the chief Part of which is taken up by a Brew-house on the one Side, and a Carpenter's Yard on the other. At the Bottom of this Street is Little Swallow-street, of small Account, which falls into Great Swallow-street.

Warwick-street, on the Backside of Golden-square, a Place not over well built or inhabited towards the End next to Marybone-street; but on the upper End it hath some good Houses on both Sides.

Swallow-street, very long, coming out of Piccadilly, and runs Northwards to Tyburn Road, against Neb's Pound, but of no great Account for Buildings or Inhabitants. On the East Side is Little Swallow-street, as aforesaid. More Northwards is a small Court, called Haynes-court; a little beyond which is a large Yard for Stabling and Coaches, called Baxter's-yard, as being made use of by one Mr. Baxter, who there kept his Riding-house, for the instructing young Gentlemen to ride the managed Horse. Opposite to to this is a Passage into Sackville-street, already spoken of. Then beyond is Glass-house-street, which Swallow-street crosses; here is a large Yard for Coaches and Stables, called Sadler's-yard. On the East Side is a little square Court, called Harris's-court. This Street is crossed by Leicester Street, of no great Account, being ordinarily built and inhabited, except the West End towards the Fields, where there is a very good House and Garden. In this Part of Swallow-street is Bell-yard, or Inn, for Stabling and Coaches; and farther up Swallow-street is another very large and commodious Yard for Coach-Houses and Stabling. More Northwards is a short Street, called Burlington-street, in the Midst of which is a Yard for Stabling: And a little farther, towards the Road, this Street ends, and falls into a Lane that leads to the high Road.

Beak-street butts against Warwick-street; comes out of Swallow-street, and falls into Silver-street, on the Backside of Golden-square, and here is Pott's-yard, a pretty large Place for Stabling and Coaches.

Golden-square, a very handsome open Place, railed round, and gravelled within, having very good Houses, inhabited by Gentry on all Sides. The Row of Buildings on the East Side is called James-street, which Name it retains 'till it falls into Brewer's-street; and on the West Side from Brewer's-street to Silver-street, is called John's-street.

King-street comes out of Beak-street and Silver-street, and runs Northwards to the Road: It is a pretty good Street, having divers very good Houses fit for Gentry. On the West Side is a Chapel of Ease, by some called the Tabernacle, near which is Hide's-court, of small Account. On the East Side is Cross-street, ordinarily built and inhabited, which falls into Carnaby-street; and farther Northwards is another Passage into the upper End of Carnaby-street, and another into Swallow-street.

Carnaby-street, an ordinary Street, which goes out of Silver-street, and runs Northwards almost to the Bowling-ground. On the East Side of this Street are the Earl of Craven's Pest-Houses, seated in a large Piece of Ground, inclosed with a Brick Wall and handsomely set with Trees, in which are Buildings for the Entertainment of Persons that have the Plague, when it shall please God to punish this Town with any Contagion.

AND these are all the Boundaries, Streets, &c. this Parish of St. James's. The next is

The PARISH of St. GEORGE in Hanover-Square.

THIS Parish was also taken out of that St. George in Martin's in the Fields, by Vertue of an Act of the 9th of Queen Anne for building 50 new Churches, and other subsequent Acts, and is bounded by Oxford Road towards the North; by Swallow-street, which separates it from St. James's, towards the East; by another Part of St. James's on the South, and by Knightsbridge on the West.

THE Church here takes its Name from its being dedicated to St. George the Martyr, in Honour

St. George in Hanover-square.

Honour of the late King George I. and the Words in Hanover-square are added to distinguish it from other Churches dedicated to the same Saint, and because it stands near that Place.

THE Foundation of this Church was laid in the Year 1712, and was consecrated the 23d Day of March 1724.

"THIS Church, says the Author of the Critical Review, is, at least one of the most elegant in LONDON; the Portico is stately and august, the Steeple handsome and well proportioned, and the North and East Prospects very well worth a sincere Approbation.

It is situated on the East Side of Great George-street.

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Bishop of LONDON, of the yearly Value of 300 l. or upwards.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Trebeck, and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Savage.

PRAYERS are at Eleven in the Forenoon, and at Five in the Afternoon. Here is a very good Organ and one Bell.

THE Vestry is select, consisting of 100, the most of which is composed of the Chief Nobility of England; the Church-Wardens have hitherto been Persons of Distinction; the two first were the Right Honourable the late Lord Carpenter, and the Right Honourable General William Stewart, who gave the Ground whereon the Church was built, and bequeathed by his Will 4000 l. to be laid out in erecting a Charity School after a certain Term of Years.

STREETS, Lanes, &c.

In Conduit-street Ward.

PART of New Bond-street, Union-street, Sheppard-street; Part of Oxford-road, Little Brooks-street, Hanover-square, Conduit-street, Mill-street, Prince's-street; Part of Swallow-street, Hanover-street, Pawling-street, Great George-street, Maddox-street, and Donnet's-court.

In Grosvenor-street Ward.

In Dover-street Ward.

In the Out-Ward are,

NUMBER of Houses are about 1432.

Hanover-square has Oxford-road or Street on the East, Conduit-street on the South, and New Bond-street on the West.

THE Area of the Square contains about two Acres of Ground, in the Middle of which is a Garden inclosed with a Pallisado Pale. The Houses new built after the modern Way, make a grand Appearance, and are inhabited by Noblemen and Gentlemen of the first Quality.

Prince's-street runs from New Bond-street Eastward into Swallow-street, crossing the North Side of Hanover-square.

Hanover-street runs from New Bond-street Eastward into Swallow-street, crossing the South Side of Hanover-square. The Houses in these Streets are of the second Rate, but few of them equal to those in the Square, and are some of them inhabited by Tradesmen.

Great George-street, which runs from Hanover-square South into Conduit-street, is the noblest of all the Streets near this Square: Here are several very fine Houses built and inhabited by Noblemen, and People of the first Rank, and the Street is broad, well-paved, and clean, suitable to the Buildings that compose it: We find it also well illuminated, both in Summer and Winter Nights, all the Year round, as most of the Streets and Squares in this Part of the Town are, by the Chrystal Lamps, which hang before the Doors of People of Quality, and give a much better and truer Light than those set up at the publick Charge.

New Bond-street runs from Old Bond-street Northward to Oxford-road, and is one of the longest and best built Streets in Town.

Conduit-street runs from New Bond-street Eastward to Swallow-street.

PART of Oxford-road, now converted into a Street, is the Northern Boundary of this Parish, as Swallow-street is the Eastern Boundary, but neither of them yet well built.

South Moulton-street runs from Oxford-road Southward to Brook-street.

Davies-street runs from Oxford-road South towards Grosvenor-meuſe.

James-street runs from Oxford-road Southward to Brook-street.

Grosvenor or Gravenor-square, is bounded on the North by Oxford-road, on the East by Hanover-buildings, by May-fair on the South, and by Hide-park on the West; the Area whereof contains about five Acres of Ground, in which is a large Garden, laid out into Walks, and adorned with an Equestrian Statue of King George I. gilded with Gold, and standing on a Pedestal, in the Center of the Garden, the Whole surrounded with pallisado Pales placed upon a dwarf Wall. The Buildings generally are the most magnificent we meet with in this great Town; though Lincoln's-inn-fields and other Squares and Streets, may have some that equal these. The Fronts of the Houses in Grosvenor-square are not all alike, some of them are entirely of Stone, others of Brick and Stone, and others of rubbed Brick, with only their Quoins, Facio's, Windows and Door-Cases of Stone; some of them are adorned with Stone Columns of the several Orders, while others have only plain plain Fronts, and it is looked upon as a great Fault by many, that the Buildings are not uniform.

It is observed however, on the other Hand, that here is the greatest Variety of fine Buildings that are to be met with any where in so small a Compass; and they are so far uniform as to be all slated, and of pretty near an equal Height. To the Kitchens and Offices, which have little paved Yards with Vaults before them, they descend by 12 or 15 Steps; and these Yards are defended by an high Pallisade of Iron. Every House has a Garden behind it, and many of them Coach-Houses and Stables adjoining; those that have none, have Stables near the Square, in a that Place has the Name of Grosvenor-meuise. This Square has several other Advantages, as an elevated Situation on a hard gravelly Soil, lies open to the Fields leading to Highgate and Hampstead on the North, as it does to Hide-park on the West, into which their Coaches have a Passage by a handsome Iron-Gate, with Liberty of driving through the Park to the Palace of Kensington, from whence they are distant but little more than a Mile, and about half a one from the Palace of St. James's. The finishing of the Houses within is equal to the Figure they make without; the Stair-Cases of some are inlaid, and perfect Cabinet-Work, and the Paintings on the Roof and Sides by the best Hands. The Apartments usually consist of a long Range of fine Rooms, equally commodious and beautiful; none of the Houses are without two or three Stair-Cases for the Convenience of the Family. The grand Stair-Case is generally in the Hall at the Entrance; but not to tire the Reader with farther Particulars, he will not doubt of the Elegancy or Commodiousness of their Houses, when he knows that a great many Noblemen and Gentlemen of the first Quality and the nicest Taste have thought fit to purchase Houses here at the Rate of three, four, and five thousand Pounds a House: In short, this Square may well be looked upon as the Beauty of the Town; those who have not seen it, cannot have an adequate Idea of the Place.

Not far from these Buildings; just within Hide-park, is a noble round Basen, supplied with Thames Water from Chelsea, from whence it is distributed to every House here: And there is another Basen or Reservoir a little to the Northward of Hanover-buildings, which once belonged to the York-buildings Company; but is since disposed of to that of the Chelsea Water-Works.

Grosvenor-street runs from the Square Eastward to Madox-street, and is a spacious well built Street, inhabited chiefly by People of Distinction.

Madox-street runs from Grosvenor-street Eastward to Swallow-street, in which the Houses are but of the second Rate.

Brook-street runs from Grosvenor-street Eastward towards Hanover-square, and is for the most part nobly built, and inhabited by People of Quality.

Audley-street and Duke-street run from Oxford-road South into Mount-street, and are but little inferior to the former.

Hide-park-street runs from Oxford-road South towards May-fair.

King-street runs from Grosvenor-square Westward to Hide-park.

In this Parish of St. George's in Hanover-square, is a Work-House adjoining to the Burial Ground near Hide-park, and upwards of 80 Children are maintained at the Charge of the Parish.

In Conduit-street is a Chapel, called Trinity Chapel; wherein are Prayers twice a Day. There is another in May-Fair, that has Prayers in it twice a Week. At Knightsbridge in this Parish is a Chapel, and another is lately built near Grosvenor-square.

St. A N N E's Parish.

THIS Parish was also, by Act of Parliament taken out of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields.

In the first Year of King James II. there was an Act of Parliament, to enable the Inhabitants of the Parish of St. Anne's within the Liberties of Westminster, to raise Money to build a Church, to be the Parish Church there. And it was built on a Parcel of Ground, called Kemp's Field; with the Church-yard. This Act was pursuant to a former Act, 30 Car. II. entitled, An Act for making Part of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields a new Parish, to be called, The Parish of St. Anne within the Liberties of Westminster. But wanting Money to finish the Church, though the Building was got to some Height, they were forced to get a new Act of 1 Jac. 2. that they might legally make an equal Distribution among themselves for the Performance thereof. By this Act thirty Persons were to be appointed by the Bishop of LONDON, to be Supervisors and Commissioners for the Church. And after the Church was finished, the same to be Vestry-men for the said Parish. The Rector of St. Anne's Church, and the Church-wardens, to be additional Supervisors and Commissioners. These, or any nine of them, to assess the Inhabitants, Owners, and Occupiers of Lands, &c. for the Charges in building and finishing the Church, not exceeding 5000 l.

THE Church is pleasant and pretty large, with an arched Roof divided into Pannels, with Fret-work, and supported by about 12 Pillars of the Ionick Order, and the Galleries are elevated on those of the Tuscan Order.

THE ornamental Part is very well; it is wainscotted round with painted Deal, and Bolection-work: and the Galleries the same, which are on the North, West, and South Sides of the Church, besides the Organ Gallery, which is over that other at the West End of the Church.

THE East End has in the Middle of the Inside a jetting out with a Sweep or semicircular Space, where the Altar is very handsome, being painted in Imitation of Marble, and consists of two Columns near the Middle, and two Pilasters on each Side, with their Entablature, and circular open Pediment of the Tuscan Order. Next the Centre are the Lord's Prayer and Creed, and farther outward are the Commandments done all in large Gold Letters upon Black; and on each Side the Commandments, and facing each other, are Moses and Aaron, well painted at full Length.

AT Moses's Right Hand are these Words:

1 Cor. v. 7, 8. For even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us; therefore let us keep the Feast not with old Leaven, neither with the Leaven of Malice and Wickedness, but with the unleaven Bread of Sincerity and Truth.

AND at Aaron's Left Hand are these Words also done in large Gold Letters upon Black.

1 Cor. xv. 20. Christ is risen from the Dead, and become the first Fruits of them that slept; for since by Man came Death, by Man came also the Resurrection of the Dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

AND

AND the Whole is adorned with Cherubims, &c.

THE Walls of the Church are strong, and of Brick, with fine Rustick Quoins; the Roof is covered with Tile, and at the East End a large Modillion Cornice, and triangular Pediment.

The MONUMENTS in this Church are as follow :

ON the South Side of the Altar is a very curious spacious Monument of white polished Marble, with this Inscription :

In this Chancel lyeth interred the Body of the Right Honourable Lady Grace Pierpoint, Daughter to the most Noble and Puissant Prince, Henry Pierpoint, Marquis of Dorchester, deceased. Who, in her Life-time, was exemplary for Piety, Virtue, and Charity. She departed this Life on the 25th of March, in the Year of our Lord 1703, in the 86th Year of her Age.

THE Monument is adorned with two large twisted Columns, with their Architrave, Frieze Cornice and Pediment of the Composite Order, and enrich'd with Urns, Flowers, Fruits, &c. Under the Pediment a Festoon Curtain, Gilt like Gold Fringe; on the Curtain lie two Cupids, and under that the Figure of the said Lady, standing upright, wrapt in a rich Mantle; at her Feet are two Babes weeping, and under the Pedestal (whereon the Inscription above it, cut) is her Ladyship's Coat of Arms, which are :

In a Lozenge Pearl, a Lion Rampant, Diamond within eight Cinquefoils born Orkways, Ruby. The Coat is embellished with a Compartment of Voluta's, Chubims, &c.

Not far from this Monument above mentioned, is a small white Marble one, with this Inscription; Here lieth interred the Body of Thomas Egar, Esq; Surveyor General to King Charles II. and King James II. of all their Woods on the South Side the Trent; and Carver in Ordinary to Catherine, the Queen Dowager of England, who died the 27th of August, Anno. Dom. 1687. Aged 45 Years.

Under which Inscription are his Arms, which are :

Argent, a Chevron engrailed between three Boars Heads couped, Sable.

Within the Rails, by the Communion Table, is a large black Marble Grave Stone, having this Inscription under that of his Ladies, who died September the 18th, 1691.

Here lies the above mentioned Sir John Lanier, one of their Majesties Lieutenant-Generals, who was at the Reduction of Scotland and Ireland, and died at Brussels of his Wounds that he receiv'd at the Battle of Enghien in Flanders, the 29th Day of July, 1692.

Three Bendlets, the Colour cannot be expected here.

Before the Communion Table, is a flat Stone for Mrs. Diana Farrel, departed 1686. Whose Monument is against the North Wall; assigning her to be the Daughter of Charles Farrel, Esq; dying in the 22d Year of her Age.

Another flat Stone there is for Grace Mouldsworth, Wife to Hender Mouldsworth, Esq; late

Governor of Jamaica, 1687. She hath a Monument on the South Wall, by the Communion Table.

Against the South Wall is a Monument for Egerton Hul, Son of Thomas Hul, of Surrey, Gent. 1687.

Another for Gresham Hakewel, Son of Gresham Hakewel of Weston Turville in the County of Bucks, Gent. 1692. Aged 16. Also Katharine Hakewel, his Daughter, 1692. Aged 18.

Farewel my only Comfort, Prop and Stay
Of my Family, wrapt and wound in Clay :
Would I had not liv'd to have known this Day!
Written by their Father.

Elijah Hopkins, late of Newtown in the County of Northampton, 1701. Aged 29.

Wondrous young Man, why wast thou made so good,
To be snatch'd hence ere better understood?
Snatch'd, before half enough of thee was seen,
Though ripe, but yet thy tender Life was green,
&c.

James Hays, Apothecary, who married the Sitter of the said Elijah Hopkins, sometime Apothecary to King William III. 1701.

Susanna Butler, Daughter of Thomas Butler, 1694.

Mary Bullimore, Daughter of Richard and Mary Bullimore, 1694-5.

In the Church Yard under a black Marble Tombstone, is this Inscription :

Mrs. Mary Cage, Wife of John Blackwell, Esq; now the Relict of Tobias Cage, Esq; who after a Pilgrimage of 68 Years in a troublesome World, lay down here to rest, in hopes of a joyful Resurrection, Obiit July 6, 1697.

THIS Living is a Rectory, in the Gift of the Bishop of LONDON, value per Annum, 100 l. but with the Glebe and Surplice Fees, worth 300 l. per Annum.

THE Rector is the Rev. Dr. John Pelling; and the Lecturers, the Rev. Mr. Richard Bundy, and the Rev. Mr. John Thomas.

PRAYERS are every Day from Lady-Day to Michaelmas, at six and 11 in the Morning, and at four and six in the Afternoon: From Michaelmas to Lady-Day, Prayers are at seven and 11 in the Morning, and four and six in the Afternoon.

HERE is an Organ and two Bells. The Gift Sermons are one on the first of January, and one on the fifth of November.

The Vestry is Select.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are :

2 Burgesses.
2 Assistant Burgesses.
2 Church Wardens.
4 Collectors for the Poor.

The PEACE OFFICERS are :

6 Constables.
4 Beadles.
4 Scavengers.
2 Surveyors of the High Way.

IN this Parish are three French Churches, one in Chapel-street; one in Crown-street; one in Rider's-court. This Parish buries its Dead in that which is in Chapel-street, by Act of Parliament, paying the Duties to the Church. The other remarkable Place is Soho-square.

HERE

Here are two Charity Schools ; one for 50 Boys, and one for 30 Girls.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

In the Upper Liberty are :

King's-square, or Soko-square, Charles-street, Sutton-street, Falconbridge-court, Greg-street, or Greek-street, Rose-street ; Part of Crown-street, or Hog-lane, Wardour-street, Meards-court, Queen-street, Thrift-street, King's-square-court, Dean's-street, Dean's-court, Crown-court, Great Chapel-street, Little Chapel-street, Holland-street, St. Ann's-court, Compton-street, Church-street, King-street, Moore-street.

In the Lower Liberty are :

Macclesfield-street, Gerrard-street, Hays-court, Newport-market, Litchfield-street, Porter-street, Newport-court, Little Newport-street, Great Newport-street, Riders-court, Cranbourn-street, Cranbourn-alley, Cranbourn-passage ; Part of Castle-street ; Part of Bear-street ; Part of Leicester-square ; Part of Spur-street, Leicester-street, Lille-street, Sidney-street, or Sidney-alley ; Part of Cock-lane, or Little St. Martin's-lane, Prince's-street ; Part of West-street.

Number of Houses are about 1500.

THE GIRT Line of this Parish, begins at the South West Angle of Leicester-fields, by Panton-street ; thence turning Northwards, it runs down Whitcomb-street, from thence into Prince's-street, and so into Wardour-street, passing by St. Anne's Church-yard on the East Side ; and at the upper End of Wardour-street, it turns down Tyburn-road Eastwards unto St. Giles's Pound ; and there it turns Southwards into Hog-lane, and so runs to the upper End of St. Martin's-lane against Long-acre, where it turns down Newport-street, taking in the North Row of Buildings, and from thence into Castle-street, and so to Bear-street, enclosing the North Side thereof ; and so runs cross Leicester-fields, to the South West Corner where it began.

Newport-street fronts Long-acre ; the North Side, which is in this Parish, hath far the best Buildings, and is inhabited by Gentry ; whereas, on the other Side dwell ordinary Trades-people, of which several are of the French Nation.

Porter's-street, at the North-west Corner of Newport-street, runs up into Litchfield-street. Out of this Street there is a Passage into Newport-market : 'Tis a Street well built and inhabited.

Litchfield-street, a Place furnished with good Buildings, well inhabited. And here is an open Passage into Newport-market.

Newport-market, made very commodious for that Use, having a good Market-house, with Shambles for Butchers in the Midst, with Shops round about it ; but at present is not so well served with Provisions as in Time it may be by the Resort of Country People to it with their Necessaries, Clare-market much eclipsing it.

Newport-alley, a great Passage into Soko, and those new built Places. It is for the generality inhabited by French ; as indeed are most of these Streets and Alleys, which are ordinarily built, and the Rents cheap. It is a Place of a good Trade. Out of this Alley is a Passage into Newport-market.

Little Newport-street, on the Back of this Alley, ordinarily built and inhabited ; being much annoyed with Coaches and Carts into Soko, and those Parts.

Cranbourn-street has a very handsome Free-stone Pavement, and an open Passage into Leicester-fields for Foot Passengers ; which great Thoroughfare makes it to be a Place of a very good Trade, both Sides being inhabited by Shopkeepers. Out of the North Side is Cranbourn-alley, a narrow Place, most taken up by Shoemakers. Then about the Middle of this Street is Earl's-court, paved with Free-stone which has a Passage into Little Newport-street. Not far from this, and near Newport-house is Rider's-court, a Court new built and neat, with a Free-stone Pavement, cleanly kept and well inhabited. It has a Passage at the upper End of Little Newport-street to Newport-market and Gerard-street ; and on the South Side there is a Passage into Bear-street.

Leicester-fields, a very handsome open Square, railed about, and gravelled within. The Buildings are very good, and well inhabited, and frequented by the Gentry. The North and West Rows of Buildings, which are in this Parish, are the best ; and especially the North, where is Leicester-house, the Seat of the Earl of Leicester : Being a large Building, with a fair Court before it, for the Reception of Coaches, and a fine Garden behind it ; the South and East Sides being in the Parish of St. Martin's.

NEXT to this House is another large House built by Portman Seymour, Esq. ; which being laid to Leicester-house, was inhabited by their present Majesties, when Prince and Princess of Wales.

Sidney-street, or rather Alley, being paved with Free-stone, which gives a Passage out of Leicester-fields into Prince's-street, and so to Piccadilly ; a Place of no great Account.

Leicester-street fronts Leicester-fields, and has Lisle-street on the North.

Lisle-street comes out of Prince's-street, and runs up to Leicester Garden Wall : Both these Streets are large and well built, and inhabited by Gentry.

Whitcombe-street, on the Back of Leicester-fields, ordinary ; the Side in this Parish being the Stables and Coach-Houses belonging to the Houses in the West Row of Leicester-fields ; and the other Side of the Street, which is in the Parish of St. James's, is ordinary, both for Houses and Inhabitants.

Prince's-street, a broad Street with good Houses, and in its Passage into Wardour-street, receives Lisle-street, Gerard-street, King-street, Richmond-street, and Compton-street.

Gerard-street butts against Newport-market, and runs Westward into Prince's-street ; being fronted with Maxfield, or Macclesfield-street, which passing by St. Anne's Church falls into Dean-street. It is a very good Street, well-built, and inhabited by Gentry ; there is one very large and handsome House at the East End, in which the Right Honourable the Earl of Scarborough lives, and another about the Middle of it, where the late Lord Mokun lived.

King-street, a pretty good Street, but not so broad as most in these Parts, yet well inhabited.

Church-street, so called as fronting St. Anne's Church ; and passing by Moore-street, which is but short, narrow, and of no great Account, falls into Hog-lane, against Monmouth-street End.

Grafton-street, indifferent good, crosses Litchfield-street, and butts against Gerard-street.

Hayes-street, or rather Alley, being but small and narrow, with a Free-stone Pavement.

Compton-street, very long, which from Hog-lane runs Westward into Wardour-street. This Street is broad, and the Houses well built, but of no great Account for its Inhabitants, which are chiefly French.

Dean-street, a spacious Street, and of a great Length, taking its Rise from St. Anne's Church, and runs Northward to Tyburn Road: It is graced with good Buildings, well inhabited by Gentry, especially the middle Part, but that towards the Road is but ordinary. The Church of St. Anne's is large and handsomely finished, behind which is a spacious Church-Yard. On the West Side of this Street are several Outlets and Courts, viz. Milk-alley, which runs into Wardour-street, but of no great Account.

Dean's-court, a pretty neat and cleanly Place, not large, but indifferent well inhabited. Cock-pit-court, a small Place, and of no Account, either for Inhabitants or Buildings; which Buildings are but of one Side. St. Anne's-court, pretty well built and inhabited, with a Free-stone Pavement, and has a Passage into Wardour-street. King's-square-court, a handsome broad Court fronting King's-square: 'Tis a Passage well built and inhabited, and has one very large House, which takes up all the West End or Front; by which is a little Passage leading into Wardour-street and Crown-court.

Wardour-street has only the East Side in this Parish, the West being in the Parish of St. James's, which runs from Compton-street up into Tyburn Road. In the middle Part the Buildings are good, but towards the Road very ordinary and ill inhabited; but on the other Side the Buildings are better.

Queen-street fronts Dean-street on the West, and Greek-street on the East, a Place not very considerable, having on the North Side dead Walls, which generally are dirty and ill kept.

Frith-street, graced with good Buildings, well inhabited, especially towards Soho-square.

Greek-street takes its Rise out of King's-street, and falls into King's (commonly called Soho) Square. It is well built and inhabited. Out of this Street there is an open Passage for Carts and Coaches into Rose-street, which goes into Hog-lane. This Street has some indifferent good Houses; but the greatest Part is taken up for Coach-Houses and Stables.

Soho-square, a very large and open Place, inclosed with a high Pallisado Pale, the Square within being neatly kept with Walks and Grass Plats, and in the Midst is the Effigies of King Charles II. cut in Stone, standing on a Pedestal, round which are four Figures representing the Rivers Thames, Severn, Tine and Humber. This Square has very good Buildings on all Sides, but the most magnificent is the House of the Lord Viscount Bateman on the South.

ON the West Side, this Square receives a short Street called King's-square-street, of small Account: On the North Side it hath a Passage into Tyburn Road, through Charles-street, a Place of no great Note for Inhabitants; and on the East Side it has another Passage for Coaches and Carts into Hog-lane, and so into St. Giles's through Sutton-street, which is but ordinary. Out of this is Faulconbridge-court, which leads into Tucker's-court, which has a Passage into Hog-lane.

Hog-lane, of which the West Side is in this Parish, the other Side being in St. Giles's; a Place not over well built or inhabited. Here the French have a Church, which formerly was the Greek Church, and is by many still so called, adjoining to which are 18 Alms-Houses for so many poor People, belonging to the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields; of which, nine have the Allowance of 8 s. a Month, and the other nine have 7 s. From thence this Street runs to the upper End of St. Martin's-lane, passing by Monmouth-street and other Places, but has nothing worthy Note.

The PARISH of St. PAUL's Covent-Garden.

THE Ground on which this Parish is built, was formerly Fields, with some thatched Houses, Stables, and such like, which lying in so good a Place, the Owner of the said Ground, the then Earl of Bedford, thought good to make an Improvement thereof, and procuring an Act of Parliament for making it into a Parish of itself, disunited from St. Martin's in the Fields, did, about the Years 1634 and 1635, begin to pull down the said old Buildings, and clear away the Rubbish, and laid it out into several fair Streets, streight and uniform, which were built with good Brick Buildings. About the Centre of the Ground he caused to be set out a large Square, or rather oblong Piece of Ground, 500 Feet in Length, and 400 in Breadth; and into this Plat of Ground four large Streets at first had their Entrance; but now there are five, of 50 or 60 Feet broad, viz. Russel-street on the East, James-street on the North, King-street and Henrietta-street on the West, and Southampton-street on the South, which was last built, with other Places adjoining, on the Ground where Bedford House and Gardens stood. On the North and East Sides of this Square are erected stately Buildings for the Dwellings of Persons of Fashion, their Fronts standing on Pillars and Arches of Brick and Stone Rustick Work, with Piazza's or Walks like those in the Royal-Exchange in LONDON, and imitating the Rialto in Venice. At the North East Angle of these Piazza's is the Entrance into the New Theatre, lately erected, the Frontispiece of which is a very expensive Piece of Work, but highly condemned by good Architects, as full of Absurdities. Since the first Building, this Parish has had great Improvements, as well by its Houses as its Inhabitants.

AND if we consider this Parish, as to its fine, streight, and broad Streets, replenished with good Buildings, and so well inhabited by a Mixture of Nobility, Gentry, and wealthy Tradesmen, here seated since the Fire of LONDON, 1666, scarce admitting of any Poor, not being pestered with mean Courts and Alleys; likewise its open and large Piazza or Garden, so delightful to walk in: It may deserve to be accounted one of the best Parishes in the City of LONDON, Westminster, and the Parts adjacent. This Parish is begirt on all Sides by St. Martin's in the Fields, out of which it was taken.

An ACCOUNT of the Parish Church of St. Paul's Covent Garden, formerly a Part of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields.

I Find by a Lease granted to the Right Honourable Francis Earl of Bedford (dated at his Mansion-House in the Strand, the 10th Day of March 1631, in the 7th Year of the Reign of King Charles I.) to John Powel of Little-Thorke, in the County of Essex, Clerk; and to Edward Palmer of the Parish of St. Andrew's Holbourn, in the County of Middlesex, Gent. Son of Edward Palmer, late Citizen and Girdler of LONDON, lately deceased, and John Barrodale of LONDON, Gent. he having let to the aforesaid Edward Palmer, the Father, all the Piece or Parcel of Ground of the said Earl's Earl's Pasture, called Covent Garden and Long Acre, one of them lying on the South Side of a Parcel of Ground then laid forth for a new Church-yard, containeth in Length, from a Parcel of Ground then let to one William Newton, Gent. on the West Side; another Parcel of Ground then preserved for a Vestry-House; on the East 180 Feet, and three Inches of Assize; and in Breadth, from a Parcel of Grounds then laid forth for the said Church-yard, on the North, 33 Feet of Assize, and all other Conveniencies for Building, to hold for 34 Years to come, from the Date aforesaid, at the Yearly Rent of seventeen Pounds and Six-pence, payable quarterly, at or in the Dining-Hall of the said Earl's, commonly called Bedford-House in the Strand, in the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields.

THE abovesaid Edward Palmer, the Elder, did, at his own Charge, erect nine several Messuages or Tenements on the said Ground. Likewise I find, by an Act for the preventing Multiplicity of Building in and about the Suburbs of LONDON, and within ten Miles thereof, at the Parliament begun at Westminster the 17th of September 1657.

“ PROVIDED always, and be it enacted,
 “ That in Regard of the great Charges that “ Francis late Earl of Bedford hath been at in “ building a Church in Covent Garden, in the “ County of Middlesex, and in the Endowment
 “ of the same Church, and other publick Charges
 “ in and about the Parish of Covent Garden a“ foresaid, there be abated unto William Earl of “ Bedford, John Russel, and Edward Russel, “ Esquires, Sons of the said Francis late Earl of “ Bedford, out of the Fines which shall be pay“ able unto them by Force of this Act, in Re“ ceipt of the Building in the said Parish of Co- “ vent Garden, the Sum of 7000 l. the same “ Abatement to be made unto them by the said “ Commissioners proportionably, accordingly as “ they shall be severally chargeable by this Act.

It was consecrated by the Reverend Father in God —

THE Builder of this famous Church was that rare Architect Mr. Inigo Jones, one of the greatest Restorers of the antient Roman Way of Building, and this the first. How magnificent and great doth it present itself to the Beholder. The Portico is magnificent. The Upright, with the View of the Garden and the Piazza's, is done by the curious Mr. Holler. It is the only View, in Imitation of the Italian, we have in or about LONDON, ushered into Use by that great Encourager of Arts, the Earl of Arundel. The Cieling-piece in Prospective is admired by all that see it. It was done by an Inhabitant of the Parish. His Name was — Pierce, a Painter. Of late Years it hath been adorned, in the Middle of the Square, with a Sun-dial fixed on a Pillar of Black Marble, after the Corinthian Order, ascending with Steps to the Pedestal, whereon the weary Walker may rest himself. This was done at the Charge of the Inhabitants, as appears by the Arms on the Capital.

THE 7th Day of January 1645, was an Ordinance of Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament, for making the Covent-garden Church Parochial, and for dividing the same from the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, upon several Articles and Conditions: Also for giving Power to 34 Persons, to assess and levy Monies for the Payment of two Ministers, and other Parochial Uses: And also for nominating Constables and all other Parish Officers.

12 Car. II. Ann. 1660. An Act of Parliament was made for making the Precinct of Covent Garden Parochial. In the Preamble it sheweth, how Francis Earl of Bedford, deceased, erected the Fabrick of a Church for the Use of the Inhabitants of the Precinct of Covent Garden, and did intend to settle a yearly Stipend of an 100 l. and an House, then in the Tenure of William Russel, for the Maintenance, and for the Habitation of a Minister to officiate in the said Church: And that it was found necessary that the same should be made Parochial, and divided from the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, and that a farther Increase of Maintenance might be provided for an able Minister.

By this Act the Bounds of this new Parish are set out: That is to say, beginning at the Strand; at the East End of the Messuage, called Bedford House, and including the said House, with all the Out-houses, Gardens, &c. belonging: And all those Houses within the narrow Bounds, that is to say, forty Feet without the Brickwall, and all Houses, Edifices, Buildings, and Land within the said Bounds, bounded by the House of Humphry Vaughan in Russel-street East; by the House of William Bard, in Chandois-street West; by the House of William Crisby in James-street North; and by the House of Richard Tamton in Bedford-street South. The said Precinct to be divided from St. Martin's Parish. The Right Honourable William Earl of Bedford, and his Heirs, to have the Patronage of the said Church, and to nominate and appoint the Rector of the said Church as oft as the same shall become void. That he, the said Rector, shall have the Cure of Souls of the Inhabitants. That he shall have 100 l. a Year, issuing out of several [viz. Three] Houses, situate in Covent Garden, with Power to distrain for 100 l. or a Part thereof, upon the said Houses, or any of them, charged with the same Rent.

THE Rector may, with the Consent of the Patron, from Time to Time, nominate an able Minister, to be Curate Assistant to the said Rector. And for the farther Maintenance of the Rector, and Provision of the Curate, and other Officers, every Thursday in Easter Week there shall be three Church-wardens named: One to be chosen by the Earl of Bedford, another by the Rector, and a third by the Inhabitants. And that the yearly Sum of 250 l. henceforth be charged upon the Houses of the Inhabitants, except Bedford House, to be assessed by the Church-wardens, or any two of them, by a Pound Rate, within 28 Days after Easter Thursday; to be confirmed and allowed by the two next Justices dwelling within the City of Westminster; to be collected by the Church-wardens, or such as they shall appoint. And in Case the same be not paid, to be levied by Distress and Sale of Goods. Out of this Collection the Church-wardens to pay to the Rector the yearly Sum of 150 l. and to the Curate 50 l. by even and equal Portions each Quarter. The Residue of the Money collected, being 50 l. to be employed for the Wages and Salaries of a Clerk and two Sextons; which shall be distributed according to the Direction of the said Earl and the Rector.

THE Church-wardens, or any two of them, to make Rates and Assessments upon the Inhabitants, for raising Money for Payment of Scavengers for cleansing of the Streets, and repairing and amending of the Church.

PROVIDED the Overseers of the Poor, and Surveyors of the Highways of St. Martin's Parish, and the Church-wardens of the Parish of St. Paul's Covent Garden, may assess and collect of the Parish of St. Paul Covent Garden, for the Relief of the Poor, and Reparation of the Highways, all such Rates and Taxes as they might have done before the making of this Act.

NOR this Act to destroy any of the Rights or Powers belonging to the Bishop of LONDON; but that he may at all Times visit, institute, and exercise Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction in the said Parish.

It hath probably the Name of Covent Garden, because it was the Garden and Fields to that large Convent or Monastery, where Exeter House formerly stood; these Grounds belonging unto it, being all encompassed with a Wall. And when this Ground, upon the Dissolution of Religious Houses, became the Estate of his Grace's Ancestors, then Bedford House was erected, where it lately stood. Whereas, before, their House was on the other Side of the Strand, formerly called, The Bishop of Carlisle's Inn.

THIS Covent Garden, and the Lands belonging to it, was first granted by King Edward VI. to his Uncle the Duke of Somerset: Which, upon his Attainder, come back to the Crown. And then, in the Month of May 1552, there was a Patent granted to John Earl of Bedford, and Lord Privy Seal, of Covent Garden, lying in the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, next Charing Cross, with seven Acres, called Long Acre, of the yearly Value of 6 l. 6 s. 8 d. Parcel of the Possessions of the late Duke of Somerset. To have to him and his Heirs, to be held in Soccage, and not in Capite.

Now for the Description of the Streets, &c. we shall begin with the most considerable.

Covent Garden, particularly so called, is a curious, large, and airy Square, enclosed by Rails, between which Rails and the Houses runs a fair Street. The Square is always kept well gravelled for the Accommodation of the People to walk there, and so raised with an easy Ascent to the Middle, that the Rain soon draineth off, and the gravelly Bottom becomes dry, fit to walk on.

In the Midst of this Garden, within the Rails, is a Stone Pillar or Column raised on a Pedestal, ascended by Steps, on which is placed a curious Sun-dial four square, having above it a Mound gilt with Gold, all neatly wrought in Freestone. On the North and East Sides are Rows of very good and large Houses, called the Piazza's, sustained by Stone Pillars, to support the Buildings. Under which are Walks, broad and convenient, paved with Freestone. The South Side lay formerly open to Bedford Garden, where there was a small Grotto and Trees, but now there are Buildings here, as before mention'd; the Houses fronting the Square are called Tavistock Row; on this Side there is kept a Market for Fruits, Herbs, Roots, and Flowers, every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday; which is grown to a considerable Account, and well served with choice Goods, which makes it much resorted unto. And on the West Side is the Church of St. Paul Covent Garden, the Nature and Order of which Building are thus: The Walls are of Brick rendered over, but the Coins are Stone, and Rustick Work; the Roof within is flat, and painted of the Ionick Order, but much decayed; it is covered with Pantiles, which, together with the Gable-end, extends several Feet Eastward from the East End of the upright Walls of the Church, and is supported with strong Stone Columns of the Tuscan Order, constituting a Piazza, where the Poll is often taken for Parliament-men for the City and Liberty of Westminster, accounted the greatest in England.

"THE Tuscan Portico to the Church in Covent Garden (says an ingenious Architect) has really a solemn Aspect, which in its simple Beauty is not to be paralleled by any that I know in and about LONDON. The extraordinary Projecture of the Cornice (which is equal to a fourth Part of the Height of the Order) I must own is, in my Opinion, something too great; the Modillions or Ends of the Joists seeming to be over-loaded, and to stand in Need of some Help by way of Truss, &c. to assist them in sustaining so great a Weight. To support the Angles of this Cornice over the Portico, angular Modillions are placed; which, I think, is a Mistake, as having a very ill Effect, since these Angles might have been sustained without, as those are at the West End. The two Grand Doors in the Middle of each End, over which plain Cornices are fixed, supported by Trusses, would have been much more simple and grand, had they been made with their Architraves only. The Rusticks at the Quoins of this Church are very particular, and, if I may be permitted to speak freely, are entirely false, being made by square Blocks of Stone, whose Dimensions on both Sides are equal, instead of being Headers and Stretchers alternately, which make the best Bondage, as being of all others the most substantial. In the two Rustick Frontispieces at the Entrances into the Church-yard, is a very gross Error, which must not escape Animadversion, that for the future it may be avoided. This is the cutting of the Channels to form the Rusticks in the Bodies of the Pilasters, under both the Imposts and Capitals, which is a weakening instead of a strengthening to them. And therefore it is to be remembered, that where-ever Rusticks are to be introduced, their Thickness should exceed the Uprights of the Pilasters, so as to represent perfect Bands, binding their Parts most firmly together. Though another Author says, This Church is without a Rival, and one of the most perfect Pieces of Architecture that the Art of Man can produce; yet I cannot think so, being well assured, that if a Steeple of proper Dimensions was raised above the Pediment, 'twould be a very great Improvement to the Whole.

ALTHOUGH it is generally said that Inigo Jones was the Architect of this Church, yet the * Author, above quoted, says, he is credibly informed, it was built by Mr. Stone.

THIS Church within has three Isles, and is paved with Stone; and there are handsome Windows of the Tuscan Order; but tho' the Church is broad, there are no Pillars to support the Roof. It is wainscotted, about the Chancel, eight Feet high, with Deal, and pewed with Oak. The Galleries extend on the South, West, North, and East Sides of the Church; which last very much obstructs the View of the Altar-Piece, which is adorned with eight fluted Columns, painted in Imitation of Porphyry of the Corinthian Order, and an Entablature painted white and veined: The Inter columns are the Commandments done in Black Characters on White, under a Glory, environed with painted Cherubims within an Alcove, and these between two Seraphims carved: Above all which is an Arch, with the King's Arms on the Key-Piece, between two handsome Vases, and all under a painted Festoon Curtain, extending on Part of the Roof, so as supposed to let fall before the Whole. Near the Window on the North Side is a spacious Picture of King Charles I. with Angels, adorned with twisted Columns, &c. and the Jambs of the Windows, in the Chancel, are also embellished with painted Cherubims,

* Hiram, vide Grub-street Journal, Numb. 249, & 256.

Incense-Pots, Leaves, &c. And opposite to the said Picture and Window, on the North Side, is a Triumphal Arch, on the South Side of the Chancel, whereon is placed the King's Arms carved, gilt and depicted. At the West End of the Church within is a Dial, and another without at the East End of the Church, with this Motto :

Ex hoc Momento pendat Eternitas.

THE Length of this Church is ninety-nine Feet, Breadth forty eight, Altitude about thirty-eight, but no Tower, nor Bells to ring in Peal.

MONUMENTS in this Church are :

EPI TAPH :

Kind Reader, turn thine Eyes away ;
Look not on this beloved Clay.
Or if thou must, let fall a Tear
For her that was too fair, too dear
For our unworthy Earth. Whose Flight
Was only to eternal Light.
All but long Life to her was given :
She dyed on Earth, to live in Heaven.
Yet hadst thou known her, Reader, thou would'st cry,
How long she liv'd ; how little thou and I ?

UPON a Grave-stone on the North Side of the Chancel:

Here lyeth the Body of Essex Cheek, eldest Daugliter of Thomas Cheek * of Purgo in the County of Essex, Esq; she departed this Life May the 20th, 1709.

* He was a Descendant of Sir Joh. Cheek, Knt. School-Master, and after Secretary to K. Edw. 6.

A Stone at the South Side of the Communion Rails, over Anne Kinnesley, late Wife John. Kinnesley of Badger in the County of Salop, Esq; May 27, 1709.

A mural Monument in the North Isle:

In Memory of Elizabeth Wilks, late Wife of Rob. Wilks of this Parish, Gent.

The Purity of her Mind, (which appeared in all the Duties of a vertuous Life) made her a good Wife, Daughter, Mother, and Friend. Her Affection was like her Piety, constant and unfeigned to her last Moment.

In Memory of her Vertues this was erected by her Husband. She dyed 21 Mar. 1713, in the 42d Year of her Age.

Another Grave-stone in the Middle Isle, for Mrs. Mary Widdrington, Jan. 14, 1711.

Another over Grace Davis, and Anne her Daughter.

In a Vault in the Church-Yard is interred Nathaniel Edwards of Furnival's-Inn, departed 18 Febr. 1711.

Upon a raised Tomb in the Church-Yard, an Inscription for Captain William Thompson of Wetherby in the County of York, departed Feb. 18, 1678, aged 67; and Mrs. Olynda Thomson, his Wife, Apr. 5, 1702, aged 74.

Another Tomb for Richard Baroy and Margaret his Wife, who lived in Wedlock above 55 Years; he departed the 19th of March 1696-7, in the 81st Year of his Age; she Nov. 22, 1704, in the 90th Year of her Age.

Under a Grave-stone in the same Church-Yard, Basil Wood, Gent. Jan. 6, 1696.

At the upper End of the larger South West Inclosure:

M.S. within this Vault lyes the Body of Rich. Petty of the County of Bedford, Esq; he married Elizab. of Tho. Moody, Jun. by whom he had Issue six Sons and five Daughters, eight he buried with her, &c. died 29 Apr. MDCCXI, in the 67th Year of his Age.

AMONG the Interments of this Parish is one of an extraordinary Kind: It was the Corpse of Marmaduke Conwey, Esq; buried here Dec. 23, 1717, who died at the Age of 108, and some Months. He had been ever in the Service of the Royal Family, from the three last Months of the Reign of King James I. to his dying Day. He attended at the Coronation of King Charles

Charles I. in a Military Employment, and bore Arms for the King during the whole Civil War, in which his Father and himself lost an Estate of 1000 l. a Year. After the Restauration he had several good Places under King Charles II. with whom he was very much in Favour, partly for his extraordinary Skill in Hawking. He never had a dangerous Sickness, nor lost one Tooth in his whole Life. He used to ride on Horseback with a Hawk on his Fist, which he did but two Years before his Death; and in the September last before his Death, he rode eight Miles a Hawking. He was sensible to the last Moment, and discoursed very piously of his approaching End. In a Word, he died purely of old Age, without the least Pain and Sickness.

ON the South Wall, towards the West End, is this Inscription:

Near this Place, in a Vault, lyes the Body of John Wells, who died the 9th of July 1704, in the 22d Year of his Age.

And also John Yarwell, Gent. at whose Charge the said Vault was built, and who did by his Will, dated the 13th of Feb. 1711, give to this Parish 3000 l. to purchase 50 l. per Year for ever for the following Uses, viz. five Pounds per Year in Bread, by 25 four Penny Loaves on the first Sunday of every Month. Five Pounds per Year equally divided between ten poor House-keepers at Christmas, 40 Shillings per Year, for a Sermon the 29th of May yearly, in Memory of the Donor; 40 Shillings for a Treat the same Day as the Minister and Church-Wardens shall think fit, and 20 Shillings for the Servants of this Church at the same Time; upon Condition the Church-Wardens for the Time being shall keep the said Vault in good Repair for ever, with this Stone and Inscription; and that hereafter no other Person be interred in the same Vault. John Yarwell died the 26th of Feb. 1712; Martha his Wife dyed March the 29th, 1728.

OVER the Right Hand Side of the Door, in the Portico, is a Monument with this Inscription:

Beneath this Marble lies Sarah Taylor, Wife of William Taylor of this Parish: She was what she appeared, a good Wife, tender Mother, and sincere Friend; to her Memory this is erected by her Husband. She dyed Feb. 23, 1727-8, aged 61 Years.

THERE is a Table hanging up in the Vestry of this Church of Covent Garden; being Part of a Will of William Shelton of St. Giles's in the Fields, dated 1 July, 1672.

WHEREIN he devised all his Houses, Tenements, &c. in Parker's-lane in the County of Middlesex, to the Minister and Church-Wardens of St. Giles's for the Time being; and to their Successors, upon this Trust, viz. Out of the Rents of the same to lay out 15 l. yearly, upon Michaelmas-day, for buying 20 Gowns, for 20 old Men and Women of the same Parish, 7 l. 10 s. for buying 10 Gowns for 10 poor Men and Women of St. Martin's in the Fields; 3 l. 15 s. for buying five Gowns for five poor old Men and Women of St. Paul's Covent Garden. Also, for ever to hire and provide a fit School-Master to teach School, in the School and Room he has appointed, now used in Parker's-lane, 50 Children of the poorest Sort; 35 to be of the Parish of St. Giles's, 10 of the Parish of St. Martin's, five of Covent Garden: And out of the said Rent to pay and give to the said School-Master yearly 20 l. and to buy him a Gown yearly at 20 s. Val.

lue, provided he wear the same. And also a Coat yearly, for every one of the said 50 Scholars; of the Value of 6 s. and to provide yearly in the Summer, two Chaldron of Coals for a Fire for the said Children in Winter. All the aforesaid Coats and Gowns to be of a Green Colour, &c. The Surplusage of all the said Rents, to be employed to the binding forth of some of the said Scholars Apprentices, &c. with Respect that if there shall chance to be any of my Kindred or Relation to me or my Wife, the same to be preferred.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of his Grace the Duke of Bedford, as is before-mentioned; the Value of it about 350 l. per Ann. more has been made of it, viz. a House given to the Rector by the Patron with a Stipend of 100 l. per Ann. and 150 l. assessed on the Inhabitants, Householders of the Parish by Act of Parliament, the Residue arises by Surplice Fees belonging to him. By the same Act there is also raised 100 l. for Salaries for the Curate-Assistant, Clerk, and Sextons, viz. to the Curate, 50 l. to the Clerk, 30 l. to the Sextons, 20 l. all chosen by the Patron and Rector, and the Clerk and Sextons may be nominated yearly by them.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Charles Tough; the Lecturers are the Reverend Mr. Thomas, and the Reverend Mr. Wilson.

PRAYERS are at Six and Ten in the Morning, and at Three and Six in the Afternoon. Here is a fine Organ, but only two Bells.

THE Vestry in most Cases is in the Nature of of a select one, composed of the Church-Wardens, or any two of them being present, and the Antients of the Parish, who have served the Office of Church-Wardens.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are,

- 3 Church - Wardens, chosen yearly in Easter Week, viz. one by the Duke of Bedford; one by the Rector, and one by the Inhabitants, being Householders of the Parish, or the major Part of them.
- 2 Overseers of the Poor.

The PEACE OFFICERS are,

- 1 Burgefs.
- 1 Assistant Burgefs.
- 4 Constables.
- 4 Scavengers.
- 2 Surveyors of the High-ways.
- 2 Surveyors of the Street.

hart-yard; Part of Exeter-street, and Part of Denmark-court.

NUMBER of Houses above 600.

IN this Parish are two Charity-Schools maintained by Subscription, one for 30 Boys, (which is kept under the Belfry) who are taught to Read, Write and cast Accompts, are cloathed, and have 5 l. given to put each of them Apprentice; the Master's Salary is 25 l. per Annum.

THE other is for 20 Girls, who are Cloathed, taught to Work, Read and Write, and have 3 l. given to put each of them out Apprentice to do all Manner of Household Work: The Mistress's Salary is 32 l. per Ann. and she finds a School-Room.

At the North West Angle of Covent-garden-square is a large House built by the late Earl of Orford, of which an * Author, we have before quoted, makes the following Remarks:

" THE House, lately the Lord Orford's,
 " joining to the great Piazza, is certainly one
 " of the most expensive and worst Buildings
 " about LONDON; and that its Errors may " be avoided against in future Designs, 'tis very " reasonable I should point them out. 1. The " Rustick Pilasters being divided into very small " Courses, are of poor, low Taste, and have not
 " that bold and grand Aspect they would, were
 " they larger; nor do they seem to be so well
 " able to support the Pilasters over them.
 " 2. These fluted Pilasters, crowned with Com" posite Capitals, are not much, if any Thing
 " higher, than a Tuscan Pilaster of the same " Diameter; so that they make as awkward a
 " tals, as a sturdy Welshman taken from the " Plough-Tail would do, were he to be dressed
 " in the Tye-Peruke, and embroidered Cloaths,
 " of a Courtier. 3. Here is also the common " Error of breaking back the Entablature over
 " each Pilaster, which afterwards has the " Courses of its Architrave and Freeze broken by " the Heads of the upper Windows. 4. The " Entrance into this House is very absurd; for
 " here, where two Tuscan Columns of substan" tial Dimensions should have been placed, to " sustain the incumbent Weight of the Middle
 " Part of the Front; there are two small Co- " rinthian Columns on Pedestals in their stead,
 " which fill up the Entrance indeed as little as " can be, but seem to have as great a Load
 " on them, as Atlas with the whole World on " his Shoulders.

The PRECINCT of the Savoy.

THE Savoy was so called from Peter, Earl of Savoy, Brother to Boniface, Archbishop of Canterbury, and Uncle to Eleanor, Wife to King Henry III.

HE first built this House in the Year 1245, and Queen Eleanor afterwards purchased it of the Fraternity or Brethren of Mountjoy, to whom Peter of Savoy had left it, for her Son Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, as Camden has noted out of a Register-Book of the Dukes of Lancaster. Henry Duke of Lancaster repaired, or rather new built it, at the Expence of 52,000 Marks, which Money he had gathered together at the Town of Bridgerike.

John the French King was lodged there, in the Year 1357, and also in the Year 1363, for it was, at that Time, the fairest Manor in Eng-land.

IN the Year 1381, the Rebels of Kent and Essex burnt this House, to which there was none in the Realm to be compared in Beauty and Stateliness. They set Fire to it round about, and made Proclamation, That none, on Pain to lose his Head, should convert to his own Use any Thing that was there; but that they should break such Plate, and Vessels of Gold and Silver, as were found in that House, (which was in great Plenty) into small Pieces, and throw the same into the River Thames. Precious Stones they should bruise in Mortars, that the same might be of no Use; and so it was done accordingly. One of their Companions they burnt in the Fire, because he would have reserved one fine Piece of Plate to himself.

THEY found there certain Barrels of Gunpowder, which they thought had been Gold and Silver, and throwing them into the Fire more suddenly than they thought, the Hall was blown up, the Houses destroyed, and themselves very hardly escaped.

THIS House being thus defaced, and almost overthrown by these Rebels, for the Malice they bore to John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, of later Time came to the King's Hands, and was again raised and beautifully built, for an Hospital, of St. John the Baptist, by K. Henry VII. about the Year 1509. For which Hospital, still retaining the old Name of the Savoy, he purchased Lands, to be employed upon the relieving an hundred poor People. See more of this Hospital, Book I. Chap. XIV. It was suppressed in the seventh Year of the Reign of K. Edward VI. and the Furniture given by that King towards furnishing Bridewell, (which he had bestowed on the Citizens of LONDON for a Work-house) and St. Thomas's in Southwark. After his Death, it falling into the Possession of Queen Mary, she, in the 4th Year of her Reign, new founded and endowed this Hospital; and it was confirmed at Westminster by Patent, 4 and 5 Phil. and Mary, and from thence, as some believed, called St. Mary Savoy; but others say it assumed that Name from the Inhabitants of St. Mary at Strand, using this, which was only a Chapel to the said Hospital, as their Parish Church, after their own was demolished, Anno 1449, by Edward Duke of Somerset, Uncle to Edward VI. and Lord Protector; who, in Place of that Church, and the Bishop of Chester and Worcester's Inns, erected Somerset-House.

THIS Chapel was repaired with great Cost and Beauty at the Charge of the Precinct, Anno 1600; and the Gallery at the West End was built Anno 1618; and the same Church is yet standing.

THE Inhabitants of St. Mary le Strand, after their old Church was pulled down to enlarge the Garden belonging to Somerset-House, congregated here for many Years; but when Dr. Killigrew was made Master of the Savoy, about the Year 1665, he would not permit them to frequent this Chapel, till they had signed an Instrument, whereby they renounced their having any Right or Property in, or to, the said Chapel, or any Part of the Savoy, and then he allowed them to make Collections at the Chapel-door, nine Months in the Year, for the Support of their own Poor. The Doctor soon broke the old Constitution, and not only appointed two Overseers, (one to be chosen by himself, and the other by the Inhabitants of the Precinct) but he also set up a Vestry (without Authority) to consist of the Master and fourteen Inhabitants. By Virtue of his Patent he had Liberty to grant Leases for three Lives or ninety-one Years, which he did by taking Fines, and reserving only a small Quit-Rent,

* Hiram, Grub-Street Journal, Numb. 248.

Rent, to the Diminution of the annual Income of the Hospital.

Soon after the Doctor's Decease, viz. in the first Year of the Reign of the late Queen Anne, Commissioners were appointed to visit the Hospital, who were seven Lords Spiritual, and as many Lords Temporal: The Commission was opened by Sir Nathan Wright, then Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, and three of the Brethren, or Chaplains, were discharged, because they had other Benefices; as was also the fourth, by Reason he was a Teacher of a separate Congregation. The last mentioned Chaplain was put in by Dr. Killegrew, though he knew that he was a Dissenting Preacher.

SOME Time after this, Dr. Prat, who was Chaplain of the Hospital, endeavoured to obtain an Act of Parliament to have it dissolved, and to be made Parochial; the Bill passed the House of Commons, but meeting with great Opposition from the Chancellors of the two Universities, from the Bishops, and other Lords, it was thrown out of their House.

THIS Chapel is situated by the Church-yard of the Savoy, which stands between the South Side of the Strand and the Thames.

THE Structure has an Aspect of great Antiquity, but the Altar stands at the North End, the greatest Length being from North to South. It is built with regular cut Stone and Boulder, with a Tower and coped Battlements. The Roof is covered with Lead. The Windows are of the modern Gothick; the Floor at the Altar is six Steps, or near four Feet higher than that of the Nave, which has but one Isle, at the West End whereof is a Lobby.

THE Inside of the Roof is adorned with circular Figures, and those of a Holy Lamb, Unicorns, and Coats of Arms, in Fret-work.

THE Walls are wainscotted, the Body of the Church with Oak about eight Feet high; and that of the Chancel is enriched with Branches, Leaves, Fruit, Voluta's, &c. and is about eleven Feet high.

THE Altar-piece is the Decalogue between two Columns painted in Perspective; also the Figures of Moses and Aaron; above all which are the King's Arms painted: It is also pewed with Oak, and on seven of the Piers hang as many Portraits of the Apostles, painted in large Frames.

At the West End is a Gallery, and on the 12 Pannels are the Pictures of the twelve Apostles, painted at full Length on Cloth, but somewhat decayed, placed in this Order, beginning Southward.

St. Peter,
Andrew,
John,
James the Great,
Philip,
Bartholomew,

St. Matthias,
Thomas,
James the Less,
Matthias,
Simon,
Jude.

THE Dimensions are, Length 87 Feet, Breadth 26. Altitude 33. And that of the Tower about 75.

THE antient Monuments of such as were buried in this Church are but few.

Robert Willoughby, Knt. Lord Brook, bequeathed his Body, by his Will, Anno 1521, to be buried in the Hospital of the Savoy, LONDON.

MONUMENTS of later Times are these that follow: Among which yet some of Antiquity will be met with.

A very fair Monument at the upper End of the Church, having this Inscription:

Ecce ! Pudicitia, & Pietas,
Cœli utraque proles Accingunt, Dextra hæc, hæc tibi leva latus.
Juro, falo coluere, Polo
Rapuere, nec usquam
Te neque jam tumulum destituere tium.

Da. Humius Theag. Non delenda Amicitia sempiternum Monumentum.

NEAR the North East Angle of the Chancel, is a small White Marble Monument, adorned with the Figure of a Woman in a kneeling Posture, with this Inscription:

Morieris. Resurges.

Janua vitæ Sepulchrum.

Here lieth Nazareth Coppin, Wife to George Coppin, of LONDON, Gentleman, Daughter to Thomas Thwaites, of Hardington, in the County of Norfolk; Esquire. Who being of the Age of twenty-four Years, in the Prime of her Youth and Beauty, as she lived most virtuously, so she died most godly, the 22d of June 1592, in the 34th Year of the most happy Reign of Queen Elizabeth.

Mors corta, inevitabilis, incerta.

THERE are also some Latin Verses, but almost worn out by Time.

ON the West Side of the Chancel is a very antient Monument covered with a strong black Marble Slab, with this Inscription:

Pray for the Souls of Sir Richard Rokeby; Knight, and Dame Jane his Wife: Whose Bones rest here under this Tomb. Which Sir Richard deceased the 27th of April 1523; and the said Dame Jane deceased the 15th. On whose Souls Jesu have Mercy.

HERE are the following Arms: On a Chevron between three Rooks proper; as many Mulletts, impaled with Or; two Palets Gules; on a Chief three Fusils.

OVER the Vestry-Door, in the Chancel, is a fair Tomb with these Words:

Hic jacet Alicia, Filia Simonis Steward, de la Kingeth, Suff. obiit 18 Junii, Humanæ salutis, 1573.

Virtutis præmium Virtus.

Upon a Marble Stone in the Chancel, is this Inscription:

Here lies interred the Bodies of Peter Lilly, Doctor of Divinity, one of the Brothers of the Savoy, Prebend of Pauls, and Archdeacon of Tanton, who died at the Savoy, the 1st of June, Anno Dom. 1627. And of Mary Lilly, their only Daughter, who departed this Life at Fulham, the 10th of October, 1625.

Close to the other, this:

Here under lieth the Body of Francis Bulbeck, late of Clevedon, in the County of Somerset, Esq; the eighth Son of John Bulbeck, of the same Place and County, Esq; deceased: Which said Francis Francis died, being never married, the 9th of Novemb^r, in the Year of our Lord God, 1585.

Adjoining to the last mentioned is another with this Inscription :

Here lieth buried Peter Richardson, Goldsmith and Jeweller, born in Holland, in the Parts beyond the Seas, Servant to the most famous King Henry the Eighth, and King Edward the Sixth, to Queen Mary, and to our most dread Sovereign Lady, Queen Elizabeth : Which Peter having married Anne, the Daughter of Robert Wilson, lived to the Age of 84 Years, and died a faithful Christian, the 24th of March, in the Year of our Lord God, 1586.

There is also in this Chancel buried the Body of one David Bedo, Batchelor of the Law, and Steward to the Lord of Carleil, &c. 1541.

Clofe by the former,

Lieth buried the Body of Humphrey Lovel, Esq; with his two Wives and five Children. He died the 16th of November, 1585.

The next is thus inscribed :

Hic jacet Dominus Richardus Ellis, quondam Hospitalarius hujus Hospitalis. Qui obiit 3 die Augusti, 1550. quadragesimo 5. ætatis anno. Cujus animæ propitiatur Deus. Amen.

At the upper End of the Chancel, in the East Corner, is an antient Monument, with this Inscription :

Wilielmus Chaworth, secundus Filius Johannis Chaworth, de Wynerton, in Comitatus Nottingham militis, hic in suo Cœlibatu repulverescit. Cujus spiritus in Cœlis, carnis reassumptionem expectat.

Obiit 24 die Martii, Anno salutis à Christo, 1582. & suæ Nativitatis 28.

Neceffitudinis Symbolum.

A very fair Table, with a rich Coat of Arms, on the East Wall, toward the lower End of the Church.

Over it these Words :

So good a Father and Mother, are never to be forgotten.

Under it these :

Here lieth the Body of Rebecca Burton, Wife to Captain Nicholas Burton, and Daughter to Henry Somaster of Painsford in Devonshire, Esq; who departed this Life the 28th of February, Anno Domini, 1632.

In the Wall, on the West Side of the Church, is this antient Memorial.

The first sepulted in this Place after they it facrated, was Humphrey Summerfet
Deacon, which here does lye, Batchelour in the Arte, whom cruel Death oppressed
The Fifteen hundred and Fifteenth Year of God Almighty
The Fifteenth Day of April
Which Humphrey doth call and cry,
With lamentable Escrikes, and good Devotion

All devout Christen Men and Women that pass hereby Pray for my dolorous Soul, for Christs bitter Passion.

On an antient Place close to the former, is this Inscription :

Here by this Wall Side buried is William Vevian, Son and Heir unto Michael Vevian of Cornwall, Esquire. Which William was Servant unto the Right Noble, Charles Sommerfet, Earl of Worcester, the King's Chamberlain, and by Misfortune drowned in the Thames, on Passion-Sunday, at Afternoon, in the Year of our Lord God, 1520. For whose Soul pray of your Charity, as you would be prayed for.

In the Body of the Church, upon a brass Plate on the Ground, is this Inscription :

Here lieth Humphrey Gosling, of London, Vintener, of the White Hart of this Parish, a Neighbour of Virtuous Behaviour, a very good Archer, and of honest Myrth, a good Company Keeper.

So well inclin'd to Poore and Rich,
God send more Goslings to be sich.

He was Servant to the Right Honourable, the Lord Hunfden, Lord Chamberlain, and deceased the 22d of July, 1586.

Clofe by the other lies buried the Body of George Skoowith, 1525.

Also the Body of John Danson, 1577.

A very fair Stone, with a fair Picture of the Party buried wrought in Brass, having these several Inscriptions :

Over his Head two brass Circles.

In the one thus :

Credo quod Redemptor meus vivit, & in novissimo die, de terra surrecturus sum.

In the other thus :

Et in Carne mea videbo Deum salvatorem meum.

In a Circle upon his Breast thus :

Reposita est hæc spes mea, in sinu meo.

Under him thus :

Situs hic est pietatis, ac religionis cultor Johannes Floid, Artis Musicæ Bacchalaureus. Qui dum vixit, Regis Henrici octavi in facello cecinit, & Christi Sepulchrum invisit Jerosolymis. Ob. Anno Dom. 1523. Mensis Aprilis die tertio.

Near unto the other is this Inscription :

Here resteth the Body of the Lady Eleanor Kemp, Widow, late Wife of Sir William Kemp, Kt. and Daughter and Heir unto Robert Brown, Esq; which Lady Eleanor deceased the 26th of September, in the Year of our Lord God, 1559.

Near unto the former is this Inscription :

Orata pro anima Domini Johannis Sampull, quondam unitus Vicioruu Collegii Regii sancti Steph.

Steph. Westmonasterii, & in sua ætate in Cantaria Delinwood, Celebrans in Bassa Capella Sanctæ Mariæ dicti Collegii. Qui obiit Ann. Dom. 1510.

Near unto the other is this Inscription :

Here is also a handsome Infirmary for such of the Guards as fall sick, and for three or four Officers.

The PARISH of St. MARY Le STRAND.

THE first Church of St. Mary le Strand, was situated on the South Side of the Strand, opposite to the present Church, and was pulled down by Edward Duke of Somerset, Uncle to Edward VI. and Lord Protector, Anno 1549, who promised to build the Parishioners a new Church, but did not perform it. So that they were obliged sometimes to join themselves to the Church of St. Clement Danes, and afterwards to the Chapel in the Savoy, until a new Church was built.

THE present Church of St. Mary le Strand takes its Name from the Virgin Mary, to whom it was dedicated, and from its Situation.

THE first Stone of the Foundation was laid on the 25th of February 1714, and the Steeple, being the last Part of the Church, was finished the 7th of September, 1717; but was not consecrated until the 1st of January, 1723.

It is situate on the easterly Side of the Strand, where the Maypole stood formerly.

By an Act of Parliament 12, Regin. Anne, for building fifty new Churches, in the Broad Place where the Maypole stood, and the Watch-House, was so much of the vacant or waste Piece of Ground to be granted for a Church, as contained in Length from East to West 138 Feet, and in Breadth from North to South 60 Feet, and to be vested in Thomas Archbishop of Canterbury, John Archbishop of York, Simon Lord Harcourt, Lord Chancellor, &c. appointed by Letters Patents, dated the 27th of September, 1712. to be Commissioners to execute the Powers in the Act 9 Regin. Anne, for building fifty new Churches; and in their Heirs and Assigns for ever; such new Church, after it is erected and finished, shall by deemed one of the 50 Churches to be built.

A straight Way and Passage on the North Side leading East and West, to be 20 Feet broad between the said Church and the Houses. Another Street Way at the East End of the Church, of the same Breadth; and to be left fifty Feet for the High-street between the Church and the Houses at the East End on the South Side; and at the Middle Part of the Church to the Buildings now standing 45 Feet; and at the

the West End of the Church to the said Buildings 38 Feet from the High-street.

THIS Church is built of Stone, it has no Gallery within, and yet the outside is divided into two Orders of Columns, viz. Ionick below, and the Corinthian above; this is looked upon as a great Fault by good Architects; but the Circular Portico, at the West Entrance, is much commended. It is well pew'd and wainscotted, and the Altar is neat, in a Semicircular Form.

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the King, Value 225 l. besides Fees, 100 l. being settled by Act of Parliament, and paid by the King, and 125 l. raised by a Pound-Rate, at 4 d. in the Pound, on the Parishioners. The Rector has also a House, valued at 50 l. per Ann. which stands in Charles-street, near Covent-garden, but it is in this Parish by Virtue of the aforesaid Act.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. John Heylyn, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Stevens.

HERE are two Gift Sermons yearly, one on the 6th of September, the Gift of Mrs. Loveday; the other on the 27th of October, the Gift of Mrs. Edwards; and two Charity Sermons, for the better Support of 20 poor Boys.

PRAYERS are every Wednesday, Friday and Holiday, at Eleven o'Clock, no Organ, one Bell.

The Vestry is select but the Parish choose one Church-Warden.

The PARISH OFFICERS	The PEACE-OFFICERS
are,	are,
2 Church-wardens.	1 Constable.
2 Overseers of the Poor.	2 Scavengers.

THE Benefactions to the Poor are 5 l. for ever to 20 poor Widows, the Gift of Mrs. Loveday; and 4 l. for ever to be distributed among poor Widows, the Gift Mrs. Edwards.

IN Denham-yard in this Parish is a Charity School for 20 poor Boys, who are taught to Read, Write, &c. are cloathed in Grey, and have from 40 s. to 5 l. given when put out Apprentices, all by Subscription of the Parishioners. There is another for 20 poor Girls, who are taught to Read, Knit, Sew, &c. and are cloathed in striped Gowns by a Society: This last School is in Swan-yard, and the Girls go to the Savoy Chapel.

Somerfet-house.

IN this Parish is, a Royal Palace, commonly called Somerfet-house, a magnificent Structure built by the Duke of Somerfet, Uncle to King Edward VI. It was, after the Death of King Charles II. occupied by Katharine Queen-Dowager, who there kept her Court for many Years, till she left England and returned to Portugal.

It has a beautiful Front towards the Water Side, with a Piazza, Fountain, Walks, and Statues. The Front towards the Strand is adorned with Columns and Entablature of the Dorick Order. It is very reasonable, says an ingenious Architect, to think that Somerfet-house was the first Building in England that exhibited any Resemblance of Grecian Architecture; and wherein much Labour and curious Workmanship was employed. But the Stone being of a soft and loose Texture, soon became liable to Decay and Injury by Weather; so that now the Edifice is almost intirely defaced, and very few Members remain perfect to inform us what they originally were. At present the most remarkable Part of this Palace is the Chapel, built by Inigo Jones, in which the Dorick Order is enriched in the most extravagant Manner, as may be seen in the 92d Plate of the Principles of ancient Masonry, &c.

THE Author of A Critical Review of the Public Buildings, speaks thus of this Palace: "I am exceedingly pleased with the Front of the first Court of Somerfet-house next the Strand, as it affords us a View of the Dawning of Taste in England, this being the only Fabrick, that I know of, which deviates ever so little from the Gothick, or imitates ever so remotely the Manner of the Antients: Here are Columns, Arches, and Cornice that appear to have some Meaning; and if Proportions are neglected, if Beauty is not perfectly understood, if there is a strange Mixture of Barbarism and Splendor in it, the Mistakes admit of great Alleviations: In all Probability the Architect was an Englishman, and this his first Attempt, to refine on his Predecessors. Perhaps he had not an Opportunity to review the Italian Models; or form his Judgment on the Plans of the Antients. At all Events the Duke, who was at the Expence of this costly Undertaking, is to be applauded for setting this glorious Example of a Taste, till then unknown in the Kingdom; for choosing so charming a Situation, just in the Middle of Bow, which the River forms between the Bridge and Westminster, commanding the Prospect both Ways, and looking direct on the fine Hills of Surrey. 'Tis not to be doubted but the new Front next the Gardens has greatly the Advantage of the old; nothing can be conceiv'd more in Taste, or better calculated to answer the View from the Water, and yet even here we have the Mortification to see it left unfinished; though a Trifle more of Charge would make it perfect: I mean according to the Plan, on which 'twas originally designed: For, if the most was to be made of the Situation, 'tis capable of Beauties, which very few others could allow. The Inequality of Ground, for Example, leaving Room to shew the upper Story of the Court next the Strand, over the Top of that belonging to the Gardens; and what beautiful Use might be made of such an Advantage, I leave to the understanding Architect to imagine.

THIS House is now inhabited chiefly by Persons to whom Apartments are given by the King, but the best Part of it reserved for the Entertainment of Foreign Ambassadors, and others of high Rank. Here his serene Highness the Prince of Orange was lodged, after his Arrival in England, till the Day of his Marriage with the PRINCESS ROYAL.

THE PARISH of St. CLEMENT'S DANES.

TO begin now at Temple-bar, over-against it, in the High Street, antiently stood a Pair of Stocks, and then a large middle Row of Houses and small Tenements built, partly opening to the South; partly towards the North, stretching to a Stone Cross, which was where the New Church in the Strand now stands. Among these Houses stands the Parish Church of St. Clement Danes, so called, because Harold, a Danish King, and other Danes, were buried there, in that Church-yard.

THIS Harold, whom King Canutus had by a Concubine, reigned three Years, and was buried at Westminster; but afterwards Hadicanutus, the lawful Son of Canutus, in Revenge of an Affront done to his Mother, by expelling her out of the Realm, and the Murder of his Brother Alured, commanded the Body of Harold to be dug up out of the Earth, and to be thrown into the Thames, where it was by a Fisherman taken up and buried in this Church-yard: But in a Ledger-Book some Time belonging to the Abbey of Chertsey in Surrey, it is noted thus:

“ IN the Reign of King Ethelred, the Monastery of Chertsey was destroyed; ninety Monks of that House were slain by Danes, whose Bodies were buried in a Place near to the old Monastery.

William of Malmsbury saith they burnt the Church, together with the Monks and Abbot; but the Danes continuing in their Fury, throughout the whole Land, desirous at Length to return home into Denmark, were, by the just Judgment of God, all slain at LONDON, in a Place which is called The Church of the Danes.

THERE is yet another Reason given for this Denomination of the Church from the Danes; namely, that when the Danes were utterly driven out of this Kingdom, and but a very few left, who were married to English Women; these were constrained to inhabit between the Isle of Thorne, which is now called Westminster, and Caer Lud, now called Ludgate: And there they built a Synagogue; which being afterwards consecrated, was called, Ecclesia Clementis Danorum. This Account of the Name did the learned Antiquary Fleetwood, some Time Recorder of LONDON, give to the Lord Treasurer Burghley, who lived in this Parish.

ABOUT this Church, and Parts adjoining, were frequent Disturbances, in former Times; by reason of the Unthrifts, as Stow calls them, of the Inns of Chancery, who were so unruly at Nights, walking about, to the Annoyance and Danger of such as passed along the Streets, that the Inhabitants were fain to keep Watches. In the Year 1582, the Recorder himself, with six more of the honest Inhabitants, stood by St. Clement's Church, to see thee Lonthorn hanged out, and to observe if he could meet with any of these outrageous Dealers. About Seven at Night they saw young Mr. Robert Cecil, the Lord Treasurer's Son, (who was after Secretary of State to the Queen) pass by the Church; and as he passed, gave them a civil Salute. At which they said, Lo! you may see how a Nobleman's Son can use himself, and how he putteth off his Cap to poor Men. Our Lord blefs him. This Passage the Recorder wrote in a Letter to his Father, adding, “ Your Lordship hath Cause to thank God for so virtuous a Child.

IN this Parish was the Bishop of Bath and Wells's Palace in former Times: So it is found in the Bishop of LONDON's Register of Wills and Testaments, Hospitium Reverendissimi Domini Episcopi Bathon. & Wellen. in Parochia Sancti Clementis Dacor.

John Fabian, of St. Clement's Danes, Gent. by his Will, March 16, 1541, bequeaths to his Sister Martha four Nobles yearly out of his Lands he purchased in Ovington in Essex, for her Life. Lady Marney to have all his Books of Meditations

THE Care of those that by an annual Succession have the Charge and oversight of this Church, hath continually been such, as upon the least Defect or Failing either in Strength or Beauty, it hath instantly been employed, both in Repairs and Adornment.

AND first, we begin with that great costly Repair in the Year of our Lord God 1608. At which Time, upon six and twenty Feet of the Church-yard in Length, and twenty Feet in Breadth, (taken in at the East End of the Church) they built up a very fair Chancel. The Charge of this Building and Repairing amounting to the Sum of 1000 l. and upwards.

IN the Year of our Lord God 1616, there was laid out upon the Steeple in repairing and enlarging it, with some other needful Things in the Church, the Sum of 496 l.

IN the Year of our Lord God 1631, some Parts of this Church was again repaired, and the whole Body covered with a fair and beautiful Roof; the Charge of it 40 l.

IN the Year 1632, and in the Year 1633, this Church was within, throughout richly and very worthily beautified. The Charge of it 50 l.

THE Sum of all these Repairs, all being at the sole Cost of the Parishioners, 1586 l. and yet this present Church was built in the Year 1680; for under the South Portico is this Inscription:

This Church was taken down and rebuilt at the Charge of the Parishioners of St. Clement's Danes, and by the Liberal Contributions of many of the said Parishioners, and some others, 1680.

Dr. Gregory Haskard, then Rector; William Farman, and Thomas Cox, Church-wardens, both born in this Parish.

AND on a carved White Marble Stone on the North Side of the Chancel, (pretty high on the Wall) adorned with two Cupids supporting an Anchor with each one Hand, and with the others holding a circular Slip or List, whereon are these Words in a large black Character;

TO THE GLORY OF GOD.

And underneath is this Inscription:

And, for the solemn Worship of his Holy Name, this old Church being greatly decayed, was taken down in the Year 1680, and rebuilt and finished in the Year 1682, by the pious Assistance of the Reverend Dr. Gregory Haskard, Rector; and the bountiful Contributions of the Inhabitants of this Parish, and some other Noble Benefactors.

Sir Christopher Wren, his Majesty's Surveyor, freely and generously bestowing his great Care and Skill towards the Contriving and Building of it.

Which good Work was all along greatly promoted and encouraged by the Zeal and Diligence of the Vestry.

Hugh Owen, William Farman, Thomas Cox, Will. Thompson, John Radford,	}	CHURCH-WARDENS.

SOLI DEO GLORIA.

This

This was erected in the Year 1684, Roger Franklin, and James Deeling, being Church-Wardens.

In the Year 1719, the Steeple was raised 85 Feet; and in 1721, the Church-yard was beautifully paved.

THIS Church is built of curious Stone, both strong and beautiful, of the Corinthian Order. The East End, both of the Church and Chancel, are elliptical, and the Roof is covered with Lead, as are also two Cupola's at the West End over the Stair-cases; and there is a spacious circular Portico fronting the Strand, supported by six Pillars of the Ionick Order.

It is a very neat ornamental Church, both Inside and Outside; for the latter, you have at the East End a circular Pediment and Shield, with the Anchor; a Cornice round the Church; the Windows are adorned with Cherubims (on the Key-stone); the Arches with Enrichments, and the Battlements, and other proper Places, with Vases.

It is not less ornamental within the Church. The Roof is cambered, supported with neat Wood Columns of the said Corinthian Order; which Roof and the Arches are plentifully enriched with Fret-work, but especially that of the Choir with Cherubims, Palm-branches, Shields, &c. and six Pilasters of the Corinthian Order, painted blue, and the Capitals, &c. gilt with Gold, standing above the Wainscot: And here is the King's Arms in Fret-work, and also painted.

It is well wainscotted, and the Pillars cased up to the Gallery, which extends round the Church, except at the East End, with handsome Bolection-work in the Fronts.

THE Pulpit is Oak, curiously carved and enriched with Cherubims, Cupids, Anchors, and Branches of Palm, Festoons, fine Finnierring, &c. And it is very uniform and well pewed, and has three Wainscot inner Door-cases.

THE Altar-piece is also Carved Wainscot, of the Tuscan Order, with two Columns; their Entablature and Arched Pediments; under which are three Cherubims in Relievo: Above the Arched is a triangular Pediment, with three Acroters, and (thereon) as many Lamps. The Inter-columns are the Commandments in Gold Letters on Black, and the extra Columns are the Lord's Prayer and Creed in Black on Gold; and the Chancel is all paved with Marble.

THE Apertures are regular and well placed, those on the North answering to them on the South Side of the Church.

THE Length of the Church is 96 Feet, Breadth 63, and Height 48. The Altitude of the Steeple, which consists of a Tower (strengthened with Buttresses) and Turret, is about 116 Feet; in which Tower are eight noble Bells to ring in Peal.

Memoriæ Sacrum:

Here lieth the Body of Hippocrates de Otthen, nobly descended from the noble Family of the Otthens, out of Holfatia, Doctor of Physick in the University of Montpeliers, in France, and most worthily incorporated in the University of Oxford. After his first coming into England with his Father (who was the Emperor's Physician, and sent for over by Queen Elizabeth) he was desired by the Earl of Leicester himself, to pertain unto him, in whose Service (for many Years, both at home and abroad in the Low Countries, with his Lord) he performed such worthy Parts, as well in his own Faculty, as being employed in other laudable Services, that her Majesty and the State took especial Note of his Worth. After the Decease of the Earl, he was in the same Esteem and Regard with the Earl of Essex, and by her Majesty commanded to attend upon him in the Wars of France, and afterwards in his prosperous Voyage to Cadiz. Returning home (hoping to retire himself to his own Practice, and a more private Life) he was again commanded to go (as Physician in Service into Ireland (with the Lord Montjoy (afterwards Earl of Devonshire) her Majesty's Lieutenant in that Kingdom. But, returning again into England with his Lord, in the beginning of his Majesty's Reign, he continued not long, but went as Physician with the Earl of Hartford, his Majesty's Ambassador unto the Archduke of Austria and Burgundy, in that Honourable Employment: And so returning again into England, he spent the Residue of his Years with his dear and most virtuous virtuous Wife, Mistrefs Dorothy Drew, Daughter to Master Roger Drew of Denſworth in Suſſex, Eſq; in great Blifs and Happineſs: And being a moſt zealous and penitent Chriſtian, full of Years, and (unto his laſt Gaſp) of perfect Memory, he ended his Pilgrimage here on Earth; and with Alacrity of Spirit ſurrendered his Soul into the Hands of his Creator, the 13 of November, 1611, For whoſe Love and Memory, his late Wife (the now Lady and Wife unto Sir Stephen Thornhurſt of Kent, (the moſt worthy and valorous Knight) hath cauſed this Monument to be erected, *Amoris ergo P. A handſome Monument on the North Side: In Memory of John Pain, who died April 25, Anno Dom. 1573.

UPON a fair Marble Stone in the Middle Iſle are the following Verſes:

William Saint Albone ſleeps at reſt, within this Marble Stone,
Whoſe Corps in Clay, and Soul well bleſt deſerves diſpraiſe of none;
He had ſuch Feats, ſo full of Fruits
ſo prompt with Word and Pen,
So ſkilful in his courtly Suits,
So dear a Friend to Men,
So ripe to rule the Works of Fame
ſo tempering hot and cold,
His Deeds deſerve that his good Name were ſiphered here in Gold.

UPON

UPON a Stone in the Middle Isle is this Inscription :

Memoriæ sacrum; & Deo opt. max sacrum.

Secundum Christi Redemptoris adventum hoc in tumultu expectat Rogerus Houghton, antiqua Houghtonorum Familia in agro Lancastrensi oriundus. Qui quam Illustrissimi viri Domini Roberti Cecilii Salisburiae comiti & angliae magni Thesaurii, per Annos 42 summa cum Fide & Industria Familia præfuit in Patriam coelestem evocatus, placide pieque emigravit Anno Dom. 1617.

Charissimo viro Conjux moestissima monumentum hoc amoris & observantiae causa posuit.

ON another Stone near the former is this Inscription :

Here lieth buried the Body of Elizabeth late Wife of George Dalton, Esq; who died the second Day of January, 1605, and hath left Issue of her Body to her Husband, Maximilian and Thomas.

Yea though I should walk through the Valley of the Shadow of Death, I will fear no Evil, for thou art with me; thy Rod and thy Staff they comfort me.

Jesus Christ is my Light and my Salvation, whom then shall I fear? God is the Strength of my Life, of whom then shall I be afraid?

A fair Stone in the Middle Isle, near the Chancel, having this Inscription :

Batinus Haselrigg, Armiger, Capitaneus Militiae Leicestrensis, hic sepultus est. Qui obiit 4 Maii Ann. Dom. 1630. Aetatis suae 24.

ANOTHER in the same Isle, with this Inscription :

Hic jacet Edmundus Arnold, postremus Aprilis
Ulcere quem rapuit
tristis atroxque dies,
Justus Ecclesiae Rector
Meritissimus olim,
Et summus medica
Doctor in Arte fuit,
Non Ipocrate minor erat

A handsome Monument on the Wall, in the South Isle with this Inscription :

Here by lieth buried the Body of Edward Price, Gentleman, and of Edward, his only Son, who for the Space of twenty four Years, lived in this Parish, wherein God so blessed him, that of his good and charitable Devotion, he hath given three Pounds a Year for ever out of his free Land, called the Blue Lyon in the said Parish, to be bestowed in Sea Coals, and to be distributed freely to the Poor by the Church-Wardens. And also twenty Pounds for ever to be lent to two poor young Householders gratis, from two Years to two Years, ten Pounds a-piece.

He departed this Life the 8th of March, 1605.

ON the same Tomb, under that above, is this written :

This Tomb was erected at the Charge of Elizabeth, the Wife of Henry Baten, Esq; one of his Majesty's Sergeants at Arms, and late Wife of Edward Price, deceased; who of her goodly Disposition, hath given twenty Shillings a Year for ever to the Preacher of this Parish, to be paid out of her House called the Three Cups next adjoining on the West Side of the same Blue Lyon, only that he shall make Recital hereof at two several Sermons yearly; one on the Sunday before Christmas Day, and the other on the Sunday before Midsummer Day. And the said Elizabeth also, of her godly Love and Zeal to the Church, hath given a Flagon Pot; Silver and Gilt, weighing thirty eight Ounces and a half, for the Service of the Communion Table, to remain for ever; and three Pounds to the Poor, to be distributed at her Funeral, and five Pounds to the Poor of Kinton in Derbyshire, where she was born; she departed the 10th of November, 1616.

A very fair Glass Table, hanging on a Pillar in the South Isle, in which there is the Figure of a Gentlewoman all in Black, with a gilt Book in her Hand, laid as upon her Tomb; over her Head an Angel, over her, at the Feet, Death with a Dart and Hour-Glass.

OVER her, adjoining to a very fair Coat, encompass'd with a Laurel Wreath, these Words :

Filius Ararlmes Cyllenii, Factor Paterque Tonaquillae.

Under her :

Memoriæ Sacrum.

Katharina Bridges, (Filia & Heredis Roberti Effington Generosi, unius olim Guardianorum pontis LONDON.) Triplici jugo junctæ : Primo Thomæ Gwyn de LONDON, Generoso, filio secundo Gulielmi Vaughan, de Berain in Com. Denbigh, Armigeri, & Margaretæ Gwyn, Uxoris ejus, defunctorum. Cui unicum Fœtum edidit, nimirum Edwardum Gwyn, ad huc vitales carpentem Auras. Secundo Gulielmo Forset Armigero : Postremo Gulielmo Bridges, interioris Templi LONDON Armigero : Vita sua virtute clara, omnibusque naturæ dotibus eximie prædita. Cui (post laudibilis vitæ stadium, nitentemque in aulam migrationem) E. G. defunctæ proles, officiosa Pietate (ut decet) Novissimum hoc Parentale Munusculum exolvit.

Obiit 16 Maii, Anno a partu Virginis salutifero, 1598, Annoque Aetatis suae 45.

ON the South Side of the Communion-Table is a small Monument for Dr. Duxon, formerly Rector of this Church; but placed at such an Height that the Inscription is out of Sight.

ON the opposite, that is, the North Side, is another Inscription; but placed so high as not to be read; only there is the Anchor, which is the Arms of the Parish, and Glory be to God visible, so that it seems to be a Memorial of some charitable Benefactor.

ON a Pillar in the Body of the Church is a Monument for one Tatham, Surgeon.

Divers flat Stones laid over Persons deceased.

Under

Under the Belfrey are two ordinary Stones :

One for Walter Bowyer, Pewterer, and Walter and Charles, his Sons, and Anne, his Wife ; he departed 1691.

The other for Elizabeth, Daughter of Charles Alcock, of Clonmel in Ireland, 1699.

Upon a Brass Plate fixt to a Pavement in the the Middle Isle an Inscription for Elizabeth, Wife of Thomas Brown, died 25 Octob. 1705. aged 23.

If Youth and Vertue could not save
A vertuous Woman from the Grave, &c.

Another Brass Plate in the same Isle, for Herbert Williamfon. April 25. 1709. Ætat. 64.

Upon another Brass Plate fixed to the Pavement in the Chancel, Catharina, Uxor Richardi Holden, hic jacet. Ob. 2^{do} die Martii, 1710-11.

In the second School are 40 Girls, under a Mistress, who teaches them to Read, Sew, Knit, &c. and she has 20 l. per Annum, besides Coals and Candles : The Girls have also a singing Master to teach them ; and both Boys and Girls are cloathed in Blue. The third School is the Horn Book School, where 30 Children are taught by the Mistress.

In the upper Church Yard, there are also six Alms-houses with six Rooms, and 12 poor Women in each House ; who are allowed 2 s. per Week : And in the lower Church Yard are five Rooms for poor Women, each of whom have 2 s. and 6 d. per Week, They have also Coals at Christmas, if they can make Interest to get them.

THIS Parish is divided into two Liberties, viz. the Upper and the Lower : The Upper, which is in the Liberty of Westminster, contains four Wards, viz. Temple-bar Ward, Sheer-lane Ward, Drury-lane Ward, and Holy-well Ward : The Lower Liberty is in the Dutchy of Savoy, and contains also four Wards, viz. Royal Ward, Church Ward, Middle Ward, and Savoy Ward.

In this Parish are the three following Inns of Chancery, Lyon's-Inn, New-Inn, Clement's-Inn.

Lyon's-Inn, is an Inn of Chancery, situated on the Southerly side of Wytch-street, it has been such an Inn since Anno 1420, or sooner. It is governed governed by a Treasurer, and 12 Antients; those of this House are three Weeks in Michaelmas Term; other Terms two in Commons, and pay 5 s. for the reading Weeks, for others 2 s. 6 d. Here are Mootings once in four Terms, and they sell their Chambers for one or two Lives.

Their Armorial Ensigns are; Chequy Or and Azure, a Lyon Rampant Sable. They have a handsome Hall, built in the Year 1700.

New-Inn, an Inn of Chancery, belonging to the Middle-Temple, and situated on the North side of Witch-street, to which Place this Society, removed from Sea-Coal-Lane, (as Tradition tells us) to be, for their Conveniency, nearer to the other Inns of Court and Chancery.

THIS was, before their Removal hither, a common Hostery, or Inn, known by the Sign of the Blessed Virgin, and was procured from Sir John Fineux, sometime Lord Chief Justice of England, for the Rent of 6 l. per Annum. And they Tenants at their own Will.

This Society is governed by a Treasurer and 12 Antients, the Members are to be in Commons, in their Gowns and Caps, (as the other Inns) one Week in every Term, or pay if not there.

They sell Chambers for one Life, and have Mootings once or twice a Term.

THEIR Armonial Ensigns are, Vert, a Flower-Pot Argent. To this Inn are pleasant Walks and Gardens, and the North-eastwardly Part joins to Clement's-Inn; from which it is separated by a handsome Iron Gate, shut up a Nights, which was placed here Anno 1723.

Clement's-Inn, an Inn of Chancery, situated near, tho' somewhat Northward from St. Clement's Church, not so called from the Well, but both the Church, Inn, and Well from the Pope, to whom the Church was dedicated. Here Students of the Law had their Inn, or Lodgings, about Anno 1478. It is said to have descended to the Earls of Clare, from Sir William Hollis, Lord Mayor of LONDON, Anno 1539, who had it from one Cantlow's, about the Year 1528.

HERE is a Hall and many handsome Chambers, built round three Courts, through which is a Passage from St. Clement's Church to Clare-market, in the Day time, when the Gates are open.

It is governed by one Principal, and four Antients. The Gentlemen are a Fortnight in Commons every Term, and longer in Michaelmas Term, and pay 5 s. per Week, though absent; they have Mootings sometimes twice a Term.

THEIR Armorial Ensigns are, Argent, an Anchor (without a Stock) in pale Proper, and a C. Sable passing through the middle.

The PARISH of St. JOHN the Evangelist, in Westminster.

THE Church here takes its Name from the Saint to whom it is dedicated, and Westminster is added, to distinguish it from other Churches, dedicated to the same Saint. It is situated on the West side of Mill-bank, near the Horse-ferry, in the City of Westminster.

It was founded in the Year 1721, and finished in the Year 1728.

THIS Building, says the Author of the Critical Review, "Is in a very particular Taste, and has " a great Mixture of Beauty and Caprice in it:
" There are many Parts of it, which I approve,
" and many more which I condemn: It is, to be " sure, a fatal Mistake, to endeavour at an Excellence, and then err so wide of the Mark,
" as to stumble on a Deformity. All false Or" naments become Faults immediately, and only " serve to make an Absurdity more conspicuous:

" If the Architect of this Pile had once thought
" of this Rule, I am persuaded he would have " been abundantly more chaste in his Compositions, and cut his four Towers, like those of " Babel, off in the Middle.

THE Living here is a Rectory, in the Gift of the King, the Value per Ann. is about 250 l.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. John Villars and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Fitzgerald.

PRAYERS are on Wednesday's, Friday's, and Holidays, about 11 o'Clock in the Morning, and about three in the Afternoon. Here is no Organ, and but two Bells.

The Vestry is select.

In Peter-street Division:

Great St. Anne's-lane, Jones's-court, and Pipe-makers-alley; Part of Orchard-street; Part of New Pye-street; Part of Old Pye-street; Little St. Anne's-lane, and Parker's-rents; Part of Duck-lane; Part of Pear-street; Part of Artillery-ground; Part of Artillery-wall; Part of Strutton-ground, Peter-street, Leg-court, Laundry-yard, Providence-court, and Whister-ground; Part of Adam a digging-yard, Tothill-fields and Rocheffer-row.

NUMBER of Houses are about 1600.

IN these Fields there is an Hospital called the Green Coats Hospital, erected by King Charles I. but endowed by King Charles II. for 25 Boys and six Girls; with a School-Master to teach them.

ADJOINING to this Hospital is Bridewel; a Place for the Correction of such idle and loose Livers, as are taken up within this Liberty of Westminster, and thither sent by the Justices of the Peace for Correction; which is Whipping, and beating of Hemp, (a Punishment very well suited to Idleness;) and are thence discharged by Order of the Justices, as they in their Wisdom find Occasion. The Keeper of this Bridewel is Mr. Reading.

In Totbill-fields, which is a large spacious Place, there are certain Pest-Houses, now made Use of by 12 poor Men and their Wives, as long as it shall please God to keep us from the Plague. These Pest-Houses are built near the Meads, as remote from People.

Stretton-grounds, a good, handsome, long, well built and inhabited Street, which runs up to Totbill-fields, almost against the new Work-House, for employing poor People; and hath on the West a Passage into the new Artillery-ground, a pretty large Inclosure, made Use of by those that delight in Military Exercises.

Pear-street, narrow and short, which comes out of Stretton-grounds, and falls into Duck-lane, which is seated betwixt Orchard-street and Peter-street, a Place of no great Account.

Pye-street lieth between Duck-lane and great St. Anne's-lane, being better built than inhabited.

New Pye-street, is a Passage from Old-Pye-street into Orchard-street, a pretty handsome, new built Place.

Perkin's-rents, comes out of Pye-street, and falls into Peter-street, a Place of no great Account.

Little St. Anne's-lane lies between Peter-street and Old Pye-street; but ordinarily built and inhabited: Out of this Lane is a narrow and long Passage into Great St. Anne's-lane, called Alding's-alley.

Great St. Anne's-lane, a pretty handsome, well built, and inhabited Place.

Orchard-street, very long, with good Buildings, which are well inhabited: On the North Side is a Place called the New Way, which has Houses on the West Side, the East being Sir Robert Pye's Garden Wall.

New Totbill-street, a good handsome well built Place, which lies betwixt Orchard-street and Old Totbill-street.

Dacre's-street, but short, comes out of Chapel-street, and falls into New Totbill-street: On the South Side is a Place called Prince Rupert's Stables, which has a Passage into Orchard-street, now converted into a Brewhouse.

Peter-street, very long, and indifferent broad, especially that Part next to Totbill-fields, from which it passes by Duck-lane, and falls into Wood-street, and thence to the Mill-bank; and on the South Side it receives these Places, viz. Horn-court, Tomkins's-yard, Moor's-yard, and Laundrey's-alley; all of ordinary Account.

THE Bowling-alley falls into Great Dean's-alley, in the North: It is well built and inhabited; in which are Oliver's-yard, and a Place called Back-alley, both ordinary.

Masham-street, long and straight, with good Buildings well inhabited; it comes out of Peter-street, and falls into the Road which leads to the Horse-ferry.

Tufton-street, a good, large, and open Place, having on the East Side a Row of well built Houses, but the West Side, as yet is unbuilt: In this Street is Benet's-yard, very ordinary.

Market-street, falls into the Mill-bank, and is but ordinary.

Vine-street, a pretty handsome open Place, which also falls into Mill-bank: On the South Side is Campaine-alley, which goes into Market-street.

Wood-street, very narrow, with ordinary Houses, especially on the North Side, being old boarded Hovels ready to fall, and wants new building; this Street also falls into the Mill-bank.

College-street, formerly called the Dead-wall, as lying against the Wall of the College-Garden, and Lindsey Garden: It has Buildings only on the South Side, which are pretty good, the North Side being the Wall: In this Street is Pipe's-ground, which has, at present, a few Houses built, the rest lying waste: Here is also Brick-court, an indifferent Place.

THE Mill-bank, a very long Place, which begins by Lindsey House, or rather by the Old Palace-yard, and runs up to Peterborough House, which is the farthest House: The Part from against College-street to the Horse-ferry, a good Row of Buildings on the East Side next to the Thames, which is most taken up with large Woodmongers Yards and Brewhouses; and here is a Waterhouse which serves this End of the Town: The North is but ordinary, except one or two Houses by the End of College-street; and that Part beyond the Horse-ferry, has a very good Row of Houses, much inhabited by Gentry, by Reason of the pleasant Situation and Prospect of the Thames: The House at the utmost Extremity of the City of Westminster, was formerly called Peterborough House, belonging then to the Earl of Peterborough; it is now rebuilt in a handsome Manner, and is in the Possession of Sir Robert Grosvenor, Bart.

 OF THE
 City of LONDON, &c.

B O O K VI.

C H A P. I.

Of the SUBURBS without the WALLS and LIBERTIES.

HAVING spoken of this City, the Original, the Increase, the Walls, Ditch, Castles, Towers, Bridges, the Schools and Houses of Learning; and their publick Charitable Foundations. And after that, how the same City is divided into Parts and Wards; and how the same are bounded; and what Monuments of Antiquity, or Ornaments of Building are in every of them: As also in the Borough of Southwark. We lastly come to speak briefly of the Suburbs, as well without the Gates and Walls, as without the Liberties, and of the Monuments in them.

CONCERNING the Estate of the Suburbs of this City, in the Reign of King Henry II. Fitz Stephen hath these Words: "Upwards on the West (saith he) is the King's Palace, which is an incomparable Building, rising with a Vawmure and Bulwark, aloft upon the River, two Miles from the Wall of the City, but yet conjoined with a continual Suburb. On all Sides, without the Houses of the Suburbs, are

"the Citizens Gardens and Orchards, planted
 "with Trees, both large, sightly, and adjoining "together. On the North Side are Pastures
 "and plain Meadows, with Brooks running "through them, turning Mater-mills, with a "pleasant Noise. Not far off is a great Forest,
 "a well wooded Chase, having good Covert for
 "Harts, Bucks, Does, Boars, and wild Bulls.
 "The Corn Fields are not of a hungry sandy
 "Mould; but as the fruitful Fields of Asia,
 "yielding plentiful Increase, and filling the Barns
 "with Corn. There are near LONDON,
 "on the North Side, especial Wells in the Sub"urbs, sweet, wholesome and clear. Amongst "which, Holywell, Clerkenwell, and St. Cle-
 "ment's Well, are most famous, and most fre"quented by Scholars and Youths of the City
 "in Summer Evenings, when they walk forth to "take the Air.

THUS far out of Fitz Stephen, for the Suburbs at that Time.

AND here, before we enter in these Suburbs, and pass along through at the particular Places and Streets therein, it may be worth our while to stay a little, and take some Notice in general, both of the Inhabitants, and the multiplied Buildings.

IN the Days of Queen Elizabeth, in that Part of her Reign that is upwards of 140 or 150 Years ago, when LONDON began to be very populous, there was a Confluence hither out of the Countries, of such Persons as were of the poorer Sort of Trades and Occupations: Who, because they could not exercise them within the Jurisdiction of the City, followed them here, and within the Compass of three or four Miles of the City. By Reason of these Tradesmen, bad Commodities were made and vended, to the wronging of the People. They made counterfeit Indigo, Musk, Saffron, Cochineal, Nutmegs, Wax, Steel, and other Commodities: But they were but Bunglers at their Business. They took Abundance of Apprentices, and kept them not their full Time, according to Law; but suffered them in a few Years to be out of their Times; whereby, few became sufficient Workmen: And they that were sufficient had so many Servants, that Numbers of Families were increased in the Suburbs and elsewhere. Whence (besides that the Sickness was often increased) the Suburbs were abused by false and insufficient Wares, and Deceits were practised by them; having none appointed to oversee them and their Works: For they belonged to none of the Companies of LONDON; and so were under no Controul or Restraint.

THIS at length caused a Petition to be put up to King James I. in the Year 1609, by the Tradesmen and Artificers of LONDON, who set forth, "That there were Special Laws and Statutes for Strangers inhabiting near the City, being no Freemen; yet those Laws had not been put in Execution, by Reason, that no special Man had been appointed to take the Oversight of it. And by Reason no good Government had been used, or Restraint made, there had repaired, and daily did repair from all Parts, Men of divers Trades and Sciences, which had not served any Apprenticeship, nor had Skill in their Trades; and shrouded themselves near the City, keeping Shops and using Trades openly, as well as privately. Thereby hurting the antient Inhabitants which dwelt near the City, and had duly served Apprenticeships, and the Companies of the said City, and abused the Subjects by bad Wares and Works, increasing Multitudes of Poor, and causing great Scarcity.

"THEY prayed therefore, that the King would grant unto Sir Thomas Chaloner, Sir William Wade, Sir Walter Cope, and Sir Nicholas Lusher, (whom they judged very fit Men for this Employment,) and to their sufficient Deputies and Assigns, to erect and appoint one, or more general Halls for all the said Tradesmen and Artificers, that should inhabit the Suburbs, or within ten Miles of it; and to authorize them, or any two or more of them to call before them all such as took upon them to use any Art, Mystery or Science, and were not Freemen of the City and of some Company. And for the better ordering them, to establish Yearly certain Officers over every Trade; Science and Mystery, to have Care and oversight of the Relidue of that Trade, with such and like Orders, as those of the like Companies within the City of LONDON were subject to; and the Obstinate to be made subject to Imprisonment. And that it might be lawful for the said four Governors and their Assigns, to impose upon them the Penalties of such Laws and Ordinances as in such Cases were provided for Punishment of Offenders. And that towards the Governor's Pains, Charges and Travel in establishing them in an orderly Government, and having Care of "the Continuance of the same, it might be lawful for them to take of every Person to be so settled under Government, such ordinary Fees and Duties, as by a general Consent should be thought fit, according to the Use of the City of LONDON.

THE Consideration of this the King committed to certain Persons, which were his Commissioners for Suits, viz. Sir Julius Caesar, Sir Francis Bacon, Sir Thomas Parry, Sir Walter Cope, Sir Clement Edmonds, and others. And they hereupon directed their Letters to some Gentlemen of Middlesex, Surrey, and Essex, and to certain Aldermen of LONDON, viz. Sir Thomas Benet, Sir Henry Roe, Sir John Swinerton, Henry Finch, John Mitchel, Edward Barkham, and George Smithes. These Aldermen April 30, 1610, gave up a Certificate, upon a Reference given by those his Majesty's Commissioners, concerning the Government of the Tradesmen inhabiting the Suburbs and other Places near the City. The Import was, That they had called the Parties before them, and examined the Causes of the Petition, and found that there were many such Abuses as were complained of. And they conceived it very needful, that some good Order might be established for the Preservation of lawful and necessary Trades; and that some severe Punishment might be inflicted upon such as made false and counterfeit Wares; and that an Order might be established for restraining the great Number of People which daily came from other Places. And that in their Opinion it was fit that the Tradesmen in the Suburbs near adjoining might be drawn under, and be governed by the Companies in the City of LONDON, as with whom they have most Affinity. And had such Orders, as well for the Search of their Wares, and Number of Apprentices, as were observed in the Companies in the City of LONDON: And that some special Men of every Trade might be yearly appointed out of, and by those Companies to search Wares, and to see such Orders performed as should be found convenient and needful for the said Tradesmen, upon such Penalties as were inflicted upon Offenders, in the several Companies of LONDON. That both Freemen of the City, and those that inhabited near the City, might live in their Callings to the Good of the Commonwealth. And that such ordinary Duties and Quarteridge, Search and Fines for Offences as were paid by the Freemen of the City, might likewise be paid by them to the Companies of LONDON, to whom they should be joined.

AND for as much as the Power and Authority of the City did not extend to the Masters and Wardens of every Company, to whose Care and Government any of the said Tradesmen should be joined, for their better Government, with two or more of every Company of the Tradesmen, and to make Search and reform many of these Abuses otherwise than in the said City of LONDON, they conceived not how these Abuses might be reformed unless his Majesty should be graciously pleased to give Authority to the said Masters, Wardens and others to be appointed, to reform the said Abuses, to make Search within five Miles, or so many Miles of the City, as to his Majesty should seem fit, to have the said Course of Reformation to extend. And that this Search might be made twice every Year, and the Offender to be punished by Fine or Mulct. And that the said Master and Wardens of every Company for their Neglect and Miscarriage in their Duties be punished forty Shillings, to be levied by Aid and Assistance of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being.

THIS

THIS was the whole of the Opinion given in by the Aldermen of LONDON upon this Business of the Tradesmen in the Suburbs, referred to them by the Commissioners.

THE said Commissioners did again desire the Opinion of the Gentlemen of Middlesex, Surrey, and Essex, in this Matter. And for the last named County, in May, Anno 1611, they directed their Letters to Sir Michael Hicks, Sir William Rider and Mr. Blunt, praying them to enter into a Consideration of the whole Matter, and of the Circumstances thereof and to give the Commissioners a Meeting at a Day appointed, viz. May the 23d, at the Exchequer-Chamber, that with Conference with them and some of the Aldermen, some Course might be taken as should be thought fit.

WHAT farther became of this Matter is uncertain; but whether it was the Encouragement these petty Traders and Artificers met with, or the Multitude of the meaner Sort of People, that was the Cause, but great Numbers of Edifices were erected in the Suburbs, where before were only Fields and void Places, especially on the East Parts of the City. This was at length much complained of, insomuch that in the Year 1580, it was thought meet to take some Course to stop this by the Queen's Proclamation.

MANY Inconveniencies are said there to be occasioned by daily Access of People thither, as that the City could scarcely be well governed, by Reason of such Multitudes flocking to live there, by the old Government, without devising of new Jurisdictions and Officers. It was thought also to increase a great Dearness of Provisions, there being hardly sufficient Victuals and Food and other Necessaries for Man's Life, to be had for reasonable Prices, so many were ready to consume the Provisions brought in. It was also thought to tend to the rendering the City more sickly, and to bring into it a Mortality; the Preservation of the People in Health, seeming impossible to continue where such great Numbers were brought to dwell in small Rooms; whereof a great Part were very poor, and such as must live on begging, or worse Means; and they heaped up together, and in a sort smothered with many Families of Children and Servants in one House; and the Plague, or popular Sickness, when that might happen in the City, would, by the Contiguity of the Buildings, spread and invade the whole City and Confines; and so endanger the Queen's own Life, and the spreading of a Mortality over the whole Nation.

THEREFORE the Queen, to prevent this, and moved hereunto by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and other grave and wise Men in and about the City, commanded all Persons to desist and forbear from any new Buildings within three Miles from any of the Gates of the City; and to forbear from letting or setting, or suffering any more Families than one only, to be placed in any House. And she charged the Lord Mayor, and all other Officers having Authority in the same, Justices of Peace, Lords and Bailiffs of Liberties, not being within the Jurisdiction of the Lord Mayor, to foresee that no Person began to prepare any Foundation for any new House; and to be prohibited and restrained so to do; but that the Person attempting the contrary, and all the Workmen be committed to close Prison, there to remain without Bail until they found good Sureties, that they shall not at any Time attempt the like: And to seize all Manner of Stuff brought to the Place where such Building shall be intended; and, for the preventing this, none were to receive Inmates.

THE whole Proclamation was as follows:

THE Queen's Majesty perceiving the State of the City of LONDON (being antiently termed her Chamber) and the Suburbs and Confines thereof to increase by daily Access of People to inhabit in the same, in such ample Sort as thereby many Inconveniencies are seen already; but many greater of Necessity like to follow: Being such as her Majesty cannot neglect to remedy, having the principal Care under Almighty God to foresee aforehand to have her People in such a City and Confines, not only well governed by ordinary Justice, to serve God, and obey her Majesty; which by Reason of such Multitudes lately increased, can hardly be done, without Device of mo new Jurisdictions and Officers for that Purpose, but to be also provided of Sustentation of Victual, Food and other like Necessaries for Man's Life, upon reasonable Prizes, without which no City can long continue. And finally, to the Preservation of her People in Health; which may seem impossible to continue, though presently by God's Goodness the same is perceived to be in better Estate universally, than hath been in Man's Memory: Yet where there are such great Multitudes of People brought to inhabit in small Rooms; whereof a great Part are seen very poor; yea, such as must live of begging, or by worse Means: And they heaped up together, and in a sort smothered with many Families of Children and Servants in one House or small Tenement; it must needs follow, if any Plague or popular Sickness should by God's Permission enter among those Multitudes, that the same would not only spread it self and invade the whole City and Confines, as great Mortality should ensue the same, where her Majesty's Personal Presence is many times required; besides the great Confluence of People from all Places of the Realm by reason of the ordinary Termes for Justice there holden; but would be also dispersed through all other Parts of the Realm, to the manifest Danger of the whole Body thereof. Out of which neither her Majesty's own Person can be (but by God's special Ordinance) exempted, nor any other, whatsoever they be.

For Remedy whereof, as Time may now serve, until by some further good Order to be had in Parliament, or otherwise, the same may be remedied, her Majesty, by good and deliberate Advice of her Council; and being also thereto much moved by the considerate Opinions of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and other the grave, wise Men in and about the City, doth charge and straitly command all Persons of what Quality soever they be, to desist and forbear from any new Buildings of any new House or Tenement within three Miles of any of the Gates of the said City, to serve for Habitation or Lodging for any Person, where no former House hath been known to have been in Memory of such as are now living: And also to forbear from letting or setting, or suffering any more Families than one only, to be placed, or to inhabit from henceforth in any House that heretofore hath been inhabited.

And for so universal a Benefit to the whole Body of the Realm, for whose Respects all particular Persons are bound by God's Laws and Man's to forbear from their particular and extraordinary Lucre, she straitly chargeth the Lord Mayor and all other Officers, having Authority in the same; and also all Justices of Peace, Lords and Bailiffs of Liberties, not being within the Jurisdiction of the Lord Mayor; to foresee that no Person do begin to prepare any Foundation for any new House, Tenement, but that they be prohibited and restrained so to do. And both the Person that shall so attempt, to the contrary, and all Manner of Workmen that shall, after Warning given, continue in any such Work, tending to such new Building, to be committed to close Prison: And there to remain without Bail until they shall find good Sureties, with Bonds for reasonable Sums of Mony, that they shall not at any Time attempt the like, &c. And further, the said Officers shall seize all Manner of Stuff so (after Warning given) brought to the Place, where such new Building shall be intended.

And for the avoiding of Multitudes of Families heaped up in one dwelling House, and for the converting of any one House into Multitudes, for Dwelling or Victualling Places, the said Lord Maior, and all other Officers in their several Liberties shall commit any such Persons, giving cause of Offence, to close Prison. And for the Offences in this Part of Increase of many In-dwellers, or as they be commonly termed Inmates or Undersitters, which have been suffered within these seven Years, contrary to the good, antient Laws and Customs of the City, the said Lord Maior, and all other the Officers shall speedily cause to be redrest in their ordinary Courts Law-Days, between this and the Feast of All-Saints next. Within which Time such Undersitters, or Inmates may provide themselves other Places abroad in the Realm; where many Houses rest uninhabited, to the Decay of divers antient good Boroughs and Towns, &c. Given at Nonefuch, the 7th of July, 1580, in the 22d Year of her Majesty's Reign.

THIS Proclamation could not hinder this strong Propension in the People towards building new Houses. So that in the Year 1583, notice was taken anew of it; and that in some very publick manner, and some Person punish'd for it, as it seems, in the Star-Chamber: For both the Lord Treasurer of England made a Speech against it, and Serjeant Fleetwood the Recorder made another learned one. The former mentioned the Queen's Proclamation, and how it was grounded upon a great number of Cases, to avoid great Inconveniences; partly for Preservation of her Majesty's Person; for Sustentation of her Subjects with Victuals; for Preservation from the Plague. The Offences were evident; first, In the Officers that have suffered them. The Example was needful, to punish the Offenders. That this was her Majesty's own Complaint. And that it was her special Command to punish the Offenders, to remedy the Offences. These Buildings were the Complaint of all Officers [by reason of many Misdemeanors:] Occasioned the encrease of the Plague; created a Trouble in governing such Multitudes; a dearth of Victuals; multiplying of Beggars, and Inability to relieve them: An increase of Artizans in number more than could live together: Impoverishing of other Cities for lack of Inhabitants. It made lack of Air, lack of room to walk, to shoot, &c. And increase of People to rob the Queen's Customs. There were the Heads of the Lord Treasurer's Speech.

The Speech of the other Lawyer, the Recorder, arguing learnedly in point of Law, ran to this Tenor: "That it was an antient Principle in Law, that Tenant in Fee Simple of Lands and Tenements, may either build or pull down at his free Will. And yet is the same Principle qualified by a Rule of the Common Law; the which is, Sic utere tui, ut alienum non lædas. i. e. So use your own, that you hurt not another. That among the magnalia Coronæ. there were no such Prerogatives as are Leges Forestæ (i. e. the Laws of the Forest. By the Forest Laws, if a Man build any House whatsoever within the Forest, without the King's License, or the License of the Lord of the Forest; the same being presented at the Swaine Mote, and opened at the Justice Seat, may justly be defaced by due Course of Law, and pulled down, and the Builder imprisoned, and ransomed for his Trespas. Here ye see that Tenant in Fee Simple may not deal with his Lands as he lists, but Secundum Leges & Consuetudines Locorum, i. e. according to the Laws and Customs of Places. I do remember, that in the Time of Edward I. the Lords of the Parliament, being moved by the King to devise a Law, that the King might have Power to inhibit the bearing Armour among his Subjects; the Parliament concluded that it was not meet to establish any such Law; for that it was a Prerogative inseparable from the Crown; and the King, by his Prerogative Law might take such Direction therein, as by his Wisdom he should think convenient. If this Prerogative Law were executed, then should we not daily meet such an infinite Number of Sword-Bearers within this City of LONDON, and Westminster-hall. And yet there be such as have not stuck to say, that neither the Queen's Highness could by any Law, either inhibit Building, or the Portage of Armour.

By the Records of the Pipe it appeareth, that we of LONDON, do pay for the City a Fee-farm, and that we are Tenants in Fee-farm, of the Room-ground, viz. of such Places as Smithfield is, and of all the Streets, and such like Places in LONDON; yea, and also of London-bridge itself: And therefore we being Tenants in Fee may pluck down, alter, change and deface the Walls, the Ditches, the Gates, the Bulwarks, the Posterns, the Room Lands, the Streets, the Thames Banks, and the Bridge itself. This is not true; for, that, the Laws of the Crown have such Interest over the City of LONDON, and over all the Members thereof, that we may do none of these Things without the Licence of the Crown: As appears in Anno quinto of Henry VII. wherein Licence was given to the Executors of Whittington to pluck down, and newly to re-edify the Prison-House in Newgate.

IN LONDON, Houses are to be pulled down with Engines, Hooks, and Ladders, provided for this purpose. And this is by the Common Laws of the Realm; and this is for avoiding of the Rage of Fire.

IN LONDON, by the Law for avoiding of Inconveniences, where the Plague is in any House, the Inhabitants thereof are to be shut up within the House: And this justifiable by Law.

IN LONDON, by the Law, no Man may build, or make a Reredorfe for the Fire of Charcoals within any House, but he shall be imprisoned and fined; and also the Reredorfe to be defaced.

IN LONDON, Tallow-Chandlers may not melt their Tallow in their own dwelling Houses, for annoying of their Neighbours.

IN LONDON, Flaxwives, for fear of Fire; Coriers for the Stynche; Inholders, cum suis finis, [i. e. with their Dungen] are inhibited. And this is by the Common Law, and not by any private Custom.

Assemblies of Markets, of Faires, of Courts, unlawfully usurped, are punishable, except they have the King's Charters for the same.

A fortiori, 'tmust needs be, that to erect new Buildings, and to make new Streets with Housing, may not be suffered without Licence of the Queen. And especially where the same doth tend to the Overthrow of the City of “ LONDON, being the chief Chamber of the Imperial Crown.

LONDON,

“ St. Myghels-lane, in Lyme-street, was stopt and mured up. And the Inhabitants there dwelling, were driven to seek Houses elsewhere : For, Cause, Felons and Harlots were there received in the Night Season.

“ So was the Lane from Bevys Marks unto Aldgate, between Christ's-church and the Walls of LONDON, shut up for the same Cause ; and so have been divers other Lanes within LONDON ; and all by the King's Commandment.

“ What can be a freer Thing than the Body of a Freeman ? And yet by the Law, if he be a Lazar, by the Queen's Writ de Leproso removendo, he shall be removed from his Dwelling-house, unto a Lazar-house, out of the City.

“ By the Laws of Corone inter Capitula Escatrie, if a Man do build a Castle or a House of Stone, or of any other Thing, and do embattel the same, it shall be enquired of by the Escheator, and after abated ; although the Builder be Tenant in Fee-simple of the same.

“ In the 20th of King Henry VIII. Bishop Trecy [Vezy] of Exeter, purchased a great Chace and a Lordship in Warwyckshire ; and there built a Town, and did People the same ; but this was done by Licence.

“ For the Preservation of the King, his Corone and Realm, the King may, by the Common Law, make Castles and Bulwarks upon any Man's Ground, for the Defence of the Realm. Even so may the King deface any Buildings, that may be for his safety : As it was done, when the New Forest was first made.

“ The Commissions for suppressing of Hedges, Ditches, and other such Inclosures, to the Hindrance of Artillery, are granted by the King, and yet are the Owners of the Lands, Tenants in Fee-Simple.

“ By the Laws of the City, if any Man build within 16 Feet of the Walls, the Building shall be pulled down, &c.

THIS Discourse breaks off thus abruptly.

BUT yet, after all this, it was found that the Law was too short to pull down Houses that were already built ; and all they could do was to inflict Punishment upon such as had built contrary to the Queen's Proclamation ; and now was another Stop put to the new Buildings, where-soever they were in hand with, and among the rest a Building of 110 Feet that began upon Wapping-Wall, by one William Page.

BUT such flocking there was, notwithstanding, to the City continually, and such Numbers of People (and they for the most Part idle, vagrant Persons) harbouring themselves in it, filling the Houses with Inmates, that the Queen's Successor, King James I. in the first Year of his Reign, set forth his Proclamation against Inmates, and Multitudes of Dwellers in strait Rooms and Places in and about the City of LONDON ; and for the razing and pulling down of certain new erected Buildings ; which Proclamation (occasioned by the Plague that was this Year in the City) followeth :

WHEREAS it falleth out by woful Experience, that the great Confluence and Access of excessive Numbers of idle, indigent, dissolute and dangerous Persons, and the pestering of many of them in the small and strait Rooms and Habitations in the City of LONDON, and in and about the Suburbs of the same, have been one the chiefest Occasions of the great Plague and Mortality, which hath not only most extremely abounded in and about the said City and Suburbs thereof, and especially in such strait Rooms and Places, and among Persons of such Quality thence hath most dangerously overspread and infected very many principal and other Parts of this Realm, (which Almighty God cease at his good Pleasure) his Majesty tending the Safety of his loving Subjects, and minding as much as in himself lyeth, to avoid the Continuance, or renewing of such Mortality, doth by the Advice of his Privy Council, not only straitly require and command, that his Majesty's good and profitable Orders and Directions already published for the staying, if God so please, of the same Infection, be carefully, speedily and duly executed ; but also doth straitly prohibit and forbid, that no new Tenants or Inmates or other Persons, be admitted to inhabit or reside in any such House or Place in the said City, Suburb ; or within four Miles of the same, who have been so infected during the Continuance of this Plague or Mortality in or about the said City : Nor after, until such Time as it shall be thought safe and expedient by the principal Officers there for the Time being, &c.

And the Aldermen and their Deputies, and every Justice of the Peace, to take special Care, that none of the foresaid Rooms, Houses or Places be hereafter pestered with Multitude of Dwellers, or with any Inmates. And that such of the said Rooms, Houses or Places, or by any Proclamation heretofore published are ordered to be razed or pulled down, shall forthwith, the same being now void, or as the same shall hereafter become void, and razed and pulled down accordingly ; and being once pulled down, that they suffer not any of the same to be newly erected, &c. Given at his Majesty's Manour of Woodstock, the sixteenth Day of September, in the first Year of our Reign.

THESE Buildings in the Suburbs of later Times, were taken Notice of in a Parliament, Anno 1656, and an Act was then made for the preventing the Multiplicity of Buildings in and about the Suburbs and within 10 Miles thereof. The Preamble sets forth how those new Buildings, Outhouses and Cottages were found to be mischievous and inconvenient, and a great Annoyance and Nuisance to the Commonwealth ; and that divers Prohibitions heretofore had been made to the contrary ; and yet the growing Evil was multiplied and encreased. So that there was a Necessity to take some further speedy Course for the Redress. That by the Law the said Houses and Nuisances ought to be abated, and the Builders, Occupiers and Tenants fined, which if executed, might be the undoing of many Men. The Act now ran, that for every Dwellinghouse, Outhouse, or any other Building erected within the Suburbs, or any other Place within 10 Miles of the Walls of the City, since the 25th of March, 1620, and not having four Acres of Land at least, according to the Statute de terris mensurandis, continued therewith used, occupied and enjoyed, there should be paid for the Use of the Commonwealth, one Year's Rent at the full and improved yearly Value, to be paid by the immediate Tenant or Tenants, or Occupier of such Houses at a rackt Rent : And after such Payment to be for ever acquitted and discharged from such Fine, Penalty or Forfeiture, as they were liable to lose, or pay for the Building. And all that should after this build any House or Cottage upon a new Foundation within the said Suburbs or within 10 Miles should forfeit the intire Sum of 100 l. And every Person that should uphold and continue such new erected House, to forfeit for the Use of the Poor of the Parish, where such Offence should be committed, the Sum of 20 l. for every Month that any such House should be upheld or continued.

BUT

BUT to proceed to a particular View of the Suburbs, with the spreading Buildings, notwithstanding the Oppositions made, as we have heard thereto.

ANOTHER Matter that required Remedy and Regulation, in these Suburbs especially, was this. It was customary for the People to carry their Filth, as Intrails of dead Beasts and other noisome Things, and to throw them into the Ditches, Waters, Fields and Highways, whereby the Air was in Danger of being corrupted; and so to create infectious Diseases in the City. This gave occasion in the Year 1590, to the reviving of an old Act of Parliament in the Reign of King Richard II. which was at large set forth in the Queen's Proclamation; which Filth was upon a Penalty to be forthwith carried away; and it was thought convenient, that the Notice of it should extend not only to the City, but to all the Cities and Boroughs in the Kingdom. It follows:

A PROCLAMATION, commanding the Execution of an Act of Parliament, provided for avoiding of dangerous Annoyances about Cities, Boroughs and Towns within the Realm.

THE Queen understanding that by a Statute made the twelfth Year of King Richard the Second, it was enacted that for so much Dung and other Filth of the Issues and Entrails, as well of Beasts killed, as of other Corruptions, that were cast and put into Ditches, Rivers, and other Waters; and also in many other Places within, about and nigh unto divers Cities, Boroughs, and Towns, and the Suburbs of them; that the Air was thereby greatly corrupted and infected; and many Maladies and other intolerable Diseases did daily happen, as well to the Inhabitants, and also Dwellers in the same Cities and Boroughs, &c. as to others, thither repairing and passing: It was accorded and asserted, that Proclamation should be made, as well in the City of LONDON, as in other Cities, Boroughs and Towns throughout the Realm of England: And that all which did cast and put in Annoyances, Dung, Issues, Entrails and other Ordure, in Ditches, Rivers, Waters, and other Places, should cause them to be removed, avoided and carried away between that and the Feast of Michaelmas next ensuing, every one upon Pain to lose and to forfeit unto the said King 20 l. and that the Maior and Bailiff of every such City, Borough, &c. should compel the same to be done upon like Pain.

And moreover, that Proclamation should be made in the City of LONDON, as in other Cities, Boroughs, Towns, &c. that none should do, to be set or thrown from thenceforth any such Annoyances, &c. And if they did, he should be called by Writ before the Lord Chancellor.

The Queen finding how necessary it should be to have the same Act duely executed within the Cities of LONDON and Westminster, and the Suburbs, and other Places near adjoining; and foreseeing what Benefit may grow by the due Execution thereof in the Places aforesaid, as well to the Inhabitants, as also to all Noblemen, Gentlemen and others, who for sundry Respects have occasion to remain, or to repair unto the same Cities; and for the avoiding of such dangerous Infection, as otherwise by Means of these Annoyances, must grow within the Cities and the Suburbs; doth will the same Act to be proclaimed within the Cities of LONDON and Westminster, and the Counties thereunto adjoining, &c. And charged all and every Person to abstain and forbear to cast or put forth any Entrails of Beasts, or any other filthy and noisome Thing whatsoever, into any Ditch, River or Water, or into any Field or Highway, in or near unto the City of LONDON and Westminster, and that all such noisome, corrupt, infectious, or filthy Substance, as hath heretofore been thrown, or cast forth into any Place or Places, in or near the said Cities by any Person or Persons whatsoever; whereby the Air is or may be corrupted, shall, before the 25th of August next be removed and carried away, upon Pain of Punishment and Penalty contained in the said Statute, &c.

Given at our Manour of Greenwich the sixth of June, in the thirty second Year of our Reign.

THE second Year of Henry III. the Forest of Middlesex, and the Warren of Staines were disafforested: Since which Time, the Suburbs about LONDON have been also mightily increased with Buildings; for first, to begin in the Lane by the Tower of LONDON, is the Hospital of St. Katharine, founded by Matilde, the Queen, Wife to King Stephen, as is aforesaid in Portoken Ward.

The PARISH of St. JOHN at WAPPING.

FROM this Precinct of St. Katharine at Wapping in the Wose and Wapping itself, the usual Place of Execution for hanging of Pirates and Sea-Rovers, at the low Water Mark, there to remain till three Tides had overflowed them, was not one House, Stow says, within 40 Years of the Time of his writing his Survey of LONDON; but the Gallows being afterwards taken away, it became a continued Street, or rather a filthy freight Passage, with Lanes and Alleys of small Tenements or Cottages, inhabited by Sailors and Victuallers, along by the River Thames, almost to Ratcliff, a good Mile from the Tower.

THE Church here was at first a Chapel under St. Mary Matfelon, alias Whitechapel; the Building was procured by the special Care of Mr. Rowland Coitmore, Mr. Robert Bourn, Mr. Wilmoot, and other Inhabitants of this Hamlet, several Citizens of LONDON being Benefactors thereto, and Mr. Richard Sedwick, first Minister thereof, it having been consecrated by the Bishop of LONDON, July 7, 1617.

BUT this Precinct being large (for 'tis accounted one half of the Parish of St. Mary) an Act of Parliament passed, Anno 5 & 6 Guliel. & Mariae, separating it from the said Parish, ordaining it a Parish of itself, and constituting this a Parochial Church, by the Name of St. John at Wapping.

It is of the Tuscan and modern Gothick Orders; the Walls are Brick, the Roof covered with Tile, and the Chancel is two Steps higher than the Body of the Church.

It is well pewed with Oak, and has a handsome Pulpit with Columns and Entablament, carved on the Pannels, and a Glory is painted on the inside of the Sound-Board.

On the South Side is a pretty Gallery of the Tuscan Order, with these Words subscribed:

" This Gallery was built with Part of the " Benevolence that was given for the Use of " this Chapel, by the Mariners that went to the " East-Indies, Anno 1616, under the Command
" of Captain Martin Ring, in the Royal James,
" procured by the Care of Mr. Rowland Coitmore,
" then Master of the said Ship, and who was War" den of this Chapel, Anno 1622.

Also

Also here are these Words :

Know ye that the Unrighteous shall not inherit the Kingdom of God.

AND many other Sentences of Holy Scripture.

THE Altar-Piece is of Oak, neat and spacious ; the lower Part consists of three Pilasters of the Tuscan, and above these two of the Corinthian Order, with their Entablature ; over which is the King's Arms under a Pediment : The superior Intercolumns are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, between Moses and Aaron finely painted in their proper Habits, which are placed between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done in black Letters on Gold ; the Whole having curious Enrichments of a Cherub, Cartouches, Festoons, Shields, Lamps, &c. well carved, inclosed with Rail and Banister ; the Square within, which is paved with black and white Marble.

THE Chancel is wainscotted, with good Bolection Work six Feet high, and the Front directly West from the Altar.

THE Dimensions are, Length 74 Feet, Breadth 57, Altitude 24.

BENEFACTORS are as follow :

On the Front of the said Gallery :

The pious and charitable Mrs. Godfrey gave to the Poor, in the dear Winter, 50 l.

Also two Gifts to the Sufferers by Fire, in 1696 and 1703, 39 l. 4 s.

AND besides what is foregoing, this is done on the East End of the North Isle.

THIS Hamlet being one third of the Parish of Whitechapel, and a Hamlet of itself, providing for its own Poor, and chusing its own Officers, are to have for the Use of the Poor of this Hamlet one Third of all Gifts and Legacies that are given to the Parish of Whitechapel, and one Third of the Rents of certain Houses belonging to the said Parish ; and also one Third Part of the 4 s. per Week, the Gift of Mr. Buck, and are to have Two-Pence of every Shilling of the Money given at the Communion at Whitechapel Church.

Wapping Church-yard.

Here lies the Body of Robert Kingston, Turner, late of this Parish, who died the 29th of August 1679. Aged 45 Years.

Draw near, and see this Heap of Dust,
Which once was active, wise and just;
A Man whose Labours God did bless,
And crowned them with fair Success:
But Care or Prudence cannot save,
Nor Wealth defend us from the Grave.
Prepare to follow, all to Death must bow,
He fell in his full Strength; and so may'st thou.

Dorothy Edmunds, Relict of Joshua Waters. Richard Patridge, Mariner. And John Edmunds, Gent. her three Husbands, 1696. Margaret Ford, 1667. Elizabeth, Daughter of Captain Arthur Hare, 1679.

THERE is a Stone placed in the Wall of this Church-yard, on which is inscribed, Within this Table is contained the Dimensions of Esquire Peachies Ground, taken into the Chapel-yard, at half an Inch to a Foot, An. Dom. 1681.

Then the Buttings and Boundings are set down very exactly.

The BENEFACTORS to this Chapel, and to the Poor of this Hamlet, are these that follow:

1617. Thomas Whitnel, Esq; gave 12 l. 10 s. per Annum for ever, towards maintaining of a Lecture in this Chapel, to be preached upon one of the Week Days, (the Lord's Day excepted). Which Gift was confirmed by a private Act of Parliament, in the Reign of King James I. Which Lecture began the second of April 1617, and the Gift paid by the Trustees of the said Whitnel.

Mr. Thomas Nevet; Citizen and Draper of LONDON, gave Ten Shillings for a Sermon to be preached on Good Friday in the Forenoon, yearly.

He also gave to forty poor Persons of this Hamlet Twenty Shillings per Annum to be distributed by the Minister and Chapel-wardens for the Time being; by giving them Six-pence a Piece. Which Gift is yearly paid by the Girdlers Company, to continue near M Years.

1635. Mr. Thomas Clave, Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, 1635, gave fifty Pounds to this Hamlet: Which was laid out in building the two Nothermost Houses in Cock-alley. Twelve Pence a Week of the Rent whereof being given to the Poor of this Hamlet every Lord's Day. The Remainder of this Rent of the said Houses to be towards the Repair of this Chapel.

1636. Mrs. Edith Capps, late of this Hamlet, Widow, An. Dom. 1636, gave the Reversion of her Dwelling-House to the Poor: Which was sold for forty Pounds. And the Money was laid out in building two other Houses in Cock-alley. Twelve Pence a Week of the Rent whereof is likewise given to the said Poor every Lord's Day. The Remainder of the said Rent is to go towards the Repair of this Chapel.

Sir John Fenner, late of the Inner Temple; LONDON, Knt. deceased An. Dom. 1633, gave to the Parish of Whitechapel, six Pounds a Year for ever, to buy twenty Bibles, to be yearly given to twenty young People who should have most Need, and most likely to make the best Use thereof.

He also gave five Pounds per Annum for ever, to be equally distributed in Money, to the poorest of the said Parish People, on the four usual Feasts of the Year.

He also gave five Pounds per Ann. for ever, for a Stock for Coals for the said Poor.

The third Part of which Gifts belong to the Poor of this Hamlet.

David Davison, late of this Hamlet, Esq; by his Will, gave to the Poor of this Hamlet, ten Pounds for ever.

Capt. Brian Harrison, late of this Hamlet, deceased, gave fifty Shillings per Ann. for ever, out of the Rent of a House formerly called, The Pewter Platter in Gracechurch-street, LONDON, to be given in Bread to the Poor, which began the 25th of December 1669.

Capt. William Hawas, late of this Hamlet, deceased, by his Will dated the 7th of January 1624, gave two Shillings per Week for ever, to be given in Bread to the Poor. Which two Shillings per Week is to be paid the Chapel-warden of this Hamlet for the Time being, for the Purpose aforesaid, by equal Portions, at Lady-day and Michaelmas.

Sir Samuel Starling, Knt. sometime Alderman of the City, by his last Will and Testament, dated the 7th of August 1673, gave to the Chapel-wardens of this Hamlet, for the Use of the Poor thereof, five Pounds, to be paid yearly on the 25th of December, by the Brewers Company, London, to continue until Lady-day MDCLXXXV.

Capt. John Whitty, born in this Hamlet, by his last Will dated the 5th of February, 1671, gave to the Poor thereof fifty Pounds, to be given twelve Pence per Week in Bread for ever. And some Time after coming from the East Indies, in the Ship Expectation, whereof he was Commander, at St. Helena, where he died, desired that his Wife Hannah, (afterwards Wife of Capt George Wood,) should double the said Legacy, if she thought good. Which she hath since done. Which 100 l. was laid out in purchasing the New Ground on the East Side of the Chapel, by the Trustees of the said Chapel. The Interest of which Money is given away weekly in Bread, as the Will directs.

William Wood, Esq; by his last Will, bearing Date 22 Sept. 1676, gave to the Poor of this Hamlet, one hundred Pounds. Which was laid out by the Trustees of the said Hamlet, towards the Building of three new Houses on the West Side of Cock-alley. The Interest of which Money is paid yearly to the Chapel-wardens, by the Trustees aforesaid, for the Use of the Poor, as the Will directs.

Mr. Nicholas Bradley, of this Hamlet, Anchor-smith, by his last Will bearing Date the 13th of April 1681, gave to the Poor the Sum of thirty Pounds.

The Right Hon. Henry Savyl, Esq; one of the Commissioners of the Admiralty, and Vice-chamberlain of the King's Household, by the Hand of Sir Richard Haddock, Knt. gave the Sum of fifty Pounds to be distributed by him and the Chapel-wardens, to the Poor of this Hamlet, for buying of Coals, and for Relief of the said Poor the hard Season that happened in the Months of December, January and February, 1683, which was distributed accordingly.

Mr. Nicholas Reymer of this Hamlet, Mariner, by his last Will and Testament, dated the 7th of December, 1689, gave to the Poor 30 l.

Capt.

1690. Capt. William Covel, by his last Testament dated Anno 1690, gave to this Place fifty Pounds to be laid out in some Purchase for buying Bread to be annually given to the Poor by Thirds, on three particular Days of the Year, viz. the 20th of January, the 18th of March, and the 8th of June, to continue for ever.
1695. Mrs. Godfrey, a pious and charitable Gentlewoman, gave to the Poor of this Parish in the dear Winter 50 l.
1696. Also she sent two large Gifts to the Poor Sufferers by Fire in Wapping, in the Years 1696, and 1703.
1703. Dudley Lewis, a Mariner, a Swede by Birth, by his nuncupative Will, Anno 1703, (being cast away in that great Storm in November) gave all his Money and Wages, which amounted to 39 l. 4 s. to the Poor of this Parish; which was accordingly distributed amongst them.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Principal of Brazen-Nose-College, Value 130 l. per Ann. besides Fees, not rated in the King's Books.

Number of Houses are about 1600.

THE Rev. Mr. Russel, not long since Rector of this Parish, built the Parsonage-House from the Ground, standing towards the Street; near the Church, which cost about 450 l.

THERE is a free Charity School in Cock-alley, East of this Church, for poor Children of the Parish, to be educated there in Reading, Writing, and Cyphering, and Christian Manners: Which Building, by Calculation, cost about 180 l. Mr. Russel, the said Rector, very commendably undertook it, and went forward with it; depending upon the Charity of good People. He began on Lady Day, 1704, and gave 50 l. towards it. The School Room is in the middle Floor; the Ground Floor, and the Buildings over the School to be for Conveniences for the Teacher himself and his Family, who hath allowed him 30 l. per Annum. He hath the Care of 40 Boys, maintained by a Charitable Society, consisting of 30 Persons, Inhabitants of this Parish; who by their own Contributions, and what they procure, partly by Collections in the Parish, once a Year, and partly at their Monthly Sermons every third Sunday at Five a Clock in the Afternoon, do maintain not only the said Number of Boys at School, and cloath them also, but had in the Year 1708, taken into their Charity 25 Girls, to be cloathed and taught by a sober School-mistress: The Money for whose Maintainance, both Mistress and Girls, they hoped to raise chiefly from the well disposed Gentlewomen of the Parish.

THIS Charitable Society began about 40 Years ago; the Members then agreeing among themselves to set up a Monthly Sermon, for Preparation to the Sacrament, and for a Collection to be made at the Church Door, and the Money to be distributed to poor House-keepers, or others, not maintained by Pension from the Parish. Afterwards they converted this Money for the keeping poor Parishioners Children at School. Which they continue commendably to this Day.

Six poor Children of this Parish are educated at the Free-school erected in the Parish of Albanelows Barkin. This Benefit they receive, pursuant to the Will of Alderman Hickson, Brewer, and Citizen of LONDON, bearing Date the 16th of February, 1686.

Wapping is, to this Day, chiefly inhabited by Seafaring Men, and Tradesmen dealing in Commodities for the Supply of Shipping, and Shipmen. It stands exceeding thick with Buildings, and is very Populous; having been very much improved by human Industry: For this Place, and the Parts about it, were formerly one great Wash, covered with the Waters of the Thames. Afterwards it was by Pains and Art gained from the River, and made a Marsh, or Meadow Ground, commonly called Wapping Mershes, and was defended fended from the Irruption of the Thames by Walls; which were very chargeable in the continual Maintaining of the same. And between the Years 1566 and 1570, the Force of the Water was such, that it broke the Wall in sundry Places, and overflowed the whole Marshes. About the Year 1580, or thereabouts, the most Part of these Marshes came to the Queen, that then reigned in Extent, till a great Sum of Money should be paid: And she rented out the same.

THE Rents here being somewhat uncertain, by the Breaches of the River into the Grounds about 1571, when the Water had again broke in, a View was made by the Commissioners of Sewers; who thought it necessary, that the Walls should be built upon by any who would: Whereupon many took Land upon the Walls to build. And among the rest one William Page; who took a Lease of 110 Feet of the Wall, and laid the Foundation of his Building, and bestowed a great Sum of Money in making the Wall very strong; and in Building to the strong Defence of the said Marshes, and Commodity and Ease of the Repairs and Maintainers of the said Wall. But in the Year 1583. the Queen issuing out a Proclamation for stopping all New Buildings, this Building was hindered for a Time; and Mr. Page was fain to make an humble Petition, and set forth his Case to the Lord Treasurer; and praying his Allowance to go on with his Building, shewed how it would be a Benefit to her Majesty, in Continuance of her Rent; and that it was not hurtful to any; and his Building began before the Proclamation; but what Success Page's Petition had, is unknown; but it appears, it afterwards went forward, since all the Wall is now thick built upon.

Friday the 24th of July, 1629. King Charles having hunted a Stag or Hart from Wansted in Essex, killed him in Nightingale-lane, in the Hamlet of Wapping, in a Garden belonging to one ——— who had some Damage among his Herbs, by reason the Multitude of People there assembled suddenly.

In this Hamlet of Wapping, was built, Anno 1626. a large House of Timber by Mr. William Turner, Gentleman, Mr. George Low, Gentleman, and Thomas Jones, Gentleman, and others for the making of Allum; which grew to such an Inconvenience, through the Annoyance that was with Boiling of Urine, and other Materials, by reason of the ill Savour of it; and the Excrement of it, being found to be an Annoyance to the River of Thames, that upon the Complaint of the Inhabitants to the King and Council, it was proceeded withal, as appeareth:

THE sixteenth of July, 1627. being Monday, and the Tide being near Low-water, about eight of the Clock in the Evening of the same Day, there was a Lighter of Allum-Grease, lying in the Hermitage-dock, which was taken out of a Ship lying athwart the Mouth of the Dock; and upon the emptying of the Water, out of the Lighter, which issued from the Grease, there did arise a most noisome stinking Scum of a frothy Substance, and did spread all about the Mouth of the Dock, and run down into the Thames; and there was a Vessel caused to be filled with it, and it did so stink, that we were not able to endure the Scent of it; insomuch that it endangered all the Wells and Ponds thereabouts: This was seen and done in the Presence of these under written:

THE Inhabitants also put up this Petition to the Justices against this Allum-House, as follows:

To the Right Worshipful his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Middlesex, and Commissioners for Annoyances, and to all other his Majesty's Officers, whom in this Case it shall concern,

WE his Majesty's loving Subjects inhabiting within the Parish of Whitechapel, in the County of Middlesex, and St. Botolph's without Aldgate, LONDON, and in the Hamlets of Stepney, Wapping, East-smithfield, and St. Katharine's near the Tower of LONDON, finding and being continually choaked and poisoned up with the daily and continual Stink, and most noisome and infectious Smell that is lately begun amongst us, by a Workhouse for making of Allum (as is reported) by Mr. William Turner, Mr. George Lowe, and Mr. Thomas Jones, and others, erected at the West End of Wapping, adjoining upon the River of Thames, and near unto the Tower of LONDON, and to his Majesty's Store-house on Tower-hill, where the Provision for his Highness's Shipping is daily provided; do humbly shew, That we find that the noisome Smell that comes of the making of the said Allum (which we suppose to be Urine, and such other infectious Materials, being long kept, and then boiled for the Use aforesaid) doth breed and make such an infectious and most noisome Smell amongst us, that we are not able to live in our Houses, nor to keep our Families at work about us, the detestable Stink thereof is so infectious and intolerable now this Winter Time (much more will it be in the Heat of Summer:) So that if speedy Redress thereof be not had, we shall not be able to continue our Habitations there, wherein we have long Time lived. And it is generally thought it will be a Decay and dangerous Infection to all Inhabitants both on this Side and the other Side the Water, within two Miles Compass of the Place it stands; for the Stink thereof (as the Wind stands) is further smelled, both by Land and Water, and daily Complaint made thereof. And now there is begun but two or three Furnaces, but shortly there will be many more Furnaces made there, to the further great Danger and Annoyance of his Majesty's Subjects, which we humbly refer to your Worship's grave Consideration, humbly desiring your speedy Aid and Reformation herein, otherwise we shall be compelled to leave our Houses and Dwellings to our utter Undoings; for the noisome Smell is so dangerous, that no Man will dwell thereabouts, if he might have his House Rent-free: And we, as bound shall daily pray for your Worships.

To the King's most excellent Majesty,

The humble Petition of your Majesty's Liege People and Subjects, being in Number many Thousands, inhabiting within one Mile Compass of your Majesty's Tower of LONDON, within Middlesex and Surrey, and the Borough of Southwark,

Most humbly sheweth,

THAT whereas of late divers Rooms have been newly erected in the Parish of St. Mary Matfellow, commonly called Whitechapel, in the County of Middlesex, by William Turner, Gentleman, George Low, Gentleman, and Thomas Jones, Gentleman, and others, near unto many great Brewhouses, which brew Beer for the Use and Service of your Majesty's Navy, and for divers within LONDON and Middlesex; which said Rooms have been ever since their first Erection employed for Boiling of Urine for making of Allum, which hath and doth daily cast so noisome a Savour and evil Air to all the Parts thereabouts, and to all Passengers that Way, or by the River Thames, that they are in no Sort able to endure the same, nor their Dwelling Houses by Reason thereof, and the same has already cast many of them into Extremity of great Sicknes and Diseases, by which evil and unwholesome Savour of late many Fishes in the Thames there near unto, have been found ready to die, and dead, supposed to be poisoned by some ill Substance issuing unto the River Thames; and all the Inhabitants thereabouts are much annoyed, and all the Pasture Ground lying near thereabouts is tainted and spoiled in such Manner that Cattle do refuse to feed on the same; and they farther humbly shew, that they have preferred their Grievances unto your Majesty's Commissioners of Annoyances, and having caused the same to be presented unto them by Indictment by several Jurors, sworn upon Oath before your Majesty's Justices of the Peace in their general Sessions for Middlesex, upon due Proof, and the Testimony of Witnesses there also sworn and examined, upon which Evidences the said Jurors have given up several Verdicts, and presented upon their Oaths the same Annoyance to be exceeding great and intolerable to all Inhabitants dwelling thereabouts, and to call other Passengers by the same, or upon the River Thames: Yet your Petitioners having no Redress thereby, are compelled by extreme Necessity to complain unto your Majesty, and with much Grief, and with all Humility beseech your Majesty to take to Consideration the speedy Redress in that Behalf, the same Annoyance being so great and unfavoury, that otherwise your poor Subjects, being many Thousands in Number, shall be compelled to forsake their Houses, and abandon their Dwellings, to the Loss of their Trades and Lives, and the utter undoing of them and their Families.

: Vol. II.

Wherefore they most humbly beseech you to commit the Examination thereof to the Right Honourable Thomas Earl of Cleveland, Sir Allen Apsey, Knt. Lieutenant of the Tower, Sir Henry Spiller, Knt. Thomas Sanderson and George Long, Esqs; or any three or two of them, or any others, being Justices and Commissioners of Annoyances within the said County of Middlesex, who, by your Majesty's gracious Reference being thereunto required, may examine and hear the Allegations on all Parts; and that upon the Opinions therein, your Majesty will be pleased to vouchsafe your poor Subjects such Relief as the Case requireth:

And the Petitioners, according to their bounden Duties and Legiance shall daily pray for your Majesty's long and prosperous Reign over us.

At Whitehall, the 25th of July, 1627.

WHEREAS upon a Complaint formerly made by divers Aldermen of the City of LONDON, on the Behalf of the Inhabitants of the Parishes of St. Botolph's Aldgate, and divers other Parishes thereabouts, concerning a great Annoyance unto the said Inhabitants, caused by certain Allum Works erected thereabouts by his Majesty's Farmers of the said Works: It was, by an Order of the twentieth of this present Month, ordered, that the President of the College of Physicians, accompanied with six other Doctors of Physick of that Society, as likewise that some of the Aldermen should, upon View of the said Works, and such Observations by them made as fall within their Experience, return Certificate to the Board their Opinions touching the same: Forasmuch as those whose Names are here under-written, did this Day accordingly make their Certificate in Writing to the Board as follows: In hæc verba; "May it please your Lordships, according to an Order of this Honourable Board, of the 20th of July last: We have viewed and observed the Allum Works at St. Katharine's, and considered the Materials therein used and employed: And thereupon do humbly certify unto your Lordships, and are of Opinion, that the Works standing in that Place must necessarily breed great Annoyances, both to the near Inhabitants, and by the spreading Vapours from thence issuing to many Places more remote, and to all such Passengers as, either by Land or by Water, have Occasion to frequent those Parts, not only by their continual noisome Savours to make all their Inhabitants grievous and unpleasant, but also by their putrid Quality to endanger their Healths: And so we humbly rest at your

" Lordships Commands, July the 24th Anno 1627, signed, John Argent, Pres. John Gifford, William Harvey, William Clement, Robert Flud, Samuel Baskernite, Ottneil Meverel, and by Hugh Hamersley." Their Lordships upon Consideration had thereof, did resolve that the said Allum Works in and about the City, were fit to be suppressed. Nevertheless, for that a Petition was now presented to the Board by the Farmers of the said Allum Works, shewing that it was not possible for them to erect and finish any new Works in the County, before our Lady-Day next, that if they should be restrained from working here in the mean Time, the Kingdom would be unserved of Allum, of which there is great Use, and likewise disabled to pay his Majesty's Rent: And therefore besought the Board that they might have Leave to proceed in their making of Allum here until our Lady-Day next, as aforesaid. It was thereupon thought fit and ordered, that they should be at Liberty to make Allum in those Places where their Works are already erected, until our Lady-Day next only and no longer; and that in the mean Time they presume not to erect any other Works in any Places in or about this City. Provided nevertheless, that they suffer not the Dregs and Excrements proceeding from the boiling and making of the said Allum to be cast, or fall into any Places leading into the River of Thames, but that they cause the same from Time to Time to be either buried in the Night Time in the Grounds where their Works now are, or otherwise to be carried and buried in the Night Time in some other convenient Place, where the same may breed no Infection or Annoyance to any of his Majesty's Subjects.

At Whitehall, the 12th September, Anno 1627.

Master Chancellor of the Exchequer.
Chancellor of the Dutchy.

WHEREAS an humble Petition was this Day exhibited to the Board in the Name of the Inhabitants of the Parishes of St. Botolph's near Aldgate, St. Catharine's, Whitechapel, Stepney, Rotherhith, St. Olave's, and others adjacent and near his Majesty's Tower of LONDON: Shewing, That whereas it had pleased the Board, on the 27th of July last, after divers Hearings and Reports made by six Doctors of the College of Physicians of LONDON, to order that the Farmers of his Majesty's Allum-works, who had transported themselves out of the Northern Parts of the Kingdom near unto his Majesty's Royal Chamber and City of LONDON, should not presume to erect any Work in or about, nor suffer the Dregs or Excrement of the Boiling of Allum to be cast or fall into the River of Thames, but bury the same in the Night-time in some convenient Place where it might not breed any Infection or Annoyance; yet nevertheless that sithence the making of the said Order, and especially on the 16th of August last, the said Farmers, their Deputies or Assigns, have, in Contempt of the Order, poured or caused the said Filth, Dregs or Excrements to fall into the Ponds or Ditches leading to the Thames; whereby some of the Petitioners have found their Wells of Water appointed for Brewing so tainted with the Taste and Savour of Allum Excrement, as that within a very short Space the Fish have been poisoned, and the Water altogether unwholsome, for brewing or any other Use, as by Certificate under divers of the said Petitioners Hands, the chief Officers and Inhabitants of the Tower, appeared; and therefore humbly prayed Redress of the growing Mischief and dangerous Contagion proceeding from the said Allum-works, seconded with a presumptuous Contempt of the said Order of the Board: To the End, that by a sudden Reformation the Petitioners may enjoy the Benefit of the Air, and not be suffocated with the horrid and putrid Savours occasioned by the said Allum-works. The Board taking this Complaint into their due and serious Consideration, and finding that the former Order of the Board was not observed, as is before-mentioned, and that the Annoyance caused hereby, extendeth it self to the extreme Parts of the City, and even so far as his Majesty's Court, when the Wind sitteth that Way (which cannot but be of dangerous Consequence by corrupting both the Air and the Water, whereof Beer is made for his Majesty's Service and otherwise) thought fit and ordered that the said Allum-works should be presently suppressed from working, and utterly removed by the Farmers or others whom it may concern, within a convenient Time, notwithstanding the former Order, (which on their Parts have not been observed) and that some one of the Messengers of his Majesty's Chamber shall be sent with a Transcript of this their Lordships Order, to the Farmers or Deputies of the said Work, and see the same duly executed; and of the Performance thereof to give Account to their Lordships within ten or twelve Days after the Date hereof. And of this their Lordships Order, as well the said Farmers and the Messenger, as others whom it may concern, are to take Notice, and to regulate themselves accordingly, as they will answer the contrary.

To the Right Hon. the Lords and others of his Majesty's most Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL.

The humble PETITION of the Inhabitants of St. Botolph's Aldgate, St. Catharine's, Whitechapel, Stepney, Rotherhith, St. Olave's, and others, adjacent and near his Majesty's Tower of LONDON.

WHEREAS it pleased this honourable Board, the 27th of July last, after divers Hearings, and a Report made by six Doctors, being of the College of Physicians, LONDON, to order that the Farmers of his Majesty's Allum-works (who had transplanted themselves out of the North Parts near unto his Majesty's Royal Chamber and City of LONDON) should not presume to erect any Works in or about the same, nor suffer the Dregs or Excrement proceeding of the Boiling of Allum to be cast or fall into the River of Thames, but to bury the same in the Night-time, where it might not breed any Infection or Annoyance.

But so it is, Right Honourable, that divers Times, sithence the Order of this Honourable Board, but especially upon the 16th of this Instant August, the said Farmers, their Deputy or Assigns, have, in Contempt of the said Order, poured or caused the said Filth, Dregs or Excrement to fall into the Ponds or Ditches leading to the Thames; whereby some of your Petitioners have found their Wells of Water appointed for Brewing so tainted and grownered with the Taste and Savour of Allum Excrement, as that within three Hours after about forty Fishes were apparently found poisoned, as by the annexed Certificate appeareth.

For Redress of which growing Mischief and dangerous Contagion, seconded with a presumptuous Contempt of your honourable Order, as formerly formerly, the Petitioners fly to this honourable Board, beseeching a sodain Reformation: To the End that your Petitioners may enjoy the Benefit of the Air, and not be suffocated with the horrid and putrid Savours, proceeding from the said Allum-works.

And the Petitioners shall be (as ever) bound to pray for your Honours. 1627.

Whis Majesty's Subjects whose Names are subscribed, do for a Truth certify and will be ready to depose, that sithence the 25th Day of July last, the Allum-farmers or their Assigns, have erected new Erections at or near Wapping, where the Allum-works are: And that upon the 16th Day of this Instant Month of August, by Means of the Excrement or Filth falling or being cast and washed out of the said Allum-works, by the flowing of the River Thames, was carried into Wells belonging to Brewers thereabouts; and where divers poor People for their Means, do resort, and from thence do carry Water to divers Houses, and to dress their Meat and Diet for their Families; as by Example, at that Time into one Well or Pond of one Joseph Jaques, a Brewer near thereunto, where Eeles, and other Fishes, to the Number of forty and upwards, which, within three Hours after, therein were suffocated and poisoned, in the Presence of these Certificates.

Witness our Hands heretunto put the Day of August, 1627.

At Whitehall the 12th of December, An. 1627.

WHEREAS by an Order of this Board, made in July last, for Reasons in the said Order mentioned, the Allum-works were suffered to be in those Places near LONDON, where they were then erected, until our Lady-day next only and no longer; and afterwards the 12th of September last, for Contempts, in not pursuing the said Order of the 25th of July, and for Prevention of growing Mischief that might come by Sufferance of the said Allum-works, it was ordered that the said Allum-works should be presently suppressed, and removed; which being not as yet done, although the Farmers of the said Works have sought out other Places, whither to remove the said Works: Now the Board, upon the Petition of the Company of Dyers, being informed, that in these Times of Wars, and Danger, the Dyers and other Artificers using Allum, cannot be furnished with that Commodity from any other Persons, or Places; but only from the Farmers aforesaid, and their Magazines: And that the said Artificers for want thereof shall be forced to give over their Trades to the great Damage of the Commonwealth: And the said Farmers informing, That by Reason of some Shipwrecks, and the Danger of Passages from out of the North hither, they have failed; nor cannot bring their Allums hither to LONDON, as they were wont: In Consideration of all which, and for that their Lordships do conceive; that the said Works will be less offensive to the Inhabitants dwelling in those Parts in this Winter Season, the Board hath thought fit; and ordered, that the said Farmers, their Deputies, and Assigns, shall be permitted, until our Lady-day next, according to the Permission given by the former Order of the 25th of July, to convert the Materials now upon their Hands into Allum, at their House in St. Catherine's, erected for that Purpose, and to sell the same, for the Use of his Majesty's Subjects: And presently; upon our Lady-day next, to remove from the City of LONDON, and the Suburbs thereof. And it is ordered, that in the mean while the said Farmers, their Deputies and Assigns, or some of them, shall seek, and find out some convenient Place for their said Works; and signify unto the Board of what Place they have made Choice, to the End they may have their Lordships Allowance and Approbation for their Settlement in the same. Whereof all Persons whom it may concern, are to take Knowledge, and accordingly to govern themselves, as they and every of them will answer the contrary at their Perils. Provided always, and it is hereby willed and commanded, that all Things else required and set down to be done by the said Farmers, in either of the said Orders, before-mentioned, concerning the Excrement of the Allum, and otherwise whatsoever, be duly observed and performed by the said Farmers of the said Allum-works.

Now to proceed on the East Side, and by North of the Tower, lies East Smithfield, Hogs-street, and Tower-hill; and East from them both was the new Abbey, called, Of Grace, founded by Edward III. From whence, towards Radcliff, up East Smithfield, by Nightingale-lane, and to the Manor of Shadwell, belonging to the Dean of St. Paul's, there were raised many small Tenements towards Radcliff, in Stow's Time; and Radcliff itself, so increased in Building, that it joined to Lime-hurst, or Lime-hof, corruptly called Lime-house, which was some Time a Mile distant from Radcliff.

HERE in Ratcliff was above 100 Years ago a leaden Coffin dug up, and two or three Urns found with a Piece of Money, inscribed thus on one Side, Imp. Pupienus Maximus, P. F. August. and on the Reverse, two Hands joined and this Motto, Patres Senatus.

The PARISH of
St. GEORGE in Middlesex.

THE Church here takes its Name from the Saint to whom it is dedicated; and the Parish is dismembered from St. Dunstan at Stepney, containing the Hamlet of Wapping-Stepney.

It was founded in the Year 1715, and built and finished Anno 1729.

It is situated a little Eastward from the Middle of the East Side of Cannon-street in Ratcliff-highway, in the County of Middlesex, without the Freedom and Liberty of LONDON, and and is one of the fifty new Churches built by Virtue of the Act of the 9th of Queen Anne.

THIS Church is a magnificent Pile, which commands the Attention of all judicious Observers, especially the Chancel End thereof, which is truly magnificent. The Frontispiece to the Tower is of the Ionick Order, consisting of four Pilasters supporting their Entablature, wherein Simplicity and Grandeur are well connected together.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Principal of Brazen-Nose College in Oxford, the Value upwards of 300 l. per Ann. with Surplice Fees.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. William Symphon, and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Charles Huxley.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays, about 11 o'Clock, no Organ, one Bell.

THE Vestry is general, consisting of such as pay 2 s. per Month, or upwards to the Poor.

The PARISH-OFFICERS
are,

- 2 Church-Wardens.
- 4 Overseers.

The PEACE-OFFICERS
are,

- 1 Constable.
- 13 Headboroughs.
- 4 Scavengers.
- 2 Surveyors of the Highway.

THIS Parish is divided into the Upper and Lower Town.

STREETS, LANES, &c.

In the Upper Town.

NUMBER of Houses upwards of 2000.

HERE is a Charity-School for 50 Boys and 50 Girls, built at the Expence of Mr. Henry Raine, Brewer, who gives 40 Guineas yearly towards the Support of it, and it is believed he will endow the same with the said Sum annually: The Children are cloathed, and the Boys taught to Read, Write and cast Accompts; the Girls are taught to Read, Sew and Mark; which is done by the farther Addition of Subscriptions; and quarterly Sermons will be preached, for the further Maintenance of them by Collections at those Times.

SIR Robert Cotton, the learned Antiquarian, discovered in Ratcliff-field the Monument of a Proprator's Wife, which Bishop Stillingfleet takes Notice of from Wever's Monument's. Which Relation of that industrious Man deserves here to be transcribed at length: "Within the Parish of Stepney in Middlesex, in Ratcliff-field, where they take Ballast for Ships, about some fourteen or fifteen Years ago (that is, Anno 1614, 1615,) were found two Monuments, the one of Stone, wherein were the Bones of a Man, the other a Chest of Lead, the upper Part being garnished with Scallop Shells, and a Cro-tiiter Border. At the Head of the Coffin and the Feet, there were two Jars of three Feet Length, standing, and on the Sides a Number of Bottles of glistering red Earth, some painted; and many great Viols of Glass, some fix, some eight square, having a whitish Liquor within them; within the Chest was the Body of a Woman, as the Chirurgeons judged by the Skull. On the either Side of her were two Sceptres of Ivory, eighteen Inches long; and on her Breast a little Figure of Cupid, neatly cut in white Stone; and amongst the Bones two printed Pieces of Jett, with round Heads, in Form of Nails, three Inches long.

'It seemeth (saith Sir Robert Cotton, from whom this Relation came) these Bodies were burnt about the Year of our Lord 239, being there were found divers Coins of Papienus, Gordian, and the Emperors of that Time: And that one may conjecture by her Ornaments, that this last Body should be some Princess or Proprator's Wife, here in Britain, in the Time of the Roman Government.

AND hence the aforesaid learned Bishop concludes, that LONDON, so near adjoining to this Burying-Place, was the Metropolis of Britain, the Times that the Romans had to do here: Inasmuch as it may be presumed from the Burial of this Lady, that the Legate of the Emperor or Proprator, had his chief Residence here; and the great Business of the Province, as to Civil Matters, was brought hither to him. Here was his Prætorium, which at first signified the General's Tent; but as the Name came from the Camp to the City, so the Prætorium was the Mansion-House of the Governor.

CONCERNING

CONCERNING East-smithfield, Mention is made in Records, of Lands and Mills there, within the Parish of Whitechapel. In the 21st of Edward the Third, a Fine was levied between Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex, Querent, and Sir John de Boulteneye Chevalier, Defendant, of Lands, and certain Mills in East-smithfield, in the Parish of Whitechapel, in the Suburbs of LONDON.

HAVING said thus much for Building at Wapping, East-smithfield, Bramley, and Shadwell, all on the South Side of the High-way to Ratcliff; now one Note on the North Side also, concerning Pirates; I read, faith Stow, that in the Year 1440, in the Lent Season, certain Persons, with six Ships, brought from beyond the Seas, Fish, to victual the City of LONDON; which Fish, when they had delivered, and were returning homeward, a Number of Sea-Thieves in a Barge, in the Night came upon them, when they were asleep in their Vessels, riding at Anchor on the River Thames, and slew them, cut their Throats, cast them overboard, took their Money, and drowned their Ships, for that no Man should espy or accuse them. Two of these Thieves were after taken and hanged in Chains upon a Gallows set upon a raised Hill, for the Purpose made, in the Field beyond East-smithfield, so that they might be seen far into the River Thames.

THE first Building at Ratcliff, says Stow in his Youth, (not to be forgotten) was a fair Free-School and Alms-houses founded by Avice Gibson, Wife to Nicholas Gibson, Grocer, as before I have noted. But of late Years Shipwrights, and (for the most Part) other Marine-Men, have built many large and strong Houses for themselves, and smaller for Sailors, from thence almost to Poplar, and so to Blackwall.

THE most remarkable Places in the Parish of St. George in Middlesex, are, Half of Well-clofe-square, and one Moiety of the Danish Church therein: Prince's-square, and therein the Swedes Church; an Anabaptist Meeting, the Corner of Penitent-street, in Virginia-street, and another in Meeting-house-yard, in Broad-street, near Old Gravel-lane.

The PARISH of St. ANNE at Limehouse.

THE new Church built here takes its Name from the Saint to whom it is dedicated, in Honour of the late Queen ANNE, being one of the Fifty Churches appointed to be built by an Act of Parliament, passed in her Reign; and Limehouse is added to distinguish it from other Churches of the same Name, and likewise on Account of its Situation.

THE Foundation was laid in the Year 1712, and the Church was consecrated Anno 1730.

IT is situated at the End of Church-lane, in the Hamlet of Lime-house, in the County of Middlesex.

THIS Church, says an ingenious Architect, is a most surprizing beautiful Structure, which at a great Distance shews a solemn Solidity; yet, when nearly viewed, opposite to an Angle, is one of the most airy, light, elegant, and magnificent Buildings in this Kingdom. The Church itself consists of such simple Beauty, that there is hardly any where to be produced its Parallel; and its East or Chancel End (which is of the Dorick Order, strictly executed after the antient Manner, without any other Base to the Pilasters, than the square Basement of Building) is certainly in the most august Taste. The Tower is a most magnificent Pile, exhibiting the most solemn reverend Aspect when viewed in Front; and when at an Angle the most gay and airy. This different Appearance, upon changing the Point of View, is surprizingly delightful.

IN each of the Windows to the Tower, are placed a Pair of Composite Columns, with their Entablatures, whose Capitals consist of Acanthus Leaves, as in the Corinthian Order; but instead of having their Abacus after the Ionick Manner, (as has always been the Practice) they have Dorick Abacus's, which express the Composite Order much better than has been yet done.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Principal of Brazen-nose-college in Oxford; the Value per Ann. is about 230 l.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Leybourne, and Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Ridley.

PRAYERS are every Wednesday, Friday, and Holiday, about 11 o'Clock. No Organ, one Bell.

THE Vestry is Select, consisting of such Inhabitants as pay 2 s. per Month to the Poor.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are:

- 2 Church Wardens.
- 2 Overseers of the Poor.

The WARD-OFFICERS are:

- 1 Constable.
- 4 Headboroughs.
- 1 Scavenger.
- 1 Surveyor of the Highways.
- 2 Surveyors of the Streets.

IN Green-dragon-alley, is a Work-house for the Poor.

THIS Parish is taken out of that of St. Dunstan's Stepney, and consists of the Hamlet of Lime-house, and Part of the Hamlet of Ratcliff. Streets, Lanes, &c.

In the Hamlet of Ratcliff.

Part of Butcher-row, and therein Dolphin-yard, and Sugar-loaf-court; Part of White-horse-street, and therein Rose-yard, Rose-lane, in which is London-street; Part of Sermon-lane, Ratcliff-cross, and therein Pump-yard; Queen-street, and therein Noah's-ark-alley, Ratcliff-narrow-street, and therein Crowder's-rents, Three-fox-yard, and Brand's-court.

In the Hamlet of Lime-house.

Lime-house, Fore-street, and therein Toytes-alley, in which is Diamond-court; Green-dragon-alley, Taplet's-yard, Rickman's-rents; Lime-house-bridge, Lime-house-bridge-dock, Ship-alley, Shoulder-of-mutton-alley, Globe-alley, Sun-and-gun-yard, Phillips's-rents, Vine-street, Nightingale-lane, and therein Chivers-court, Bull-court, Connoway's-yard, Frog-island, Rope-makers-field, and therein Jenkins's-rents, Well-alley, Limbury's-rents, Church-lane, Dick's-shore, and therein Dick's-shore-alley, Collingbourn's-rents, White's-rents, Thomas-rents, Ship-alley, Lime-house-corner, Three-colt-court, and therein Gun-lane, Wood's-yard, Pump-yard, Mulberry-yard, Lime-house-causeway, and therein the Orchard, Bennet's-court, Lime-house-hole, Lime-kiln-hill, and therein Lime-house-dock.

Number of Houses are about 1000.

AT Poplar, that lieth within the Parish of Stepney, is a Chapel with an Alms-house for poor Seamen; both belonging to the old East India Company. Here is the Isle of Dogs, a fine rich Level for fattening of Cattle. Eight Oxen fed here here formerly were sold for 34 l. a Piece; and a Hog fed here, was sold for 20 l. and 6 d. Here is also a well known wet Dock, called Blackwall Dock, belonging to Sir Henry Johnson, Kt. very convenient for Building and Receiving Ships. About 20 Years ago, more or less, in breaking up an old Ship, that was returned from the East-Indies, they found a solid Piece of Oak in the Keel, pierced eight Inches deep, with a kind of Horn, that stuck fast in it. The Master of the Vessel did remember, than when they were on the main Sea, the Ship received a sudden Shock, which made it stop for the present, tho' it were in full Sail. At first, they thought they had struck on a Rock, but considering where they were, they concluded that could not be; and they found no Harm, tho' they went down and searched the Bottom of the Ship; but they observed the Sea bloody: Now the Cause appeared that it was some Sea Fish that struck the Ship, and broke his Horn in the Side of it.

IN the Year 1705, were two Whales of different Sorts brought, and cut up at Blackwall. One of them was the Parma Ceti Whale, which had a great deal of Blubber, a filthy Stuff so called, coming out of the Brain, falling from him; which, by the Direction of Dr. Meade, was cured, and made excellent Parma Ceti, to the great Benefit of the Apothecary, into whose Hand this Blubber came. The other was that kind of Whale, whence the Whalebone is made.

Now for Tower-Hill; the Plain there is likewise greatly diminished by Encroachments, for building of small Tenements; and taking in of Garden Plots, Timber-Yards, and what they list.

FROM this Tower-Hill towards Aldgate, (being a long continued Street) among other Buildings, was the Abbey of Nuns, called the Minories or Minorites; whereof we have spoken. And on the other Side of the Street lieth the Ditch, without the Wall of the City, from the Tower unto Aldgate, now all built upon.

FROM Aldgate East again, lieth a large Street, replenished with Buildings, to wit, on the North Side the Parish Church of Saint Botolph, and so other Buildings to Hog-lane, and to the Bars on both Sides.

Also, without the Bars, both the Sides of the Streets are pestered with Cottages and Alleys, even up to Whitechapel Church; and almost half a Mile beyond it, into the common Field; all which ought to lie open and free for all Men: But this common Field, being sometime the Beauty of this City, on that Part, is so incroached upon, by building of filthy Cottages, and with other Purprestors, Inclosures, and Lay-Stalls, that (notwithstanding all Proclamations, and Acts of Parliament to the contrary) in some Places; it scarce remaineth a sufficient Highway for the Meeting of Carriages, and Drovers of Cattle; much less is there any fair, pleasant, or wholesome Way, for People to walk on Foot; which is no small Blemish to so famous a City, to have so unfavoury, and unseemly an Entry or Passage thereunto.

IN the Time of Queen Elizabeth, some Part of the Way and Street hereabouts without Aldgate, particularly from the two Posts called the Bars, to a Corner House, then in the Occupation of one Thomas Sparrow, was very miry and deep. And beside this Place in the High Street, there were other Places extraordinary bad to pass, lying more towards the South, where the Queen's Carriages used to pass from the Minories, Mary Graces [that is, where now are the King's Victualling Houses for the Navy] and Ratcliff, where that Queen had Storehouses; and so to the Tower: Namely, a Way leading from the Old Cage, so called, in the Parish of St. Botolph, to the North End of Nightingale-lane, in the Parish of St. Mary Matfelon; and another Way between the said Old Cage, and a Mill, called Crasse Mill, in the said Parish of St. Mary. And as these bad Ways were very inconvenient to the Queen's Carriages, so for the Carriages of all others. The great Passages here, Course and Recourse of the Queen's Subjects, both on Horseback and on Foot, became so miry and foul, in Winter time especially, that it was very troublesome to all that had Occasion to use these Ways. Whereupon, an Act of Parliament was made in the 13th of the said Queen, that from Michaelmas, 1572; all these Places should be paved with Stone; every Man to do his Part, along by their Manors, Lands and Tenements, adjoining to the said Ways.

AND the same Act made Provision for securing the Overflowing of the Tower Ditch by great Quantities of Water that fell often upon the Ways between the said two Posts near Aldgate, called the Bars, and the Corner House occupied by Sparrow aforesaid (which seems to be there where the Lane is, now called Brick-lane) whereby the Tower Ditch might in short Time be filled up: It was ordered therefore, that the said Waters on both Sides the said Highway, should have their Fall and Course only down by the said Corner House: And from thence into a Ditch lying on the North Side of Hog-lane, and so to the Common Sewer at the East End of the said Hog-lane.

The PARISH of St. MARY Whitechapel.

THE Church here, Stow saith, was a Sort of Chapel of Ease to the Parish of Stebinhith, or Stepney, and was in his Time called St. Mary Matfelon, upon the following Occasion:

ABOUT the Year 1428, in the 6th of King Henry VI. a devout Widow of that Parish had long Time cherished and brought up, of Alms, a certain Frenchman, or Briton born, who most unkindly and cruelly in a Night murdered the said Widow sleeping in her Bed, and after fled with such Jewels and other Stuff of hers, as he might carry. But he was so freshly pursued, that (for Fear) he took the Church of St. George in Southwark, and challenged Privilege of Sanctuary there, and so abjured the King's Land. Then the Constables (having Charge of him) brought him into LONDON, intending to have conveyed him Eastward; but so soon as he was come into the Parish, where before he had committed the Murder, the Wives cast upon him so much Filth and Ordure of the Street, that (notwithstanding the best Resistance made by the Constables) they flew him out of Hand: And for this Fact it hath been said, the Parish purchased that Name of Mary Matfelon, but it is in Record called Villa beatae Mariae de Matfelon, in the 21st of King Richard II.

MORE we read, that in the Year 1336, the 10th of King Edward III. the Bishop of Alba, Cardinal, and Parson of Stebinhith, Procurator-General in England, presented a Clerk to be Parson in the Church of Blessed Mary, called Matfelon, without Aldgate of LONDON, &c.

AND therefore it is a more probable Account of the Name Matfelon, ascribed to St. Mary, the Patroness of this Church, viz. that the Word is of Hebrew or Syriac Extraction, מַטְפֶּל or מַטְפֶּלֶן, i. e. Matfel, or Matfelon; signifying as much as Quæ nuper enixa est, i. e. She that hath lately brought forth a Son: And so the Word is fitly applied to St. Mary; and it is as much as St. Mary lately delivered of her holy Child: And it is probable her Image antiently stood in that Church with a Babe in her Arms; as sometimes she was wont to be figured or depainted. Nor ought any to say, that this is a far-fetched Notion of the Word, though brought as far as from Syria, considering what great Numbers of People formerly went out of these Western Parts, and particularly out of England to the Holy Land, to visit the Holy Sepulchre, and to fight against the Infidels. And that these Pilgrims and holy Warriors brought home some Smatterings of the Language with them. And that divers Oriental Words were used in England in former Times, appears from some old Epitaphs. In St. Faith's, under St. Paul's, was this upon one John Abney, a learned Preacher belonging to the Queen, Archilevita Dei Rabi Abnus Alme Johannes, &c. where he is stiled Rabi, or Rabbi and Archilevita, Titles given to the Jewish Masters and Priests. And in the same Church, on another Monument, the Hebrew Word Adar, for the Month of March, is made use of.

X bis cum quinis in Adar bonus est sibi finis.

So that, in short, it is not unlikely (since in these Matters we can only conjecture) but that some Knight, that had dwelt in the Holy Land, was the Founder of this Church of Whitechapel, and dedicated it to St. Mary with the Babe in her Arms, which in those Eastern Countries was called Matfelon.

THIS Church was founded about 400 Years ago, and how long before is uncertain; but Anno 1336, the Minister of Stepney was Patron of this Church, as Mr. Stow observes. It was enlarged, and the South Isle added, in 1591; 3901. was also laid out in its Repair by the Parish, Anno 1633; and escaping the Calamity of Fire in 1666, it (being old) was taken down and rebuilt in the Year 1673, towards which several contributed generously, more especially William Meggs, Esq; who was the principal Benefactor thereto.

As to the Nature and Order of the Buildings; the Walls are Brick, the Quoins, the Window-Cases and other Ornaments on the Outside is Stone; the Steeple is Bolder, and some squared Stone; the Roof is supported with four Stone Columns, and eight Pilasters, of the Corinthian Order; the Roof at the four Angels being lower than the rest. The Floor is paved with Stone, and that of the Chancel one Step higher than that of the Church, and at the Altar it is two Steps higher than the rest of the Chancel: The Windows are of a Quadrangular and Circular Form.

THE Ornament on the Outside are Pediments, Cartouches, and Pine-Apples; the Roof within is adorned with Arches and Pannels of Fret-Work; and under that a Cantalivre Cornice with the Columns and Pilasters aforesaid, and Porch Windows surrounded with Fret-Work.

THERE are Galleries on the North West and South Sides of the Church, with Bolection-Work Fronts painted White, and veined; the two latter repaired, Anno 1684, at the proper Cost of the two Hamlets of this Parish. The Pews are well made of Oak, with which the Church is wainscotted seven Feet and a half high, and higher about the Altar; and there are two Door-Cases of the same Kind of Timber.

THE Altar-Piece is adorned with two Columns, their Entablature and Pediment of the Corinthian Order; the Intercolumns are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, and the Pater-Noster and Creed are black on Gold. In the Pediment is placed the King's Arms with Helmet, Crest, and Supporters; all which Altar-Piece is Timber, and has Enrichments carved of the aforesaid Vases, Cherubims, Fruit, Leaves, and Festoons, and inclosed with Rail and Baluster.

LENGTH of the Church 93 Feet, Breadth 63, Altitude 38, and that of the Tower and Turret about 85, wherein are six Bells to ring in Peal.

To shew the never-dying Love of these Parishioners, to their Pastor Mr. William Crashawe, the following Inscription was set on the Gallery in the South Isle:

To the Honour of God, the Advancement of Religion, and in Thankfulness to God for the safe Return of our hopeful and gracious Prince CHARLES, from the Danger of his Spanish Journey, this Gallery was erected at the Charge of this Parish, Anno 1623, and the seventh Year of Master Crashawe's Residence.

As here, so in many other Places, his Name is remembered.

MONUMENTS.

ON the North Wall is a handsome Monument thus inscribed:

I know that my Redeemer liveth, Job xix. 25.

To the Honour of Jesus Christ, to the Praise of Piety, to the Example of Posterity, and for the Preservation of the Godly Memory of Elizabeth, his most worthily beloved Wife; in whom (by a rare Conjunction) Godliness with Comeliness, Wisdom with Virtue, Beauty with Chastity, Youth with Discretion, and Discretion with Devotion, were most sweetly combined. Who, in the Prime of her Years, upon her first Child, yielded up by untimely Death (as herself had often foretold) her Soul to God, her Life to Nature, her Body to the Earth, her Memory to the World, and left to the pensive Earth a dear bought Son, to her Friends Heaviness, hard to be removed; to her Husband's Sorrow, not to be expressed; and to all that knew her, a longing Desire after her.

William Crashawe, her most sad and sorrowful Husband, Pastor of this Church, most unwilling to part with her, but most willing to honour her with many Sighs and Tears; dedicating this Monument, in Assurance of her glorious Resurrection. She died Octob. 8, in the 24th Year of her Age.

A handsome Monument with Iron Grates in the Church-yard :

To the Memory of Alice Shelton, Daughter of Sir Ralph Shelton, of Shelton-Hall in Norfolk, Kt. who had Issue by her first Husband, Thomas Waller, Esq; nine Sons and nine Daughters: And by her second Husband, William Wrooe, of London, Merchant-Taylor, had Issue two Sons and one Daughter. But had no Issue by her Third and last Husband, Tobias Wilkinson, 1630.

ANOTHER close by the former :

Favour is deceitful, and Beauty is Vanity ; but a Woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.

Here lieth buried that vertuous Thamoizin, that gracious young Woman, the faithful Wife of Master William Eccles of Lime-house, Mariner. This Mirror of young Women departed this Life on the 10th of July, 1620, she being of the Age of 25 Years, and was Mother of a Son and a Daughter. But Thamoizin the Daughter, departed this Life on the 18th of December 1621, being of the Age of six Years, and lieth here buried.

Every wise Woman buildeth her House, but the Foolish plucketh it down with her Hands.

Remember,

As you are now, so was she :
As she is now, so you must be.

William Eccles.

Later Monuments erected, and flat Stones laid to preserve the Memory of Persons buried in St. Mary Matfelon's, are these :

In the Chancel :

M. S. To the Memory of Judith Meggs, Widow, the beloved Wife of William Meggs, of this Parish, Esq; &c. 1662. Aged 83. And the said William her Husband, 1620.

William Meggs, Esq; and James Meggs, D.D. their two Sons, caused this Monument to be erected.

Some happy Hand may thus aspire to save
From Death's Defeat thy Memory; but to grave
Thy Virtues, what Diamond's Point t'express
Thy Wisdom, Meekness, Graces, Holiness;
What a seraphick Plume would it require?
Tymathes draw thy Veil, here Art retire.

THE Arms on this Monument are: Or, a Chevron ingrailed Azure, between three Mascles Gules; on a Chief Sable, a Greyhound Courant Argent.

Impaled with Sable on a Chevron, between three Lions Heads erased Or; as many Ogresses.

RIGHT against the last, on the North Side of the Chancel, and uniform therewith, is this Inscription :

Memoria Sacrum :

Under the Black-Marble doth rest, until he shall awake out of Sleep, whatsoever was mortal of William Meggs, Esq; who with great Alacrity of Mind, from a strong Hope, and Christian Belief that his Body shall arise again at the last Advent of Christ our Saviour to Judgment, surrendered up his Soul to Almighty God, the 28th of May, 1678; who was a most worthy Member of this Parish, and the principal Benefactor towards re-edifying this House of God.

To whose Memory his loving Nephew, Sir William Goulston, in much Gratitude hath erected this Monument.

Arms are the same with the First, under the last Inscription.

Jonathan Ambrose, Esq; 1699. Also his Daughter Theodosia, 1701.

On a grey Marble Grave-Stone in the Chancel, is this Inscription :

In hope of a blessed Resurrection,

Here lyeth interr'd the Body of Bathshua Marsh, one that truly loved and feared God, and heartily embraced the Faith of a crucified Jesus, laying hold of him, as her only Saviour for Salvation. She was also a most Indulgent and Affectionate Wife; a dear, loving, and most tender Mother; an honourable, wise, and most faithful Friend; she most compassionately sympathized with the Afflicted, and most bountifully distributed to the Poor; a most kind and discreet Governess of Servants: In Sum, one that abounded in every good Word and Work. She departed this Life. Jan. 8. 1701. Aged 60.

As you desire to die well, remember to imitate this great Example.

On a Grave Stone, entering into the Christening Pew, this Inscription :

Here lye the Bodies of two Sons, and one Daughter of William Grace, and Sarah his Wife of this Parish. John died May, 1696, in the 10th Year of his Age; Sarah, September, 1700, at five Years and five Months; William put on Immortality, the 1st of May, 1701, in the 17th of his Age.

Dilectissimi & Jucundissimi in vita sua;
In Sepulcro quoque suo non separati sunt.

North Isle :

John Boston, 1689.

William Stanbrow, Citizen and Mason, 1694-5.

Anne Cannin, 1696.

Mordecai Fromanteel, 1697-8. And Hannah his Wife, 1701. and Mordecai their Son, 1679.

Christopher Worth, 1683.

Rachel, Daughter of John Skinner, 1688. And Thomas Butler his Grandson, 1694. And Mary Skinner, 1695.

Mary Crisp, late Wife of Henry Crisp, 1699. And Henry Crisp, 1701.

William and Anne, Children of Captain Edward Rhodes and Mary his Wife.

AT the West End of the South Isle, on a grey Marble Grave-Stone this Inscription :

Here lyes the Body of Captain Francis Maynard of this Parish, who departed this Life, Jan. 13, 1699, aged 40.

Also

Also the Son of Captain and Elizabeth Maynard lyes buried here aged 11 Months, three Weeks, and two Days.

In this cold Tomb, his silent Ashes rest,
Whose pious Soul is number'd with the Blest.
From Truth, in this false World, he never swerv'd,
But God and King with full Devotion serv'd;
To both obedient, to his Country just;
True to his Friend, and faithful to his Trust;
Gen'rous to all, and to his Neighbour kind;
Liberal to the Poor, and of a Noble Mind.
Moral in all the Actions of his Life,
And a good Husband to a virtuous Wife.

Also the Body of Thomas their Son; who died, February the 27th, 1699. Aged seven Months.

A Hatchment for the Honourable Col. Thomas Lewis, Esq; 1689.

Mary, the Daughter of William and Elizabeth Hollier, 1687.

On a Pillar, South:

Thomas, James, Daniel and John Caine, Sons of Captain John Caine.

On a Tomb Stone in the South East Cemetery, this Inscription:

Here resteth the Body of Thomas Brown, Obiit August 29. 1665. Aged 50 Years; with six Sons and one Daughter; also Ann formerly his, but since the beloved Wife of Richard Charter, who, in Memory of her Virtues, hath erected this Monument.

She died May the 28th, 1681.

She whose unblemish'd Life, two Husbands blest'd,
From Cares and Labour, now is come to rest.
Chast Love and prudent Charity, all that's good
She daily shew'd, as well as understood.
The Poor have lost a Friend, I a good Wife;
But she I trust hath gain'd eternal Life.

Churchyard, North:

David Sandel, Citizen and Silkthrower of London, 1688. Sarah Lane his Daughter, 1687. Sibilla his Wife, 1687.

Sibilla Shaw, 1694. And John Shaw, 1679.

David, the Son of David Sandel, 1674.

John Martin, Citizen and Mason of London, 1691. Also Ten Children of the said John Martin: And Elizabeth his Wife, 1683.

Mary the Wife of Thomas Cripps, of this Parish, Gentleman, 1693. Also Thomas their Son, and Elizabeth their Daughter.

Captain Dennis Morrice, 1690; and Katharine his Wife, 1694.

Elizabeth, Wife of Jabez Jeffery, 1670.

John Cooper, John Morris, 1690.

Sarah Lessingham, late Wife of Thomas Lessingham, 1702.

Mary Butler, Wife of John Butler, Citizen and Goldsmith of LONDON, 1693; and Martha and Thomas their Children.

VOL. II.

A Grave-Stone in the Chancel at the Steps to the Altar, covering the Body of Captain Josias Crowe, whose Example is worthy the Notice of Posterity. As he was a gallant and brave Commander, so he was no less a meek and humble Christian, and a sincere good Man; truly pious toward God, and generous and beneficent to Men. He was a publick Benefactor to this holy Place, a Friend to the Helpless, a tender Father, and a careful Husband. And as he lived so he died, in a certain Hope of the Resurrection of the Just. Let us follow him in his Life, as we must do to the Grave. Obiit 21 Sept. Anno. Dom. 1714. Etat. sua 56.

A Tomb in the Church-yard for Alice Jordan, late Wife of John Jordan of this Parish, March 14, 1701-2. Aged 52.

Stand, Reader, and spend a Tear,
And think of me, who now lies here;
And while you read the State of me,
Think on the Glass that runs for thee;
Let not this World, your Thoughts betray;
But think upon your dying Day.
In Christ alone, I only trust,
To rise in Number of the Just.

Also John Jordan, Nephew to the said John, is here buried.

Another Tomb in the Church-yard for Thomas Bridgewater, Son of Thomas Bridgewater of this Parish, Silkthrower and Citizen of London. Sept. the 10th, 1704. Aged one Year and four Months.

No change of Place, nor Climate can prevent
The Stroke of Death, when once Man's Life is spent.

At the West End of the Church-yard, a handsome raised Monument for James Roberts, late of this Parish, Silkthrower, 1688. Also three James's; William, and Samuel, his Sons.

THIS Parish hath an House belonging to the Minister. It is situate on the East End of the Church; lately built of Brick. A Carpenter now dwells there.

THERE is a fair Free-school also belonging to the Parish, for poor Children of the Parish to be taught gratis. It is situate on the Left Hand fronting the Street that leads out of Town, founded in King Charles the Second's Reign, by Mr. Ralph Davenant, late Rector of this Parish. But wanting Endowment, it lately, by good Providence, was enriched by a Gift of 1000 l. As is expressed by an Inscription on a Gallery in the Church, West, where the Children of the School sit, viz.

Anno 1701. A worthy Benefactor, unknown, gave 1000 l. towards the further Maintenance of the poor Children, educated at the School-house of Whitechapel, Towns-end: Erected and built at the proper Cost and Charges of Mr. Ralph Davenant, late Rector of this Parish. Which 1000 l. purchased 55 l. a Year, at East-Tilbury; in the County of Essex; being chiefly managed and compleated by the Care and Industry of Mr. Richard Welton, Rector.

And { Mr. John Watmore
Mr. Thomas Palmer } Churchwardens.
Mr. Benj. Defarmeus

THERE are about 80 Boys taught at this School. This nobly minded Person is yet unknown, that gave gave this 1000 l. but they say it was some Lady, who going out of Town, saw the School, and was informed of the great Number of poor People, Inhabitants of the Parish, not able to give their Children Education.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of Brazen-Nose-College in Oxford; the Value is said to be 300 l. per Ann. rated in the King's Books at 31 l. 17 s. 5 d. Half-penny.

THE Rector is the Rev. Dr. Shippen, Principal of Brazen-Nose-College; and the Lectureship is in Contest in the Bishop's Court.

ONLY one Gift Sermon on Lady-day, the Gift of Mrs. Mary Buck, the Relict of Mr. Ralph Davenant, Founder of the Free-school.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays and Fridays about 11 o'Clock; and also at Three in the Afternoon, on Saturday. An Organ was erected and first used on the 29th of May, Anno 1715.

THE Vestry is general.

The PARISH-OFFICERS

are :

- 3 Church Wardens.

Number of Houses are between 3 and 4000.

GOING out of Town from Whitechapel, Eastward, are two Rows of Alms-houses on each Side of the Way, opposite to each other. That on the Left Hand, belongeth to the Parish, and containeth 16 Rooms, for as many poor Widows, who have a weekly Salary paid by the Parish. That on the Right Hand of a later Foundation, was built by William Meggs, Esq; for 12 poor Widows; that is, such as formerly, or their Husbands, had paid Scot and Lot to the Parish; they receive 5 l. a-Piece, yearly; formerly they had a Portion of Coals allowed them also, but it is now stopped: There is a pretty Piece of Garden-Ground behind their House, belonging to them. The poor People are put into this Alms-House, as the Rooms become vacant, by Sir James Etheridge, who married Mr. Gouldstone's Widow, which Gouldstone was Nephew to Mr. Meggs the Founder.

IN Whitechapel-street is a Court, called his Majesty's Court of Record for the Manor of Stepney, for Tryal of Debts under 5 l. contracted within the said Manor.

HERE is also a Prison for Debtors, called Whitechapel Prison.

HERE are two Free-schools in one House, erected at the proper Cost and Charges of Ralph Davenant, late Rector of this Parish: The Master has 30 l. per Ann. for teaching 60 Boys, and the Mistress has 20 l. yearly, for instructing 40 Girls. The Interest of the 1000 l. before-mentioned to this Use.

The Parish of St. DUNSTAN'S STEPNEY.

NEXT adjoining to Whitechapel, on the East, is the Parish of Stepney, washed on the South with the River Thames, and touching on the West and North Sides upon Aldgate, Bishopsgate, Shoreditch, and Hackney. The Church is called St. Dunstan's Stepney, written antiently Stebunkith, or Stephenkith. And if there were any antient Church or Chapel hereabouts dedicated to St. Stephen, it would be probable to suppose the Name to imply a Landing Place (as Hith signifies) for Boats and Vessels at St. Stephen; or else, perhaps, from the Steepness of the Hith there.

SOMETHING may be said of this Parish in general, and afterwards of some Particulars in it more especially. It was a Parish of very great Extent, inasmuch that some Parishes have been taken out of it; as Whitechapel (which, according to the Name was once a Chapel of Ease to it) St. Paul's Shadwell, and of later Times, St. John's at Wapping, which belongs to Whitechapel, and three others, viz. St. George's in Mid-dlesex, St. Anne's Limehouse, and Christ-Church, Spittlefields. There were also in Stepney Parish some Chapels of Ease, as one at Poplar, and not long since since another was on the Northern Part of Bethnal-green; but that is now turned into Houses: So that Stepney may be esteemed rather a Province than a Parish, especially if we add, that it contains in it both City and Country; for towards the South Parts, where it lies along the River Thames for a great Way, by Limehouse, Poplar, and Radcliff to Wapping, it is furnished with every Thing that may entitle it to the Honour (if not of a City, yet) of a great Town; Populousness, Traffick, Commerce, Havens, Shipping, Manufacture, Plenty and Wealth, the Crown of all. And were it not eclipsed by the Lustre of the neighbouring City, it would appear one of the considerablest Towns of the Kingdom, and would give place to very few Cities in England. And among other Places of Remark, at Blackwall is a wet Dock belonging to Sir Henry Johnson, of sufficient Bigness to contain Ships.

ON the other Side Northward, this Parish hath the Face of a Country, affording every Thing to render it pleasant, Fields, Pasture-Grounds for Cattle, and formerly Woods and Marshes; for in old Writings we read of the Bishop's Woods and Stebunhith Marshes.

THE Bishop of LONDON had a Manor within this Parish of Stepney, and two Woods lying about it, which Richard de Gravesend, some Time Bishop of LONDON, the 20th of King Edward I. about the Year 1292, was minded to inclose for a Park; and for that Purpose had a Grant of free Warren from the said King, but the Citizens of LONDON would not suffer it. As appears by this Record remaining in the Chamber of LONDON.

“ On Thursday next before the Feast of St. Gregory, the Pope, the 20th of King Edw. I.
 “ in the Presence of Ralph de Sandwich, Custos
 “ of the City of LONDON, Robert de Basing, John de Bacquil, William de Hereford, “ Ralph de Blunt, Robert de Roks, Nicholas de Winton, William de Mazeliner, William de Farndon, &c. Aldermen of the same City, and “ four Men of every Ward summoned, a Petition of the venerable Father R. de Gravesend, Bishop of LONDON, was shewn to “ them by the Custos, to this Purpose: That the same Bishop might inclose his two Woods
 “ in the Town of Stebunhith, lying about “ his Manor in the same Town, and to put “ wild Beasts or Deer in them: Which four of “ each Ward being chosen by the Commonalty
 “ taking Counsel upon this Matter, answered
 “ by themselves precisely, that from the Time
 “ whereof no Memory is extant, they had used
 “ to take and hunt within the aforesaid Woods,
 “ and without Hares, Foxes, Conies, and other “ Beasts, where and when they would. And “ they say, that they do not believe, that the “ Lord the King granted him any Thing in Prejudice of the City's Liberties. Whereupon they “ say, that they desire to use the Liberties “ which hitherto they have used: And they “ pray, that the same Bishop may hold his “ Woods in the Form and Manner as his Ancestors and Predecessors have held them: And “ they will not consent that he may inclose “ them, nor will they grant him any Warren, &c.

Mile-end Town stands here, built with many good Houses, inhabited with divers Sea Captains and Commanders of Ships.

It used also to serve for Country Retirement to Citizens, and other wealthy Men; witness those many fine Seats and noble Structures that appear scattered about in those Parts; for so it was especially in antient Times, when Courtiers and Persons of the greatest Quality had their Country Houses here. Among the rest, the Bishops of LONDON used to retire hither for some Hundreds of Years past. Matthew Paris speaks of Roger Niger, a Bishop of LONDON that died at his Mansion-House of Stebunhith above 400 Years ago. Henry Waleis, Mayor of LONDON, lived at Stebunhith, and (which is more) at whose House, Anno 1299, the 27th of King Edward I. that King held a Parliament, being then Mayor of LONDON.

HERE the Lord Cromwel, Earl of Essex, had a House. Henry Colet, some Time Lord Mayor of LONDON, had House and Lands here, which descended to his Son John Colet, Dean of St. Paul's. The Founder of Jesus School by St. Paul's, who gave a fair House (and as it seems, that very House wherein he dwelt near the Church) to the said School, for a Place for the Master and Scholars to retire to, when the Plague should be at LONDON. The Dean often loved to retire hither from the City for Air and Contemplation. Sir Thomas More, who wanted Colet's Company, having been absent abroad, in a Letter intices him home, and among other Arguments he uses for that Purpose, one is, “ That the Country about his Parish of Stepney “ (as he called it) whereof he ought also not to “ have the like Care, afforded him the least Delights to those which he had in the Place “ wherein he then was; and from thence he “ might, upon Occasion, come to LONDON, “ as into an Inn, and prayed him therefore to “ return for Stepney's sake, which mourned for “ his Absence, no less than Children did for the “ Absence of their loving Mother.

COUNTRY Houses were also within this Parish built in Spittle-fields, Mile-end, and Bethnal-green, Bow, and Old-ford. In Bethnal-green was a fair House built in Queen Elizabeth's Reign by one John Kirby. Fleetwood, Recorder of LONDON, in a Letter writ about 1578, to the Lord Treasurer, mentioned the Death of certain rich Citizens, as Fairfax and Bowres, and of John Kirby that built a fair House upon Bethnal-green; which House, lofty like a Castle, occasioned certain Rhimes, abusive of him and some other City Builders of great Houses, and had prejudiced themselves thereby. Kirkebie's (or Kirbie's) Castle, and Fisher's Folly, Spinola's Pleasure, and Megse's Glory, &c. And this Kirkie's House, no doubt, is that now called The blind Beggar's House there. Perhaps Kirbie beggered himself by it.

THE North West Parts of this Parish, (Spittle-fields and Parts adjacent) of later Times became a great Harbour for poor Protestant Strangers; *Walloon*s and French. Who as in former Days, so of late, have been forced to become Exiles from their own Country for their Religion, and for the avoiding cruel Persecution. Here they have found Quiet and Security, and settled themselves in their several Trades and Occupations; Weavers especially. Whereby God's Blessing surely is not only brought upon the Parish, by receiving poor Strangers; (Come ye Blessed of my Father, &c. for I was a Stranger, and ye took me in.) but also a great Advantage hath accrued to the whole Nation, by the rich Manufacturers of weaving Silks, Stuffs, and Camlets; which Art they brought along with them: And this Benefit also to the Neighbourhood; that these Strangers may serve for Patterns of Thrift, Honesty, Industry and Sobriety.

It is to be further remarked of this Parish of Stepney, on the Southern Parts of it especially, that it is one of the greatest Nurseries of Navigation, and Breeders of Seamen in England, the most serviceable Men in the Nation; without which England could not be England. For they they are its Strength and Wealth. And by how much the more Honour and Use our Mariners are to us, so much the greater Fame deservedly accrues unto this Parish, that breeds and brings them up in such great Number.

Stepney antiently was both a Parsonage and a Vicarage, to be held by two distinct Persons. And the Parson or Rector had a Right of Patronage to present a Vicar: For in an old Letter from King Richard III. to Thomas Kemp, Bishop of LONDON; William Kemp, Deacon and Rector of the Parochial Church of St. Dunstan's of Stepnethe, is called Verus Patronus Vicariæ huius Ecclesiæ; i. e. True Patron of the Vicarage of this Church; which William had granted to Nicholas Sudbury, Haberdasher of the City of LONDON, the next Advowson, or jus Patronatus, of the said Vicarage; one Richard Luke, Clerk, being then actually Vicar: Upon which Richard's Death, the said Sudbury presented Degory Watur, Priest, Batchelor of Degrees; but this gave Occasion to a Contest about the Year 1484: For then the Bishop of LONDON had a Mind that another should enjoy the said Vicarage, namely, Richard Fox, [the same, as it seems, that was afterwards Bishop of Winchester, and Keeper of the Great Seal] who then was a Student in Paris, and a great Friend to Henry ap Tudder, Earl of Richmond, which the said King Richard called his Great Rebel. The Endeavour to prefer him, shewed that Bishops secret Good-Will to the said Earl and his Cause. Hence when the said Watur came to the Bishop for his Institution and Induction to the Living; he delayed and put him off, till it was lapsed. Watur upon this made Complaint to the King and his Council, and prayed his Highness for Remedy to assist him in his just Cause. Whereupon the King sent once, and again, to the Bishop in the said Clerk's behalf, that he would institute and induct him lawfully presented into the said Vicarage; but the Bishop making Answer by a Messenger, named John Asheby, one of the Clerks of the Signet, that if indeed it were found and proved, that the said Fox were with the King's Traitors, then he willingly committed his Right and Authority to the King, and he might himself present a Person, as he thought good. The King seeing these Delays, he had the Presentation put into his Hands by the Patron. And then by a third Letter, the King let the Bishop understand further, of the Certainty of Fox's consorting with his Traytor; and that he being now Patron both by the Bishop's Concession, and the said Nicholas Sudbury's Right, did present the said Watur his Clerk; and desired him, canonically to institute him to the said Vicarage, all Exceptions and Delays laid aside. Dated from the King's Place of the Wardrobe in the City of LONDON, 22d of January, 1484.

ONE of the Vicars of this Church, named Jerom, was burnt in Smithfield, in King Henry the Eighth's Time, for the Profession and Love of the Gospel, about the Year 1540.

ANOTHER, and, as it seems, the next that succeeded, had been Abbot of the Abbey on Towerhill, and put in here upon the Dissolution and Surrender of his House. He was a stout Papist, and his Predecessor was a stedfast Gospeller. In his Time there was a Choir and Singing in this Church, and an excellent Ring of Bells: And when any Sermon had been preached there, which he did not like, as girding upon any Popish Errors and Corruptions, or commending the Evangelical Doctrine, he would sometimes stand up, and presently command the Bells to ring, or the Singing to begin in the Choir, while the Sermon was preaching; and sometimes he would interrupt the Preacher in the midst of his Discourse. There were many Persons in this Parish well disposed to the Gospel, who being grieved with this Vicar, for these and the like Doings, complained of him to Archbishop Cranmer; and being cited before him at Croydon, under King Edward VI., the good Archbishop gave him a gentle Reprimand, and sent him home.

THE Parsonage and Vicarage of this Parish of Stepney, were purchased some Years ago, by the Principal and Scholars of King's-hall, and College of Brazen-Nose, in Oxford, with the perpetual Advowsons, Donations, Rights of Patronage and Presentation to the said Rectory, Parsonage, and Vicarage; which before the said Purchase, was granted to others: And also the perpetual Advowsons, Donations, and Rights of Parsonage and Presentation of, and to the Rectory or Parsonage of St. Mary Matfelon, alias Whitechapel: And also of and to the Rectory or Parsonage of St. John Wapping: And also a Lease of the said Rectory of Stepney, formerly granted for three Lives, whereof one of them in Being; which said Lease, Advowsons, Donations and Rights of Parsonage, were, and stood vested in Trustees, in Trust, for the only Benefit of the said Principal and Scholars of the said King's-hall, and College of Brazen-Nose, and of their Successors and Assigns for ever: For the Payment of the Purchase Money, they were obliged to borrow, and take up, being great Sums of Money, at Interest.

FOR the confirming this Purchase to the said Principal and Scholars, and of the Advowson of Stepney, and the other Churches, and for the Settling the same to the Benefit of the same College, an Act of Parliament was obtained about the Year 1710. By this Act it was declared, That the Right Rev. Father in God, Henry, late Lord Bishop of LONDON, Ordinary of the said Church, and John Wright, the Vicar, were willing and desirous, that upon the Terms there mentioned, the said Vicarage should be for ever united to the said Rectory: And that the said Principal and Scholars should have, and enjoy, the yearly Pension and Sum of 106 l. to be issuing out of the said Rectory and Vicarage so united, and out of the Profits of the same, toward the reimbursing of the said Sums by them borrowed, and for the better Support of the College and Principal: And so by Virtue of this Act, the said Advowsons, Donations, Rights of Patronage and Presentations of those several Parishes; and all their Rights, Members, and Appurtenances, were for ever vested in, and confirmed to the said Principal and Scholars, their Successors and Assigns.

AND the said Vicarage was for ever united and annexed to the Rectory. And the Rectory and Vicarage so united, to be deemed and called The Rectory of Stebunheath, alias Stepney. And John Wright, the then Vicar, thereby to be constituted and appointed the actual and full Incumbent of the said Rectory and Vicarage, so united: And that without any Dispensation, instituted or inducted into the same, he paying, as long as he should remain Incumbent, the Yearly Pension of 106 l. unto the said Principal and Scholars, free of all Taxes and Payments whatsoever: The first quarterly Payment to begin at the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, Anno 1711. And from and after the Death, Resignation, Cession, &c. of the said Wright, the said Rectory to be, and be considered and understood in the Law to be, and under the Term of two Moieties or Portions of the said Rectory. And that it shall and may be lawful for the said Principal and Scholars, and their Successors, under their common Seal, to present two fit Persons, as Portionists, to the said united Rectory, in Manner following: One Person, by the Name of the Portionist of Stepney, [Ratcliff Stepney:] And the

the other Person, by the Name of the Portionist of Spittle-fields Stepney, who shall be severally admitted, instituted, and inducted, as two Portionists, into their several Portions of the united Rectory. And the said Principal and Scholars, and their Successors, from Time to Time, upon the Death, Resignation, Cession, Deprivation, &c. of any of the said Portionists, or any other Avoidance, to present a fit Person, to be instituted into such void Portion.

THE said two Portionists to have their respective Cure of Souls of the Inhabitants of the said Parish; and alternately to serve, viz. one of the said Portionists to supply the Cure of his Parish, and perform all Duties belonging to the said Cure, during the Space of one Month; and the other Portionist the succeeding Month; and so on in continual Succession. And they, from Time to Time, to hold, take, receive and enjoy the same Rectory, and the Mesluages, Glebe, Lands, Rents, Reversions, Services, to the same Rectory and Vicarage appertaining; and all Manner of Tithes as well great as small; and all Fruits, Oblations, Obventions, Perquisites, &c. equally to be divided and enjoyed between them, Part and Part alike.

THE Portionists likewise to pay to the Principal and Scholars of the said College for ever, at the four most usual Feasts, and Days of Payment, the yearly Pension of 106 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. free of and from all Charges, Payments, Taxes, &c. each Portionist to pay 53 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. (being his Share) to be made at or in the common Dining-Hall of the said College, and without any Demand to be made for the same. Twenty Pounds thereof, Part of the said yearly Pension, to be paid and applied towards the Maintenance of two Scholars in the said College, and other Uses; for which the Principal and Scholars purchased and applied certain Wood-Grounds, called Ashenshaw, &c. which they sold for the Purchase of this Rectory.

John Wright, during the Time he should continue Rector, to hold and enjoy the Vicarage House: And afterward, the first Portionist, of Ratcliff Stepney Portion, and his Successors, may enjoy the Rectory, or Parsonage House, with the Orchard and Gardens thereunto belonging, after the Determination of a Lease of the same, now in being, made by Edward Northey, Esq; now Sir Edward Northey, &c. and others, for the Term of 99 Years, if Charles Earl of Peterborough, and Thomas White, the then Rector of Stepney, should so long live, and until the Determination thereof; shall and may receive, enjoy and take the annual Rent of 26 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. reserved by the said Lease.

THE first Portionist of Ratcliff Stepney to be liable to pay to the Queen's Majesty, her Heirs and Successors, the first Fruits and Tenths, as the said Rectory of Stepney now standeth charged with in her Majesty's Books in the first Fruits Office: And also all Procurations, Synodals, &c. And the first Portionist of Spittle-fields Stepney's Portion, and his Successors, to enjoy the Vicarage House, with the Orchards, Gardens, &c. from and after the Death of John Wright, until a more convenient House shall be provided for him, by and at the Charge of the Parishioners of the said Parish of Stepney; to be approved of and by the Lord Bishop of LONDON, and the Principal of the abovesaid College. And after such Provision of an House, the said Vicarage shall be and remain to such Persons as shall be the Church-wardens of the said Parish for the Time being, for the Uses and Purposes as the Vestry shall from Time to Time order, direct, and appoint. And this said first Portionist of Spittle-fields Stepney's Portion, and his Successors, shall be liable to pay to the Queen, her Heirs and Successors, all such and the same first Fruits and Tenths, as the said Vicarage of Stepney now stands charged with, in her Majesty's Books in the First-Fruits Office, and also all Procurations, Synodals, &c.

It shall be lawful for the Principal and Scholars of the said College, and their Successors, upon any Vacancy, from Time to Time, to nominate fit Clerks to officiate in the Chapel at Stratford Bow; and in all other Churches and Chapels, that now are, or shall be built within the said Parish of Stepney; and to receive the Profits belonging to the same.

THIS Act to be taken and allowed in all Courts of Justice, as a publick Act. And all Judges and Justices, hereby required as such, to take Notice thereof, without special Pleading the same.

Mr. Wright, the abovesaid Vicar, died July —, 1718. So that the said Rectory being actually void, and the Act for dividing and disposing it into two Portions commenced from hence. And accordingly the College have presented their Clerks.

THE Parish-Church here is dedicated to St. Dunstan, of whom see an Account in Vol. I. Book II. Chap. II. and the Word Stepney; or Stebunheath; is added, it being the Name of the Manor, or Lordship to which this Church belongs.

THE West Portico was built in 1612; the Church was repaired and beautified Anno 1685, and again in 1725.

THE Walls and Battlements are built of Brick, and wrought Stone cover'd with a Finishing, and the Roof with Lead; the Inside whereof appears arched, and the Pillars, Arches, and Windows, are of the modern Gothick; and the West Porch is of the Tuscan Order.

THERE is a Corner Stone in the Portico, on the North Side of the Chancel, where are inscribed these Words: (We suppose them genuine because permitted to be there.)

Of Carthage great I was a Stone;
O Mortals read with Pity;
Time consumes all, it spareth none;
Man, Mountain, Town, nor City.
Therefore, O Mortals, all bethink
You whereunto you must,
Since now such stately Buildings
Lye buried in the Dust.

TOUCHING the Finish and Ornament within the Church: It is well pewed with Oak, and wainscotted about eight Feet high; and the Pulpit is the same Sort of Timber.

THE Altar-piece consists of four Pilasters, with Entablature and Pediments of the Corinthian Order, adorned with a Cherub, gilt Capitals, and Portraits of Moses and Aaron, with the King's Arms carved. Here also are the Commandments between the Lord's Prayer and Creed; done in Black and Gold; also three handsome inner Door-Cases, and Galleries on the North, South, and West Sides of the Church: The Organ-Case is embellished with Fames, &c.

THE Dimensions are Length 114 Feet, Breadth 54, Height 35, and the Altitude of the Tower and Turret 92 Feet, wherein are six Bells to ring in Peal.

THERE are the following Benefactors Names on the South Wall of the Church:

John Fuller, Esq; gave by his Will, dated 1592, the Alms-Houses on Mile-End-Green.

And out of his Lands in the County of Lincoln, to 12 poor single Men of this Parish of good Name,

Name, and the Age of 50, or upwards, 50 l. per Ann.

Mr. Thomas Jones, of Ratcliff, gave to the Poor of that Hamlet, 2 l. per Ann.

Mrs. Elizabeth Colbert, 2 l. 5 s. per Ann.

Captain Edward Johnson in Low-Layton, by his Will in 1669, gave 400 l. to be laid out in a Purchase, for the Relief of 20 poor Inhabitants of the Hamlet of Limehouse, and 30 l. to be distributed among the Poor of the said Hamlet.

Captain John Curtis of Mile-End, by his Will, made 1671, gave 60 l. per Ann.

Mr. Richard Underhill, by his Will, made 1671, gave 60 l. to be laid out in Lands, for 12 Penny Loaves to be given every Lord's Day to 12 poor People, and the Residue for preaching a Sermon yearly on the Day of his Burial.

Lady Henrietta and Lady Philadelphia Wentworth, gave 200 l. but there could be only recovered by Composition 100 l.

In the Church of St. Dunstan's Stepney are these ensuing Monuments.

In the Chancel:

One antient Monument of Sir Henry Collet, Kt. third Son of Sir Robert Collet, Esq; twice Lord Mayor of LONDON, and free of the Mercers, and Father to Dr. John Collet, some Time Dean of St. Paul's. It was refreshed by the Company of Mercers in the Year 1605, on the North Side.

The said Sir Henry deceased 1510.

This Tomb was repaired the second Time at the Charge of the Company of Mercers, LONDON, the 28th of July, 1697.

Sir John Wolfe, Kt. Master, and Sheriff of LONDON.

Laurence Moyer, Surveyor-warden,

William Willis, House-warden,

William Trigg, Renter-warden.

ON the North Side of the Chancel is the following Inscription:

Here resteth the Body of Robert Clarke, Esquire, Sonne of Roger Clarke, Esquire, late Alderman of the City of LONDON: A Man humble in Prosperity, and a liberal Distributer to the Poore, courteous and affable to all; an upright and just Dealer in this World; and a most religious Seeker of the World to come. He had to Wife Margareta, Daughter to John Langton, Esquire, some Time Governor of the English Company in Sprucia, under the King of Polonia; who lived together in great Love and Integrity almost fixe Yeeres. He had by her one only Daughter, named Frances, who lived one Yeere three Quarters; and here lies interred with her most deare and loving Father.

In whose Memory the said Margareta, to expresse her true Love and Affection, hath caused this Monument to be erected. He died the xxx Day of May, Anno Dom. 1610, having lived xxxvi Yeeres.

A little Monument on the South Side of the Chancel, has this Inscription:

Genero suo Gulielmo Dawtrey, quondam Lincolnensis Hospitii socio, Willielmi Dawtrey, Sufflexa; Armigeri, Filio & Hæredi; viro ingenii acumine, mentis acie, & non vulgari Municipium Angliæ legum scientia præcellenti; Richardus Stonley, Armiger, hoc Amoris, & pietatis symbolum posuit: Obiit 16 Octobris, 1589.

A Monument at the upper End of the Chancel has this Inscription:

Sacræ Memoria

Janæ Nevillæ Dominæ Dethicke Matronæ Religiosissimæ, Modestissimæ, omnibus qua corporis, qua Animi (dum vixit) dotibus ornatissimæ: Jesu Christi servæ devotissimæ; conjugi suæ fidelissimæ, amantissimæ. Quæ cum viginti fere duos Annos felicissime transegerat, Alexander Nevillus, Armiger, hoc nunquam intermorituri amoris sui Monumentum fieri, Testamento curavit. Postquam annos fere Sexaginta novem vixerat, viceffimo nono Novembris 1606, placidissime in Domino obdormivit.

Tobiah Worthington, Alexandro Nevillo, ex Testamento solus, ipsius mandato, hoc Monumentum posuit.

ON a little Brass Monument in the South Side of the Chancel is thus written:

Here-under lieth buried Nicholas Gibson, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, and Avis his Wife, who were Founders of the Free-School at Ratcliffe; and after she married with Sir Anthony Knevit, Knight, which lieth here buried also, which Nicholas died the xxij of September, Anno 1510; and the said Lady Avis died the third Day of October, 1554, whose Souls Jesu pardon.

THE Writer of this Epitaph was guilty of Carelessness, both in the Date of Nicholas Gibson's Death, for he was Sheriff in the Year 1538, (that is long after the Year here set down, in which he is said to die,) and also in the Name of Avis, her second Husband, who was William Knevit, Esq; as appears by the Verses graven upon Nicholas's Marble Monument, yet preserved in our Books (though not in the Church) which ran thus:

The fyve and twentyth Day of thys Month of September,

And of our Lord God the ffifteenth hundryd and fourty Yeere,

Master Nicholas Gybson dyde, as thys Tombe doth remembyr;

Whose Wyff after marryed the worschypfull Esquier, Master William Knevet, one of the Kynges Privy-Chamber, &c.

BUT here the Monument itself is wrong; for his Name was indeed Anthony, as appears in Porter's Case, in the second Book of Coke's Reports.

HERE were two others (and they spiritual) Persons of great Note in their Time, buried antiently in this Church, with Monuments and Inscriptions, which are long since gone, but preserved in Weaver's Monuments.

THE one was John Kitte, or Kite, a Londoner born, first a Titular Archbishop in Greece, afterwards made Bishop of Carlisle. He flourished under three Kings, as the old Verses on his Stone shewed; namely, King Edward IV. King Henry VII. and King Henry VIII. by which last he was sent Ambassador to the King of Spain, died June 19, 1537. The Epitaph began,

Under

Under thys Stone cloyd and marmorate lyeth
JOHN KITTE, Londoner, natiff, &c.

THE other was Richard Pace, Dean of St. Paul's, a very learned, affable, and good Man, whom King Henry VIII. employed Ambassador to Maximilian the Emperor; and at Rome. He was bred up under Cardinal Wolsey. He died young, at the Age of 40, Anno 1532. His Epitaph was in tolerable good Latin Verse, beginning, Richardus jacet hic venerabilis ille Decanus.

Qui fuit ætatis doctus Apollo suæ, &c.

IN the Chancel likewise was the Monument of one deservedly to be remembred to Posterity, having been the first Founder of Trinity-house.

D. O. M.

Here-under was laid up the Body of Sir Thomas Spert, Knight, some Time Comptroller of the Navy to King Henry VIII. and both the first Founder and Master of the Society or Corporation of the Trinity-house. He lived innobled by his own Worth, and dyed the 8th of September, in the Year 1541. To whose pious Memory the said Corporation hath gratefully erected this Memorial:

Not that he needed Monument of Stone,
For his well-gotten Fame to rest upon:
But this was rear'd to testify that he Lives in their Loves, that yet surviving be.
For unto Vertue, which first rais'd his Name,
He left the Reservation of the fame.
And to Posterity remain it shall,
When Brass and Marble Monuments do fall.
Learn for to die, while thou hast Breath,
So shalt thou live after thy Death.

Anno Domini 1622, by the Company of the Trinity-house, this Monument was erected 81 Years after the Decease of their Founder.

Here lyeth also in the same Chancel, under the Communion-Table, the Body of Henry Steward, Lord Darnley, of the Age of three Quarters of a Year, Son and Heir of Matthew Steward, Earl of Lenox, and Lady Margaret his Wife; which Henry deceased the 28th Day of November, in the Year 1545, whose Soul Jesu pardon.

THE noble Father of this Henry had another Son of the same Name; who afterwards had the Honour to marry Mary Queen of Scots, by whom he had James I. King of England.

ADD the Wife of John Brewster, Esq; ob. An. 1596, on a Brass Plate these Verses:

Here lyes the Wife of John Brewster, Esquire, Whose heavenly Death declares her happy Life,
Fame, say thy worst of her, I thee desire,
And thou must blaze her for a godly Wife.
Of Rich and Poor thou know'st belov'd was she,
Speak thou, therefore, the rest of her for me.
I say no more, her Name was Thomasine.
Now blessed is Almighty God therefore,
And praised be his Name for evermore.

AGAINST the East Wall, somewhat out of Sight, South of the Communion-Table:

In Memory of Elizabeth, the Widow of Richard Starture; Citizen and Fishmonger of LONDON, who had Issue by him three Sons and four Daughters. After 16 Years spent with him; remaining 34 Years his Widow: In Life and Death a constant Example of true Vertue; and sweetly slept in the Lord, Decemb. 5, 1620. Ætat. suæ 74.

Under this Monument:

Michael Merrial and Clare his Wife, eldest Daughter of Eliz. Starture A Monument of her Vertue and their Love

Later MONUMENTS of Persons here interred.

In the Chancel:

ON a spacious white and veined Marble Monument, with Pediment and Entablature of the Tuscan Order, adorned with his carved Effigies; also the Figure of a Boy holding a Jacob's Staff, and three Urns, and this Inscription:

Ne id nescias Lector D. Joannes Berry, Devoniensis Dignitate Equestri, clarus Mari, tantum non Imperator de Rege & Patria, quod & Barbari norunt bene meritus, magnam ob Res fortiter gestas adeptus Gloriam, Fama satur post multas Reportatas victorias cum ab aliis vinci non potuit, Fatis cessit, 14 Feb. 1689. Baptizatus, 7 Jan. 1635.

ARMS, Barry of Six, Or, and Gules.

William Bushel, Esq;

Also Dame Mary Nicolson, his late Wife, 1690.

Captain John North, 1690.

Anne, late Wife of Captain Abraham Wilde of Ratcliff.

Mary Russel, Wife of Captain Henry Russel of this Parish, Salter, 1700.

North Isle, above the Stone Step:

Four Sons and one Daughter of Thomas Hull, and Susanna his Wife, 1695-6.

Just about this Place lies buried John Van Stryp, Citizen, Silk-thrower, and Merchant of LONDON, who deceased Jan. . . . 1647.

Near the same Place lye interred by him two of his Sons, John and Daniel, who dyed young.

Under the Rails:

Elizabeth Warcup, eldest Daughter of Rodolph Warcup, in the County of Oxford, Esq; 1627.

South Isle:

Captain Thomas Woodfine, Senior, 1662.

Captain William Morrice, late of Ratcliff, 1679-80.

Margaret, Daughter of Edward and Mary Rhodes, 1686.

Captain William Kempthorne of Ratcliff, 1680, and Rebecca his Wife, 1691.

IN the Church-yard, against the East Wall of the South Isle :

Captain Laurence Browning, of Yalmpton in the County of Devon, 1675, and three Sons.

EAST Wall, directly on the opposite Side of the Place of the Communion-Table,

Is a spacious fine white Marble Monument, adorned with a Cherub, Urn, Voluta's, Palm-Branches, and these Arms; Paly of Six, Or, and Azure, on a Bend Sable, three Mulletts of the First, impaled, with Azure, an Anulet and Fish between two Bends Wavy, Argent; this Inscription :

Here lyeth interred the Body of Dame Rebecca Berry, the Wife of Thomas Elton of Stratford-Bow, Gent. who departed this Life, April the 26th, 1696, aged 52.

Come, Ladies, ye that would appear
Like Angels fair, come, dress you here.
Come, dress you at this Marble Stone,
And make that humble Grace your own;
Which once adorn'd as fair a Mind,
As ere yet lodg'd in Woman-kind.
So she was dress'd; whose humble Life
Was free from Pride, was free from Strife.
Free from all envious Brauls and Jars
(Of human Life the Civil Wars)
These ne'er disturb'd her peaceful Mind,
Which still was gentle, still was kind.
Her very Looks, her Garb, her Mein, Disclosed the humble Soul within.
Trace her through every Scene of Life,
View her as Widow, Virgin, Wife;
Still the same humble she appears
The same in Youth, the same in Years;
The same in low and high Estate;
Ne'er vext with this, ne'er moved with that.
Go, Ladies, now, and if you'd be
As fair, as great, as good as she;
Go learn of her Humility.

Underneath this Inscription, a Tomb for Mary Elton, Daughter of Thomas and Winifrid Elton, 1680, with divers others of their Children.

THESE following are Altar Monuments, and several of them, very fair and costly, of Marble :

A Tomb for John Hills, late of Ratcliff, Baker, 1702-3, and Hanna Hills his Wife, 1698, and Robert his Son, 1692.

Divers Children of William Culham and Jane his Wife.

In the Church-Yard, West :

ON the Side of a Tomb is this Inscription :

Mr. William Knight of this Parish, Mariner, was here born, Feb: 1570, and died November the 22d, 1636.

Mihi vivere Christus & mori Lucrum.

Cease, Labours: Rest, ye Seas of Care and Fears,
Whose Waves have toss'd me six and forty Years :

And now go sleep, mine Eyes, sleep here, 'till ye,
Waking, shall my Redeemer's Glory see.
Sleep 'till my happy Soul rejoyned may
With re-created Body live for ay.

Tandem Portum.

On the North Side near the Church :

M. S. Timothei Crufo in Agro Surriae oriundi, Evangelii Ministri egregie fidelis, tam eximia Pietate, quam præclara Eruditione ornat, &c. 1698. Ætat. suæ 41.

Nathaniel Crufo, Son of Timothy Crufo, 1695, and Timothy his Son.

ON the same Side of the Church is another Tomb with this Inscription :

Here lyeth the Body of Susanna Ell, the Wife of Richard Ell, who departed this Life the 7th of May, 1643, aged 36 Years, who had Issue by Richard Ell, two Sons, 1st Richard, the other not christened, and three Daughters, Abigail, Sarah, and Hannah.

To the Pious Memory of

SUSAN ELL.

To say an Ell lies here even that alone
Were Epitaph enough, no Brass, no Stone,
No glorious Tomb, no Monumental Hearse,
No gilded Trophy, or Lamp-laboured Verse,
Can dignify her Grave or set it forth,
Like the immortal Fame of her own Worth.
Then Reader fix not here but quit this Room,
And fly to Abraham's Bosom there's her Tomb;
There rests her Soul; and for her other Parts
They are embalm'd and lodg'd in good Mens Hearts.

A braver Monument of Stone or Lime
No Art can raise, for this shall out-last Time.

ON an upright Stone near the last mentioned is this Inscription :

Elizabeth the Wife of John Carles, of this Parish, Cooper, who departed this Life the 4th Day of April, Anno Dom. 1696, aged 29 Years.
She

She was modest, meek, and good indeed;
Courteous to all, helpful to those in Need;
A careful Mother, a most loving Wife,
Calm was the End of this her well spent Life.
Her Body here in Grave composed is,
Her Soul now rests with Christ in endless Bliss.

On another:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Mr. William Wilkes, Citizen and Goldsmith of LONDON, who departed this Life November 21, 1700. Aged 37.

And also here lyeth the Body of Alice Wilkes, the Daughter of Mr. William and Mrs. Sarah Wilkes, who departed this Life the 25th of June 1698, in the 9th Year of her Age.

Farewell, dear Flower, no sooner came
Thy early Piety to bloome,
But Death hath cropt thy tender Bud;
And laid thee in this mournful Tomb;
With her who like thee, lay so near the Heart;
As made it even Death itself to part.
With Patience he the Torment did endure,
But endless Love design'd another Cure;
Think on't with Joy, here but his Body lies,
For Wilkes is fled, and triumphs in the Skies.

Captain Edward Pierce of Ratcliff, 1675.

Elmodum White, 1699.

Dorothy, Widow of Capt. John Burford, 1701.
And Nicholas Son of Thomas and Freelove Swain his Wife, and Grandson to Dorothy Burford.

Abigail late Wife of Capt. Leonard Edgetomb, 1700.

ANOTHER raised Tomb with no Inscription:

Mary late Wife of Peregrine Browne of Ratcliff, 1691.

Capt. Richard Burley of Ratcliff, Mariner, 1678. And four Children.

ON a black Marble Tomb-stone a little Westward from the West End of the Church is this Inscription:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Mary, Wife of Capt. Malachi Simons, Mariner, who departed this Life the 29th of June, 1677.

Rest thou, whose Rest gives me a restless Life,
Because I've lost a kind and virtuous Wife:
I'll visit thee, and when I leave this Light,
Come spend my Time in the same Cell at Night.
Till then farewell; farewell! I cannot take
A final Leave until thy Ashes wake.

Henry Mudd, late of Ratcliff, Esq; 1692, an East India Commander.

Capt. William Sharp of Ratcliff, Mariner, 1696. And Joan Sharp his Wife, 1700.

ON a Tomb on the North Side of the West Portico, is this Inscription:

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Richard Weble, Mariner, who departed this Life the 4th of May, 1694, aged 23 Years.

Let not this World your Thoughts betray,
But think upon your Dying Day.

VOL. II.

ON a Grave-stone before the West Portico:

Here lyeth interred Thomas Barker, (and Elizabeth his Wife of Lime-house) who being Lieutenant under Sir Robert Holmes, Commander of his Majesty's Ship the St. Michael, lost his Life in the Engagement against the Dutch the 28th Day of May 1672, fighting valiantly in Honour of his King and Country. Aged 28 Years.

NORTHWARD from the West End, and near the Church on a Grave-stone raised; is this Inscription:

Here lyeth precious sleeping Dust
Until the Rising of the Just.
Heaven so great a Price it cost,
That not one Atom shall be lost;
But shall arise and cloathed be
In Bliss and Immortality.

Containing the Body of Mr. Thomas Gilson, Minister, deceased May the 6th, 1680. Also Sarah his Wife in April, and Sarah Marlow, Grandchild, in July 1680.

A Vault belonging to the Family of John Raymond of Ratcliff, built 1675.

William Weston, Brewer, 1677.

Elizabeth Bainbrigg, 1691.

William Booth of Wapping, Deal-Merchant, 1681-2. And Grace Booth his Daughter, 1665. And Mary Booth his second Wife, 1673.

Edward Hawkins, and Anna his Wife, 1670. And several Children.

Lydia Martin, Wife of Henry Martin, Brewer, 1699.

Elizabeth Spagg, Wife of James Spagg of Limehouse, Surgeon.

ON a Grave-stone in the Foot Path, is this Inscription:

Here lyes the Body of William Wheatley, who departed this Life the 10th of November 1683.

Whoever treadeth on this Stone,
I pray now tread most neatly:
For underneath this Stone here lyes
Your honest Friend Will. Wheatley.

Elizabeth Jefferson, Wife of John Jefferson, of Ratcliff, Goldsmith, 1677.

Elizabeth the Wife of Alexander Henderson, some Time Curate of this Parish.

Here lies the Body of the who was Sarah Hartland, 1696; aged 25.

Whose Heart, too tender for to hear,
From nearest Friends such Calumnies;
Receiv'd a Wound; and so she fell
To Death a mournful Sacrifice:

8 P

But

But did ascend in Peace and Joy,
To him who did her Prayers hear,
And will as in the Noon-day Light,
Her spotless Innocence declare:

Capt. George Langborn; 1703.

William Lucas of Limehouse; Brewer, 1658.

Capt. Tho. Eliot, Mariner, 1668.

And several more.

Church-yard, on the South Side:

On a Flat Stone:

1685.

Capt. Thomas Spencer, 1658.

Capt. Henry West, 1657.

Capt. William Basse, Mariner, late of Mile-end, 1690.

On a grey Marble Tomb-stone, a pretty way Southward from the East End of the Church, is
this Inscription:

Here Thomas Saffin lyes interr'd: Ah! why,
Born in New England, did in London dy?
Was the third Son of Eight, begot upon
His Mother Martha by his Father John.
Much favour'd by his Prince he gat to be;
But nipt by Death at th' Age of twenty three.
Fatal to him was that we Small-pox name,
By which his Mother and two Brethren came
Also to breath their last, nine Years before;
And now have left their Father to deplore
The Loss of all his Children, with that Wife,
Who was the Joy and Comfort of his Life.
Deceased 1687.

Also here are these Arms: Three Crescents, each surmounted by an Estoile of Eight Points;
impaled with a Lion Rampart, in chief an Estoile of Eight Rayes, surmounting a Crown Murall.

Close by the Tomb last mentioned, is a Grave-Stone, having the following Acrostick of James Bayly, &c.

J nclos'd lyes hid, as sacred Remains,
A s ere was bound, by th' K. of Terrors Chains.
M after, and Chaplains Place he well did bear,
E ach threatening Wave astonish'd with his Pray'r
S hrunk in his Head when pious James was there.

B ayly on Board, the baffled Tempest flew
A s swift as Morning Sun exhales the Dew;
Y onder he comes, his joyful Men would cry,
L ower your Topfail, see the Master's by,
Y ou'd think when he was there some Angel high.

God gave him Leave to breath his last on Shore;
And what was sent him by the Almighty Power,
He safely did convey by trusty Friend,
Who strictly did perform the Donors End;
And spread the Bounty of his Liberal Hand,
Amongst his poor Relations, which Command
Bought the Deceased sure Title to the promis'd Land.

Born at Landelph, in the County of Cornwall.

On a large Marble Tomb-Stone, at the South East Corner of the Church Yard, is this Inscription, and Acrostick.

Here lies the Body of Christopher Henley, late of Ratcliffe; deceased July the 2d. 1693.

C onceal'd from Care, beneath this Marble lies
H is sacred Relicks, which again must rise,
R emote from human Discords unoppress'd,
I n their cold Urn his peaceful Ashes rest;
S natcht in Earth's dark Bosom, free from all
T hose Troubles which a mortal Life befall.
O pious Reader! know his living just,
P roduces his quiet Slumbers in the Dust.
H is virtuous Deeds crown his unthinking Clay,
E rect a Monument without Delay.
R aising his Soul to everlasting Day.

H is Wife and Childrens Grief their Tears reveal,
E ach finds their Loss too weighty to conceal.
N o unjust Act thro' his whole Race we find,
L oving he liv'd; and just to all Mankind:
E asie he sleeps till Heaven shall raise his Dust, Y ielding his Soul to th' Mansions of the Just.

On another Grave-stone, lying near the Tomb above mentioned, is this Inscription:

Here lyeth the Body of Mary Angel, Widow, who departed this Life the 29th of November
1693. Aged 72 Years.

To say, an Angel here interr'd doth lye
May be thought strange, for Angels never dye.
Indeed some fell from Heaven to Hell,
Are lost, and rise no more.
This only fell by Death to Earth;
Not lost, but gone before;
Her Dust lodg'd here, her Soul perfect in Grace,
'Mongst Saints and Angels now hath took its Place.

John Harman of Lime-house, Mariner, 1657.

Joanna Frampton, Wife of Tho. Frampton,
Gent. 1695-6.

On a Marble Tomb-stone Southward from the Chancel, is this Inscription:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Capt. John
Dunch, who departed this Life November 25,
1696, in the 67th Year of his Age.

Tho' Boreas' Blasts, and Neptune's Waves,
Have toss'd me to and fro;
In Spight of both by God's Decree,
I harbour here below;
Where I do now at Anchor ride
With many of our Fleet;
Yet once again I must set sail,
Our Admiral Christ to meet.

Capt. John Woodfine, 1693.

Capt. Simon Rowe, 1691.

Mary Bendal, 1692.

Edward Bendal, 1681-2.

Tho. Nicholson, Son of Capt. Richard Nicholson, 1701.

Capt. Abraham Daws, Merchant, 1696.

John Turner of LONDON, Merchant, 1604.

UNDER a Stone pretty much Southward from the Church, was interred the Pilgrim, (as the People there call him) having this Inscription on it:

Here remains all that was mortal of Mr. Roger Crabb, who entered into Eternity the 11th Day of September 1680, in the 60th Year of his Age.

Tread gently Reader near the Dust,
Committed to this Tomb-stone's Trust;
For while 'twas Flesh it held a Guest,
With universal Love possess,
A Soul that stemm'd Opinion's Tide,
Did over Sects in Triumph ride:
Yet separate from the giddy Croud,
And Paths Tradition had allow'd
Through good and ill Reports he pass,
Oft censur'd yet approv'd at last.
Wouldst thou his Religion know
In brief 'twas this: To all to do
Just as he would be done unto.
So in kind Nature's Laws he stood
A Temple undefiled with Blood;
A Friend to every Thing was good.
The rest Angels alone can fitly tell;
Haste then to them, and him; and so farewell.

Mary Wood, Widow, late Wife of Capt. Matthew Wood, 1693. And Hannah Wood his Daughter, 1688-9.

Edward Awdley, only Child of Captain Edward Awdley, 1702-3.

Ellen Lurting, Wife of Capt. Robert Lurting, 1689.

Penelope, Wife of Capt. Caleb Grantham, one of the Daughters of Rob. Kenwick of Nottinghamshire, Esq, 1685.

A little Southward from the Church, on a spacious Marble Tomb-stone, is this Inscription:

Here lye interred the Bodies of Capt. Thomas Chivers, who departed this Life Nov. 18, 1675. Aged 44 Years.

And of Ann Chivers his Wife, who departed this Life Nov. 14, 1675; aged 34 Years.

And of John Chivers, their Son, who departed this Life Nov. 14, 1675. Aged five Days.

Reader, consider well how poor a Span,
And how uncertain is the Life of Man.
Here lye the Husband, Wife and Child, by Death
All three in five Days Time depriv'd of Breath:
The Child dies first, the Mother on the Morrow
Follows, and then the Father dies with Sorrow.
A Caesar falls by many Wounds, well may
Two Stabs at Heart the stoutest Captain slay.

Katharine Dyke, late Wife of Captain William Dyke, 1683.

ON a Marble Tomb-stone, a little Southward from the Church is this Inscription:

Captain Richard Matthews was buried here April 1665, and his Daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Marsh; who died April the 13th, 1695, late Wife of Mr. John Marsh of LONDON, Merchant.

Thus fled our Dear away, and with a Dove-like Mind,
She like a Dove in Spirit, and so she was inclin'd,
And left us here to mourn, we who are left behind.

ON the North Side of the same Tomb, in gold Letters on Black, is this Inscription:

H. S. E.

Quicquid mortale fuit Matthæi Mead, V.D.M. Honesta inter Cattieuchlanos Familia Orti, à Pietate Doctrina Facundia praeclari.

Qui assiduus & insignibus laboribus Patria Religione Libertate invicto animo defunctus, Vita tandem & laudis Satur, ad Coelitum Domum quam diu optaverat lassus & anhelus placidissime adscendit Ann. Ætat. suæ 70, 17 Kal. Nov. MDCXCIX.

Boni Civis amantissimi, Conjugis; optimi Patris, Theologi vere Christiani; Clarum reliquit posteris Exemplum.

Mary Gutteridge, Wife of Capt. Will. Gutteridge, 1683.

Jane Jenkins, Wife of Capt. John Jenkins, 1696.

Capt. William Gutteridge, late of Mile-end, 1687.

Capt. Francis Man, Mariner, 1695. Sarah, first Wife to Capt. Giles Lawrence of Ratcliff; late to Capt. Tho Man, 1688.

John Greaves of Limehouse, Shipwright, 1637. And 13 Children. And Will. Greaves, Shipwright, his Son, 1667. And also John Greaves, Shipwright, Son of William, 1690.

On a grey Marble Tomb-stone, just without the South Wall of the Church, is the following Inscription:

Aspice
Respice Prospice

Under this Marble lyeth the Body of Susanna, the beloved Wife of Mr. Samuel Sambrook; of London, Merchant; Daughter of Captain Arnold Brown, of this Parish, Esq; educated in all Virtues, adorned with all Graces; beloved of all that knew her. She studied to serve God, and to do Good; liv'd much desired, and died much lamented, October 11: Ætat. suæ 18. 1672.

Near the South-west Portico is this Inscription:

Here lies the Body of John Archer, Son of John Archer of Wapping, Mariner, and of Frances his Wife, who departed this Life, Aug. 1681. Aged 7 Months.

Farewell, dear Gift, since God will have it so,
'Tis a Sin to murmur at his Will we know:
He lyes asleep within his Bed
Until the Resurrection of the Dead.

On a Grave-stone, a little South-west from the Church:

Here lyeth the Body of Joyce Rich, Wife of John Rich of this Parish, who died Aug. 1679, in the 74th Year of her Age; also Elizabeth Winter, Daughter of Joyce Rich, who died in the Lord, November the 9th, 1687, in the 47th Year of her Age.

We two within this Grave do lye,
Where we do rest together
Until the Lord shall us awake,
And from the Goats us sever.

Near the last; this Inscription:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Ann Bristan, the beloved Wife of Richard Bristan, of Lyme-house, just and stedfast to the Doctrine and Discipline of the Establisht Church; living belov'd, and dying lamented by all that knew her.

She entred into Eternity the 14th of April, Anno Dom. 1694.

On a Stone, a little South-westward from the Church is inscrib'd:

Here lyes the Body of Daniel Saul, Spittlefields Weaver, and that's all.

Capt. William Wildy, Mariner, 1679, and Sarah his Wife, 1667. And Richard Wildy late of Ratcliff, 1703.

Capt. Edward Johnson, late of Low Leyton in Essex, Gent. 1669. And Elizabeth his Wife, 1662.

Capt. Nicolas Sulk, 1664, and Margaret Sulk, his Wife, 1660.

Robert Wakelyn, late of Ratcliff, Rope-Merchant, 1679, and Mary his Wife, 1681.

Capt. John Willimot of Ratcliff, 1699.

Richard Power, late Captain of the Prince Rupert, 1681.

Thomas Wise of Ratcliff, Distiller, 1683.

William Aldersey, late Lieutenant of his Majesty's Ship Kingsfisher, 1691.

Capt. John Dawson, late Commander of his Majesty's Ship Advice, 1675.

Capt. Arthur Bailly of Mile-end Green, Mariner, 1682.

James Luton of Yarmouth, Mariner, 1686, and Percis his Wife, 1686. Both in the Month of July within four Days.

ALL these, with a great many more, lie buried under fair Graves-stones, or raised Tombs in Vaults made for the respective Families. Whereby it comes to pass that the Ground of the Church-yard is better improved for Graves: For, by digging these Vaults deep, there is more Room for Burial of Corpses: Which the Church-yard, tho' large, is scarce able to contain. For they bury 2000 People, or upward, every Year.

In the Year 1703, from December the 13th, to December the 14th, 1704, were buried in Stepney Church and Church-yard 2150. Sometimes they bury more in a Week in this single Parish, than are buried in that Space of Time in all the Parishes of LONDON, within the Walls. As in the Bill from the 5th of September to the 12th of the same, Anno 1704.

Buried within the Walls ——— 45

Buried in Stepney ——— 48

THERE are Galleries about the Church, for abundance of People; a Table of Benefactors hanging up; a fair Vicarage House and Garden, not far from the Church, lying on the Left Hand of the Road coming from LONDON, lately inhabited by the Reverend Mr. Wright, some Time Vicar. In the said House remains a good old Picture of Dr. Gouldman, some Time Vicar of the Parish, Doctor of Law, and Justice of Peace.

AT Mile-end Town, within this Parish, there is another Burying-Place, which is peculiar for the Jews. There is a handsome House of Brick, lately erected at the Eastern Part of the Town; through which the Corpse is carried on Mens Shoulders into a large Piece of Ground of an Acre or more, where are abundance of Monuments of Marble, with Hebrew Inscriptions, and the Corpse are laid North and South.

THE most remarkable Places in this Parish are: A Meeting-house in New Virginia-row, another at Bednal-green, another at Stepney: Bednal-green; and there Bishop Bonner's-hall; Part of Ratcliff-croft, and Spring-garden in King Edward's-row.

At the lower End of St. John-street is a Free-School founded and supported by the Donation of two Persons; one was the Town Clerk of the Hamlet of Bednal-green, and the other the Beadle of the same: For 20 Boys of this Hamlet, who are taught to Read, Write, and cast Accompts; Accompts; and 10 Boys taught the same, for which Mrs. Clark left 10 l. per Ann. for ever.

IN Stepney, against the Church-Yard, is a Charity-School for 23 Boys, who are cloathed in Red, and are taught to Read, Write, and cast Accompts, and 3 l. given with each of them when put out Apprentice. Here also are 10 Girls, who are also cloathed in Red, and taught to Read, Write, Knit, Sew, &c. with each of them is given 40 s. when put out. This School is for the Children of the Hamlet of Mile-end Old-town, supported by Subscription, and the Collections made at the Church-Doors when Charity Sermons are preached.

IN Whitehorse-street is a Charity-School for the Hamlet of Ratcliff, where thirty five Boys are cloathed once a Year, and are allowed two Pair of Stockings, two Pair of Shoes, two Bands, and two Shirts every Year: They are taught to Read, Write, and cast Accompts, and 3 l. given with them when put out Apprentice. There are twenty five Girls who are taught to Read, Write, cast Accompts, Knit, and work Plain-work; they are cloathed and allowed two Pair of Stockings, two Pair of Shoes, two Pair of Pattens, two Bands, and two Shifts, every Year; with each of them is given 3 l. when put out. All this is done by Subscription of the Inhabitants of the Hamlet.

IN St. John-street are six Alms-houses for six decayed Men of Bednal-green Hamlet, who have been House-keepers, founded and endowed by the same Person who founded the Free-School; each of them receive 12 s. 6 d. every quarter of a Year; but the full Allowance is 25 s. one Moiety is deducted to reimburse the Money which has been laid out in repairing the Estate, which was given to support these Houses, and poor People.

ADJOINING to these are six Alms-houses for six poor Widows of Dyers, each of whom has 6 s. every Quarter, and 6 s. at Christmas to buy Coals. All which is done by a voluntary Subscription of Master Dyers.

AT Dog-corner are the Drapers Alms-houses, in Number eight, for as many Widows, four of the Freeman of that Company, and four of Seamen, each of them has 1 s. 8 d. per Week paid Monthly by the worshipful Company of Drapers, half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, and a Gown once in two Years. This was the Gift of John Pimell, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, Anno 1698.

IN Dog-row are six Alms-houses, built in the Year 1711, for six Widows of Commanders of Ships; four were built by Captain Fisher, who endowed them with 40 l. per Ann. for ever; the Ground of the other two was purchased by Sir Charles Wager, Kt. and the Houses built at the Expence of Sir William Ogborne, Kt. one of the Sheriffs of LONDON and Middlesex, in the Year 1728. These Houses are given in Trust to the Fraternity of Trinity-house, and each Widow is paid 16 s. every first Monday in the Month, and allowed 10 s. at Midsummer, and Christmas, for Coals.

AT Mile-end, are 12 Alms-Houses for 12 poor Widows of the Skinners Company, each of whom has 2 s. a Week, paid Quarterly, and half a Chaldron of Coals yearly. Here is a Chapel, where they have Prayers twice a Day. These were the Gift of Mr. Lewis Newbury, Citizen and Skinner of LONDON, built by his Executor, Mr. Thomas Glover, (being committed to the Management of the Company of Skinners) 1686, and Mr. Prince, who reads Prayers here, left 100 l. the Interest whereof is given to a Person, who preaches a Sermon every Sunday Morning.

VOL. II.

NEAR to these is the Hospital or Alms-houses of the Corporation of Trinity-house, beautiful and well built, for 28 decayed Commanders of Ships, and Widows of such; each of them has 12 s. paid the first Sunday in every Month; half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, and a Gown once in two Years. There is a Chapel; and Prayers read by a Clergyman. The Ground was given by Captain Henry Mud, as is before-mentioned, and the Alms-houses built in the Year 1695.

THE next are 12 Alms-houses for 12 decayed Vintners, each of whom has 2 s. per Week, paid by the Company of Vintners, and half a Chaldron of Coals given yearly.

BEYOND these are 12 Alms-houses for as many poor Men (past Labour) of the Parish of Stepney, each of whom has 4 l. a Year. These were founded by Judge Fuller, Anno 1592, and the Money remitted to the Skinners Company, out of an Estate in Lincolnshire.

IN Stepney Church-Yard, on the Southerly Side, are 10 Alms-houses for 10 poor Widows of Mercers, each of them has 3 s. 8 d. per Week paid Monthly by the Company; given and endowed by Dame Jane Mico, Relict of Sir Samuel Mico, Mercer. They were built in the Year 1691.

IN Stepney, adjoining to the Charity-School, is a Workhouse for the Poor of Mile-end Old-town.

THIS Parish contains the Hamlets of Bednal-green, Mile-end New-town, Mile-end Old-town, and a Part of the Hamlets of Ratcliff.

NUMBER of Houses are between 5 and 6000.

Now to point to a few Places in this Parish of some Antiquity or Remark: Somewhat North from the Church lies Mile-end, being the great Thoroughfare to the East Parts from LONDON, so called from its Distance from the Middle Parts of LONDON. Here stood antiently an Hospital of poor Lazars, called the House of our Saviour Jesus Christ and Mary Magdalen, at Mile-End of Stephenhuch in the County of Middlesex. To them a Protection to beg was granted by King Edward's Letters Patents, dated Feb. 18, 1551, and John Mills appointed their Proctor, as it is in the Journal of Goodrick, Bishop of Ely, Lord Chancellor.

FURTHER North West lie Spittle-fields, within this Parish, formerly, in the Memory of some, pleasant Fields for the Citizens to walk in, and for good Housewives to whiten their Clothes; now all built into Streets, with a very convenient Market-Place, and a Tabernacle for Divine Worship. It was very antiently a great Burying-Place, and 80 Years ago, more or less, were many Roman Urns digged up here; whereupon learned Men, (and particularly Dr. Merick Casaubon) have made their Observations; which has been noted in Bishopsgate Ward.

BUT to pass from these North Parts of the Parish to the Southern, there lay formerly a great Marsh, or Marshes, called Stebunhith Marsh, and Poplar Marsh; but it was found by a Jury, upon Inquisition, to be one and the same Marsh, and not divers. There was a Manor antiently called Pountfret's Manor, lying in Stebunhith Marsh.

IN the 4th of King Henry VIII. the Abbot of Grace, or de Gratiis (which was an Abbey near the Tower) demised to the Bishop of LONDON, for the Term of 80 Years, all his drowned Ground lying in the Marsh called, The wet Marsh of Stebunhith and Poplar, in the County of Middlesex, for the only Consideration of 20 s. yearly Rent. King Edward VI. by Letters Patents granted unto the old Lord Wentworth and his Heirs, the Maior of Stebunhith, and all the Marsh-Ground in Stebunhith. By which general Words the Lord Wentworth claimed the aforesaid Abbot's Lands, demised to the said Bishop; which Lands letten by the Abbot were rated as Parcels of his Value. In Queen Elizabeth's Days one Hyde, a Servant of the Lord Chief Baron Manwood, pretending that the whole Wet Marsh, being worth 160 l. by Year, should be the Abbot's Land, and letten by him by the aforesaid Lease for 20 s. Rent; but he did not demise the Wet Marsh; but all his drowned Ground lying in the Marsh. And pretending that the said Wet Marsh should lie in Poplar Marsh, and not in Stebunhith Marsh: Therefore all the same Land so letten by the Abbot were suggested to be concealed from her Majesty. Hence Letters Patents were procured thereof unto Mr. Farnham and his Heirs, 16 Years past, whose Estate therein Hyde purchased. The Lord Chief Baron Manwood, and Sir Thomas Bromley, Lord Chancellor, examined the Title of the Lord Wentworth shortly after, upon an Information of Intrusion before the Chief Baron. And albeit her Majesty had before departed with her Right and Interest therein, there was by Trial and Judgment as much Land recovered from the said Lord as was worth 80 l. by Year, over and beside a great Sum of Money due for Arrearages of the same.

WHICH Judgment, examined and called in Question, by Writ of Error, before the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Treasurer Burghley, and other her Majesty's Justices, was reversed and made void, after a new Information of Intrusion was exhibited before the said Baron for those Lands: Whereupon Complaint unto the Queen, for the Chief Baron's partial Dealings, and that he was no competent Judge for the Cause; she commanded her Attorney, and Solicitor, that no further Proceeding in Suit should be in her Name before the said Chief Baron. And that if Hyde so would, a new Information should be exhibited in her Name, before her Justice of her Common Pleas; or her Bench (at Hyde's Election) of the same Lands, with good Regard, that there might be Proceeding therein (in Favour of Hyde) with all Indifferency: Whereupon, an Information was exhibited in the King's Bench, and the Matter at Issue; special Choice was made of a Jury, by the Attorney, in the Presence of the said Hyde, not any one being admitted, against whom he did except.) Which Jury returned, the Matter was deliberately heard before the Justice there; Mr. Attorney and Mr. Solicitor being there for her Majesty, and Hyde to inform them. The Jury found, that the Lands demised by the Abbot was 20 Acres; and that the Marsh wherein the same lieth, was known as well by the Name of Stebunhith Marsh, as Poplar Marsh; and that they were all one, not diverse. Upon which Verdict so found, Judgment was afterwards solemnly pronounced for the Lord Wentworth; after that, all the Judges had severally, upon solemn Argument in open Court, shewed their Opinion to be very clear, that those 20 Acres past for the King by Letters Patents made unto the Lord Wentworth.

SINCE which Time the Matter was called in Question in the Star-Chamber; and since that Time, a new Suit by Information of Intrusion was commenced before her Majesty's Justices of Common-Pleas. All this is taken out of a Breviate drawn by the Lord Wentworth, Grandson to the first Lord Wentworth, to whom King Edward granted it.

IN the Reigns of Queen Elizabeth, and King James I. Contests happened between the Lords Wentworth, Lords of this Manor of Stepney, and of a Manor next adjoining upon it at Hackney, and

and the Copyhold Tenants, concerning their Customs and Privileges; which at last was adjusted and agreed by Covenant between them, several Thousands of Pounds being paid by them to the said Lords.

BESIDES other Charities already mentioned in the Parish of Stepney, there is one that is constant, by Means of a yearly Meeting of the Natives, called The Cockney's Feast; when after a Sermon preached at the Parish Church before them by some Clergyman born in the Parish, the eight Stewards and the rest of the Natives commonly take a Walk with Officers and Musick playing before them, through Lime-house and Ratcliff, and so return back to a House near the Church, and there dine plentifully and friendly together: New Stewards chosen for the ensuing Year, and a Collection made for the putting out of poor Parish-Children Apprentices to the Sea or other Trades. The Collections usually made Amount to 15, 18, or 20 l. of which each Steward takes his equal Dividend, and with it puts out some poor Child. And some of these Children thrive so well, that they have come to be Stewards themselves. And that it may visibly appear what Good is done by these yearly Assemblies, the said Boys so put out, (which are now very many) are obliged to walk two and two before the Company in their said Procession.

CHAP. II.

Of the SUBURB without Bishopsgate.

FROM Aldgate North West, lies Houndsditch, leading to Bishopsgate; North and by East of which, lies a large Street, or Highway, having on the West Side thereof, the Parish-Church of St. Borolp.

THERE was formerly the Hospital of St. Mary of Bethlem, founded by a Citizen of LONDON, as is before shewed. Thence the said Street leads to Nortonfalgate, a Liberty so called, belonging to the Dean of St. Paul's. Here was first of all set up a Charity-School, by a voluntary Combination of well disposed Gentlemen; whereof Mr. Seymour, Mr. Turner, &c. were the Chief; out of Compassion towards those poor People inhabiting in that Liberty, without any Parish, and so void of any Care to be taken of them in their Poverty. They maintain a School-master, allowing him 30 l. per Annum, who teaches the Children Reading and Writing, and to say their Catechism. There are in Number threescore and ten, and are cloathed as well as taught. The voluntary Subscriptions upon the Death of the first Subscribers began some Years ago to fall off. Mr. Turner then was the Chief Person that took the Care and Charge thereof. They send out twelve or more every Year, and so take in more to fill up the Number. Thence also up to the late dissolved Priory of St. John the Baptist, called Halywell, an House of Nuns, of old Time founded by a Bishop of LONDON. Stephen Gravesend, Bishop of LONDON, about the Year 1318, was a Benefactor thereunto, re-edified by Sir Thomas Lovel, Knight of the Garter, brought up in Lincoln's Inn, who built much there, and in this Place, in the Reigns of Henry VII. and of Henry VIII. He endowed this House with fair Lands, and was there buried in a large Chapel by him built for that Purpose. Here he had also a Seat to dwell in. He made his Will December the 10th, in the 14th Year of King Henry VIII. therein bequeathing his Body to be buried within the Monastery of Nuns, called Halywel, in a little Chapel there made by him. He willed his Cousin Francis Lovel should have his Mansion-place at Halywel. He died 1528. This Priory was valued, at the Suppression, to have of Lands two hundred ninety three Pounds by Year, and was surrendered 1539, the 31st of Henry VIII. The Church thereof being pulled down, many Houses were there built for the Lodgings of Noblemen, of Strangers born, and others.

AND near thereunto were built two publick Houses, for the Acting and Shew of Comedies, Tragedies, and Histories for Recreation. Whereof the one called the Courtein, the other, the Theatre; both standing on the South West Side toward the Field.

FROM this House was carried the Corpse of the Lady Rutland, Oct. 21, 1559, to Shoreditch Church, with thirty Clerks and Priests singing; about threescore poor Men and Women in black Gowns; Mourners, to the Number of an hundred; two Heralds of Arms, Garter and York; then came the Corpse, afore a great Banner of Arms, and about her four goodly Banner Rolls of divers Arms. Mr. Becon preached. After was dispersed a great Dole of Money, being 2 d. a Piece to each. And so all departed to the Place to Dinner. About the Vallance was written, Sic transit Gloria Mundi.

FROM Halywell, in the High Street, is a continual Building of Tenements to Shoreditch, or Sewers Ditch, where some Time stood a Cross, now a Smith's Forge, dividing three Ways: Forthright, the Highway is builded upon either Side more than a good Flight Shoot towards Kingsland, Newington, Tottenham, &c.

ON the Left Hand is Ealde-street, or Old-street, which reacheth West; to where a Stone Cross stood, over-against the North End of Golden-lane, and so to the End of Goswel-street. On the Right Hand of this Ealde-street, not far from Shoreditch, but on the North Side thereof, is Hoxton, a large Street, with Houses on both Sides; and is a Prebend belonging to St. Paul's Church in LONDON, but of Shoreditch Parish.

ON the Right Hand, beyond Shoreditch Church, towards Hackney, are some Houses upon the Common Soil, (for it was a Lay-Stall,) but these Houses belong to the Parish of Stebenhith.

ON the other Side of the High-way, from Bishopsgate and Houndsditch, the first Building was a large Inn called the Dolphin, then a handsome House for the Lord John Pawlet; next to which, was a large House and Gardens for Pleasure, built by Jasper Fisher; from this up to the West End of Berward's or Hog-lane, was a continued Building of small Cottages, and then the Hospital, Hospital, called St. Mary's-Spittle, just within the Bars, which has been already spoken of in Bishopsgate-Ward.

FROM which Bars, towards Shoreditch, on that Side, is all along, a continual Building of small and base Tenements, amongst which was one Row of proper small Houses, with Gardens, for poor decayed People, there placed by the Prior of the said Hospital; every one Tenant whereof payed 1 d. Rent by the Year at Christmas, and dined with the Prior on Christmas Day. But after the Suppression of the Hospital, these Houses, for want of Reparations, in few Years were so decayed, that it was called Rotten-row, and the Poor worn out, for there came no new in their Place. The Houses, for a small Portion of Money, were sold from Goddard to Russel a Draper, who rebuilt them, and let them out for Rent enough; taking also large Fines of the Tenants, near as much as the Houses cost him purchase and building; for he made Bargains so hardly with all Men, that both Carpenter, Bricklayer, and Plaisterer, were by that Work undone. And yet in Honour of his Name, it is now called Russel's-row.

THE Manor of Shoreditch, with the Polhowse and Bowes, (so expressed in the Record) lately belonging to John de Northampton of LONDON, Draper, was granted 15 Richard II. to Edmund Duke of York, and Earl of Cambridge, Isabel his Wife, and Edward Earl of Roteland, Son of the same Edmund and Isabel.

The PARISH of St. LEONARD in Shoreditch.

THE Church here was dedicated to St. Leonard, who was, about the Year 500, baptized at Raynes in France. He is said to have wrought many Miracles; that he refused a Bishoprick, but was afterwards Prelate in a Monastery, and died a natural Death, Anno 570.

It is an old Gothick Building, having four Isles, which is one more than is any where else to be met with. It is of Brick and Stone, the Roof covered with Tile, it was repaired in the Year 1675. (having been in no Danger of Fire in 1666.) The Gallery was built at the Charge of William Thornton, in 1581. The Altar-piece was new done, Anno 1700, and the Church was repaired in 1704.

As to Ornament, the Inside of the Roof is ceiled with Wood, and mostly painted Nebulous.

At the West End is a Gallery, 'tis well Pewed with Oak, and the Pulpit Cedar. The Altar-piece has the Commandments, Lord's-prayer, and Creed, done in white on black. Over the two last, are the Words of St. John; God is a Spirit; and they that worship him, must do it in Spirit and in Truth.

AND over the Commandments the Words,

The Law was given by Moses; but Grace and Truth came by Jesus Christ.

Which Altar-piece is inclosed with Rail and Ballister. Here is a small painted Window. The Story is of our Saviour sitting at his last Supper, with his twelve Disciples; all sitting upon Forms, (you must consider the Art more than the Learning of the Workman) and Judas with his Purse in his Hand; the Table furnished with a standing Cup, a Candle, a Salt, two Penny Loaves, a Knife, square Trenchers, and the Pascal Lamb in a Dish.

IN the Vestry, hard by the Chancel, on the East Window, there is another fair painted Glass with the Figure of the Father embracing the Prodigal Son; and underneath a Signification of the Donor, and Date, in these Words inscribed, Ex dono Thomæ Austin, Civis and Clothworker, London, Anno Domini 1634.

UPON a Place exalted in the Chancel, is mention made of the last Reparation of the Chancel, viz. The Commandments were new writ, and this Chancel raised and repaired at the Cost of the Parish, Anno Dom. 1700.

THE Dimensions of the Church are Length 75; Breadth 66, and that of the Steeple, (which is a Tower) about 70 Feet, wherein are five Bells.

MONUMENTS.

In this Church have been divers honourable Persons buried, as appeareth by Monuments yet remaining, viz.

Sir John Elrington, with Margaret his Wife, Daughter and Heir to Thomas Lord Itchingham; Widow to William Blount, Son and Heir to Walter Blount, the first Lord Mountjoy; which Margaret died, 1481. &c.

On the South Side of the Altar, is a spacious Marble Monument, of the Ionick Order, with this Inscription:

This Monument is erected in Memory of William Fremlin, Esq; eldest Son of Thomas Fremlin, and Ann his Wife, both of this Parish, deceased; whose better Genius having disposed his Desires wholly unto Travel, he was in the 18th Year of his Age, entertained by the Honourable East India Company, and by them employed in the remotest Regions of Asia, where his Abilities and fair Comportment found so good Approbation, that within three Years after his Arrival he was sent to reside Agent at the Court of the great Mogul; and then the more important Affairs of the Honourable Company wanting his Assistance, in the chief Residence at Surat, he was called thither to supply the Place of Second in Council and Command; which Trust he discharged with such approved Diligence and Dexterity, that by express Order he was appointed President, and so continued five Years, to the great Satisfaction of his Honourable Employers, and the abundant Content of his own Nation, whom he governed, and those other among whom he lived. And then returning for England, God was pleased to deliver him from as imminent Danger of Shipwreck as ever any Man escaped, that he arrived in Safety after the Expiration of nineteen Years, three Months, and 21 Days; to find a Grave in the Land and Parish of his Nativity; for now, alas! he began to languish, and upon the 13th of March 1645, put a Period to this Pilgrimage, in the 38th Year of his Age, having by his last Will and Testament bequeathed to charitable Uses 870 l. and more particularly to the Poor of this Parish 200 l.

Rest weary Traveller, a quiet Repose Suits well with active Men; but chiefly those
Of whose unwearied Works we truly say,
They bear the Brunt and Burthen of the Day:
Such Days in such a Climate so well spent,
As made the Precedent a President.

Après Travailie Repos.

ARMS: Gules a Chevron between three Helms Argent. For the Crest, an Elephant.

ON an antient Tomb in the Choir:

Orate pro animabus Humfredi Starky, Militis, nuper Capitalis Baronius de Scaccario Domini Regis, Hen. VII. & Isabellæ uxoris ejus & omnium, &c.

ON a very fair Tomb in the upper End of the Choir:

This Monument is erected in Memory, that within this Church do lie buried the Bodies of the Right Honourable and Noble Ladies, Lady Katharine Stafford, Daughter to Edward Duke of Buckingham, and Wife to Ralph, Earl of Westmerland, who dyed 1553, Lady Elianor, Daughter to Sir William Paston, Knight, and Wife to the Right Honourable Lord Thomas, Earl of Rutland, buried 1551. Lady Margaret Nevel, Daughter to Ralph Earl of Westmerland, and Wife to Henry, Earl of Rutland, who dyed 1560. And the Lady Katharine Nevel, Wife to Sir John Constable of Holdernefs, Knight, and Daughter to Henry, Earl of Westmerland. And Lady Anne Manners, Daughter to Thomas Earl of Rutland, which Katharine died the seven and twentieth Day of March, Anno Domini 1591.

And that here do lie also the Bodies of two right worthy Gentlemen, honourably descended; namely, of Sir Tho. Mannors, Knt. and Oliver Mannors, Esq; Brethren, being the fourth and fifth Sons of the aforesaid Tho. Earl of Rutland. The first died about his Age of fifty; in June, 1591, after many valiant Services performed by him for his Prince and Country, both in Ireland and in Scotland, where he was Knighted, and witnessed by sundry great Wounds he therein received. The second died in his younger Years, 1563, about his Age of twenty, yet not before good Proof made of his Valour and Forwardness, in the Service of Newhaven against the French, where he took the Sickness, whereof he died shortly after in Shoreditch.

Founded by the Lady Adeline Nevel, at the Direction of the said Lady Katharine Constable, deceased, her Sisters, in February, 1591.

Theodosia { Oleum effusum nomen tuum, Ideo
Vavasour { Adolescentulæ dilexerunt te. Cant. 1.

{ Fallax est gratia, & vana pulchritudo:
mulier timens Deum, ipsa laudabitur. Pro. 11.

ON a fair Tomb in the Chancel is this Inscription:

Here lyeth buried Elizabeth, the Wife of the late Reverend Father in God, John Shory, late Bishop of Hereford. The said Reverend Father, in the Reign of King Edw. VI. was Bishop of Rochester, and translated from thence to Chichester. He departed this Life at Whirborn in the County of Hereford, the 26th of June, Anno Domini 1585. And the said Elizabeth deceased in Holywel in this Parish, the 8th Day of March, 1592.

Beati mortui qui Domini moriuntur.

Her Corpse here lyes in Chest,
Her Soul in Heaven now lives;
And she enjoys that Rest,
Which God to his Saints gives:
For in Christ did she trust,
That he will her restore
Again out of the Dust,
To live for evermore.

VOL. II.

On an antient Marble in the Chancel:

Here lieth the Body of Sir Thomas Seymer, Knt. late Alderman and Lord Mayor of LONDON, and Dame Mary his Wife; the which Sir Thomas deceased the 11th Day of December, Anno Domini, 1532.

ON an engraven Plate in the North Wall of the Choir:

Here-under lye the Ashes and Bones
Of Sir Thomas Leigh that good and learned Knight,
Whose hasty Death (alafs!) the Godly still bemoans,
Though his Soul always rejoice in God's Sight;
Great was his Wisdom, and greater was his Wit,
His Visage comely, with no sad Change dismayed;
A Man in all Affairs, a King to serve most fit,
Had not Death so soon his mortal Life betrayed.

He died the 25th Day of November, Anno Dom. 1545.

South Side of the Chancel:

Jeane, the Wife of Ralph Hansby, Esq; Daughter to William Vavasor, Esq; Grandchild to Thomas Mannors, Knight, dyed the twenty second Day of July, in the Year of our Lord 1617, and of her Age the twenty-third, to whose blessed Memory her dear Husband dedicates this said Monument, to signify, that with her his Joys lies here interred.

If Birth, if Vertue, if fair Feature deckt
With Gifts of Mind, if Piety breeds Respect;
Her Tomb then view and grace, kind Passenger,
With whom so many Graces buried were.
Conquer'd by Patience, yet she overcame;
Nor was her Youth Death's Triumph, but his Shame.

Middle Chancel this Inscription in Brass:

Georgius Gips, Generosus, fide Subjectus, spe erectus, Charitate Deo unitus, vitam mortalem mutavit pro immortalis 12 Julii 1611. Quatuor genuit filios, filiasque undecim. Quorum Richardus, Georgius, Thomas, Anna, Maria & Martha, Patris clausurunt, reliquorum ipse clausit Lumina.

A little below upon a Grave-stone:

May 22, 1618, Richard Leigh, Merchant and Citizen of LONDON, placed this Stone in Memorial of his dear Wife Anne Leigh, who lyeth here interred by the Body of Richard Brattuph her first Husband; and of her three Children, Richard, Sarah and John, which she bare to the said Richard Brattuph.

In some sad Sickness Pain, and Pain Impatience,
In thee a patient Penitence is wrought.
Thy Sickness, Joy, thy Tribulation, Hope,
Thy Bodies Death gave Life unto thy Soul.
Thus for his Lambs the Lord can Hony draw
From th' all-devouring cruel Lyon's Jaw.

Ubi tua, O Mors, victoria? Ubi tuus, O Sepulchrum, Tumulus.

OVER-AGAINST this, in the Wall on the South Side of the Chancel, in Brass:

Here lieth Katharine Lively, Wife of Edward Lively, Gent. and Daughter of Henry Hodge, 8 R Citizen

Citizen and Brewer of LONDON, and Joice his Wife, who after she had run a vertuous and religious Course of Life 21 Years, finished the same the 15th Day of July, Anno Dom. 1623.

Proverbs x. 7. The Memory of the Just is blessed.

Add to these, in the North Wall :

Hereunder lyeth Robert Hary Young, and Margery hys Wyf; and Rychard Hary Young hys Sonne; and Elyzabeth and Margaret his Wyffs; some Tyme both Provosts of the Kynge's Mynt within the Towre of LONDON, which Rychard Hary Young deceased the xxiii Day of August in the Yere of our Lord God MDXLV, in the xxxvi Yere of the Reign of Kynge Henry VIII. The rest scratched out.

Over this Monument is another, viz.

Sir Alexander St. John, Knight, Son of the Right Honourable Oliver Lord St. John, Baron of Bletso, caused this Monument to be erected in Memory of his late faithful and truly vertuous Consort, Lady Margäret St. John, Daughter of John Trye of Hardwick in the County of Gloucester, Esq; whose Body lieth near unto this Place interred, expecting a glorious Resurrection.

On the South Side in a Chapel, in Brass :

Hic jacent Johannes Gadde, quondam Civis & Scharman LONDON: Qui ob _____ die Mensis _____ An. Dom. M. CCCC° _____ Et Anna uxor ejus, quæ ob. primo die Mensis Jan. An. Dom. M. CCCCLXXXIII°.

The Prayers for their Souls defaced.

NOTWITHSTANDING of late one Vicar there, for Covetousness of the Brass, which he converted into coined Silver, plucked up many Plates fixed on the Graves, and left no Memory of such as had been buried under them : A great Injury both to the Living and the Dead; forbidden by publick Proclamation, in the Reign of our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth; but not forbore by many, that either of a preposterous Zeal, or of a greedy Mind, spare not to satisfy themselves by so wicked a Means.

MONUMENTS there be these of later Times in this Church of Shoreditch :

In the Chancel :

Johannes Austin, Armiger, 1659. Qui obiit Conscientia bona, & fama bona.

Thomas Austin, Armiger, 165....

Cutbert Burbage and Elizabeth his Wife; they departed in September 1636.

North Isle :

Winifrid and Marina, Daughter of Sir Charles Pitfield of Hoxton, Knight, whose Daughter dyed 1673. And his Wife, 1676.

Juxta hunc Tumulum jacent Johannes Byde Cives & Aldermannus LONDON, & Dorothea Conjux ejus 1665. superstites Filii Thomas Byde, Eques Aurat. & Edwardus Byde natu minor e Societate Lincoln. Armiger.

Thomas Austin and John Austin, Esquires, two most dearly affectionate Brothers: Both of the Honourable House of Lincoln's Inn. Both married and had Issue. Thomas departed 1658, aged 36 Years. John 1659, aged 33.

Anne Slater, 1681.

Esther Haughton; Wife of Samuel Haughton, Citizen and Scriviner of London. Departed 1668. And buried near her Father Robert Cock.

BENEFACTORS.

A TABLE made at the Cost and Charges of Henry Hodge, Citizen and Brewer of LONDON, containing the Names of the Benefactors to the Church, and the Poor of the Parish of St. Leonard's in Shoreditch. Which Table hangs up in the Chancel near the Communion Table, set up there Anno Dom. 1623.

William Thornton of this Parish, Taylor, gave the Vestry-house, with a Room under for the Minister to dwell in, and a Tenement by it, to this Parish for ever. He likewise built the Gallery at the coming in at the great Door in the Church, and made the Brick Wall on the West Side of the Church-yard, at his own Charge, Anno Dom. 1581.

John Fuller of Bishop's Hall, Esq; gave a Sum of Money for the building twelve Alms-houses, for twelve poor Widows of this Parish. Which poor Women did receive during the Life of the Lady his late Wife, and after Wife to Sir Thomas Mansfield; the Sum of 8 l. per Annum. And after the Lady's Decease, there is to come 50 l. per Annum, to the said poor Almswomen for ever. The Lady being dead, they now receive it.

William Peake of this Parish, Esq; gave, to be dealt in Bread unto the Poor of this Parish, Weekly, the Sum of two Shillings on every Sunday for ever.

Robert Brainforth of this Parish, Gentleman, gave yearly 8 l. for ever, unto the Poor of this Parish, viz. upon every St. Thomas's Day before Christmas, to sixty poor People, 3 l. REMARKABLE Places and Things: In the Year 1581, William Thornton, of this Parish, Taylor, gave the Vestry-house, joining to the Church, which is a handsome convenient Dwelling, set a-part for a Habitation for the Clerk of this Parish; adjoining to which is a large airy House, and Garden, for a Dwelling for the Vicar.

IN Holy-well-street is a Still-house, known by the Name of the Holy-well Still-house; belonging to which is a curious large Well, call'd, The Holy-well, from which the Street takes its Name; which Well was a Place of great Resort in the Romish Times, when that which is call'd King John's Court, was a Priory.

IN Hoxton is a handsome Square, well-inhabited, and on the West Side of Pitfield-street is a pleasant, well inhabited Square, call'd Charles-square; and at the End of Pitfield-street, near the Farthing-pye-house-fields, is an excellent Spring of clear Water, vulgarly call'd, Annisclaire, but properly, Agnes the Clear, now made a very handsome and commodious Cold Bath.

THE last remarkable Place is King John's Court, which is a very antient Building, situated near Holy-well-lane.

IN Kingland Road is a very handsome and beautiful School built by Subscription, in the Year 1722, in which there are Apartments for a Master and Mistress, who have 100 Children under their Care, viz. fifty Boys and fifty Girls, who who are maintained by Subscription, are cloathed yearly, the Boys in light Grey, with Brafs Buttons, and the Girls in deep Blue, and have Books provided for them; when they arrive at the Age of 14 Years, they are put forth Apprentices, the Boys have 3 l. given with them, and the Girls 1 l. The Boys are taught to Read, Write, and cast Accompts, and the Girls to Read, Sew, Knit, Mark, &c.

At the upper End of Pitfield-street is Aske's Hospital, of which see an Account Vol. I. Book I. Chap. XIV.

NEAR Hoxton are six Alms-houses, containing 12 Rooms, for the Widows of 12 Weavers, each of whom has 1 l. per Ann. paid quarterly, and 24 Bushels of Coals.

NEAR to these are 12 Alms-houses for 12 poor Widows of Shoreditch Parish, each of whom has 4 l. per Ann. and one Sack of Coals, founded by Judge Fuller, as is before-mentioned in the Table of Benefactors. These Alms-houses were repaired Anno 1683.

Also eight Alms-houses where eight poor Widows of this Parish, have 5 s. per Month, and half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, founded and endowed by John Walter, Citizen and Draper of LONDON.

LIKEWISE six Houses for six poor Men (or for Men and their Wives) of this Parish, each of whom has 1 l. a Year, the Gift of Allen Badger, Esq. Anno 1698.

NORTHWARD from the above in Hoxton Town, are two Alms-houses built by Mr. Bearmore.

ON the East Side of Kingsland-road are 12 Alms-houses given by Mr. Samuel Harwar, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, built in the Year 1713; in six of them the Drapers Company put in decayed Freemen, or their Wives, and the other six are filled up by the Parish. Every one has a Load of Coals yearly, and 6 s. per Month, paid by the Drapers Company.

NEAR to these, in the same Road, is Ironmongers Hospital, founded by Sir Robert Jefsseries, of which see an Account Vol. I. Book I. Chap. XIV. But add this, that about six Years ago Mr. Betton, who was one of the Ironmongers Company, was here buried under a plain Tomb-stone, with only his Coat of Arms upon it, and left 10 l. a Year to increase the Salary of the Minister of the said Hospital.

BEYOND these, towards Hackney, are six handsome airy Alms-houses for decayed Members of the Goldsmiths Company, and to which Company they belong.

IN Mulberry-court, in the Liberty of Moorfields, are Alms-houses belonging to the Dutch Church.

THERE is a large airy Workhouse at the upper End of Hoxton, opposite to the Land of Promise. Here the Poor are employed to Card, Spin, Knit, Sew, &c. and a Master is kept in the House to instruct the poor Children, who are there to Read: There is a Steward belonging to the House, but the Church-wardens are Comptrollers over him; the chief Affairs are managed by a Committee of the Inhabitants, chosen out of the several Liberties of this Parish, who meet every Monday and Thursday in the Afternoon for that Purpose.

THIS Parish is divided into four Liberties, viz. Church-end and Hoxton, Holywell-street, Moorfields, and Long-alley.

STREETS, Lanes, &c.

In the Liberty of Church-end and Hoxton:

Kingsland-road, Rotten-row, Duke's-alley, Badgers-yard, Ball-alley, Bull-yard, Red-lion-

court, Spread-eagle-alley, Blunderbuss-court, Star-yard; all these are in Kingsland-road. Near the Church are the School-yard, Cox's-court, Fermyn's-rents, Parson's-yard, Benson's-alley, Cass's-alley, Totbills-lane, Pear-tree-alley, and King's-arms-yard

In Hoxton are;

Constable's-alley, Trotman's-alley, Pitman's-buildings, Land-of-Promise, Small-bear-alley, Queen's-head-yard, White-hind-yard, Golden-anchor-alley, Hoxton-square, King's-street, Crown-street, Hoxton-market, Pitfield-street, Charles-square, Old-street to the Bridge, Agnus-the-clear, alias Anniseed-clear, and Black-horse-yard.

In the Liberty of Holywell-street,

ON the East Side of Holywell-street are Lancaster-yard, Bryant's-alley, Hare-alley, Cock-alley, Dirty-lane, Catline's-alley, Swan-yard, Hill's-alley, Goddard's-rents, Badger's-alley, Sugar-loaf-court, Unicorn-alley, and Magpye-alley.

Behind which East Side, are

Cock-lane, Dunkirk-court, Rose-and-crown-court, York-street, New-court, Webb's-square, Bryant's-street, and Blossom's-street.

On the West Side of Holywell-street, are

Hog-lane, King's-head-yard, Leg-alley, Bowl-court, Black-dog-yard, Stocking-frame-alley, Rose-alley, Three-cup-alley, Pinders-alley, George-yard, Phipps-alley, Black-swan-alley, Sheers-alley, Holywell-lane, Mortar-alley, New-inn-yard, and the Alleys in that Compass; Humphrey-alley, and Artichook-alley.

Behind which West Side, are

Curtain-tenter-ground, Ditch-side, Holywell-court, Crown-court, King John's-court, Brewers-yard, and Red-lion-court.

In the Liberty of Moorfields, are

Sun-dial-court, Horse-shoe-alley, White-cross-alley, Mulberry-court, Crown-alley, Duke's-court, Christophers-alley, King-street, Princes-street, Queen-street, Butchers-close, and Part of Windmill-street.

In the Liberty of Long-alley, are PART of Rose-and-crown-alley, Pump-court, Flying-horse-court, Thread-needle-alley, Maxhams-court, Hand-alley, Crooked-billet-court, Ball-alley, Crown-alley, Three-bowl-alley; Part of Primrose-alley, and Part of Angel-court.

NUMBER of Houses are about 2600.

ONE Note more of Shoreditch, and so an End of that Suburb.

WE read, that in the Year 1440, the 18th of Henry VI. a Fuller of Shoreditch appeached of Treason many worthy Esquires and Gentlemen of Kent; but he being proved false, was attainted, condemned, and had Judgment to be drawn, hanged and quartered; which was done, his Head set on London-bridge, and his Quarters on the Gates. This Justice was done according to the 16th of Deuteronomy, The Judges shall make diligent Inquisition, and if the Witnesses be found false, and to have given false Witnesses against his Brother, Brother, then shall they do unto him, as he had thought to do unto his Brother, &c.

WE have likewise read of the King's Manor, called Shoreditch, in the Parish of Hackney; but how it took that Name, we know not.

THIS House is now called Shore-place. The vulgar Tradition now goes, that Jane Shore lived here, and here her Royal Lover used to visit her. But we have the Credit of Mr. Stow that the true Name was Shoreditch-place, and 'tis not unlikely to have been the Place of a Knight called Sir John de Sordich, a great Man in King Edward III. his Days, who was with that King in his Wars in France, and is remembered in our Annals in the 14th of King Edward III. He was Owner of Lands in Hackney, as well in Demesne as in Service, which he gave to Croston, his Chaplain. This, Wever notes, who thinks Shoreditch to be named from the said Knight. This Shore-place, or Shoreditch-place was (they say) the Manor-house, called The King's-hold, in Distinction from another Manor called The Lord's-hold, both possessed by one Francis Tisfen of Shackelwel, Esq; but this House with the Lands about it, now belongs to Christ's Hospital.

The LIBERTY of NORTON-FALGATE.

THIS Liberty, which of a very antient Date is said to belong to the Parish of St. Faith, by St. Paul's; but the Antients of this Liberty say, that it is Extra-Parochial, because they maintain their own Poor, Marry and Bury where they please. But tho' Part of the Liberty may be so, yet the whole is not, for Part of Long-alley, Hog-lane, and Blossom-street, pay towards the Maintenance of the Poor of St. Leonard Shoreditch, in which Parish they stand; but as to Watch and Ward they pay to this Liberty.

THEY have a Tabernacle in Spittle-yard, which was built by Sir George Wheeler, and is now fallen very much to Decay, and the Ministers, who have no certain Stipend, are the Reverend Mr. Lamplugh, who reads Prayers and preaches every Sunday Morning; and the Reverend Mr. Green, who does the like every Sunday in the Afternoon.

No Prayers on Week Days, except in the Time of Lent, and then they are on Wednesdays and Fridays, about Eleven o'Clock in the Morning.

The OFFICERS of this LIBERTY are as follows, viz.

2 Overseers.	2 Scavengers.
1 Constable.	2 Surveyors of the Highway.
6 Headboroughs.

ALL the Affairs of the Liberty are managed by the Antients, who are in the Nature of a Vestry.

OVER the Watch-house in Norton-falgate, is a Free-school already mentioned.

IN Blossoms-street is a Charity-school for 25 Girls, who are taught to Read, Knit, Sew and Mark; they make their own Cloaths, and wear light Cinamon Colour Gowns. The Mistress has a House, in which the School is kept, is allowed two Chaldron of Coals a Year, 10 l. a Year, and one Guinea for instructing the Girls in Psalmody. All this done by Subscription and Collection at the Tabernacle Door, once in every Quarter of the Year, when Charity Sermons are preached for the Benefit of these poor Girls.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

Spittle-yard; Part of White-lion-yard, and therein Tinder-box-alley, Blossom-street, Elder-street; Part of Flower-de-luce-street, Porter's-square, Sharp's-alley, and therein Part of Long-alley, Moor's-alley, Cock-alley, Wood's-court, and Part of Hog-lane.

Number of Houses about 200.

The PARISH of Christ-Church in Spittle-Fields.

ON the East Side, and near the Middle of Church-street in Spittle-fields, is situated the new Church, called Christ-church in Spittle-fields; it was founded in the Year 1723, and built and finished in 1729.

THE Building here is very strong and substantial, but greatly found Fault with by some Critics in Architecture.

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of Brazen-nose College, in Oxford, the Value is 300 l. per Ann. or upwards.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Wright, and the Lecturers are the Reverend Mr. Dubourdien; and Mr. Lewis.

PRAYERS are every Wednesday, Friday and Holiday at Eleven o'Clock, an Organ and eight Bells. Here are Charity Sermons once a Quarter, for the Charity Children, and last Lent Sermons were preached every Wednesday and Friday for the same Use, which it is hoped will be continued: And on the last Friday in every Month is a Preparation Sermon.

THE Vestry consists of those who have served or fined for the Office of Overseer for the Poor, and are in Number about 195.

The PARISH OFFICERS are,	The PEACE-OFFICERS are,
2 Church-wardens.	1 Constable.
12 Auditors of Ac- compts.	9 Headboroughs.
4 Overseers	1 Surveyor of the High- ways.
1 Sidesman.	4 Scavengers.
	2 Surveyors of Streets.
	1 Aleconner.

THE remarkable Places and Things are Spittle-fields-market, wherein there was a Market-house, but having been consumed a few Years since by Fire, Stalls have been built all round the Market, and in the Middle are sold Greens, Roots, &c. A Chapel on the Back-side of Wheeler-street, which was frequented by the Inhabitants before their Church was built, now maintained by the Inhabitants residing in the Old Artillery-ground, which Chapel was built by Sir George Wheeler. In the same Street is a French Church, another in Crispin-street, another in Grey-eagle-street, at the Corner of Black-eagle-street; another in Brown's-lane, erected about eleven Years ago. On the South Side of Quakers-street is a Quakers Meeting.

HERE is a Charity School for 30 Boys and 30 Girls; the Boys are taught to Read, Write, and cast Accompts, and the Girls to Read, Sew, Knit, &c. Master of the Boys has 20 l. per Ann. and there is a Mistress for the Girls. In Rose-lane and Crispin-street are Alms-houses for the Use of the Poor. In Bell-lane is a Work-house, a Building held by Lease, wherein the Poor are employed and maintained, who are in Number about 120, and their chief Work is winding of Silk for Throwsters. There is a House-keeper and Matron to look after them, and a Surgeon who attends twice a Week, and is allowed for Physick 12 l. per Ann. The House is managed by a Committee chosen by the Vestry, and they meet at this House every Thursday. In Grey-eagle-street, adjoining to the French Chapel, is an Hospital, in which the French maintain their own Poor.

THIS Parish is divided into the Old Town, and New Town, which was called the Hamlet of Spittle-fields, and is taken out of Stepney Parish.

The SUBURB without MOORGATE.

WE will now turn back from Shoreditch-cross to Bethlem-cross, and so pass thro' the Hospital of St. Mary Bethlem in Moorfields, which lies without the Postern called Moor-gate.

THIS Field (of old Time) was called, The Moor, as appears by the Charter of William the Conqueror, to the College of St. Martin, declaring a running Water to pass into the City from the same Moor. Also Fitz-Stephen writes of this Moore, saying thus, When the great Fenn, or Moor, which watereth the Walls on the North Side is frozen, &c.

THIS Moorfield was in antient Writings called Magna Mora, because of the great Extent of this More or Mere : To which also belonged a Fishery for the Use of the City ; both from antient Times in the Possession of the City. But in the 3d of King Edward I. Walter de Merton, Lord Chancellor, seized on them both ; which, upon an Inquisition appointed that Year, the Jury of Alderman Pet. Aungier's Ward presented, and complained of, informing, That the City had been in full and peaceable Possession ever, unto the Time of Walter Hervey, late Mayor of LONDON, (viz. the 1st of King Edward I.) of one More or Mere, and one common Fishery in Cripplegate Ward, belonging to the Commonalty of the said City. Now the City was without the Seisin of the said Moor and Fishery, by Means of Walter de Merton, to the Disherison of our Lord the King, and the Damage of the said City, and they would know by what Warrant.

THIS Fenn or Moorfield, stretching from the Wall of the City, betwixt Bishopsgate and the Postern, called Cripplegate, to Finsbury and to Holywell, continued a waste and unprofitable Ground a long Time, so that the same was all letten for four Marks a Year, in the Reign of King Edward II. But in the Year 1415, the 3d of King Henry V. Thomas Fawconer, Mayor, caused the Wall of the City to be broken toward the said Moor, and built the Postern called Moorgate, for Ease of the Citizens to walk that Way upon Causeways into the Fields, towards Islington and Hoxton. Moreover, he caused the Ditch of the City, and other Ditches thereabouts, from Shoreditch to Deepditch, by Bethlem, into Moorditch, to be new cast and cleansed ; by Means whereof the said Fenn or Moor was greatly drained and dried ; but shortly after, viz. in 1477, Ralph Joceline, Mayor, for repairing of the Wall of the City, caused the said Moor to be searched for Clay, and the Brick to be burnt there, &c. by which Means this Field was made worse for a long Time.

In the Year 1498, all the Gardens which had continued Time out of Mind, without Moorgate, viz. about and beyond the Lordship of Finsbury, were destroyed, and of them was made a plain Field for Archers to shoot in. And in the Year 1512, Roger Atchley, Mayor, caused divers Dikes to be cast and made, to drain the Waters of the said Moorfields, with Bridges arched over them, and the Grounds about to be levelled ; whereby the said Field was made somewhat more commodious, but yet it stood full of noisome Waters ; whereupon, in the Year 1527, Sir Thomas Seymour, Mayor, caused divers Sluices to be made to convey the said Waters over the Town Ditch, into the Course of Walbrook, and so into the Thames. And by these Degrees was this Fenn or Moor, at length, made main and hard Ground, which before being overgrown with Flags, and Rushes, served to no Use. Since which Time also the farther Grounds beyond Finsbury-court have been so over-heightened with Laystals of Dung, that now (says Stow in his Time) three Windmills are thereon set. The Ditches are filled up, and the Bridges over-whelmed.

Moorfields, to the Time of Sir Leonard Halliday, Mayor, Anno 1606, was but a noisome Place, like a Laystal, half environed with stinking Ditches, Ditches, offensive to the City and Passengers ; but now it is converted into very pleasant Walks, gravelled, planted on all Sides with Rows of Trees, and divided into Quarters, and railed in, to keep the Grass from being trodden down, fenced on the Outsides with Brick Walls coped with Stone. Also divers Vaults were made under Ground, partly to convey away foul Water, and partly to bring in fresh into the Town Ditch to keep it sweet. For the forwarding of this good Work, Sir Leonard Halliday must have his Name recorded to his Praise.

HEREABOUTS is the New Artillery-ground, walled in, for the Exercise of the Militia of the City, after the Old Artillery without Bishopsgate-street went out of Request.

BUNHIL-FIELDS.

HERE adjoining on the West is a Place called Bunhil-fields, where, some Time ago, was a large Piece of Ground enclosed for a Burying-Place, for the Convenience of such as died of the Plague in the Year 1665. The Inscription at the Entrance on the West Side is this :

This Church-Yard was enclosed with a Brick Wall, at the sole Charges of the City of LONDON, in the Mayoralty of Sir John Laurence, Kt. Anno Dom. 1665. And afterwards the Gates thereof were built and finished in the Mayoralty of Sir Thomas Bloudworth, Knight, Anno Dom. 1666.

SINCE then this Place has been chosen by the Dissenters from the Church of England, for the interring their Friends and Relations, without having the Office of Burial appointed by the Book of Common-Prayer said at their Graves. There are a great Number of raised Monuments here with Vaults underneath, and Grave-stones with Inscriptions not a few. The Price of Burial in the Vaults is 15 s. This Cœmtery lies East and West.

ON the North Side, these Persons are buried under Tombs, or sepulchral Stones :

Anne Perry, Wife of Peter Perry, Citizen and Salter, who bare unto him one Son and two Daughters at one Birth ; she dyed the ninth of April, and the Children, named Elizabeth, Mary, and Peter, all dyed the same Month ; Peter, the Eldest, lived longest, and dyed April 19, 1678.

EAST of Perry's Monument is a Head-stone with this Inscription :

Here lyes the Body of Richard Burn, Gent. who departed the 26th of July, 1686, aged 45.

Elizabeth Burn.

When Death doth call me to my Bosom Friend,
Then all my grieving it will have an End.
And all my Sorrows will be vanquisht quite,
When I am sleeping with my Heart's Delight.

George Walker of the Parish of St. James Clerkenwell, dyed December the 3d, 1673, and Sarah his Wife, 1683, and Caleb their third Son, 1685 :

(Interred under a good Monument.)

Quiescant, nam vivant.

Anne Knollys, Daughter of John Cheney, Esquire, Wife of Hansard Knollys, Minister of the Gospel ; by whom he had Issue seven Sons and three Daughters ; she dyed April 30, 1671.

My only Wife, that in her Life

Liv'd forty Years with me,

Lives now in Rest, for ever blest

With Immortality.

My Dear is gone, left me alone,

For Christ to do and dye,

Who dy'd for me, and dy'd to be

My Saviour God most high.

On a Head-stone :

The Body of the faithfull Minister of Christ Benjamin Holme, who went to his Rest, October the 5th, 169... in the 24th Year of his Age.

Mrs. Frances Woolaston, the Wife of Richard Woolaston, Esq; July the 25th, 1688, in the 86th Year of her Age.

Colonel William Stile, late Citizen and Leatherfeller of LONDON : A Man from his Youth devout towards God, and pious to his Parents, singularly just, industrious and diligent ; second to none in Courage, kind to his Friends, and courteous to all ; who on his Death-bed enjoyed plentifully the Conscience and Joy of a good Life, dyed the 2d of March, 1670.

On a Head-stone :

Mr. John Locker, the 16th of June, 1698, aged 74.

On another Tomb is this Inscription :

Here lyes interred the Body of Mr. Edward Bagshaw, Minister of the Gospel, who received from God Faith to embrace it, when by the most despised, and by many persecuted ; esteeming the Advantages of Birth, Education and Learning (all eminent in him) as Things of Worth, to be accounted Loss for the Knowledge of Christ : From the Reproaches of pretended Friends, and Persecutions of professed Adversaries, he took Sanctuary, by the Will of God, in eternal Rest the 28th of December 1671.

Here lyes also the Body of Margaret late Wife of Edward Bagshaw, who departed the twentieth of February, 1671.

Here the Wicked cease from troubling, and there the Weary be at rest ; here the Prisoners rest together ; they hear not the Voice of the Oppressor.

John Topping, and two of his Children, 1675.

Edward Green, Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, 1701, aged 73.

A Head-stone :

In the Grave the Wicked cannot oppress :
For there the Weary are at Rest.

Here doth the Body of John Dewbury rest, Waiting for the Resurrection of the Just, When Tears and Mourning shall be turned to Joy, Then Sorrow and Sighing shall flee away.

Who departed this Life, March the 26th, 1685.

Francis

Francis Archer, Merchant, October the 14th, 1673, aged 59, and John Archer his Son, 1683.

A Head-stone :

To the Memory of Mrs. Patience Briggs; July the 16th, 1696.

What need of Marble to preserve a Name,
Who lives inroll'd on the Records of Fame.
All noble Virtues that adorn the Mind,
In Mistress Patience Briggs in Luster shin'd.
The Piety which lodg'd within her Breast,
In all its beauteous Forms her Life exprest
A Patroness, that with the mildest Awe
Prescribed to her respectful Servants Law.
And yet observed the Honours that were due Unto her Parents and her Confort too.
A bright Example in each State of Life,
A virtuous Daughter, and obedient Wife.

Here also lies Patience her Daughter.

Mrs. Grace Cope, Wife of Christopher Cope, late of Hackney, April the 12th, 1679; and Robert Roe of Ratcliff, Merchant, the 22d of December, 1680; and Katharine his Wife, the 27th of February, 1682-3; and Christopher Cope, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON, December the 4th, 1700, aged 67.

A Head-stone :

John Sharp, Minister of the Gospel, February the 17th, 1680-1.

A Head-stone :

Thomas Sampson, May 25, 1702; in the 28th Year of his Age.

Elizabeth Twisleton, eldest Daughter of the Right Hon. the Lord Viscount James Fynes, Say and Seal; Wife to John Twisleton, Esq; at Dartford in Kent. She died March 28, 1673.

A Flat Stone just adjoining :

Susannah Fish, Wife of William Fish, late of East Smithfield, by whom she had a Son and two Daughters, the eldest Daughter surviving at her Mother's Death; who desires, when it shall please Almighty God to take her to himself, to have her Body interred under this Stone, upon her dear Mother, being aged 62 Years.

Underneath this Stone doth lye
A Pattern of true Grace and Piety,
Who while she liv'd did shine most bright,
And in God's Word did most delight.
And here she lyes encomb'd in Dust,
Till Resurrection of the Just.

To the pious Memory of the Reverend Richard Marriot, a faithful Servant and Minister of Christ's Church: Who having fought a good Fight finished his Course, and kept the Faith, exchanged this mortal Life for one of Immortality and Glory, Nov. 18, Anno Dom. 1696. Æt. 42.

The lovely Picture of this Holy Man
What curious Pencil can?
In his House a Josiah, in the Church a Paul,
A good Samaritan he was to all.
Born from above of a celestial Birth,
He dwelt in Heaven while he walkt in Earth.

Humfrey Beane of LONDON, Esq; January 17. Anno Salvationis Mundi 1679. Ætat. suæ 66.

Who after he had liv'd to see
In two Worlds much Vanity:
But in the Third he is at Rest
With the Eternal, and there blest.
A God he did believe to be
Triune in one and Veritie.
His Form is ceast, his Life can't dy,
But's gone from Time into Eternity.
So that blest Soul hath tane his Flight
From earthly Body into Heaven's Light.
Where he in Glory now's at Liberty:
To praise the Lord to all Eternity.

THIS Beane fined for Alderman, and was of the Sect of the Sweet Singers; and some of that Society, it is supposed, made these Verses for him.

ON the South Side of this Burying-place are these Monuments and Inscriptions following:

Under a flat Stone:

Henry Byard, Minister, Octob. 29, 1666.

Under a Tomb:

Here lieth Grace, the only Daughter of Thomas Cloudesly of Leeds, in the County of York, who was first married to Peter Jackson of Leeds.
To whom she bare three Sons and two Daughters.
Afterward married to John Dickonson of London; to whom she bare one Daughter; of which she died, Feb. 15, 1666, in the 31st Year of her Age.

Grace was her Name, and Grace she had:
But now Grace is with Glory clad.

John Dickonson, died Dec. 22, Ann. Dom.
1689; aged 55. An Israelite indeed, exemplarily pious, humble, useful, labouring for Acceptation with God, and the Praise of Men, Prov. x. 7.

The Memory of the Just is blessed.

A Flat Stone:

Edward West, the Son of Mr. Thomas West, of Northampton, M. A. some Time of Christ Church in Oxon, and Minister of the Gospel:
Who having preached twice to his Congregation on the Lord's Day, being the Thirtieth of January, and finished his Work, departed this Life in the Night, and went to his Rest in the 41st of his Age, and of our Lord 1675.

The Saint whose Dust this Stone doth hide,
Sung Epicedium first, then dy'd.
His Life he spent lost Men to save,
And yet's not silent in his Grave.
Reader, no more, but underneath he lies,
Who whilst he liv'd, th' World had one good, one wife.

Here lie interred Charles, Benjamin and Horatus Horfenel, and Anne his Wife. Charles departed 1667. Benjamin and Horatius 1665.

Mr. Nathaniel Vincent, Minister of the Gospel, June 22, 1697, in the 59th Year of his Age;
in Hopes of a blessed and glorious Resurrection unto eternal Life;

Tho' dead I lie, I speak to you that live,
Your Hearts, your All be sure to God you give.
At Death the Day of Grace will fully end.
In Grief for bad, in good Works your Time spend.
Earth's Vanity, Christ's Worth, and of his Cross,
The Vertue know, and Greatness of Soul's Loss;
Immortal Souls to beautifie and save,
I have thus made a Pulpit of my Grave.

Laurence Clark, Citizen and Ironmonger of London, departed July 25, 1671, in the 59th
Year of his Age. And Anne his Wife, April the 28th, 1675; aged 66. And Jane Williams, her Cousin, Wife to Abraham Williams, January 19, 1688; aged 42.

Corporis Exuvias uno posuere sepulchro;
Et pater & natus, natus uterque Deo.
Non toti moriuntur: adiit pars altera Christum;
Altera surgendi spem requiescit agens.

D. Johannes Loder Minister Evangelii.

D. Sam. Loder, filius annum agens 16, utrique Lector, gratulare mortem placidam, & beatam immortalitatem, 1674.

Mrs. Dorcas Bentley, the faithful tender Wife of Jonathan Bentley, Citizen and Coach-maker of London: Who lived much desired, and died much lamented, Aug. 3, 1697.

My Dear, thy zealous Care to serve thy God,
And constant Love to Husband dear,
Thy humble Heart to every one,
Remains still, tho' thy Corps be here.

16, 1691, the 55th of his Age.

Anna Marner, the Daughter of William Marner, Oct. 15, 1695, in the 13th of her Age.

Lucia Smith died Oct. 6. 1682, within a Day of twelve Years old; who lived much beloved,
and died greatly lamented by all her Acquaintance; not having known her Equal for natural Endowments at her Age:

E P I T A P H.

Here lies embalm'd in careful Parents Tears;
A Virgin Branch cropt in its tender Years.
Reader, as in a Glass thou perfectly may'st see How all Things here below vain and uncertain be:
Dear Virgin Child farewell, thy Mother's Tears
Cannot advance thy Memory (who wears
A Crown above the Stars) yet I must mourn;
And shew the World mine Offerings at thy Urn.
'Tis not, dear Child, a Stone can deck your Hearse;
Or can your Worth lodge in a narrow Verse:
No, no, blest Virgin, this Engraver's Breath,
Is not to speak your Life, but weep your Death.
This here is only laid by th' careful Trust
Of a sad Mother, in Honour of your Dust.

Reader, pay thy Tribute here,
A Tear, a Rose, and then a Tear.

Grief

Grief may make thee Marble too,
Yet weep on, as Marbles do.
Gently let the Dust be spread
On a gentle Virgin's Head :
Prest by no rude Passer by,
Nothing but a Mother's Eye.
Sacred Tomb, with whom we trust
Precious Piles of lovely Dust.
Keep them safely, sacred Tomb,
'Till a Mother ask for Room.

Happy Soul, thy Hearse prepare,
'Till she comes and hugs thee there,
And when each Particle shall kiss,
In her dear Arms, arise to Bliss.

Mr. John Goswald, a faithful Minister of the Gospel, Oct. 3, 1678, aged 53. They that turn many to Righteousness shall shine as the Stars for ever and ever, Dan. xii. 3.

Elizabeth Carter, Daughter of William Carter, Citizen and Mason of LONDON, and Grand-daughter of the above-named John Huntley, Sen. Febr. 1, 1692.

William Dixon, Citizen and Weaver, Nov. 3, 1701, aged 70.

In this Vault lies buried the Body of Captain John Smith, late of LONDON, Merchant, and Treasurer of St. Thomas's Hospital many Years; whose Study was to imitate his Redeemer here by doing good: Departed March 7, 1698, at Clapham, in the 69th Year of his Age, with a joyful Hope to meet him in Glory hereafter.

Anne and Elinor, Daughters of Captain John Smith; the former aged five Years ten Months, 1689, the latter three Years, 1692-3.

A Tomb of an unusual Form, long, in the Figure somewhat of a Coffin, but narrow at the Bottom and broad at the Top, with a Kind of Urn on it; for Mordecai Abbot, Esq; Receiver-General of her Majesty's Customs, Ob. Feb. 29, 1699. Ætat. 43.

Here Abbot, Vertue's great Example, lie,
The Charitable, Pious, Just and Wise.
But how shall Fame in this small Table paint
The Husband, Father, Master, Friend and Saint.
A Soul on Earth so ripe for Glory found,
So like to those who are with Glory crown'd;
That 'tis less strange such Worth so soon should go
To Heaven, than that it staid so long below.

Lieutenant Colonel Samuel Brache, Esq; Sept. 3, 1687, aged 62.

Joshua Brook, late Merchant-Taylor of LONDON, Jan. 16, 1696, in the 68th Year of his Age.

Rebecka Godolphin, Widow of John Godolphin, late Doctor of Laws, June 4, 1697, aged 56.

Here resteth in Hope; the Body of Hannah, Wife of Nehemiah Bourn, some Time Commander at Sea, and Commissioner for the Navy; by whom he had four Sons and one Daughter, who, after she had lived with him as a most affectionate Wife 52 Years; during which Time she was a most suitable Companion to him in various and extraordinary Paths of Divine Providence by Sea and Land, at home and in remote Parts; and an eminent Example and Pattern to all that knew her, as well in the several Excellencies of a natural Temper, as those of the spiritual and divine Life, being ripened for a better. She departed this World at Ebbisham in Surrey, upon the 18th of June; from thence she was brought to this Place, and buried the 21st in the Year of our Lord 1684, and of her Age 68.

In this Cœmitery was also buried, about the Beginning of the Year 1708, Dr. Eems; a Practitioner of Medicine, one of the Sect of the Prophesiers; of whose rising again out of his Grave here, after a wonderful and terrible Manner, his Party confidently prophesied to happen on the 26th of May the said Year: On which Day Thousands of People were got together at this Tomb to see the Issue; but the Prophecy failed; the Prophesters were very blank at it; notwithstanding they affirmed the Prophecy was from God, but that he had deceived them.

CONCERNING the Inclosures of common Grounds about this City, Edward Hall sets down a Note of his Time, viz. in the 5th or 6th of King Henry VIII.

" BEFORE this Time (saith he) the Inhabitants of the Towns about LONDON, as Iseldon, Hoxton, Shoreditch, and others, had so inclosed the common Fields with Hedges and Ditches, that neither the young Men of the City might shoot, nor the antient Persons walk for their Pleasure in those Fields; but that either the Bows and Arrows were taken away or broken, or the honest Persons arrested or indicted, saying, That no Londoners ought to go out of the City but in the Highways.

" THIS Saying so grieved the Londoners, that suddenly this Year a great Number of the City assembled themselves in a Morning; and a Turner in a Fool's Coat came crying through the City, Shovels and Spades, Shovels and Spades. So many of the People followed, that it was a Wonder to behold; and, (within a short Space) all the Hedges about the City were cast down, and the Ditches filled up, and every Thing made plain; such was the Diligence of those Workmen.

" THE King's Council hearing of this Assembly, came to the Gray-fryars, and sent for the Mayor and Council of the City, to know the Cause; who declared to them, the Injury and annoying done to the Citizens, and to their Liberties, which though they would not seek disorderly to redress, yet the Commonalty and young Persons could not be stayed, thus to remedy the same. When the King's Council had heard their Answer, they dissimuled the Matter, and commanded the Mayor to see that no other Thing were attempted, but that they should forthwith call home the younger Sort; who having speedily atchieved their Desire, returned home before the King's Council, and the Mayor departed without more Harm; after which (says Hall) those Fields were never hedged.

" BUT now, saith Stow, we see the Thing in worse Case than ever it was before, by Means
" of

“ of Inclosure for Gardens, wherein are built “ many fair Summer-houses, and, as in other “ Places of the Suburbs, some of them like “ Midsummer Pageants, with Towers, Turrets, “ and Chimney Tops, not so much for Use or “ Profit, as for Shew and Pleasure; bewraying
 “ the Vanity of many Men’s Minds, much un“ like to the Disposition of the antient Citizens,
 “ who delighted in the building of Hospitals,
 “ and Alms-houses for the Poor; and therein “ both employed their Wits and spent their “ Wealths in Preferment of the common Com“ modity of this our City.

Finsbury, adjoining to Moorfields, is mentioned in an old Record granted 20 Richard II. to Robert de Wylingham, under the Name of The Garden of Vynesbury, Prebend in the Parish of St. Giles Cripplegate; whence it may be gathered that this Place had been once a large Garden for Vines, or a Vineyard.

A Part of the Suburb without Cripplegate also lay as a Part of the Moor, even to the River Wells, and no Houses were there built, till the latter End of the Reign of William the Con- queror, and in the Reign of his Son William Rufus; about which Times some few Houses were there built along East and West, thwart before the said Gate. One Alfune built for the Inhabitants a Parish Church which is of St. Giles, somewhat West from the said Gate, on the Bank of the Town Ditch; and so was there a Street since called Fore-street, as standing before the Gate.

THIS Alfune, in the Reign of Henry I. became the first Hospitaller of St. Bartholomew’s Hospital in Smithfield, as in another Place is noted. And this Parish Church of St. Giles, being at the first a small Thing, stood in Place where now stands the Vicarage-House, but has been since (at divers Times) much enlarged, according as the Parish has increased, and was at length newly built in a Place where now it stands:
 But the same new Church being large, strongly built, and richly furnished with Ornaments, was in the Year 1545, by Casualty of Fire sore burnt and consumed; notwithstanding, it was again, in a short Space of Time repaired.

SOME little Distance from the East End of this Church stood a castellated Conduit in Fore-street.
 Then was a Boss of sweet Water in the Wall of the Church-Yard, afterwards made a Pump.

THERE was also, of old Time, a Pool of sweet Water near the Church of St. Giles, wherein Anne of Lodbury was drowned as mentioned before.

The PARISH of

St. LUKE in Middlesex.

OUT of the foregoing Parish of St. Giles’s was taken, by Act of Parliament, another new one, called St. Luke in Middlesex, by Virtue of an Act of the 9th of Queen Anne, for building Fifty New Churches, and other subsequent Acts; the Parish Church stands on the North Side of Old-street, and is therefore commonly called Old-street Church. It is at some Distance from the Street, having a Church-Yard, with a handsome Iron Gate, and Iron Rails upon a Breast-wall before it. This Church being finished, was dedicated to St. Luke the Evangelist, and consecrated on the 16th of October 1733, by the Right Reverend Francis Hare, Bishop of Chichester, and Dean of St. Paul’s; which Ceremony was performed in the following Manner:

VOL. II.

THE Bishop came to the Church at half an Hour after Nine in the Morning, and the Churchwardens conducted him the Back-way into the Vestry. After he was habited in his Robes, and his Chaplains in their Surplices, he went down the North Isle, and turned under the Organ Gallery to the lower End of the Middle Isle, where he was met by the Minister, Church-wardens, and some of the Inhabitants, and petitioned by them to consecrate that Church.

THE Petition was ordered to be read by the Register, and also the Bishop of LONDON’s Commission. After his Lordship had declared his Readiness to do as he was desired, he and all the Clergy went up the Middle Isle to the Communion Table, repeating the 24th Psalms alternately as they went along.

THE Bishop and his Chaplains went within the Rails, and others to their respective Places.

CHAIRS were provided on the North Side of the Table for the Bishop and his Commissary, and on the South Side for his two Chaplains.

THEN one presenting the Enrollment of the District, the Bishop laid it on the Communion
 Table.

THEN the Bishop standing up, the Congregation also standing, read an Exhortation, and after that, all kneeling, said several Prayers:
 Those ended, the Bishop sat down in his Chair, and then the Sentence of Consecration was read by his Commissary, and signed by the Bishop, and by him ordered to be registered, and was then laid upon the Table.

AFTER this the Minister read the Service for the Day, except where it was otherwise appointed, and the Bishop and his Chaplain read the Communion Service.

SERMON being ended, all who did not receive the Holy Communion were desired to withdraw; and the Doors being shut, the Chaplains collected the Offerings about the Rails, and the Church-wardens from the rest of the Congregation.

THE Service in the Church being finished, the Bishop, Clergy, Commissary, and People went into the Church-Yard, and the Bishop standing in the Place prepared for the Performance of the Office there, the Act or Sentence of Consecration was read by the Commissary, and signed by the Bishop, and ordered to be register’d; after which the Bishop said a Prayer suitable to the Occasion, and concluded with The Grace of our Lord, &c.

THEN all proceeded to the other Church-
 Yard, where the same Ceremony was repeated.

THEN the Church-wardens and Parishioners waited upon the Bishop to his Coach, and thanking his Lordship for his Trouble, took their Leave.

As to the Building of this Church, Criticks have differed, the Author of the Critical Review says, it is slight and trifling, by others it is esteemed strong and substantial, and particularly its Steeple, which is a fluted Obelisk, and which, if its Altitude had been half as high again as it is, would have been an elegant Piece of Architecture.

THE Columns that support the Roof within are of the Ionick Order, the Roof is arched and adorned with Fret-work, there is a handsome Pulpit and Desk of good Wainscot, and good Galleries on the North, South, and West Sides, and a spacious Organ, under which is inscribed
 in Gold Letters:

The Worshipful Company of Ironmongers gave 100 l. towards the Charge of this Organ, 1733.

NUMBER of Houses without the Freedom 3010.

IN the East End of Fore-street is More-lane, then next is Grub-street, of late Years inhabited (for the most Part) by Bowyers, Fletchers, Bow String Makers, and such like Occupations, now little occupied; Archery giving place to a Number of Bowling Allies, and Dicing Houses, which in all Places are increased, and too much frequented.

IN this Street lived the famous laborious John Fox, while he compiled and printed those great Volumes of the Acts and Monuments of the Church, and the Martyrdoms of those that were burned to Death under Queen Mary for Religion.

THIS Street stretches North to Everade's-well-street, which thwarts it to Whitecross-street: The next from Fore-street, North, is Whitecross-street, likewise extending itself up to the West End of Everade's-well-street, and from the End thereof to Fald-street.

FROM the West End of Fore-street lies Redcross-street; from which Cross, on the right Hand East, lieth Beech-lane, and reaches to Whitecross-street; from that Cross, North, lies Golding-lane, which stretches up to a Cross in Fald-street; which Golding-lane (on both Sides) is replenished with many Tenements of poor People.

ALL these Places lie in the Manor of Finsbury, commonly called Finsbury-fields, which stretch along these North Parts of Cripplegate thro' More-fields, and reach to some Parts of Shoreditch Parish.

ON the Left Hand, and West of the Redcross, lies a Street, of old Time called Houndsditch, and of late Time called Barbican; and thus you have all the Suburb without Cripplegate.

C H A P. III.

Of the SUBURBS without Aldersgate and Newgate.

NOW bending toward the North West we have these Suburbs. Without Aldersgate, on the Left Hand, is the Parish-Church of St. Botolph; on the North Side of which Church lies a Way called Little-britain-street, towards the Priory of St. Bartholomew in Smithfield; but the Highway without Aldersgate, runs strait North from the said Gate unto Houndsditch or Barbican-street, on the Right Hand, and Long-lane on the Left Hand, which runs into Smithfield.

THEN from the farther End of Aldersgate-street, strait North to the Bar, is called Goswell-street, replenished with small Tenements, Cottages, Alleys, Gardens, Banqueting-Houses and Bowling-Places.

BEYOND these Bars, leaving the Charter-house on the Left Hand, or the West Side of the Way, stretches up towards Iseldon, commonly called Islington, a Country Town hard by; which in the former Age was esteemed to be so pleasantly seated, that in the Year 1581, Queen Elizabeth, on an Evening, rode out that Way to take the Air; where, near the Town, she was invironed with a Number of begging Rogues, (as Beggars usually haunt such Places) which gave the Queen much Disturbance. Whereupon Mr. Stone, one of her Footmen, came in all Haste to the Lord Mayor, and afterwards to Fleetwood the Recorder, and told them the same. The same Night did the Recorder send out Warrants into the same Quarters, and into Westminster and the Dutchy. And in the Morning he went abroad himself, and took that Day seventy-four Rogues, whereof some were blind, and yet great Usurers, and very rich. They were sent to Bridewell, and punished.

ON the Right Hand, or East Side, we turn into Eald-street, so called, for that it was the old Highway from Aldersgate-street, for the North East Parts of England, before Bishopsgate was built. Which Street runs East to a Smith's Forge, some Time a Cross before Shoreditch Church, from whence the Passengers and Carriages were to turn North to Kingland, Tottenham, Waltham, Ware, &c.

THERE was some Time in this Suburb without Aldersgate, an Hospital for the Poor; but an Alien of Cluny, a French Order, and therefore suppressed by King Henry V. who gave the House with Lands and Goods, to the Parish of St. Botolph's: And a Brotherhood of the Trinity was there founded, which was afterwards suppressed by King Henry VIII. or Edward VI.

THERE was (at the farthest North Corner of this Suburb) a Windmill, which was some Time, by a Tempest of Wind, overthrown, and in Place thereof a Chapel was built by Queen Katharine, (first Wife to King Henry VIII.) who named it the Mount of Calvary, because it was of Christ's Passion, and was in the End of King Henry VIII. pulled down, and a Windmill newly set up as afore.

WITHOUT Newgate lies the West and by North Suburb; on the Right Hand or North Side whereof (betwixt the said Gate, and the Parish of St. Sepulchre) turns away towards West Smithfield, called, Giltspur-street, or Knight-riders-street; then is Smithfield itself, compassed about with Buildings.

AND without the Bar of West Smithfield lies a large Street or Way called of the House of St. John there, St. John's Street, and stretches towards Iseldon.

HERE, in the Middle of the Street, stands Hicks's Hall, where the Justices of the Peace for Middlesex have their County Courts and other Meetings. It was built in the seventh Year of King James I. by Sir Baptist Hicks, Knt. a Citizen of LONDON; whereas before the Justices used to meet at a common Inn, called the Castle-Inn near Smithfield Bars, very inconveniently, being annoyed with Carriers and many other Sorts of People. King James, June 7. in the aforesaid Year of his Reign, did infeoff * fifteen Knights and Esquires of Middlesex, of this Piece of Ground, to be for ever used and employed for a Sessions House; and for the Keeping of a Prison or House of Correction for the same County. Upon which Piece of Ground and according to the Intent of the King's Letters Patents, Sir Baptist Hicks, Knight, one of the Justices of that County, built a Sessions House of Brick and Stone at his own proper Charges, with all Offices thereunto belonging. And upon Wednesday the 17th of January, 1612, the House being then finished, there assembled six and twenty Justices of the said County, being the first Day of their meeting there; where the Founder feasted them all: And then, after they had considered what Name this Structure should bear, they all with one Consent gave it the Name of Hicks's Hall, in grateful Memory of the Builder: And he freely gave the House to them and their Successors for ever. He was a Mercer in Cheapside, and youngest Brother to Sir Michael Hicks, Secretary to the Lord Treasurer Burghley. It is also used for the sitting of the Grand Jury (who meet eight Times a Year) upon Bills of the Indictments of Criminals to be afterwards tryed at the Justice Hall. Thirdly, for the Sitting of the Commissioners of the King's Tax for Holbourn and Finsbury Division. Fourthly, for meeting of the Commissioners of Sewers, &c.

ON the Right Hand of this St. John's Street, stood the late dissolved Monastery, called, The Charter-House, founded by Sir Walter Manny, Knt. a Stranger born, Lord of the Town of Manny, in the Diocese of Cambray, beyond the Seas, who for Service done to King Edward III. was made Knight of the Garter.

THIS House he founded upon this Occasion: A great Pestilence entering this Island, began first in Dorsetshire, then proceeded into Devonshire, Somersetshire, Glostershire, and Oxfordshire, and at length came to LONDON; and overspread all England; so wasting the People; that scarce the tenth Person of all Sorts was left alive; and Church-yards were not sufficient to receive the Dead; but Men were forced to chuse out certain Fields for Burials; whereupon Ralph Stratford, Bishop of LONDON, in the Year

* To infeoff is a Law Term, which means to unite, or join to the Fee.

1348, bought a Piece of Ground, called, No Mans Land, which he inclosed with a Wall of Brick, and dedicated it for Burial of the Dead, built thereupon a proper Chapel, which is now enlarged, and made a Dwelling-House: And this Burying-plot is become a fair Garden, retaining the old Name of Pardon Church-yard.

AFTER this, in the Year 1349, the said Sir Walter Manny, in Respect of Danger that might befall in this Time of so great a Plague and Infection, purchased thirteen Acres and a Rod of Ground, adjoining to the said No Mans Land, and lying in a Place called Spittle Croft, because it belonged to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, since that called The New Church Haw, and caused it to be consecrated by the said Bishop of LONDON, to the Use of Burials.

IN this Plot of Ground there was, in that Year, more than 50,000 Persons buried; the following Inscription was fixed on a Stone Cross, some Time standing in the same Church-yard, and having these Words:

Anno Domini 1349. Regnante magna Pestilentia, consecratum fuit hoc Cœmiterium, in quo & infra septa præsentis Monasterii, sepulta fuerunt mortuorum corpora, plusquam quinquaginta millia, præter alia multa abhinc usque ad præsens; quorum animabus propitiatur Deus. Amen.

That is in English:

A great Plague raging in the Year of our Lord 1349, this Church-yard was consecrated; wherein, and within the Bounds of the present Monastery, were buried more than 50,000 Bodies of the Dead, besides many other from thence to the present Time: Whose Souls God have Mercy upon. Amen.

IN Consideration of the Number of Christian People here buried, the said Sir Walter Manny caused first a Chapel to be built, where (for the Space of twenty-three Years) Offerings were made. And it is to be noted, that above 100,000 Bodies of Christian People had in that Church-yard been buried. For the said Knight had purchased that Place for the Burial of poor People, Travellers, and others that were diseased, to remain for ever; whereupon an Order was taken for the avoiding of Contention between the Parsons of Churches and that House, to wit, that the Bodies should be had unto the Church where they were Parishioners, or dyed, and after the Funeral Service done, had to the Place where they should be buried.

AND the Year 1371, he caused there to be founded an House of Carthusian Monks, which he willed to be called the Salutation, and that one of the Monks should be called Prior, and he gave them the said Place of thirteen Acres and a Rod of Land, with the Chapel, and Houses there built for their Habitation. But the three Acres of Land, lying without the Walls on the North Part, betwixt the Lands of the Abbot of Westminster, and the Lands of the Prior of St. John; (which three Acres were purchased, inclosed, and dedicated by Ralph Stratford, Bishop of LONDON, as is afore shewed) remained till our Time, by the Name of Pardon Church-yard, and served for burying of such as desperately ended their Lives, or were executed for Felonies; who were fetched thither usually in a close Cart, veiled over and covered with black, having a plain white Cross thwarting, and at the fore End a St. John's Cross without, and within a Bell ringing (by shaking of the Cart) whereby the same might be heard when it passed; and this was called the Friery Cart, which belonged to St. John's, and had the Privilege, as Sanctuary.

IN this Charter-house be the Monuments of the said Sir Walter Manny, and Margaret his Wife; Marmaduke Lumley, Lawrence Bromley, Knt. Sir Edward Hederfet, Knt. Sir William Manny, Knt. Dame Joan Borough, John Dore, Want Water, Knt. Robert Olney, Esq; Katharine, Daughter to Sir William Babington, Knt. Blanch, Daughter to Hugh Waterton; Katharine, Wife to John at Poote, Daughter and Heir to Richard Lacie; William Rawlin, Sir John Lenthain, and Dame Margaret his Wife, Daughter to John Fray; John Peak, Esq; William Baron, and William Baron, Esq; Sir Thomas Thawites, Knt. Philip Morgan, Bishop of Ely, 1434.

In the Cloystrie:

Monuments of Bartholomew Rede, Knight, Mayor of LONDON, buried 1505. Sir John Popham, &c.

THIS Monastery, at the Suppression in the 29th of King Henry VIII. was valued at 642 l. and 4 d. Half-penny Yearly.

IN the Charter-house Chapel was buried James Sidgrave, House-keeper of the said Hospital, April 26, 1707. To which Hospital he gave 50 l. and 50 l. more to the Poor of Clerkenwel Parish.

OF the Charter-house see more, Vol. I. Book I. Chap. XIV.

A little without the Bars of West Smithfield is Charter-house-lane, so called, for that it leads to the said Plot of the late dissolved Monastery; in Place whereof, first the Lord North, but afterwards Thomas Howard, late Duke of Norfolk, made large and sumptuous Buildings, both for Lodging and Pleasure. At the Gate of this Charter-house was a fair Water-Conduit with two Cocks, serving the Use of the Neighbours, to their great Commodity.

St. John's Street, from the entering this Lane, is also, on both Sides, replenished with Buildings up to Clerkenwell. On the left Hand of which Street lies a Lane called Cow-Cross, of a Cross some Time standing there; which Lane turns down to another Lane called Turnmill-street, which stretches up to the West Side of Clerkenwell, and was called Turnmill-street, for such Cause as is afore declared.

ONE other Lane there is, called St. Peter's Lane, which turns from St. John's Street to Cow-Cross.

The Priory of St. JOHN of JERUSALEM.

ON the Left Hand also stood the late dissolved Priory of St. John of Jerusalem in England, founded about the Year of Christ 1100, by Jorden Briset, Baron, and Muriel his Wife, near unto Clerk's Well, beside West Smithfield. Which Briset having first founded the Priory of Nuns at Clerk's Well, bought of them ten Acres of Land, giving them in Exchange ten Acres of Lands in his Lordship of Welling Hall, in the County of Kent. St. John's Church was dedicated by Heraclius, Patriarch of the Holy Resurrection of Christ at Jerusalem, in the Year 1181, and was the chief Seat in England of the Religious Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, whose Profession was (besides their daily Service of God) to defend Christians against Pagans, and to fight for the Church, using for their Habit a black upper Garment, with a white Cross on the fore Part thereof. And for their good Service was so highly esteemed, that when the Order of Templers was dissolved, their Lands and Possessions were, by Parliament, granted unto these: Who, after the Loss of Jerusalem, recovered the Isle of Rhodes from the Turk, and there placed themselves, being called thereof, for many Years, Knights of Rhodes. But after the Loss thereof, 1523, removed to the Isle of Malta, manfully opposing themselves against the Turkish Invasions.

IN the Year 1401 one Grendon was Prior of this Hospital, who took upon him to go to Rhodes, to fight, according to his Vow, in Defence of the holy Mother Church, &c. against Turks and Saracens. To whom King Henry IV. gave his Letters commendatory to all Foreign Princes, with a Character of high Respect for him.

THE Rebels of Essex and Kent 1381, set Fire on this House, causing it to burn by the Space of Seven Days together, not suffering any to quench it; after which Time, the Priors of that House, new built both Church and Houses thereunto appertaining; which Church was finished by Thomas Docwray, late Lord Prior there, about the Year 1504, as appeared by the Inscription over the Gate-house, not long since remaining. This House, at the Suppression in the 32 of Henry VIII. was valued to dispend in Lands 3385 l. 19 s. 8 d. yearly. Sir William Weston being then Lord Prior, died on the same 7th of May on which the House was suppressed. So that great yearly Pensions being granted to the Knights by the King, and namely to the Lord Prior, during his Life 1000 l. but he never received a Penny. The King took into his Hands all the Lands that belonged to that House, and that Order, wheresoever in England and Ireland, for the Augmentation of his Crown.

THIS Priory, Church and House of St. John, was preserved from Spoil or Down-pulling so long as King Henry VIII. reigned, and was employed as a Store-house for the King's Toys and Tents for Hunting, and for the Wars, &c. But in the third of King Edward VI. the Church for the most Part, to wit, the Body and Side Isle, with the great Bell Tower, (a most curious Piece of Workmanship, graven, gilt, and enamelled, to the great beautifying of the City, and surpassing all others) was undermined and blown up with Gunpowder, the Stone thereof was employed in building of the Lord Protector's House in the Strand. That Part of the Choir which remained, with some Side Chapels, was by Cardinal Pool (in the Reign of Queen Mary) closed up at the West End, and otherwise repaired; and Sir Tho. Tresham, Knt. was then made Lord Prior there, with Restitution of some Lands; but the same was again suppressed in the first Year of Queen Elizabeth.

THERE were buried in this Church Brethren of that House, and Knights of that Order: William Bagecote, Richard Barrow, John Vanclay, Thomas Launcelen, John Malbore, William Turney, William Hulls, Hills or Hayles, John Weston, Redington, William Longstrother, John Longstrother, William Tong, and John Wake-line. Then of others: Thomas Thornburgh, Gent. William West, Gent. John Fulling and Adam Gill, Esquires; Sir John Mortimor and Dame Eleanor his Wife; Nicholas Silverston and William Plompton, Esquires; Margaret Tong and Isabel Tong; Walter Bellingham, alias Ireland, Keeper of Alms of Ireland; Thomas Bedle, Gentleman; Katharine, Daughter of William Plompton, Esq; Richard Turpin, Gent. Joan, Wife to Alexander Dikes, John Bottle and Richard Bottle, Esquires; Rowland Darcy, Richard

Sutton, Gent. Richard Bottil, Gent. Sir William Harpden, Knt. Robert Kingston, Esq; and Margery his Wife; John Rock; Richard Cednor, Gent. Simon Mallory 1422; Robert Longstrother, Ralph Asteley, Esq; William Marshall, Esq; Robert Savage, Esq; Robert Gondall, Esq; and Margery his Wife; William Babthorpe, Baron of the Exchequer, 1442.

The PARISH of St. JAMES CLERKENWELL.

BEYOND this House of St. John's, was the Priory of Clerkenwell, so called of Clarks Well adjoining. Which Priory was also founded about the Year 1100, by Jorden Briset, Baron, the Son of Ralph, the Son of Brian Briset, who gave to Robert a Priest, fourteen Acres of Land, lying in the Field next adjoining the said Clerk's Well, thereupon to build an House of Religious Persons, which he built to the Honour of God, and the Assumption of our Lady, and placed therein black Nuns. This Jorden Briset gave also to that House one Piece of Ground, whereby to build a Windmill upon, &c. Upon the Dissolution of this Priory, it became a Parish Church, called St. James's Clerkenwell. About the Year 1623 the Steeple fell down, having stood Time out of Mind without any Reparation; nor among the Records of that Church could any Mention be found of any such Thing. This Steeple, in the rebuilding thereof, and being near finishing, fell again, upon the Undertakers Neglect in not looking into the Strength of that upon which he was to rear such a Burthen. With the Steeple fell the Bells, their Carriages and Frames, beating a great Part of the Roof down before them, the Weight of all these together, bearing to the Ground two large Pillars of the South Isle, a fair Gallery over-against the Pulpit; the Pulpit, all the Pews, and whatsoever was under, or near it.

BUT all these Decays and Ruins were recovered and made whole again, the Walls firm and fair; and a new Door made in the South Wall. And the Church furnished with all Things new, and without and within beautified. And moreover the Steeple begun from the Ground, and raised as high as the Roof of the Church. And all this thus far finished in the Year 1627, cost 1400 l. or much upon that Sum. Notwithstanding there was then much to do.

THE East Part of this Church, with the Communion Table, was repaired and beautified about the Year 1638, as appears by what is writ upon the Wainscot there, viz. This Wainscoting, Railing and Pewing of this Communion Table was done Novemb. 20. Ann. Dom. 1638, at the sole Charge of Richard Cook, Inn-keeper, dwelling at the Red Lyon in Gray's Inn Lane; who married with Susan the third Daughter of John Goodcote of this Parish, Grazier, who was Churchwarden, Anno 1588. And the Commandments finished, Anno Dom. 1639.

THIS Church was beautified and repaired again at the Cost of the Inhabitants of this Parish, 1696.

THE South West Gallery was partly done at the Charge of Francis Loveday, in the Year 1704.

THIS Church is dedicated to St. James the Less, being Cousin German of our Lord, and so was called his Brother, according to the Custom of the Jews. This St. James was an Apostle of CHRIST, and born about 16 Years before him; and Anno CHRIST 33, was by JESUS, after his Resurrection, made Bishop of Jerusalem. He is sometimes called James the Just, and was one of those three Apostles to whom our Saviour immediately mediately communicated the Gift of Knowledge, the better to fit him for that high Station of being the first Bishop of the first Church in the World. He was a very holy Man, constant in Prayer and Fasting; was the Author of one of the seven Catholick Epistles; was martyred by being cast down from the Top of the Temple, and then by a Blow on the Head with a Fuller's Club, in the Year of CHRIST 62, at Jerusalem, after he had been Bishop thereof 28 Years; his Age was 78.

THIS Church is built of Brick and rough Stone, partly Gothick, and partly of the Tuscan Order; the Tower is all of Brick, built with Battlements, coped with Stone.

As to the Ornament and Finishing, the South West Gallery looks neat, and there is another lower Gallery at the West End of the Church for Charity Children, and another for the Family dwelling in Newcastle-house, above the rest Northward, and a little East of the last.

The Walls are lined with Oak of different Height; that round the Communion Table is about nine Feet high. The Pews and Pulpit are also Oak, tho' pretty old; as is also the Altar Piece, where the Painting of the Commandments is something decayed; they are placed between the Lord's Prayer, and Credo, and over are the King's Arms painted.

At the West End of the Church is a handsome Table, containing a List of the Stewards for promoting Charity in the Years 1698, 1699, 1700, 1701, 1702, 1703, 1704, and 1705.

THE Dimensions of the Church are, Length 69 Feet, Breadth 42, and Height 34, and the Altitude of the Steeple, consisting of a Tower and Turret, is 80 Feet.

MONUMENTS.

In this Parish Church was buried Constantius Bennet, a Greek born; he gave two Houses, the one in St. John's-street, the other in Turnmill-street, the Rents of them to be distributed in Coals every Year against Christmas, to the Poor of that Parish.

On an engraven Plate in the Chancel:

Here lieth buried Francis White, the fourteenth Son of Sir Thomas White of Southwerborne, Knight, deceased; and of Lady Anne, his Wife, who dyed at his Age of sixteen, the last Day of February, Ann. Dom. 1566, he being their nineteenth Child.

On another plated Stone in the Chancel:

Hic jacet Isabella Sackuil, quæ fuit Priorissa nuper Prioratus de Clerkenwel, tempore dissolutionis ejusdem Prioratus. Quæ obiit 21 Octobris, Anno Domini, Millesimo Quingentesimo Septuagesimo, & Anno Regina Elizabethæ Dei gratia, &c. Duodecimo.

On another:

Under this Stone lieth the Body of the good, charitable, and vertuous Gentlewoman, Mrs. Anne Blunt, Daughter unto Walter Blunt, of Blunt Hall in the County of Stafford, Esq; and Sister unto the Right Worshipful the Lady Paulet, deceased, and to the Lady Sidenham, now living; which Anne died the 24th Day of April, Ann. Dom. 1504.

By the Communion Table:

Contegit hoc marmor Doctorem nomine Bellum, Qui bene tum rexit Præfulis officium.

Moribus, ingenio, vitæ pietate vigeat, Ladatus cunctis, cultus & eloquio.

Anno Domini, 1556, die August. 11.

THERE is an ancient Marble Tomb in the North Wall of the Chancel, with the Figure of a dead Man by, in his Shroud; and all the Plates are stolen away, only one Piece remaining, containing these Words:

Hospitalitate inclytus, genere præclarus.

THERE are Arms,

Hanc urna officii causa.

THE Effigies on this Tomb, which was supported with Pillars, is the Skeleton of a Man most artificially wrought; it was intended to represent Sir William Weston, the last Lord Prior of St. John's of Jerusalem, who dyed Ann. 1540; the Inscription is fuller in Weaver's Monuments. This was of late broken and sunk. Mr. Howard, in the Year 1704, being Church-warden, was minded to repair and make up this Tomb, and bid the Labourers dig where it was, in order thereunto; and near the Surface they met with a leaden Coffin, with the Figure of a Cross on the Top; the Lead was all firm, only a small Hole on the Top towards the Feet. He strictly commanded them to inter the said Corpse as they found it; but the Workmen among themselves opened it, and found nothing (as they were ready to swear) but they all decayed to Bones and Dust, only they found a liquid Matter at the Bottom of the Coffin. Weaver has given a larger Account of this religious Knight and his Monument.

On a Brass Plate fastened to this Monument, were these Words inscribed:

Spes me non fallat, quam in te semper habebam, Virgo, da facilem votis natum, &c.

And on another Plate:

Ecce, quem cernis, semper tuo nomini devotum, Suscipe in sinum, Virgo Maria, tuum.

On a plated Stone:

Here lieth the Body of the Lady Elizabeth Ascough, some Time the Wife of William Dallyson, one of the Justices of the King's Bench; and afterward Wife to Sir Francis Ascough, Knight: The which Lady departed this Life the sixth Day of December, Ann. Dom. 1570.

And here also lieth William Dallison, Esq; eldest Son to the said William and Elizabeth; which William, the Son, deceased the ninth Day of Nov. Ann. Dom. 1585.

On another:

Here lieth the Body of Francis Butler, fourth Son of Sir John Butler, of Hatfield Woodhall, in the County of Kent, Knight, Ob. 4. Martii, 1615.

A fair Tomb in the North Wall of the Chancel:

The Lady Elizabeth Barckley of the Queen's Majesty's Bed-chamber, and second Wife to Sir Maurice Barckley, Knt. deceased (Standard-bearer to her Majesty, to her Father, and to her Brother) departed this Life in this Parish the 16th 16th Day of June, Anno Dom. 1585, (being 52 Years old) in the Faith of JESUS CHRIST, and was buried in the Floor under this Tomb. This Lady was the Daughter of Anthony Sondes, Esquire: She had Children, two Sons and one Daughter, Robert, Margaret, and John.

Rogero Wood, Armigero, Servienti ad Arma, tam Serenissimo Regi, quam honoratissimo Conventuri Parliamenti. Rosa Conjux hoc posuit Amoris pii, Memoriae perpetuae, Observantiae debita, sacrum Monumentum.

John Palmer of Clerkenwel, Esq; was buried the 18th Day of February, Ann. Dom. 1585. He married Panclin, the Daughter of Anthony Sondes of Kent, Esq; she was also buried in this Chancel; by whom he had Issue Anthony Palmer, Elizabeth Cheiney, Jane Thursby, and Mary Palmer. Jane Thursby, had also one of her Daughters here buried, named Elizabeth.

In obitum Generosissimae, Charissimaeque Elizabethae Croftes, nuper uxoris Caroli Croftes, Armigeri.

Christoph. Brook devotissimus, hoc memoriae pignus posuit. Ob. 20. Decemb. 1597.

Gentle Beholder of these doleful Lines;
With careful Mutes and mournful Accents founding,

Resolve to Tears, viewing the sad Designs
Of dreery Sorrow, and Hearts deepest wounding.
Consuming Time, abridging Worlds Desire,
Insultring Death, fearful, prodigious strange;
Eclipsing, waxing Heat of Nature's Fires,
With waining forc'd, and necessary Change:
Since you have done your worst, to date her Days
Whilome the Worlds, now Heavens gracious Ghest.

I, this sad Memory of her Lives Praise
Presume to write, in skilful Arts the least:
She was descended of right gentle Blood,
kind, courteous, affable and mild by Nature,
Modest her Thoughts, her Disposition good.
Her mind Exchequers store to every Creature;
Her Conscience Spotless, her Religion pure,
Her Life sincere, her Study Contemplation:
Her Hope was Heaven, with aye to endure,
Her Faith was constant, in her Souls Salvation:
Her vertuous Care her Children to direct,
Conform'd to Reason in her Husband's Will:
Her Bounty to her Servant, Friends Respect,
Desire to help, and wish no Neighbour ill.
Thrice happy then (breathless) in Tomb that lieth:

Earth hath but Earth, thy better Part survives:
From worldly Warfare, summon'd to the highest,
Whose Death from Life, a second Life derives.
Death Life confirms, Heaven Earth unites in one:
Her Life in Death, and Bliss when World is done.

Here lieth the Body of Thomas Bedingfield, Esq; second Son unto Sir Henry Bedingfield, Kt. late of the County of Norfolk, and one of the Privy-Council to Queen Mary. Also this Thomas Bedingfield, was one of the honourable Band of Gentlemen Pensioners unto the late famous Queen Elizabeth, and Master of the Tents and Pavillions unto the most mighty King James, Monarch of Great Britain. He departed this Life the 11th Day of August, Ann. Dom. 1613.

This Monument was made and placed, at the Cost and Charges of John Skillitorn, Esq; being his Executor.

UPON a very worthy Friend, Master John Weaver, a learned Antiquary.

Weaver, who laboured in a learned Strain,
To make Men, long since dead, to live again;
And with Expence of Oyle and Ink, did watch;
From the Worm's Mouth the sleeping Course to snatch,
Hath by his Industry begot a Way,
Death (who insidiates all Things) to betray,
Redeeming freely by his Care and Cost,
Many a sad Herse, which Time long since gave lost;

And to forgotten Dust such Spirit did give,
To make it in our Memories to live.
Where Death destroy'd; when he had Power to save,

In that he did not seek to rob the Grave;
For where so ere a ruin'd Tomb he found
His Pen has built it new out of the Ground:
Twixt Earth and him, this Interchange we find;
She hath to him, he bin to her like kind,
She was his Mother, he (a grateful Child)
Made her his Theme, in a large Work compil'd;
Of Funerals, Reliques; and brave Structures
rear'd;

On such as seemed unto her most indear'd.
Alternately a Grave to him she lent,
O're which his Book remains a Monument.

Mr. Weaver upon himself:

Lankashire gave me Breath, and Cambridge Education;
Middlesex gave me Death, and this Church my Humation:
And Christ to me hath given
A Place with him in Heaven.

PERSONS that lie buried, and have Monumental Remembrances of them in this Church of St. James Clerkenwell, are these:

A Table on the North Wall of the Chancel, for Elizabeth, the Wife of Samuel Trotman, of the Inner Temple, Esq; Son of Edward Trotman of Cam, in the County of Glamorgan, Esq; Daughter of Thomas Wayte of Keythorp, in the County of Leicester; Esq; died in Child-bed, 1640.

Her Mother, Barbara Wayte, under the Marble near the Communion-Table.

Thomas Wayte of Keythorp, Esq; Receiver for his Majesty in the Counties of Warwick and Leicester, 1642.

His EPI T A P H thus:

Hither no Tears, but Garlands bring;
To crown this good Receiver's Dust;
Who gave Accompt to God and King,
And lives rewarded with the Just.
So to his Faith and Office both gave rest;
The King his Quittance, God Quictus est.

At the South East Angle of the Altar is a white Marble Monument, adorned with Columns and Entablature of the Composite Order, with the Effigies of a Woman between two Babes weeping, and this Inscription upon it :

Hic, hic siste precor gradum viator,
Et fundas tumulo suspirium breve,
En parva jacet hac in urna divis,
Maturum decus, Filia Nobilis
Dolenda ingenio potens recumbit.
Quacum & omnis amor & veneres jacent

IN the Church-yard an Epitaph against the South Wall of the Church, for a great Archer, almost defaced and gone:

I will preserve it.

Sir William Wood lies very near this Stone, In's Time of Archery excell'd by none. Few were his Equals: And this noble Art Hath suffer'd now in the most tender Part.

Long did he love the Honour of the Bow;
To him long Love tho' that alone did owe.
But how can Art secure? or what can save
Extreme old Age from an appointed Grave?
Surviving Archery must thy Loss lament,
That in Respect bestowed this Monument,
Where whistling Arrows did his Worth proclaim,
And eternize his Memory and his Name.

Ob. Sept. 4. Anno Dom. 1691. Ætat. 82.

HERE are also Tombs for Anne Weeks, and Caleb and Richard Weeks. And Nathaniel Spencer, and Margaret Wife of John Sanders; and Elinor Turner; and Frances Wife of Robert Hardwick, Surgeon, 1713. And for George Riley, 1731.

BENEFACTORS.

William Hern, a Master of Defence, and Yeoman of the Guard, 1580, gave Lands and Tenements to the Clothworkers of LONDON; they to pay yearly for ever fourteen Pounds to the Churchwardens of Clerkenwell, and fourteen Pounds to the Churchwardens of St Sepulchre's, towards Reparation of these Churches, and Relief of the poor Men.

More he gave after the Death of one Man yet living, eight Pounds the Year for ever, to the mending of Highways.

Thomas Sackford, Esq; one of the Masters of Requests, gave to the Poor of this Parish, forty Shillings the Year for ever out of his Alms-house at Woodbridge in Suffolk, where he is buried.

Henry Stoke, Gardener, buried there, gave twenty Shillings the Year for ever, towards Reparation of that Church.

BESIDES these Charities of antienter standing, there be divers others: A particular Table of them all, both for Repair of the Church, and Relief of the Poor yearly, is placed against the North Wall of this Church, viz.

Francis Snowfel gave, to be put into the Parish Stock, for the Use of the Poor, 50 l.

Anno 1660. Anne Valence, Widow, late Wife of Robert Valence, of this Parish, Esq; deceased, gave the Sum of 50 l. to be distributed by the Vestry among an hundred poor Men and Widows, that live by their honest Labour.

Anno 1699. George French, to twenty poor House-keepers, or Widows, that have a Charge of Children, Two Shillings and Six-pence a-piece, to be paid them by the Haberdashers at Christmas.

THIS Gentleman was a Lodger in Clerkenwell, with Mr. Howard, Churchwarden there; who communicated, faith Strype, the Contents of his last Will to me; whereby he gave 18 l. for ever to this and other Parishes in Charitable Uses: Which may not be amiss to give Account of in this Place.

It bore Date the 10th of May 1699. Therein he gave Ten Shillings to the Minister of St. Antholin's, (the Morning Lecture there he much frequented) to preach a Sermon on a suitable Text every third Day, or nearer, before Christmas-Day, at Nine o'Clock in the Morning; the said Minister to read over his Charity before or after the said Sermon. The Master or Upper Warden of the Company of Haberdashers, and the respective Church-wardens, to have Notice of it five Days before, for the distributing of the Charity hereafter given.

To give unto twenty poor aged Freemen of the Company of Haberdashers, or the Widows of such whom the Master or Upper Wardens shall appoint by their Names in Writing, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece, with these Words, Give God the Praise.

Likewise, to twenty poor aged House-keepers, or their Widows, of the Parish of St. Andrew's Holbourn below the Bars, whom the Churchwardens and Overseers shall appoint by their Names in Writing, to be presented by their Beadle, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

Also, to twenty aged and poor House-keepers, or the Widows of such as have a great Charge of Children in the Parish of St. James's Clerkenwell, whom the Upper Church-warden and Overseer shall appoint by their Names in Writing to be presented by the Beadle, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

And also to the Parish of St. Giles's Cripple-gate, whom the Upper Church-warden and Overseer shall appoint, to twenty of their Poor 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

And so also, to twenty Aged or poor House-keepers, or their Widows, in the Parish of St. Olave's Southwark, that is, of such Poor that live in or near George-alley, alias Cross-keys-alley in Barnaby-street; their Names to be presented by their Beadle, as aforesaid, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

The like to twenty aged or poor House-keepers, or their Widows, namely, such as are frequent Hearers of the Morning Lecture at St. Antholin's, whether they live in, or out of the said Parish; such as the Minister, Church-warden or Overseer there shall appoint by their Names in Writing, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

None to receive it that is of a loose and scandalous Life.

The Minister and Clerk, the four Trustees, Master of the Company, or in his Absence the Upper Warden, with the five Churchwardens, to meet in the Vestry before Sermon, and fit themselves with a Pair of the best white Kids Leather Gloves; and the Executor and Successor for ever do the like, for that Day, in Remembrance of the Donor.

The Clerk, and Sexton, and Beadles, to each one Shilling a-piece. Out of the Money remaining, to spend Ten Shillings at a Friendly Dinner for those that have Gloves; and to give the rest to other Poor.

The Trustees to be Assistants to the Executor, in seeing the Charity fully performed.

The Estate in George-alley, and 7 l. 10 s. a Year, Ground-Rent, bought of Samuel Pensax, being the front House in the Possession of Mr. William Nightringal, Victualler. Also Five Pound Ground-Rent, due from a House in Walbrook, now in the Possession of Anthony Herrenden, Surgeon; and of the Star in the Wall, shall stand charged with the abovesaid 18 l. a Year; and to make it good. He gave more 300 l. as a further Additional, secured, to make good the abovesaid Charity.

Since

Since his Death, with this Money, are bought two Houses fronting to St. John's Street, and the back House behind them, fronting to St. John's Lane.

In case the Executor performeth not this whole Charity, without Deduction for any Manner of Tax whatsoever, then the Trustees, with the Master of the Company of Haberdashers, and Church-wardens of the said Parishes, to make their legal Entry upon all the aforesaid Premises, and keep Possession, till he pay double Cost and Charges.

If Samuel Smith, Executor, and other Children of Mathuselah Smith, have no Children of their Bodies lawfully begotten; then all the Estate, that is, the Whole of the aforesaid Inheritance, to go as a further Addition to the aforesaid Charity.

The Trustees are Richard Edes, Sen. of the Prerogative Office, Gent. Joseph Cames, Citizen and Haberdasher; Daniel Hayes, Upholder, and Edmund Howard, Bridlecutter in Clerkenwell.

The Trustees to have Rings of 20 s. a-piece, with this Poësie, A good Conscience the best Treasure.

THE Natives of this Parish of Clerkenwell used to have an annual Meeting and Feast, for the keeping up Friendship and Encouragement of Charity, and putting out yearly a poor Child of the Parish.

THIS Feast was revived in the Year 1698; and there is a Table hanging up in the Church entering on the South Side, containing a List of the Names of the Stewards that Year, and so continued.

THIS Parish bought their Church sixty Years ago, or thereabouts; whereas before they rented it. They purchased it of one Drake, living at Tottenham Court, by St. Giles's. But he reserved the Rector's House; which was formerly one House, but now is divided into two, one wherein the Rev. Mr. Pede did formerly live; and the other, wherein Mr. Edmund Howard lived. These Tenements Mr. Drake reserved for himself and his Wife and Children, out of the said Purchase. But they were afterwards bought and enjoyed by the said Howard.

THE Parish is bound, by Virtue of this Purchase, to provide a Reader to read Prayers every Day in the Week at Eleven o'Clock in the Morning, and in Lent in the Afternoon also: For which they are bound to pay the Minister that so officiates, 4 l. 18 s. 9 d. which they make 5 l. And besides, he hath 6 l. more, being a Gift, for preaching a monthly Sermon, preparatory to the Sacrament, which is preached every Friday Morning before the first Sunday in the Month. They choose their own Minister, and require him to preach twice every Lord's Day: For which they, beside his Salary, make a Collection in the Parish. And if he cannot conveniently preach himself, they allow him to take a Lecturer to be his Assistant, such as they shall like of.

ADD to the Charities belonging to this Parish, a Gift Sermon to be preached every Michaelmas Day; when these Payments are made:

To the Minister; 1 l.

To the Reader, 2 s. 6 d.

To the Sexton, 1 s.

To forty poor Widows, 6 d. a-piece.

To be spent among the Minister, Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor, 15 s.

Given of late to the Parish, 100 l. the Income whereof is for the Use of the Poor of the Parish, to be distributed in Bread every St. John the Evangelist's Day. Mr. Francis Loveday was the Donor. The Parishioners being somewhat straitened for Room in the Church, Mr. Howard, Church-warden, thought it the best Way to improve this 100 l. by building a Gallery on the West End of the said Church, and the Pews or Places to be Let. From the Benefit whereof is reserved for the Use of the Poor according to the Will of the Giver, 6 l. per Annum; the full Interest thereof.

THE Living of Clerkenwell is a Curacy. The Parish are the Impropiators, who pay the Minister 11 l. 15 s. per Ann. 5 l. for reading Prayers, and the rest for a Monthly Preparation Sermon, being the Gift of some Body deceased. But besides, there is a yearly voluntary Subscription made, amounting to 100 l. He hath also five Shillings for every Burial in the Church, and half as much for a Burial in the Church-yard. But the Ground in the Church belongs to the Parish.

THE Curate is the Reverend Mr. Ley.

PRAYERS are every Day at Eleven o'Clock, and a Sermon at Eleven in the Morning, and at Three in the Afternoon on the Friday, preceding every Sacrament Sunday, Monthly. Besides the Gift Sermon on Michaelmas - Day, there is another given by Thomas Cross, Esq; to be preached on St. Thomas's Day, for which the Minister has 20 s. the Clerk 5 s. the Sexton 1 s. 6 d.

Here is a fine Organ lately set up.

THE Vestry is General.

THE PARISH OFFICERS
are,

2 Church-wardens.
4 Sidesmen.
4 Overseers and Collectors.

THE PEACE-OFFICERS

IN Honey-coat-yard in Ailsbury-street are two Charity-Schools, one for 60 Boys, and one for 40 Girls, who are annually clothed and instructed in Reading, Writing, Arithmetick, Psalmody, and the Principles of the Christian Religion, by the voluntary and charitable Contributions of well disposed Persons; by whose Charity thirty more Children have been added.

IN Clerkenwell-Close is a House of Correction, or Bridewell, where idle Persons in the County, such as Night-walkers, &c. are set to Work.

ON Clerkenwell-Green is a Prison, called New Prison, which was intended as an Ease to Newgate; and here Persons, who are guilty of Misdemeanors, &c. committed in the County of Middlesex, are sent and detained till discharged by due Course of Law.

IN Hockley in the Hole is a Bear-Garden.

IN Ray-street is an excellent Spring, formerly called Clerkenwell.

IN St. John's Court is a Chapel, where there are Prayers Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays, and Sermons twice every Sunday. It was formerly a Priory, and now endowed by Justice Mitchel.

HERE are two Quakers Meeting-Houses, and one Charity-School for those of their Persuasion.

NEAR the Road to Islington are several Spaws, and Northward from them is the New River Head.

THIS Parish begins at Pissing-alley in St. John's Street, (including one Side of that Alley) and opposite to it, extends to the Guy of Warwick in Islington; and takes in Part of Muzzel-Hill, Great and Little Swan Alleys; Part of Goswell-street; Mountmill; Wood's-close, and the Streets therein: Also Ailsbury-street, Clerkenwell-Green and Close, Red-lion-street, St. John's Court, court, and all St. John's-lane, except the two Houses next to St. John's-street. In Turnmill-street it begins at Jacob's-court, inclusive, and at the Gully-hole, on the other Side of the Street, and takes in Peter-street as far as the Bar, and contains Mutton-lane to the Bridge, Rag-street, Hockley-in-the-Hole, Codpiece-row, Cold-bath-fields, and the Streets therein, and all the Streets, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, &c. in this Compass.

It extends North-Westward from the End of Codpiece-row, or Town's-end-street, to Sir John-old-castle's, and thence to Black-mary's-hole, taking in one House there, and then Northward to the Stone in Wood's-fields, and to a little Wheel-Pond; thence to Sermon-lane, and then Cross the Road to Goswell-street.

This Parish is divided into the Liberty of Islington, and the Upper Liberty, which is called the Liberty of St. John's-street, or Swan-alley; the Lower Liberty, or St. Jerusalem, Westminster Liberty, and the Close Liberty.

piece-row, or Town's-end-street, therein Pear-tree-court, Falcon-court, and Shepherd's-court.

NUMBER of Houses in the Parish 1900.

THE Priory here was valued to dispend 262 £ 19 s. by the Year, and was surrendered the 30th of King Henry VIII. Many good Houses for Gentlemen and other, are now built about this Priory, especially by the Highway towards Islington.

So much of the Church which remains, (for one great Isle thereof, which fell down) serves now as a Parish Church of St. James, not only for the Tenants and near Inhabitants, but also (as is aforesaid) for all up to Highgate, Moswell, &c.

NEAR to this Church, besides Clerk's Well, lay divers other Wells, namely, Skinner's Well, Fog's Well, Tode Well, Loder's Well, Rede Well, &c. damm'd up, and so remained and altogether unknown till within these 50 Years, or thereabouts; when, upon some Occasion, they, or some of them were new discovered, and being found Mineral Waters, of the Nature of Tunbridge, they came greatly frequented by Citizens, and used as Chalybate Waters for correcting Hypochondriacal Distempers.

THE old Well of Clerkenwell, and from whence the Parish had its Name, is still known among the Inhabitants; It is on the Right Hand of a Lane that leads from Clerkenwell to Hockley-in-the-hole, in a Bottom. One Mr. Cross, a Brewer, has this Well inclosed, but the Water runs from him into the said Place. It is inclosed with an high Wall, which formerly was built to bound in Clerkenwell-close: The present Well being also inclosed with another lower Wall from the Street. The Way to it is through a little House, which was the Watch-house, you go down many Steps to it. The Well had formerly Iron Work and Brass Cocks, which are now cut off. The Water spins through the old Wall; it is excellently clear, sweet, and well tasted. The Parish is much displeased that it is thus gone to Decay, and think to make some Complaint at a Commission for charitable Uses, hoping by that Means to recover it to common Use again, the Water being highly esteemed thereabouts, and many from those Parts send for it.

Skinner's Well is almost lost, and so it was in Stow's Time; but it is said to lie on the West of the Church, inclosed within certain Houses there. The Parish would fain recover the Well again, but cannot tell where the Pipes lie: But Dr. Rogers, who formerly lived in an House there, shewed Mr. E. H. late Church-warden, two Marks in a Wall in the Close, where these Pipes (as he affirmed) laid, that it might be known after his Death.

THERE was also a Ducking-Pond near to Clerkenwell, at which Pond a sad Mischance once happened, viz. the 19th of January, 1633, six young Lads going to sport themselves here upon the Ice, the Ice broke, and they all fell in and lost their Lives, to the great Grief of many that saw them dying, and many more that saw them dead, as well as of their Parents.

IN the Year 1615, the Justices of Middlesex, by Licence from the King, built an House of Correction for the County of Middlesex, near the East End of Clerkenwell, upon a large Garden-Plat, purchased by the said Justices; which House was for the Punishment and Employment of Rogues and Vagabonds of Middlesex, who formerly used to be taken into Bridewell, as well as the Vagrants of LONDON; but these Miscreants so increased, that Bridewell could not contain them, nor imploy them; neither were the Governors willing to receive them of of Middlesex from the said Justices, holding it contrary to the Charter of LONDON, and the Foundation of Bridewell: But the City gave unto this House 500 l. in Money, at the Request of the Council, to make a Stock for the Employment of the Poor. The Purchase of that Plat of Ground, and the Building, cost about 2500 l. Part of which was the free Gift of the Justices, and the rest levied by the Inhabitants. The 500 l. which the City gave, instead of making a Stock, was employed in building and furnishing the House. The Justices appointed over it two Masters and Governors, and a Matron, who were to order and govern the Vagrants committed there, and to have a Salary of 200 l. a Year for their Pains; for which Salary they receive them, and keep them at Work, without further Charge to the County, unless they be discharged thence by Order of the Justices of Peace.

Now to return to Giltspur-street, where we first began with this Suburb, there stands the Parish Church of St. Sepulchre in the Bailey, as is before shewed, from this Street to Turn-again-lane by Hosier-lane, Cow-lane, and Holborn-Conduit, down Snow-hill to Holborn-bridge, and up to Holborn-hill, by Gold-lane, on the Right Hand, and Leather-lane beyond it, up to the Bars; beyond which Bars on the same Side is Port-pool-lane, Gray's-inn-lane, so called of the Inn of Court, named Gray's-inn, as belonging formerly to the Family of the Lord Gray, which having its chief Entrance out of this Street, shall be here taken Notice of, taking up almost all the West Side of Gray's-inn-lane, into which it has a Passage. This is one of the four Inns of Courts, and is very spacious, containing several Courts, surrounded with good Buildings, taken up by Barristers and Students of the Law. The chief Courts are Holborn-court, Chapel-court, and Cony-court: But since the taking down the Middle Row of old Chambers, which severed Cony-court from Chapel-court, both are laid open together; only a Separation of a Palisado Pail running cross, to keep the Coachmen from driving their Horses into Cony-court, which since the levelling and gravelling, is kept very handsome. And this Court being the best situate, as to an open Air, especially the West and North Sides, which looks into the Garden and adjacent Fields, is of most Esteem, and has the best Buildings. The Hall where the Gentlemen of the Society Dine and Sup, is large and good, but the Chapel adjoining is too small; it were to be wished that the Society would new build it, and raise it on arched Pillars, like Lincoln's-inn Chapel, and then there would be a good dry Walk underneath, in rainy Weather. Besides these Courts, there is another more Westward, having the Garden Wall on the North Side, and Buildings on the West, with some Part of the South. Out of this Court there is a Passage down Steps into Holborn-court, another Passage into Chapel-court, another into Fulwood's-rents, and another into Bedford-row.

THE chief Ornament belonging to this Inn, is its spacious Garden, with curious Walks, as well those that are shady by the lofty Trees, as those that are raised higher, and lie open to the Air, and the Enjoyment of a delightful Prospect of the Fields. And this Garden has been, for many Years, much resorted unto by the Gentry of both Sexes.

SOME of their chief and antient Orders for Government are:

THAT one of the Sons of every double Reader should be admitted without Fine; others to pay for Admission 40 s. afterward this was raised to 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. excepting those of Staple's and Bernard's-inn; it was afterwards ordered, that setting the Fine on Admission should be left to the Judgment of the Treasurer and Readers of the House.

AFTER the 30th of Elizabeth none to be admitted, unless his Fine be paid down; and 36 Eliz. those admitted were to find two Sureties for Payment of his Duties, as Pension to the House, for Chambers and for Commons; which Sureties were to be Fellows of this House.

KING James, in the 1st of his Reign, commanded, that none should be admitted of this Society but Gentlemen by Descent, and he to be admitted was to give in his Name, that his Quality might be considered; and that none be admitted till they had paid all Duties per Order, 6 January.

AND afterward, that none should be admitted to any Chambers but for three Lives.

By 6 Car. I. it was ordered, that those admitted should pay 10 l. Fine, and 20 l. per Ann. Rent, and no Chambers to be sold but for one Life; but at present the Building Term, for which Chambers are disposed of is 51 Years, and the Renewing Term, 21.

FOR their better Improvement in Learning, at a Pension held 24 Jan. 12 Eliz. ordered, that Moots should be kept three Days in every Week, Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, if not Holidays; and every Inner Barrister, not putting Cases according to the old Order, to pay 2 s. for every Default.

IN 16 January it was ordered, that some one of the third Table should assign a Cafe, and he that did it once, to be excused for that Term.

ANY Gentleman who shall be expelled the House, he is not to be re-admitted but by Pension Order, and shall pay 40 s. for his Re-admittance; and the Fine for Admittance (Ann. 1664.) of a new Member not coming from the Inns of Chancery was 2 l. 13 s. 4 d. and there are several other antient Rules relating to Commons not now used.

THE first Reader of this House was John Spelman, Esq; Anno 1516, first Treasurer Anno 1530, but the Readers, Comptrollers; and Revels have of late (for some Years) been laid aside.

THE Arms in the Hall of this Inn of Court are of Charles Howard, Earl of Nottingham; Thomas Ratcliff, Earl of Suffex, Edward Stanley, Earl of Derby, William Cecil, Lord Burleigh, Robert, Earl of Salisbury, Lord Gray of Wilton, Sir Richard Wingfield, Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaster in the Time of King Henry VIII. Earl of Bedford, Lord Hunsdon, Lord Darcey, Lord St. John of Bletso, Henry, Earl of Kent, Sir Nicholas Bacon, Keeper of the Great Seal, Sir Francis Bacon, Baron of Verulam, Lord Bergavenny, Lord Wentworth, Sir John Spelman, one of the Judges of the King's-Bench, Clement Spelman, Esq; Cursitor Baron of the Exchequer, and many others; which here is not Room to insert.

As to the Building, the Roof of the Hall is finely built of Timber in the Nature of Westminster-hall; on the Turret is a Sun-declining Dial, with this Motto, LUX DIEI LEX DEI. That noble Court, called Cony-court, was built Anno 1687.

THE Chapel here is a Gothick Building; and was, in the Year 1699, beautified and repaired; the Walls being covered with a handsome Finishing.

THE Dimensions are, Length 51 Feet, Breadth 37, Altitude about 20. Here are no Burials; nor (consequently) any Monument.

THE present Preacher to this Honourable Society, is the Reverend Dr. Stebbing, whose Income arises from the Members of the House, who pay according to their Degree, as per Term :

A Student, 2 s. 6 d.
A Barrister, 3 s. 4 d.
An Antient, 4 s.
And a Bencher, 6 s. 8 d.

WHICH is paid to the Treasurer, and he pays the Preacher 160 l. per Ann. Quarterly ; out of which the Dr. allows the Afternoon Preacher 40 l. per Ann. who is now the Reverend Mr. William Noble ; and here are Prayers daily at Eleven and Three.

A Gentleman now pays for Admittance, 4 l. 8 s.
To the Officers at his coming into Commons, 17 s. 6 d.

To the Preachers and Butlers Rolls, per Term, 5 s.

To the Pension or Parliament for Mooting, in order to be called to the Bar, 3 l. 3 s.

They are to be in Commons a Fortnight every Term, for which they pay, 16 s.

And in the Winter Terms more, 1 s. 6 d.

THEY are to be seven Years admitted (or if they come from the Inns of Chancery, five Years) 20 Terms in Commons, and have a Chamber in their own Right, and then having done their Exercise are called to the Bar.

THERE are Degrees of Tables for the Benchers, Barristers and Students : And the Officers of this House, are :

A Treasurer.	A Pannier Man.
Steward.	Steward's Man, and
4 Butlers.	Chief Butler's Man.
2 Cooks.	2 Porters, and
	1 Gardener.

THE Garden is very spacious and pleasant, and has six principal Walks, of which two are Terras Walks.

THE Armorial Ensigns of this Society are, Argent, a Griffin Rampant, segreiant proper.

Grays-inn-lane is furnished with fair Buildings, and many Tenements on both the Sides leading to the Fields towards Highgate and Hampstead.

ON the High-street are many fair Houses built, and Lodgings for Gentlemen, Inns for Travellers, and such like, up almost (for it lacks but little) to St. Giles's in the Fields. Among which Buildings, for the most Part, being very new, one that was larger than the rest, in Stow's Time, was built by a Widow, some Time Wife to Richard Arlington, Esq. which Richard Arlington deceased in the Year 1561. And thus much for that North Side of Holborn.

Now from Newgate on the Left Hand, or South Side, lies the Old-bailey, and so down by Seacoal-lane End to Holborn-bridge, up Holborn-hill, by Shoe-lane, and Fetter-lane, to the Bars.

THESE two Cross-Lanes, Shoe-lane and Fetter, or (Fewter) Lane, with the third, called Chancery-lane (all which lie between the two High-streets, Fleet-street and Holborn, and are Passages from one to the other) were foul for Passengers and unpaved, till the 9th of King Edward II. Ann. 1315, when that King granted an Imposition upon Commodities brought to the City, for the Mending and Paving of those Lanes ; and likewise to pave and mend the Highway from Portpole-bridge to Tyburn, and to High- gate ; and also the same Grant extended from the Paving between Temple-bar and Westminster.

BEYOND the Bars was (in old Time) a Temple built by the Templers, whose Order first began in the Year of CHRIST 1118, the 19th of King Henry I. This Temple was left, and fell to Ruin since the Year 1184, when the Templers had built them a new Temple in Fleet-street, near to the River Thames. A great Part of this old Temple was pulled down, but in the Year 1595. Adjoining to this old Temple was the Bishop of Lincoln's Inn, wherein he lodged, when he repaired to this City ; Robert de Curars, Bishop of Lincoln, built it about the Year 1147. And John Ruffel, Bishop of Lincoln, Lord Chancellor in the Reign of King Richard III. was lodged there. It afterwards belonged to the Earls of Southampton, and therefore called Southampton-house ; which House was conveyed in Fee to the Lord Wriothesley, Earl of Southampton, and Lord Chancellor, in the Time of King Edward VI. for which the Bishop has no other House in or near LONDON, as is thought.

ONE Mr. Reper built much there ; by Means whereof, Part of the Ruins of the old Temple was seen to remain, built of Cane Stone, round in Form as the new Temple, by Temple-bar, and other Temples in England.

BEYOND this old Temple and the Bishop of Lincoln's House, was New-street, so called in the Reign of King Henry III. when he (of a Jew's House) founded the House of Converts, betwixt the old Temple and the new.

CONCERNING this House of Converts some Things have been spoken before in Farringdon Ward Without ; let these Antiquities thereof be added here, for the better Knowledge of this Place :

First, One Henry, a Convert, bequeathed a Tenement to it situate over-against this House, in the Street called New-street, for the maintaining of a Luminary to the Holy Trinity in the Church of this House ; which Tenement the Master of the said House, and the rest of the Brethren afterwards demised to Will. Ailemer, the 9th of King Edward II.

Secondly, Women Converts were admitted here as well as Men ; and King Edward III. in the 18th of his Reign, admitted one Aliouer M. who had not wherewithal to live, granting her to have so much in all Things for her Sustentation, as well in Money at the Exchequer, viz. one Penny a Day, and the Aisamenta, i. e. the Conveniences of the Houses and Gardens, as any one of the other Women enjoyed ; and also of the Deodands, and other Profits, as of the Rents and Tenements of the said Converts of LONDON, being within the Kingdom of England, as much as any other Convert Women partook thereof.

CONCERNING the Deodands before-mentioned, the said King Edward III. in the 4th of his Reign, granted to the Master of the House of Converts, the Deodands belonging to him.

THE King presented a Clerk to the Church of St. Dunstan in Fleet-street, in the 10th of his Reign ; but it was Salva pensione. inde capiend. Regis in Domo Conversorum.

THERE was also Provision made for the maintaining of the Children of such as were of this House. And there is a Patent, Anno 15 of that King, concerning providing for the Children of one of them deceased in the same House.

AND in the 20th of the same King, the Converts were ordered to receive 10 d. ob. every Week.

THERE was a Governor of this House, who was called the Keeper of it, one John S. Denys, Arch-deacon deacon of Rockester, was Keeper there in the Time of King Edward I. which King took a voluntary Oath to make Provision for them, Rex Johanni de St. Dionysio Archino, Roff. Custodi Domus Conversorium Lond. Salut. Quia ad augmentum Fidei, Nos, ut illi qui a Cecitate ad Lumen Ecclesie sunt conversi, in ipsa Fidei Firmitate roborentur, & alii qui adhuc in errore persistunt, lubentius ad gratiam Fidei se convertant, deposuimus in eorum sustentationem salubriter providero.

THE same Street has since been called Chancery-lane, by Reason that King Edward III. annexed the House of Converts by Patents, to the Office of Custos Rotulorum, or Master of the Rolls, in the 15th of his Reign.

THIS Chancellor's-lane, (now called Chancery-lane) in King Edward V's Time was so foul and miry, that John Briton, Custos of LONDON, had it barred up, to hinder any Harm that might happen in passing that Way; and the Bishop of Chichester, whose House was there, kept up the Bar for many Years: But after divers Years, upon an Inquisition made of the Annoyances of LONDON, the Inquest presented that John Bishop of Chichester, 10 Years past stopt up a certain Lane, called Chancellor's-lane, Levando ibid. duas Stapulas cum una barra, i. e. by setting up there two Staples with one Bar cross the said Lane, whereby Men with Carts and other Carriages could not pass. The Bishop said, that John Breton, while he was Custos of LONDON, for that the said Lane was so dirty that no Man could pass, set up the said Staples and Bar ad viam illum defutand. and he granted, that what was an Annoyance should be taken away: And so the Sheriff was commanded to do it.

IN this Street the first fair Building to be noted on the East Side, is called the Cursitors (or Cursitors) Office, built with divers fair Lodgings for Gentlemen, all of Brick and Timber, by Sir Nicholas Bacon, late Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, deceased in the Year 1578.

NEAR to this Cursitors Office are divers fair Houses and large Gardens, built and made in a Ground some Time belonging to one great House on the other Side the Street, there made by Ralph Nevil, Bishop of Chichester. This Ground he had by the Gift of King Henry III. as appears hence, viz.

“ The King granted to Ralph, Bishop of “ Chichester, Chancellor, that Place, with the “ Garden which John Herlirum forfeited in that “ Street called New-street, over-against the Land “ of the said Bishop, in the same Street; which “ Place, with the Garden and Appurtenance, “ was the King's Exchete, by the Liberty of
“ the City of LONDON, as it was acknow“ ledged before the King, in his Court of the “ Tower of LONDON, in the last Pleas of
“ the Crown of that City. Cart. 11. King “ Henry III.

Morris Brown, Citizen and Fruiterer, by his Will, July 6, 1488, gave to Margery his Wife the Profits of his Tenements and Gardens, which he held to farm of the Bishop of Chichester, lying in Chancery-lane, in the Parish of St. Dunstan in the West.

THE Bishop of Chichester has still a Propriety and Rents here for Grounds belonging to the See, on both Sides the Way. First, on the West Side from Lincoln's-inn; in the Street Southward near the Pump to ——— Feet of Ground; comprehending two Thorowfares, viz. Bishop's-court, siding with Lincoln's-inn, and some Time taking in Part of it, (which said Inn formerly paid 7 l. per Ann.

as an Acknowledgment to the said Bishop;) and Chichester Rents, the other Thorowfare on that Side. On the East Side of the Street forwards, the said Grounds extend from White's-alley to the Rolls; and backwards East as far as Bond's-Stables, with a Patch of Ground joining to it inclusive; comprehending all the Ground usually called The Tenter-yard, and Simmond's-inn, and siding on the Rolls Southwards.

AND Anno 7. Regin. Annæ, there was an Act made for explaining and making more effectual a former Act, Anno Reginæ 1. granting further Time to John Bishop of Chichester, and his Successors, to make Leases of certain Houses and Ground in and near Chancery-lane, belonging to the Bishoprick of Chichester.

The ROLLS LIBERTY.

THERE were many old Houses belonging to the Rolls; and to encourage and warrant the Tenants to rebuild or improve them, an Act was made the 12th of King Charles II. to empower the Master of the Rolls to make Leases of them for Years. For before the Masters could not grant such Leases for Terms of Years as might prevail with Tenants to build their Houses; and so they came much out of Repair, and not capable of Improvement.

Thomas Barrow was Master of the Rolls in King Richard III. his Reign; to whom that King gave a Grant of a Tun of Wine, to be taken in the Port of LONDON, which seemed to have been his Fee; as appears in a Ledger of that King.

WHICH Rolls are a Liberty, tho' of no great Compass: To set down its Circuit or Bounds, we shall begin at the Corner of Cursitors-alley, next to Chancery-lane, taking in the South Side to the Rose Tavern, where it crosses White's-alley; all which it takes in, and so into Bond's-stables; all which is also taken in, except two or three Houses on each Side next to Fetter-lane; and there it crosses into the Rolls-garden, which it likewise takes in; and from thence runs into Chancery-lane by Sergeants-inn; and crossing Chancery-lane runs into Jackanapes-lane, about the Middle of which it crosses into Pope's-head-court, which it takes all in, as it doth the East Side of Bell-yard, almost to the End next Temple-bar, except some few Houses on the Backside of Crown-court, which is in the City Liberty: And then crossing Bell-yard, near Temple-bar, runs cross the Houses into Shear-lane, taking in all the East Side: And again, crossing over to Lincoln's-inn-new-court, runs up to the Pump by the Pallisado-Pales, where it crosses over into Chancery-lane, taking in the St. John's-head Tavern, and thence to the Corner of Cursitors-alley, where we began its Bounds, or Girt Line.

THE Rolls, formerly a Church, now used for the Custody of the Rolls and Records of Chancery; as also made Use of on Sundays in Term-Time for Divine Service and Preaching. Here the Master of the Rolls resides, and has a handsome, new, well-built House.

IN the Chapel where Divine Service is performed, the Records are kept; this would admit of new Building. In the Yard belonging to the Rolls, is the Examiners-Office, being two in Number, with their Clerks.

Chancery-lane (wherein these Rolls are situate, formerly called New-street) is a Place of great Resort and Trade, occasioned by its Vicinity to the Rolls, Six-clerks-office, Sergeant's-inn, with Simmond's-inn, and the other Inns of Court and Chancery: But the upper Part of this Lane, next Holbourn, lying in St. Andrew's Parish, is best built and inhabited, having also the Prospect of Lincoln's-Inn Gardens.

THE particular Places in Chancery-lane are these :

ON the South Part; beginning next to Lincoln's-Inn, is,

Bishop's-court, new built, with good Houses, having a Free-stone Pavement, and a Passage into Lincoln's-Inn, where there is a Pair of Gates with open Iron Bars.

Chichester-rents; a pretty broad Court; with a Passage also into Lincoln's-Inn, through a Pair of Gates, shut up at Nights as those at Bishop's-court. It is a Place not over well inhabited, nor neatly kept, although it might be otherwise, as having a good Freestone Pavement. Next to this is a small and narrow Place called Feathers-alley, which hath a Passage into the upper End of Bell-yard.

THE Six Clerks Office is a large Building, the Office is kept above Stairs, where the sixty Clerks in one large Room, have their Seats; but the Six Clerks have there each their Apartments.

ENTERING into this Six Clerks Office, on the Right Hand, is the Enrollment Office of the Chancery.

THE Masters of the Chancery have their Office in Chancery-lane, near Jackanapes-lane, being a Room where generally one or two attend in their Turns to take Affidavits, &c. and sit for Business. It is situated in a Yard where the Crown and Rolls Tavern is kept. Their Dwelling-Houses are elsewhere.

THE Masters of Chancery are twelve of the Civil Law, who are Assistants to the Lord Chancellor.

WHEN Sir Thomas Smith writ his Commonwealth, there were but six, besides the Master of the Rolls. The Nature of their Office, and what Encroachments were made upon them a good while ago, may appear by a Letter Petitionary, preferred to the Lord Treasurer, An. 1608, drawn and signed by Sir John Tindal, and other of the Masters: Complaining against extraordinary Masters in Chancery, the Act of taking away the Rewards of Suitors, losing the Benefit of the Alienation Office, and other Matters, which had greatly diminished the Benefit of their Places. The Letter was as follows :

Right Honourable and our very good Lord,

WE the Masters of the Chancery, which be the Masters of the Chancery in Ordinary, and so known (whose Names be hereunto subscribed) on the Behalf of ourselves, and our Fellow Masters in Ordinary now absent, do most humbly and in all Duty shew unto your Lordship, That where by the Institution of the High Court of Chancery, there were only twelve principal Assistants appointed to attend the Lord Chancellor in the Affairs of that Court, which be called The Masters of the said Court, of whom the Master of the Rolls is the Chief: Unto which Number the noble Kings of this Realm have given bountiful Allowance of Diet and Robes, and many great Things also towards the Charge of their Service, besides many Fees of Right and Custom belonging to their Places: So it is, Right Honourable, that as in many other Cases, so of later Times, we know not by what deserved Punishment, but by our Unhappiness (as it seems) all our antient Allowances in a Manner (in this extreme Increase of Charges, when our Pains and Service by Reason of the Multitude of Suits are doubled and trebled) are taken from us, partly by Monopolies of great yearly Revenue, of such Things as belonged principally to the ordinary Masters, made by Patents unto such as have not at all served in the said Court; partly by a late severe Statute whereby all Reward from Suitors is taken from them, a Matter admitted in all other Commonwealths; and not a little by the making in these Times of many extraordinary Masters, which originally were not at all: But in Process of Time a very few were used only in the remotest Parts of the Land, for the Ease of those Subjects: But now, tho' they be not of the King's Fee, nor give Attendance in Court, do not only glean, but carry away whole Sheaves from the Ordinary Masters: So as in Effect there is left unto the true Masters towards their great Pains and Charge, a bare yearly Stipend from the King's Majesty of about twenty Nobles towards their Robes, and certain petty Duties; which the Extraordinaries take upon them also against all Right and Reason to carry from them.

AND for a plain Evidence thereof, may it please your Lordship to be informed, That the Duties which are payable in the Alienation-Office, whereof your Honour hath now under his gracious Majesty the Governance, which do belong to a Master of the Chancery, were ever before the Erection of that Office belonging only unto the Masters, and at the first Erection of that Office a Master in Ordinary was placed there. But in the Time of the last Lord Treasurer, we know not by what Means, but as we believe chiefly by not knowing any Difference between the two Functions, an Extraordinary was placed there, to the great Prejudice and Damage, and (if we durst say it) to the Wrong of the Ordinary Masters. Now for as much as the same Person is yet employed in that Service in the said Office, We therefore, the Ordinary Masters of the said Court of Chancery, his Majesty's dutiful, faithful and most painful Servants in that Court, encouraged by the publick Fame of your admirable Disposition to Justice and Equity, do humbly beseech your Honour, to be a Means unto his Gracious Majesty, that his most humble Subjects and Servants might in some reasonable Sort, according to their Places and Service be respected: And your Honour in this very Particular Case, would be pleased to restore unto our Places, the Benefit of serving in the said Office of Alienations.

AND so shall we be found no less ready than we stand bound to employ our best Endeavours, in the same his Majesty's Service, under you: And will also testify our humble Thankfulness, by yielding unto your Honour our most willing Duties, and by recommending you always to the gracious Favour of the Almighty.

Jackanapes-lane, lately a bad, as well as frequent Passage for Coaches and Carts into Lincoln's-Inn-fields, and those Parts, being very troublesome by Reason of its Narrowness, that two could not pass by one another. But now by a late Act of Parliament, this Lane is widened. On the South Side, about the Middle, there is a Passage into Popes-head-court, which is a pretty square Place; with a Free-stone Pavement. And of this there is another Passage into Bell-yard.

Bell-yard, a Place of a good Thoroughfare from Lincoln's Inn into Fleet-street, and chiefly consisting of Publick Houses.

Shear-lane comes out of Little Lincoln's-Inn-fields, and falls into Fleet-street by Temple-bar; the upper Part hath good Buildings, well inhabited; but the lower Part is very narrow, and more ordinary. In this Lane is a certain small Court.

THEN on the East Side of Chancery-lane is Curfitors-alley, so called from the Curfitors Office there adjoining. This Alley, at the Entrance into Chancery-lane, is but narrow, but opens wider, wider, where it hath good Houses well inhabited.

White's-alley, or rather Alleys; (for these are several) which lead to Buildings all old, and generally ill inhabited. These Buildings have two Passages into Chancery-lane; the one called Three Crane-alley, and the other Bream's Buildings, a handsome open Place, with very good Houses on one Side, the other is only a high Dead Wall, except one House at the North East Corner.

Bond-stables hath a Passage into White's-alley, and another into Symond's-Inn; but the best into Fetter-lane, thro' a Sort of Street now lately built with good Houses, and called the Rolls Buildings. In this Place is a small Court called Crack-pitcher-court.

Symond's-Inn; this is one of the Inns of Chancery, but is possessed by two Masters in Chancery, several Solicitors, &c. There are two handsome Brick Structures, and two pleasant Courts; in one of which is the Registers Office; which is of great Import and much Business belonging to the Court of Chancery. There is one principal Register; which Office is vested in his Grace Charles Duke of St. Alban's, and Francis Earl of Godolphin. The Deputy-Registers are Edward Goldsborough, Esq; and Richard Price, Esq; For the Rolls, Mr. Thomas Parnel, and Mr. Thomas Parot. Their Business is to sit in Court and register the Proceedings with all Decrees and Orders, &c. of the Lord Chancellor or Keeper, or Master of the Rolls, and at their Office deliver out Copies of the same to those concerned, &c.

THEN was the House of Converts, wherein now the Rolls of Chancery are kept.

THUS much for the Rolls and the Liberty thereof. Then is Sergeants-Inn.

ON the West Side of New-street was antiently, and still is, the House and Office of the Six Clerks, of old called Harflu-Inn. It belonged some Time to Notion Park Priory in Lincolnshire. Upon the Dissolution it came to K. Henry VIII. who in the 30th of his Reign gave it to Charles Duke of Suffolk, and Katharine his Wife. It consisted of a Messuage, a Garden and Curtelage. And here the Six Clerks sat. In 31 H. 8. the said Duke and Dutcheß parted with it to the said Six Clerks. In which Year an Act of Parliament was made, whereby they were made a Corporation, under the Name of The Six Clerks of the King's Court of Chancery. And for them to hold and enjoy the said Messuage, Garden and Curtelage, to them and their Successors, the Six Clerks of Chancery, for ever in Succession; and to hold it of the King in Fealty.

ON this West Side of New-street, towards the North End thereof, was (of old Time) the Church, and House of the Preaching Fryars: Of which House, it is said, that in the Year of Christ. 1221, the Fryars Preachers, thirteen in Number, came into England, and having to their Prior one named Gilbert de Fraxineto, in Company of Peter de la Roche, Bishop of Winchester, came to Canterbury; where, presenting themselves before the Archbishop Steven, he commanded the said Prior to preach, whose Sermon he liked so well, that ever after he loved that Order. These Fryars came to LONDON, and had their first House without the Wall of the City by Holbourn, near the Old Temple.

Hubert de Burgo, Earl of Kent, was a great Benefactor unto these Fryars, and deceasing at his Manor at Bansted in Surrey, or, after some Writers, at his Castle of Barkhamsted in Hertfordshire, in the Year 1242, was buried in their Church: Unto the which Church he had given his Place at Westminster; which the said Fryars afterward sold to Walter Gray, Archbishop of York, and he left it to his Successors in that See, for ever to be their House, when they should repair to the City of LONDON. And therefore the same was called York Place; which Name so continued until the Year 1529; that King Henry VIII. took it from Thomas Wolsey, Cardinal and Archbishop of York; and then gave it to Name, White Hall.

Margaret, Sister to the King of Scots, Widow to Geffery, Earl Marshal, deceased 1244, and was buried in this Church.

IN the Year 1250 the Fryars of this Order of Preachers, through Christendom; and from Jerusalem; were by a Convocation assembled together, at this House by Holbourn, to intreat of their Estate, to the Number of 400, having Meat and Drink found them of Alms, because they had no Possessions of their own. The first Day the King came to their Chapter, found them Meat and Drink, and dined with them. Another Day the Queen found them Meat and Drink: Afterward the Bishop of LONDON, the Abbots of Westminster, of St. Alban's, Waltham, and others. In the Year 1276, Gregory Rokefly, Mayor, and the Barons of LONDON, granted and gave to Robert Kilwerby, Archbishop of Canterbury, two Lanes or Ways next the Street of Baynard's Castle, and the Tower of Mountfichet; to be destroyed. On which Place the said Robert built Church; with the rest of the Stones that were left of the said Tower. And thus the Black Fryars left their Church and House by Holbourn, and departed to their new.

THIS old Fryar-House (justa Holbourn saith the Patent) was by King Edward I. in the sixteenth of his Reign, given to Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln. Next to this House of Fryars, was one other great House, some Time belonging to the Bishop of Chichester, whereof Matthew Paris writeth thus:

Ralph de nova villa, or Nevill, Bishop of Chichester, and Chancellor of England, some Time built a noble House, even from the Ground, not far from the New Temple and House of Converts, in which Place he deceased, in the Year 1244. His Gardens, on the other Side of the Street, mentioned before. Matthew Paris called it the Bishop of Chichester's Palace (such it seems was the Magnificence of it,) and writes, that the Archbishop of Canterbury visiting St. Bartholomew's, did lie at this House. It is said to be Let in Lease by the Bishop's Predecessors for divers Years. Here Spelman writes, that Sir Richard Read, some Time a Master of Chancery, and Mr. Atkinson a Counsellor at Law, Men eminent in their Times, (viz. under Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth) and others dwelt.

IN this Place, after the Decease of the aforesaid Bishop, and in Place of the House of Black Fryars before spoken, Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, Constable of Chester, and Custos of England, built his Inn, and for the most Part was lodged there. He deceased in this House in the Year 1310, and was buried in the New Work (whereunto he had been a great Benefactor) of St. Paul's Church, betwixt our Lady's Chapel, and St. Dunstan's Chapel. You enter Lincoln's-Inn under a fair antient Gate-house, on which are the Arms of England: And on the Right Side thereof this Coat within the Garter: Or, a Lion Azure or Purpure, belonging to Lacy, Earl of Lincoln: On the Sinister Side another Coat, within the Garter borne quarterly, being the bearing of the Lovels; underneath is the Date, A. D. 1518. These Arms are of late new painted and refreshed. By whom they were done, appears by an Inscription there added underneath, viz.

Lincoln's-Inn;

Insignia hæc refecta & decorata JOHANNE
HAWLES,
Armig. Solicitatore Generali, Thesaurario, 1695.

A fair Chapel for the Use of this Inn of Court, was built in the first Court, Anno 1623, and consecrated upon Ascension-Day that Year, by the Lord Bishop of LONDON.

THIS Lincoln's-inn, some Time pertaining to the Bishops of Chichester, as a Part of the said great House, is now an Inn, as before; but now lately increased with fair Buildings, and replenished with Gentlemen studious in the Common Law. In the Reign of King Henry VIII. Sir
Thomas Lovel was a great Builder there; especially he built the Gate-house and Fore-front towards the East, placing thereon as well the Lacie's Arms as his own: He caused the Lacie's Arms to be cast and wrought in Lead, on the Lover of the Hall of that House, which was in three Escutcheons, a Lion Rampant, for Lacie's, seven Mascules voided, for Quintie, and three Wheat Sheaves, for Chester. This Lover being of late repaired, the said Escutcheons were left out.

ABOUT the Year 1622, or 1623, the Chapel was built with an Ambulatory, or Walk underneath, paved with Free-stone, very convenient for standing or walking in wet Weather, and where the Gentlemen of this Inn are buried, for whom there are numerous Inscriptions. Over the Arch, at the East End of the South Walk, under the said Chapel, is placed a Coat of Arms of the Bishop of LONDON, who consecrated this Chapel, and these Words underneath:

GEORGIUS LONDON Episcopus consecravit in Festo Ascensionis, DOMINI ANNO 1623.

It is a fair Chapel, built without any Pillars;
the Windows all finely painted, with Apostles,
Kings, and Prophets; under which are many Shields with Coats of Arms of such as either were honourable Members of this Inn, or as gave the Windows, with Inscriptions under each.
As on the North Side there are 12 Windows with the Figures in the Glass at large, of David, Daniel, Eli, Esaias, Jeremias, Ezekiel,
Amos, Zacharias, Abraham, Moses, John Baptist and St. Paul; and on the South Side the 12 Apostles. The Inscriptions under these 12 on the North Side as follow:

John Spencer of Offley, Esquire.

THE East Window has the Arms of England
painted large, with the Ineschutcheon of King William III. with the Royal Supporters, and the Words Je meintiendray, and divers other Coats.

THE West Window also full of Coats of Arms, with the Names subscribed.

Lincoln's-inn-hall also had divers Coats of Arms in the Windows, pertaining to noble or eminent Persons formerly of that House, or Befactores to it, viz.

Henry Hobert, Kt. John Pickering, Keeper of the Great Seal, Christopher Wray, Kt. Lord Chief Justice of England, who had there two Shields, 1. Azure, on a Chief, Or, three Mart-lets, Gules. 2. Arg. a Chevron, Sable, three Mullets of the First, pierced, between as many Eagles Heads, crazed. Spencer, Stanley, Earl
of

of Derby, Radcliff, Earl of Surrey; Ruffel; Earl of Bedford, Egerton, Viscount Brackley, &c.

Lincoln's-inn has a considerable Part in the Parish of St. Clement's; another Part in the Parish of St. Giles's in the Fields; another Part in the Parish of St. Andrew's Holbourn, and a fourth in the Liberty of the Rolls.

OF late Years it has been much increased by the additional Buildings, taken out of Little Lincoln's-inn-fields, consisting of three very good Rows, all taken up by Gentlemen of the Society, having fair and commodious Apartments; the said three Rows encompassing three Sides of the Court; which is spacious and neatly kept, and covered with Gravel, raised towards the Middle, to cast off the Rain Water when it falls: In the Middle of the Court is a curious Stone Pillar artificially wrought, on which is a Dial-Clock, with four Boys who used to spout Water out of Triton Shells, and at the Bottom is a Basen that received the said Streams of Water falling down from the Shells, all encompassed with handsome Iron Bars. The North Side lies open to the Gardens, which are now exceedingly improved with curious Walks, Grass-Plats, fine Rows of shady Trees to walk under, and a Terras Walk or Mount, which gives the Prospect of Lincoln's-inn-fields.

To return to the Chapel; it is a strong, neat, well-built Structure; the Walls are beautiful Stone, strengthened with Buttresses, and adorned with Vases on Acroters: It is elevated on strong Gothick Pillars and Arches, adorned with Coats of Arms, Carving, &c. so that there is a Cloister, or open Wall, under the Chapel; the Windows are spacious of the same Order, and it has a cambered Roof.

As to the finishing and ornamental Part, the Roof is neatly cieled with Timber, and the Walls are wainscotted round with Oak about six Feet high.

THE Pews and Pulpit are of the same Kind of Timber, the Fronts of the former being carved in the Semblance of the Gothick Arch.

THE Communion-Table is inclosed with strong Rail and Balister, and the Window over is spacious and beautiful. The Commandments are placed on the South Side of the Church, done in Black on Gold, between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, in Gold Colour on Black.

THE Door-Case at the Entrance, at the West End, is very handsome, being Oak; with Pillars and Entablature of the Dorick Order.

WITHIN the Cloister, under the Chapel, are several Gentlemen buried; some of the most remarkable, Grave-stones are these, with the following Inscriptions:

Here lyes the Body of
JOHN THURLLO,
Secretary of State to the Protector OLIVER CROMWELL, and a Member of this Society, he died Feb. the 21st, 1667.

Another with this Inscription:

Hic conditur Gulielmus Martyn, Ar. antique Socius & Benefactorus hujus Hospitii.

Qui ob. 21 Octob. 1696. Ætat. 60.

Here lyes the Body of Thomas Jones, Esq; Son of Sir Thomas Jones, Kt. late Lord Chief Justice of the Common-Pleas, who departed this Life
the 6th of Sept. 1711.

aged 72.

Senior Bencher of this Society.

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Thomas Greene, who departed this Life the 23d Day of August,
1716, aged 70 Years.

Rodericus Lloyd, Arm.
[Nuper hujus Hospitii Socius]
Ob. 26^o. Maii, 1730.
Ætat. suæ 72.

Here lies the Body of Thomas Barneby, Esq; late of Lincoln's-inn, who departed this Life the 1st of Sept. 1730, aged 78.

N. B. This Mr. Barneby had the good Fortune to win the great Prize of 20,000 l. in one of the State Lotteries.

Here lyeth the Body of
JOHN DOBSON,
Son of THOMAS DOBSON of Vicarage, in the County of York, Gent.
Student of this Society, who dyed the 4th of May, 1732,
aged 20 Years.

Here lyeth the Body of
JOHN FREWEN, Gent.
a Member of this Society, who departed this Life, April the 1st, 1733,
aged 60.

PENISTON LAMB, Esq;
dyed 31st January, 1734,
aged 64.

THE Preacher to the Society of Lincoln's-inn, is the Reverend Mr. Cranks, Value 3 l. per Term. The Afternoon Preacher and Reader is the Reverend Mr. Rawlings. Prayers are daily at Eleven and Five.

THERE is no Organ in this Chapel. In one of the Windows Hall of this Inn, are lately painted the Arms of the Lord Talbot, the present Lord High Chancellor of England; and the Arms of Sir Robert Walpole, the present Chancellor of the Exchequer, both Members of this Honourable Society.

HERE within the Bounds of Lincoln's-inn was lately propounded by Mr. Wheedon, the Erection of a beautiful Range of Building, to be only one Story, without Chimneys, and to be covered flat with Lead, all along by the dead Wall, on the East Side of Lincoln's-inn-garden, upon the waste Ground between the said Wall and the Gravel Walk, for the Use of some, or all the Offices in Chancery, viz.

The Six Clerks
The Curfitors
The Masters in Chancery
The Examiner
The Petty Bag
The Registers
The Affidavit
The Hamper and
The Subpœna

Office

THE Reasons offered for this Erection, were, that the said Building would be much more secure and ornamental to the said Garden, and all the Chambers in the same; defending them from Robbery, and the Dust and Noise of the next adjoining Street. And a Row of fine regular Sash Windows would be a much pleasanter Sight on the Garden Side, than an old dirty black Wall. And it might yield a very considerable Ground-Rent to the Society. And these Offices would be most conveniently situated, almost in the Centre of the Inns of Court and Chancery. And the same Offices being thus joined together ther would be of very great Ease to all the Officers; and also to all Attorneys, Solicitors and Practisers, as well as all other People that should have Occasion to resort to the same; whereby all the Offices might have a mutual Correspondency one with another: And the Situation being healthful, it might contribute not only to the great Ease, but the Health also of the several Officers and their Clerks, especially those of the Six Clerks Office, who, the greatest Part of the Year, write by Candle-Light in the Day-Time, annoyed with the Smoak and Smell of Candle-Grease, and are so many, and so near crowded up together in little Boxes:

Now High-holborn-street, from the North End of New-street stretches on the Left Hand up to St. Giles in the Fields; but the Way leading from the Bars in Holborn, Westward, towards the said St. Giles, was very foul and full of Pits and Sloughs, and very perilous and noisome to all that repaired and passed that Way, as well on Foot as on Horseback, or with Carriages; and so were other Lanes and Places that led out of or into Holborn, as Shoe-lane, Fetter-lane, New-street, or Chancery-lane, and Gray's-inn-lane. Upon Complaint whereof an Act was made in the 32d of King Henry VIII. An. 1542, to pave all those Places with paving Stones; as also on the East of the City, the Way from Aldgate to Whitechapel Church, which had the same ill Passage; all to be paved and made convenient for Passengers, by the Feast of St. John Baptist, 1542, in Manner and Form as the Causeway, or Highway leading from Strand-bridge to Charing-cross, had been made and paved.

THE Extent of this Pavement in Holborn-street was to the far End of it, to St. Giles in the Fields.

WHICH St. Giles was an Hospital founded by Matilda the Queen, Wife to Henry I. about the Year 1117. This Hospital, says the Record of King Edward III. the 19th Year, was founded without the Bar, Veteris Templi London. & Conversorum.

MOREOVER, says the same Record, in the 20th of King Edward III. the said King sent Commandment under his Great Seal, to the Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON, willing them to make Proclamation in every Ward of the City and Suburbs, That all leproous Persons within the said City and Suburbs should avoid within 15 Days; and that no Man suffer any such leproous Person to abide within his House, upon Pain to forfeit his said House, and to incur the King's farther Displeasure; and that they should cause the said Lepers to be removed into some Out-Places of the Fields, from the Haunt and Company of all sound People; whereupon it followed, that the Citizens required of the Guardian of St. Giles's Hospital, to take from them, and to keep continually the Number of 14 Persons, according to the Foundation of Matilda, the Queen, which was for leproous Persons of the City of LONDON, and the Shire of Middlesex.

THIS Hospital of St. Giles for Lazars was confirmed by King Edward III. in the 4th of his Reign.

IN this Hospital was a Chapel, wherein King Edward I. in the first of his Reign, founded a Chantry (tis like, for his Father and Ancestors,) for which this Hospital took yearly, at the Exchequer, for the Maintenance of it 3 l. and 20 s. more, at the Hand of the Sheriff of Surrey.

THERE were Alms due, and accustomedly paid toward this Hospital, in the City of LONDON; and there was a Patent the 15th of King Richard II. for requiring and confirming them.

THIS Hospital was founded as a Cell to Burton Lazar, of Jerusalem in Leicestershire, as may appear by a Deed dated the 24th of Henry VIII. in these Words:

"Thomas Norton, Knt. Master of Burton Lazar, of Jerusalem in England, and the Brethren of the same Place, Keepers of the Hospital of St. Giles, without the Bars of the Old Temple of LONDON, have sold to Jeffery Kent, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, a Messuage or House, with two Sollars above edified, in the Parish of Albhallows-bony-lane, in West-cheap, adjoining to the West Part of a Tenement, called The Goat on the Hope, pertaining to the Drapers of LONDON, for 31 l.

AT this Hospital the Prisoners conveyed from the City of LONDON towards Tyburn, there to be executed for Treasons, Felonies, or other Trespasses, were presented with a Bowl of Ale, thereof to drink (at their Pleasure) as their last Refreshing in this Life.

Now without Ludgate lies the South End of the Old-bailey, then down Ludgate-hill by Fleet-lane, over Fleet-bridge, up Fleet-street, by Shoe-lane, Fetter-lane, New-street, or Chancery-lane, and to Shear-lane, by the Bar on the Right Hand; and from Ludgate, on the Left Hand or South Side, by Bride-lane, Croker's-lane, now Water-lane, Sergeants-inn, and the New Temple by the Bar, all which is of Farringdon Ward, as is afore shewed:

The Parish of St. Giles in the Fields.

THE ancient Hospital of St. Giles was taken Notice of before by Stow, but the Parish not at all; perhaps because it stood at such a Distance from the City in his Time; but since that, being so exceedingly spread in Buildings, it is become contiguous, and so reckoned among the Suburbs.

AND the present State of the Parish stands thus:

It is of a very large Extent; and as populous, with a Mixture of rich Inhabitants, viz. of the Nobility, Gentry, and Commonalty, but withal abounding in Poor.

As to the Bounds, or Girt-Line, of this Parish, we shall begin on the Backside of Portugal-row, in Lincoln's-inn-fields, towards Clare-market, at the Parish-Mark; thence it runs along the Stabling in the said Row, taking in only the Houses; from thence it crosses into Lincoln's-inn-new-square, where the Parish-Mark is set up in the Wall, and so to the Pump that stands by the Garden Pales; and from this Pump it runs Northward in a direct Line, crossing the Garden into Holborn, by the Entry called Grid-iron-alley, which is about 10 Doors from Turnstile; and from thence it runs on the South Side as far as New-turn-stile-alley, where it crosses the Street to the North Side, to the House where the Stone-Mark is at the Door, being six Doors from King's-gate; thence it crosses the Buildings into Eagle-street, and turning to the Corner of the said Street, runs Northward by the Wall of the Gardens belonging to King's-street in Bloomsbury; and so strait into the Fields to the Conduit called The Devil's Chimney.

IN Duke-street it extends on the South to one House beyond the Stable-yard, adjoining to the Popish Chapel, inclusive, and on the North Side of that Street to Great-wild-street; which it takes in; and also all Prince's-street, all the East Side of Drury-lane, beginning at one House Southward of the Rummer and Horse-shoe Tavern to St. Giles's-street.

AND on the West Side of Drury-lane, beginning at Little-turn-stile-alley, it reaches Northward to St. Giles's-street. It takes in also the North Side of Little-turn-stile-alley and Castle-street to Cock-and-pye-fields, all those Fields, the East Sides of West-street and Hog-lane; or Crown-street.

ON the North Side of St. Giles's-street, it begins at Dyct-street, taking in the West Side of that Street, and extends Westward thro' St. Giles's-street and High-street to the End of Tottenham-court-row, together with all Lanes, Streets, Courts, &c. in this Circuit.

THERE is a new Church built, and lately finished here; but first let us speak of the old one. This Church was dedicated to St. Giles the Abbot and Confessor, and is said to be in the Fields, because it was so till the Town was built up to it, as is said before; and also to distinguish it from St. Giles Cripplegate. It was begun to be raised in the Year of our Lord 1623, was finished 1625, and encompassed with a Brick Wall, Anno 1631, as was expressed over the Door on the North Side, by the following Inscription:

Quod felix bonumque sit Posteris,
Hoc Templum loco veteris ex Annosâ
vetustate

Collapsi, Mole & splendore Auclum
Multo Paracorum Charitas
Instauravit,

In quibus pientissimæ Heroinæ
D. Aliciæ Duddeley

Munificentia gratum marmoris hujus
meretur eloquium

Huc etiam accessit aliorum quorundam pietas,
Quibus proviso Cælo sunt grates.

opus	{	Surgere Cœpit	}	Anno	{	1623.
		Ad umbilicus deductum				1625.
		Muro undiquaque vallatum				1631.

Heus! Viator, an effatum est bonis operibus hoc seculum?

To the raising, finishing and (in every Part of it) richly and very excellently beautifying of this great Work, there were many and great Benefactors. The Names of all, with their particular Gifts, my Time, says Stow, gave not Leave to compass them; neither for many of them, could by any Enquiry get, they desiring to be concealed, and by Virtue of what they have done, obliging those that knew them, not to divulge or reveal them.

FOR the rich and costly Glazing of this Church, the Work and Work-Masters thus follow:

A very rich and beautiful Window in the Head of the Chancel, of four several Panes or Parts. In the first, the Figure of Abraham sacrificing his Son. In the second, Moses with the Tables of the Commandments. In the third the Figure of the Holy Prophet David. In the fourth and last, Solomon.

The Inscription to the first is this:

Credidit Abraham Deo, & reputatum est illi ad Justitiam. Anno Dom. 1628.

VOL. II.

Of the second is this:

Erât vir Moyfes. Mitissimus super omnes homines qui morabantur in terra, 1628.

Of the third this:

Solum medium tutum, 1627.

Of the fourth this:

Dum Spiro, Spero, 1628.

The first of these was the Charge of Abraham Speckart, Esq;

The second of Hamo Claxton, Esq;

The third of Sir John Fenner, Knt.

The fourth of Francis, Lord Mount-Norris.

A very fair Window on the South Side of the Chancel; at the Top of it,

J E H O V A H:

Under the Figures in it:

Shelbery 1617, Shelbery and Wrothe.

Domine miserere nostri.

A very fair Window on the North Side of the Chancel; two Figures in it, the one of the Virgin Mary, with Christ in her Arms, the other of Mary Magdalene.

UNDER this Window lies buried the Body of Mary Pill, of this Parish; which Window was set up at the Charge of Mary Maudit, her Daughter and Heir, 1629.

UNDER the first these Verses:

From Mary's Fears to Mary's Joy,
This Mary is translated:
And after threescore Years annoy,
In Heaven she is instated.
With this she chose the better Part
Never to be repented;
And held her Saviour in her Heart,
Thus are her Joys augmented.

UNDER the other these:

This, fought her Saviour at his Tomb;
His Feet with Tears bedewed,
That, bore our Saviour in her Womb;
Whereby our Joys renewed.
Then happy Soul, thrice happy this,
Happily interested;
In Mary's Tears, and Mary's Bliss,
Rest thou for ever blessed.

A very fair Window, with the King's Arms in it, over the Entrance into the Chancel:

Glazed at the Charge of Sir William Segar, Knt. alias Garter, Principal King of Arms, Anno Dom. 1626.

A very fair Window at the upper End of the South Isle:

Glazed at the Charges of Marmaduke Rawdon, Citizen and Clothworker of LONDON, Anno Domini 1625.

Another next to this downward :

Glazed at the Charge of Robert Rawdon, Citizen and Fishmonger of LONDON, Anno Dom. 1625.

Another next to this downward, bearing the Figure of a Lion in the Wildernesse:

Glazed at the Charge of Mr. John Johnson, Inn-keeper in High Holbourn, 1625.

ANOTHER next to this downward, having the Figures of St. John, St. Philip, and St. Matthew.

Glazed at the Cost and Charges of Philip Parker.

NEXT to this downward, a very fair Window :

Glazed at the Charges of Catharine Best, Widow, late Wife of John Best, deceased: Who gave Order in his Life-time for the Glazing of this Window, and was buried thereunder, the 7th of April, 1625. And there lie also his Son James, and his Daughter Dorothy.

NEXT to this downward, a very fair Window :

Glazed at the Charges of Alice Hodges, Widow, late Wife to Thomas Hodges, Baker, deceased, who was buried under this Window, the 6th Day of October, 1625. And here lie also his three Children.

A fair Window next to this, the lowest in the South Wall :

Glazed at the Cost of William Perkins, of LONDON, Merchant-Taylor, 1626.

At the lower End of this Isle, over the South West Door, a very fair Window, bearing in it (very curiously done) the Figure of our Saviour.

OVER his Head, as in a Garland supported by two Angels, these Letters :

I.H.S

Round about him Clouds full of Cherubims.

On one Side of him this :

I am the Door, by me if any Man enter in, he shall be saved, John x. 9.

On the other Side :

Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you Rest, Mat. xi. 28.

Beckinghamus Boteler, Armiger fieri fecit.
Anno Dom. 1627.

OVER the great West Door is a fair Window, with the Carpenters Arms, and a fair Coat of Arms close by it.

THIS Window hath no Name, or other Inscription ; it was the Gift of a Stranger.

ONE, that upon a Day that they made a Collection for it, being there, was (among the rest) desired to bestow his good Will, he answered, He had no Money, but if the Glazing of a Window, if they had any yet undisposed of, would be accepted of, he would be at the Charge to do it. The Collectors giving him Thanks, and shewing this Window, he suddenly set a Glasier on Work, and what he had promised he performed.

A very fair Window at the Head of the North Isle, bearing the Figure of Christ crucified, as also (one on the one Side, the other on the other) of the two Maries.

On the Right Side of him this :

Woman, Behold thy Son.

On the Left :

Behold thy Mother!

Glazed at the Cost of Thomas Esso, Cook, of this Parish, Anno Dom. 1625.

Another next to this downward :

Glazed at the Charges of John Beacon, of the City of Westminster, Yeoman, 1625.

Another next to this downward :

Glazed at the Charges of Robert Johnson, free of the Company of the Joyners. 1625.

A fair Window over the Door in the Middle of the North Isle, bearing a worthy Coat of Arms, with these Words :

Whitaker & Egerton.

THIS Window is divided into three Parts ; under the first this :

Ego sum ostium, per me si quis introierit, servabitur, & ingredietur, & egredietur, & pascua inveniet. Joh. x. 9.

Under the second thus :

In tuo Lumine (Domine Jesu) Lumen Aeternum videre sperantes, vitreum hoc luminare fabricari fecerunt Laurentius & Margareta Whitaker, Anno salutis humanæ, 1625.

Under the third thus :

Eligo frequentare limen in domo Dei mei magis quam habitare in tentoriis improbitatis, Psal. lxxxiv. 11.

A fair Window next to this downward, bearing a very fair Coat of Arms, with these Words :

Cope & Aston.

Glazed at the Charges of the Lady Katharine Cope, Widow, late Wife to Sir Ed. Cope, of this Parish. 1625.

A very rich Window next downward, divided into three Parts, bearing the curious Figures of the three Theological Virtues under them :

Fides, Spes, Charitas.

Under Faith this :

Faith Root, Hope Stock,
the Branch is Charity ;
Faith sees, Hope looks,
for Charity is free ;
Faith knits to God, to Heaven Hope, Love to Men ;
Faith gets, Hope keeps,
and Love pours out agen.
1626.

Mandatum

Mandatum novum do nobis, ut diligatis unus alium, Job. xiii. 34.

Under Hope this:

Tres Elohim: pater est
Primus qui procreat, inde
Filius est, ex his
Spiritus almus adest.
Sunt Tria dona Dei:
Sit prima Fides pia Mater;
Filia spes, ex his
Tertius ortus Amor.
1626.

Nam spe servati sumus, spes autem si cernatur non est spes; quod enim quis cernit, cur speret?
Rom. viii. 24.

Under Charity this:

Now remain these three, Faith, Hope, Charity; but the greatest of these is Charity,
1 Cor. xiii. 13.

Scriptum est, Justus ex Fide vivet, Rom. i. 17.

NEXT to this downward, the last of this North Isle, is a plain Window, without either Colour or Inscription.

THIS Church was built all of rubbed Brick, and so was the Steeple. The South Gallery was built in the Year 1671, by Gift, for the Benefit of the Poor, and made uniform to the other Galleries. The North and West Galleries, as they appeared last, were begun 1676-7.

Now for the MONUMENTS in this Church of St. Giles's in the Fields.

UPON a fair Grave-stone in the Middle Isle was this Inscription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Elizabeth, late Wife of Richard Maunsel, Esq; one of the Daughters and Heirs of Roger Wingfield, of great Dunham, in the County of Norfolk, Esq; She departed this Life upon the 6th of October, in the Year of our Lord God, 1620.

UPON a fair Stone near to the other this Inscription:

Interred the Corps of Baron Birch lies here,
Of Grays-Inn, some Time by Degree, Esquire;
In Chequer eighteen Years a Judge he was,
Till Soul from aged Body his did pass
Alive his Wife Eliza doth remain,
Of Stydfolk Stock, one Son and Daughters twain
She bare by him; the eldest in his Life,
He gave to Thomas Boyer for his Wife.
His Body sleeps till Angels Trump shall sound,
God grant we all may readily then be found.

Johannes Birch, obiit Ann. Dom. 1581, Maii, Ætatis suæ 66.

ON another Stone near to the former, this Inscription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Elizabeth Birch, Widow, late Wife of John Birch, Esq; and one of the Barons of her Majesty's Court of Exchequer, Daughter of John Stydfolk, Esq; who deceased the third Day of December, 1588.

Cloſe by the former,

Lieth buried the Body of John Denſill, ſome
Time Sergeant at Law, and Mary his Wife.

IN the ſame Isle was a very fair Stone, which hath been beautified with many fair Figures in Braſs; but much of it being gone, all that could be ſeen of it before the Church was pulled down, was this:

Here lieth George Carew, the fourth Son of Sir Edmund Carew, &c. 1583.

In the South Isle:

Lies buried the Body of Alexander Barns,
Vintner, ſome Time Church-warden of this Parish, &c. He deceased the 4th of November, 1714, being of the Age of 57 Years.

Alexander Barns
here doth lie,
Glory be to God on high;
For he on Earth
hath finished his Days
And now liveth in Heaven to God give Praise.

ON the North Side of the Choir:

Chariffimæ Matris Allicia Uxoris venerabilis olim viri Alexandri Sheppard, Legum Doctoris: necnon ſuaviſſimæ nuper Conjugis Annæ ex anti-quâ Daunte-ſeyorum Familia in agro Wilton oriundæ.

Pietatis & Amoris ergo.

Posuit Thomas Sheppard hic loci; juxta quem (ſi Deo videbitur) mortales ſuas Exuvias humandas, designavit providus, Anno Dom. 1631.

ANOTHER Monument on the North Side:

Here before lieth buried the Body of William Styddulphe, third Son of John Styddulphe, of Mickleham in the County of Surrey, Esquire. He had Issue by his Wife Elizabeth,
Daughter of John Fox of St. John's in LON-DON, Gent. William, Jane, Mary, Thomas and Elizabeth. He departed this Life at the Age of 55, being the last of December, Anno
Dom. 1600.

Also here before resteth the Body of the above-named Elizabeth, who departed this Life at the Age of 60 Years, the 10th of February 1623.

AND now having done with the Monuments in the Church, we begin in the Church-yard with this Inscription, standing in the middle of the South Wall.

Laus Deo.

In cuius, & Christianæ Sepulturæ; honorem;
nimis arcti olim Cœmeterii fines, novi hujus, 128, pedes longi, & 17 lati, Donatione, Abrahamus Speckart, Arm. & Dorothea Uxor ejus Ampliarunt, Anno Dom. 1630.

A very fair Tomb-stone in the Church-yard;
about it these Verses:

Thornton of Thornton;
in Yorkshire bred,
Where lives the Fame
of Thornton's being dead:
Full South this Stone
four Foot doth lye,
His Father John;
and Grandſire Henry.

Upon it:

Johannes Thornton, in Memoria Charissimæ Uxoris Margarete, Filiæ Georgii Collins, hujus Parochiæ sancti Ægidii in Campis, hoc Monumentum posuit:

Under this sad
Marble sleeps,
She, for whom
even Marble weeps:
Her Praise lives still though here she lies Seeming dead,
that never dyes:
Religion, Love,
in suffering Breast,
Her Charity, Mildness,
and the rest,
Hath crowned her Soul;
all mourn with Fame,
Her Husband's Loss,
and Midwife's blame
She dyed in Childbed:
seventy Times blest and seven,
Her Children and she deliver'd both in Heaven.

Obiit octavo die Januarii, Anno Dom. 1611.
Ætat. suæ 16.

ON a fair Stone in the Church-yard is this Inscription:

✠
I.H.S.

Hereunder lieth buried the Body of Joan Barker, late Wife of Richard Barker, seventeen Years of this Parish, who deceased the last Day of July, Anno Dom. 1626. Whom the Lord send a joyful Resurrection.

Expecta donec veniat.

Upon it thus:

Honesta Mors initium vitæ.

Turn again then unto thy Rest, O my Soul, for the Lord hath rewarded thee; and why? thou hast delivered my Soul from Death, mine Eyes from Tears, and my Feet from falling.

I will walk before the Lord, in the Land of the Living, Psal. 116.

This Stone was laid by her Husband Richard Barker, one of the Yeomen of the Guard to Queen Elizabeth and King James thirty Years, and now to King Charles: And was married to his late deceased Wife twenty Years and one Month, and had seven Children, whereof five live, Horatio, Anne, Elizabeth, Katharine and Mary.

Close by this lies buried the Body of William How, April 3, 1626.

Also the Body of Elizabeth Mason, Wife of Amos Mason, Curate of the Temple, July 18, 1632.

Of John Cartwrite, Gent. Aug. 13, 1620.

Of Richard Bestbitch, Son of Daniel Bestbitch.

THE Persons that have more lately been interred in the Church of St. Giles in the Fields, and have monumental Memorials for them, are these:

In the Chancel North Wall:

Sir Tho. Widdrington, Knt. Serjeant at Law:

Vir in dicendo celestis.

His four Daughters set up his Monument. He died 1674.

Christopher Wray 1645. in his last Will and Testament desired this Inscription following: Christ Jesus came into the World to save Sinners; of whom I am Chief, 1 Tim. i. 5.

Rhoda, Widow, Relict of John Amcots of Astrope, in the County of Lincoln, Esq; 1659.

Frances Widdrington, the Wife of Sir Thomas, died in Childbed, 1649, Daughter of Ferdinand Lord Fairfax of Cameron. And their Daughter Dorothy, 1649, aged 12 Years.

ON the North Side of the Chancel was a black and white Marble Monument, with Columns and Entablature of the Ionick Order, and these Arms: A Chevron between three Flowers de liz, with a Crescent for a Difference; impaled with three Swords in Pile.

Also these ARMS:

A Fess between three Cross Croflets; and this Inscription:

This Monument was erected Anno 1670, in the Memory of the Honourable John Lord Belasyse, Baron Worlabby, second Son of Thomas Lord Viscount Fauconberg, his Wives and Children.

Who for his Loyalty, Prudence and Courage, was promoted to several Commands of great Trust by their Majesties King Charles I. and II. viz. having raised six Regiments of Horse and Foot in the late Civil Wars, he commanded a Tertia in his Majesty's Armies at the Battles of Edghill, Newbury, and Naseby; the Sieges of Reading and Bristol; afterwards being made Governor of York, and Commander in Chief of all his Majesty's Forces in Yorkshire. He fought the Battle of Selby, with the Lord Fairfax; then being Lieutenant-General of the Counties of Lincoln, Northampton, Derby and Rutland, and Governor of Newark, he valiantly defended that Garrison against the English and Scotch Armies, till his Majesty came in Person to the Scotch Quarters, and commanded the Surrender of it; at which Time he also had the Honour of being General of the King's Horse Guards. In all which Services, and during the Wars and other Atchievements, he deputed himself with eminent Courage and Conduct, and received many Wounds, sustained three Imprisonments in the Tower of LONDON; and after the happy Restauration of King Charles II. was made Lord Lieutenant of the East Riding of the County of York, Governor of Hull, General of his Majesty's Forces in Africa, Governor of Tangier, and Captain of his Majesty's Guard of Gentlemen-Pensioners.

He married to his first Wife Jane, Daughter and sole Heir to Sir Robert Boteler, of Woodhall, by whom he had Sir Henry Belasyse, of the Honourable Order of the Bath, who lyes interred in this Choir; and Mary married to the Lord Viscount Dunbar.

He married to his second Wife Ann, Daughter and Coheir to Sir Robert Crain, of Chilton in the County of Suffolk, Knight; who lies also interred in this Choir.

And

And to his third Wife, the Lady Ann Paulet, Daughter to the Marquiss of Winchester, by whom he had Issue, besides other Children now living, Ann, John, Elizabeth, and Francis, who all died young, and are also interred in the Choir of this Church.

By the North Door-Cafe, opening into the Chancel, a very neat Marble Monument, inscribed thus:

Near this Place interred lyes the Body of the much lamented William Thorold, Esq; Son and Heir apparent of Sir William Thorold, of Marston in the County of Lincoln, Baronet.

The ARMS are:

Sable three Goats Springant Argent, impaled with Gules on a Chevron Argent, three Mulletts Sable.

South Wall in the Chancel:

Philip Lord Stanhope of Shelford, and Earl of Chesterfield, Son and Heir to Sir John Stanhope, by Cordel, Daughter and Coheir of Richard Alington, Esq; and Jane his Wife, Sister and Heir to Sir William Cordel of Long Melford, Knt. 1656.

To the Memory of his dear Father, Arthur Stanhope erected this Monument. Which Arthur had Issue Philip and Henry, interred in this Church.

NEAR this was another handsome white Marble Monument adorned with Cherubims, Cornucopia's, &c. and this Inscription:

To the living Memory of Christopher Dudley, of Yeanwith in Westmerland, Esq; was this Monument by his sorrowful Wife Agnes, for her dear Husband, here erected.

A Dudley lodgeth here, Peace Idle Fame;
It's Epitaph enough to have that Name:
A Dudley too, who in the basest Time,
When to be just and loyal was a Crime;
Was both; and 'gainst the Rebels bravely stood,
Unshaken and undaunted with a Flood
Of Tyranny. Now his Tomb's sole Intent
Shews he deserv'd, but needs not Monument.
When Rebels die, a Tomb some Life may give,
He actuates the Marble, makes it live.
Shrines may pourtray our Treasures on a Wall;
But Goodness crowns them, that is all in all.
Statues present Lives, Families and Days;
But th' inward Structure only merits Praise.
This Shrine was rear'd by her, whose Love was such,

Her Charge in his Concern was ne'er too much:
So dear his nuptial Zeal, tho' th' outward Part Turn Dust, it holds Impression in the Heart.

Obiit Sept. 9, 1660.

His Arms: Or, a Lion with a double Rampant Vert, impaled with Argent a Fret Gules.

ON the South Side of the Chancel was a neat blue veined Marble Monument, with this Inscription:

Underneath lyeth the Body of Thomas Cornwallis, Esq; Son of Sir Francis Cornwallis and Elizabeth his Wife, sole Daughter and Heir to Sir Henry Jones, Baronet, of Abermarlefs in the County of Caermarthen.

He married Emma, Daughter to Sir Job Charlerton, Knight and Baronet, by whom he had four Sons and five Daughters; three Sons died before him, and one Son and five Daughters survived.

N^o 48. VOL. II.

His Person was graceful, and his Soul sublime; Virtue, Honour, and Complacency, guided all his Actions; a Lover of his Country; most tender and indulgent to his Wife and Children; obliging and serviceable to his Friends; hospitable and generous to his Neighbours; just, charitable and courteous to all he conversed with.

He lived beloved, and died much lamented by them all, the 16th of July, A. D. 1703. His Noon was Night, being made perfect in thirty-three Years.

His Grandfather Charles, his Father Sir Francis, and his Brother Charles, lye buried in this Church near the Pulpit.

His disconsolate Widow caused this Monument to be erected in Memory of her dear Husband and his Relations.

HIS Arms here are, eight Goats quarterly.

John Lewis, Son of William Lewis, late of the Van in the County of Glamorgan, Esq; 1670.

Elizabeth, Wife of Sir Edmund Andrews, Kt. 1703.

John Wooly, of this Parish, Esq; 1699.

ON a small White Marble Monument on a South Pillar, almost over-against the Pulpit, was this Inscription:

Near to this Marble Judith Bailey lies,
Who was both modest, sober, chaste and wife.
Religion was her Study, and her Care,
A fervent Lover of the House of Prayer;
Her Parents had her Duty and her Love,
Who now are pleas'd in Hope she's blest above.
Virtue was still her Guide her End and Aim,
Her Zeal was constant to her as her Name:
Near 18 Years of Age, who can forbear
To read her Character without a Tear?

She departed this Life the 18th of October, 1683.

Her Brother John 14 Days after dy'd,
Aged seven Years, lies by his Sister's Side.

She was the eldest Daughter, and he the only Son of John and Judith Bailey, of this Parish.

Sarah another Daughter sleeps in Mould,
She left this Life when almost six Years old:
She that was fill'd with Duty, Wit and Love,
Is surely happy with the Saints above.
November twenty-four in Eighty-five,
She dy'd to us to be with Christ alive.

THE said Mr. John Bailey, their Father, died January the 7th, 1696, in the 63d Year of his Age.

THIS Monument was adorned with Urns, Leaves, Fruit, &c.

Elizabeth Bacon, 1663. Francis Bacon, 1666. Mary, Edward, and Elizabeth, Children of Francis Bacon of Grays Inn, Esq; by his Wife Elizabeth, eldest Daughter of Thomas Waller of Erleham in the City and County of Norwich, Sergeant at Law.

TOWARDS the lower End of the Church:

James, Son of William Woodman, and Eleanor his Wife of this Parish, 1686; with his Sisters Elizabeth and Eleanor, and Richard their Brother, and Mary.

ON the South of the Church, and at the West End, was an extraordinary spacious Monument mostly Marble, adorned with Cartouches, Cornice, Pediment, Mantling and Festoons; on the Pediment is a Death's Head, having a Laurel Chaplet, and under, the Word Refurgamus, between two Boys supporting a large Mantling, supposed to let down and cover the whole Monument; as also her Effigies lying at full Length, finely carved, and this Inscription:

The Right Honourable Lady Frances Kniveton, Wife of Sir Gilbert Kniveton, of Bradley in the County of Derby, Baronet, lyeth buried in the Chancel of this Church: She was one of the Daughters and Coheirs of the Right Honourable Sir Robert Dudley, Knight, Duke of the Empire, by the Lady Alice his Wife and Dutches: Which Robert was Son of the Right Honourable Robert Dudley, late Earl of Leicester, and his Dutches was Daughter of Sir Thomas Leigh, and Aunt to the Right Honourable Thomas, late Lord Leigh, of Stonely, in the County of Warwick: And the said Honour and Title of Dutches Dudley, was by Letters Patents of his late Majesty, of glorious Majesty, King Charles I. allowed, and since graciously confirmed to her by his Majesty King Charles II. and she lived and died worthy of that Honour.

The Right Honourable Lady Anne Holbourne, Sister of the said Lady Frances, another Daughter of the said Duke and Dutches, did will this Monument, which she had provided in her Lifetime, to be erected to the Memory of her dear Sister, near to whom herself (who died August 1663,) lies interred, and it is placed here for want of convenient Room in the Chancel:

HERE are these Arms; Ruby, a Chevron, Verry on a Canton, Pearl, a sinister Hand of the first impaled with Topaz, a Lion Rampant, Diamond; which last is also impaled, with Pearl on a Fess, Diamond, three Crescents, Topaz in Chief, two Birds rising Diamond.

NEAR the last was a Monument erected to the Memory of Susan Bradford, youngest Daughter of Charles Parry, Rector of Colwick, near Northampton, and Wife to John Bradford, 1691.

ON one of the South Pillars was a small white Monument:

James Hearden, 1658, Prudence his Wife, and William his Son, 1662.

Reader, let thy Reason know
We were once as thou art now,
Whilst we liv'd we wrought in Stone,
And now attend the Corner one ;
And in Health did this prepare
For us, our Wives, and Children here.
Death's only by the Wicked fear'd,
The Righteous 'gainst his Sting's prepar'd :
Then Reader, let thy Care in Life be such,
Earth may thy Body, not thy Spirit touch,

George Chapman the Poet, MDCXX —
Ignasius Jones, Architectus Regius ob honorem bonarum Literarum famliari suo hoc Mon. D. S.
P. F. C.

Against the South Portal :

Thomas Walton, 1668, and his two Sons and two Daughters.

Richard Shephard, Church-Warden, erected this Stone in Memory of Elizabeth, his Wife, who died 1685, with three Daughters and one Son, her Mother and Brother.

Petrus Reggio : Cujus Corpus ex adverso jacet, natus Genuæ, divinam Musicæ Scientiam, a clariss. in sua Patria atque a Deo in toto Orbe Magistris excultam, ab ipso ulterius ornatam, &c. in Angliam transtulit. Postremò, ad cœlestes Choros secum evexit, 1685.

Robert and John Wogden, Sons of John Wogden and Sufanna, his Wife, 1678, and Edward another Son, 1687.

ON a grey Marble Tomb-stone, Southward from the Chancel in the Church-Yard, was this Inscription :

Here lye the Bodies of John, Anne, and Obediah, Children of John and Anne Easton, of this Parish :

The ravenous Eagle, Death, greedy of Prey,
Whose piercing Eye found where these Infants lay ;

He crush'd them with his Talons, and convey'd
Their Souls to Heaven, and here's their Ashes laid,

Where now they rest in Providence's Store,
'Till Time and Death and Years shall be no more.

Also Anne, the Wife of the said John Easton, died August 1679.

Earth hath possess'd their Ashes, Clay, and Dust,
And Heaven contains their Souls among the Just.

On a Marble Tomb-stone near the South East Corner of the Church : Here lyeth Richard Pendrell, Preserver and Conductor to his sacred Majesty King Charles II. of Great Britain, after his Escape from Worcester Fight, in the Year 1651, who died Feb. 8, 1671.

Hold, Passenger, here's shrouded in this Herse Unparell'd Pendrel thro' the Universe.
Like when the Eastern Star from Heav'n gave Light

To three lost Kings ; so he in such dark Night
To Britain's Monarch, toss'd by adverse War,
On Earth appear'd a second Eastern Star.

A Pole a-stern in her rebellious Main,
A Pilot to her Royal Sovereign.
Now to triumph in Heav'n's eternal Sphere,
He's hence advanc'd for his just Steeridge here ;
Whilst Albion's Chronicles, with matchless Fame,
Embalm the Story of Great Pendrell's Name.

Jane Baker, 1701, and Edmund Wright, her former Husband.

Worly Benion, 1698, and Judith, his Wife, 1700.

ON a Pillar Westward of the Pulpit, was a very neat polish'd Marble Monument, adorned with Cartouches, Leaves, Fruit, &c. and this Inscription thereon :

In the Middle of the Isle; near this Place, lyeth the Body of Sir Roger L'Estrange, Knight.

Born the 17th of December, 1616:

Died the 11th of December, 1704.

His Arms; Gules, two Lions Rampant.

This Gentleman was an excellent Latin Scholar, and much improved the English Language, as appears by his admirable Translation of Seneca's Morals, Æsop's Fables, &c.

THERE was another Monument on the same Pillar for Elizabeth Downing, Daughter of Richard Dickson, Esq; who died Jan. 18, 1713, also for Mrs. Sarah Dickson, Oct. 2, 1709.

ON a small Monument on the next North Pillar H. S. E. Pleydel Hale, Gent. Tho. & Eliz. F. E. Familia Pleydellorum de Schrivenham in Argo Bercheriensis. Quem è Schola Ventæ Belgarum & Literas Regis secretas vocitum, intercipiunt Variolæ & hoc condunt Sepulchro.

Ob. iv. Oct. MDCXCIV. Ætat. xviii.

A Monument on the Outside of the South Wall in the Church-Yard, in a Vault, is Interred the Body of Alatheia Payler, Daughter of Watkinson Payler, and Dame Mary Stoughton, his Wife, and Grand-daughter and Coheir of Sir Watkinson Payler, late of Thoroldly Hall in the County of York, Bar. she died Oct. 14, Ann. Dom. 1716, aged 15.

Sicitur ad Astra!

UPON a mural Monument at the Outside of the North Isle:

All that was mortal of HUGH MERCHANT, Gent. born in this Parish; a Person eminent for all Christian Vertues, and a great Lover of Art, lies interred underneath. In Memory of whom his beloved Wife, the Daughter of William Jarman, Citizen of LONDON, (by whom he had Issue nine Sons and nine Daughters) erected this Marble. Ob. Jan. 24, 1714. Ætat. 55.

When by Inclemency of Air,

These golden Letters disappear.

And Time's old cankered Teeth have shown

Their Malice on this Marble Stone,

Vertue and Art shall write his Name

In Annals, and consign his Fame

To Monuments more lasting far,

Than Marble Stones, or Golden Letters are.

IN this Church was interred the famous Andrew Marvell, Esq; and in the Year 1688, the Town of Kingston upon Hull contributed a Sum of Money to erect a Monument over him; for which an Epitaph was composed by some able Hand, expressive of the sincerest Grief and Gratitude of an obliged and afflicted People. They embraced the Opportunity of the glorious Year of the Revolution, to do what they were fearful of in the two foregoing Reigns; but they were even then prevented shewing their Zeal in the Manner they much desired, by the Opposition of the Minister of this Church, who, thro' a Spirit, either of Bigotry or Envy, forbid both the Inscription and Monument being placed there. The Inscription was as follows:

Near this Place

lyeth the Body of Andrew Marvell, Esq;

A Man so endowed by Nature,

so improved by Education, Study and Travel,

so consummated by Experience,

That joining the most peculiar Graces of Wit and Learning, with a singular Penetration and Strength of Judgment, and exercising all these, in the whole Course of his Life, with an unalterable Steadiness in the Ways of Virtue,

He became the Ornament and Example of his Age; beloved by good Men, feared by bad, admired by all:

Tho' imitated, alas! by few,

and scarce paralleled by any,

But a Tomb-stone can neither contain his Character; nor is Marble necessary to transmit it to Posterity; it is engraved in the Minds of this Generation, and will be always legible in his inimitable Writings.

Nevertheless, he having served near 20 Years successively in Parliament, and that with such Wisdom, Dexterity, Integrity and Courage, as became a true Patriot.

The Town of Kingston upon Hull,

From whence he was constantly deputed to the Assembly lamenting in his Death the publick

Loss, have erected this Monument of their Grief and Gratitude, 1688.

He died in the 58th Year of his Age,

on the 16th Day of August, 1678.

Heu fragile humanum Genus! heu terrestria Vana!

Heu quem spectatum continet Urna Virum!

THERE were some few charitable Gifts taken Notice of, by Inscriptions in the lower Part of the Church.

Against a Pillar these Words:

To the Intent the Poor of this Parish may for ever hereafter receive the Gift of the Donor, this following Inscription was here fixed and set up:

Sir William Cony, of this Parish, Kt. hath been pleased to give to the Poor of the same Parish 50 l. to the End that the Interest thereof may be for ever distributed in Bread to the Poor, that is to say, twelve Penniworth every Sunday in every Year, and eight Holidays in the same Year; such as are particularly mentioned in the Act Book of the said Parish, remaining in their Vestry. Given in the Year of our Lord 1672.

James Partherick, Church-Wardens.

Robert Hulcup,

Another Inscription to this Tenor:

Deo Votiva, Pauperibusque Tabula. The Honourable Robert Bertie of this Parish, one of the Sons of the Right Honourable Robert, Earl of Lindsey, L. Great Chamberlain of England, and General of all the Forces of King Charles I. who was slain at the Battle of Edgehill; hath given into the Hands of the Church-Wardens 50 l. that so the Interest thereof may be distributed from Time to Time, and for ever, to the Poor in Bread, viz. Twelve Penniworth on every Sunday in the Year, and on every New Years Day 5 s. if Sunday, if otherwise, 4 s. and on the last Sunday of August in the same Year, 5 s. Began the first Day of January 1677.

Again, The Gift of Richard Holford, in the Year of our Lord God, 1658.

R. H. of the Parish of St. Giles in the Fields, in the County of Middlesex, Esq; did give the Sum

Sum of 29 l. yearly, for ever, to be issuing out of three Messuages or Tenements lying in the said Parish; to be distributed Quarterly, among the most aged and necessitated poor People of the said Parish, by the Ministers, Church-Wardens and Overseers of the said Parish, successively for ever; and to no other Person or Persons, or Uses whatsoever.

On the Top is an Arm holding a Bag of Money.

UPON a Mural Monument at the West End of the Church, over the Belfry Door, South Corner, this Inscription:

In Memory of Mr. John Pearson, late of this Parish, who, at his Decease, Ann. Dom. 1707. left a Gift of 50 l. a Year, for 99 Years, viz. 25 l. a Year to put out five Boys, Sons of poor decayed House-Keepers of this Parish, Apprentices yearly, to Handicraft Trades: And 25 l. a Year to the twenty Women in the Alms-Houses at the End of Monmouth-Street.

John Marriot, } Trustees.
James Cannon, }

And after their Death to the Care of the then Rector of the said Parish.

UPON a Monument fix'd to a Pillar on the South Side of the Church:

To the pious Memory of Alice, Wife of John Pearson, late of this Parish, and of John Pearson, Goldsmith, Son of the said John and Alice; she died the 13th of April, MDCLXXII, aged 45; he died March the 30th, MDCXCV, aged 21. Also of the first abovesaid, John, who died the 7th of January, MDCCVII, in the lxxiii Year of his Age.

UPON the Gallery on the South Side of the Church, is this Inscription:

William Bambrigg, late of this Parish, Esq; gave toward the Building of the South Gallery, 3000 l. for the Use of the Poor, in the Year 1671.

BUT of all the Benefactors to St. Giles's Church and Parish, the Lady Alice, Dutchesse Dudley, must stand in the Fore Front; she lived in her House near the Church, and there she died, at the Age of 90 Years, and has a Monument in the said Church, though her Corpse was conveyed to the Church of Stonely in Warwickshire, and there entombed, in which Parish she was born. But now to give a Catalogue of this Lady's Charities, as Dr. Boreman, some Time Incumbent, took them out of the Church's Register, and published them with her Funeral Sermon, Anno 1669.

WHEN the old Church before the last, which was decayed by Age, lay as it were in Rubbish, there being a void Space at the upper End of the Chancel, wherein were old Coffin-Boards, and the Bones of dead Men thrown, she being offended at that unhandsome Prospect, erected a decent Skreen to divide the said Chancel from that Place, to hide it from the Eyes of those that passed by.

WHEN the aforesaid old Church was fallen, with the Fall whereof that Skreen was demolished, the Parishioners erected a new Church in the Room and Place where the former stood. It began to be built Anno 1623, and was finished with the Wall about it; Anno 1631, many Hundreds of good Christians in other Parishes contributing to so good a Work. And then did this Lady give to the said Work, and the Wall encompassing the Church, many Hundred Pounds: Of which her magnificent Bounty the then grateful Parishioners erected a Monument, which was placed over the Great Gate on the North Side of the Church. The Words engraven in a large Square are these:

Quod felix bonumque sit Posteris, hoc Templum loco veteris ex annosa Vetustate Collapsi mole & splendore auctum multo, Paracorum Charitas instauravit. In quibus pientissimæ Heroinæ D. ALICIAE DUDLEY Munificentia gratum Marmoris hujus meretur Eloquium. Huic etiam accessit aliorum quorundam pietas. Quibus provisa in cælo sunt Grates.

THE Church being finished, that the Inside of it might correspond with that which was without, the said Lady gave Hangings of Watchet Taffata, to cover the upper End of the Chancel, and those bordered with a Silk and Silver Fringe.

Item, For the Back of the Altar, a rich green Velvet Cloth, with these three Letters in Gold I. H. S. embroidered on it.

Two Service-Books in Folio, embossed with Gold.

A green Velvet Cloth, with a deep Gold Fringe, to cover the Altar on Sundays.

A Cambrick Altar-Cloth, with a deep Bone-Lace round about.

Another fine Damask-Altar-Cloth.

Two Cushions for the Altar, richly embroidered with Gold.

A large Turkey Carpet, to be spread on the Weeks Days over it.

A beautiful Skreen of carved Work, which was placed where the former in the old Church stood.

Moreover, she gave a neat Pair of Organs, with a Case richly gilded.

Item, Very costly handsome Rails, to guard the Altar, or the Lord's Table, from prophane Abuses.

Item, The Communion Plate of all Sorts in Silver, and gilt for that sacred Use; which is as large and rich as any in the City and Suburbs.

BESIDES all this, she was at the Charge of Paving the upper End of the Church with Marble, and gave the great Bell in the Steeple; which, as often as it rings, sounds her Praise, and was at the Charge of Casting and Hanging the other five Bells.

ONLY this Bell, and the aforesaid Plate excepted, all the forenamed Ornaments of the Church (being counted Superstitious and Popish) were demolished and sold (under Pretence of relieving the Poor out of the Money received for them) by the Reformers (as they were called) in the Civil War Time.

BESIDES these Largesses and Christian Liberalities to St. Giles, she gave, long since, to the Churches of Stonely, Manchester, Leke, Wotton, Ashow, Kennelworth, and Monks Kirby, all in Warwickshire, 20 l. and upwards, per Ann. a piece, for a perpetual Augmentation to the poor Vicarages of those respective Churches for ever.

Moreover, she bestowed on the same Churches, and likewise upon the Churches of Bidford in the aforesaid County of Warwick, Acton in Middlesex, St. Alban's in Hertfordshire, Patshil in Northampton, divers Pieces of fair and costly Plate, to be used at the Celebration of the Holy Communion in each of them.

BESIDES all this, she purchased a fair House and Garden near the Church of St. Giles aforesaid, and gave it for a perpetual Mansion to the Incumbents after three Lives, whereof two were expired, Anno 1669.

SHE also allowed a yearly Stipend to the Sexton of this Church, to toll the great Bell, when the Prisoners condemned to die, shall be passing ting by, and to ring out after they shall be executed.

She likewise gave great Sums of Money for the repairing of the Cathedral Church at Litchfield, and for the re-edifying of St. Sepulchre's in LONDON.

ALL these, with many more, were the Products and Fruits of her noble Charity. while she lived; and at her Death, she made these following Bequests:

I. For the Redemption of Christian Captives from the Hands of Infidels, 100 l. per Annum for ever.

II. To the Hospital situate near the Church in St. Giles's, 400 l. for 20 l. a Year, for ever.

III. For the placing out for ever of poor Parish Children of St. Giles's Apprentices, 200 l. to purchase a Piece of Land at 10 l. per Annum, and two to be put out every Year.

IV. To the Poor of the aforesaid Parishes of Stonely, Kenilworth, Leke-Wotton, Asbarw, Bidford, in the aforesaid County of Warwick; and Patshil, Litchborow, and Blakeley in the County of Northampton, 100 l. per Annum, to be disposed and distributed among them, in such Sort and Manner as her Will directs her Executrix. And

V. Upon the Day of her Funeral 50 l. to be distributed among the Poor of the said Parish of St. Giles's, and other adjoining Parishes.

VI. To fourscore and ten Widows, according to the Number of Years she lived, she bequeathed to each a Gown and a fair White Kerchief, to attend the Hearse wherein her Body was carried; and one Shilling a Piece for their Dinner after that Solemnity was performed; which was on the 16th Day of March 1668.

VII. She appointed by her Will 5 l. to be given to every Place or Town, where her Corps should rest in its Passage from LONDON unto Stonely; where she had a noble Monument long since prepared by herself.

VIII. She ordered that Six-pence should be given to every poor Body that should meet her Corpse on the Road.

IX. She gave to Blakeley, Litchborough, and Patshil, 10 l. a Piece to be distributed among the Poor the same Day her Corpse was interred.

X. To the Parish of Stonely 50 l. which was distributed the same Day.

THERE is a Monument set up for her in St. Giles's Church thus inscribed:

ALICE, Dutcheſs DUDLEY,

A Lady of a charitable Mind, and who did many good Deeds to that Parish. She dyed Anno 1669, third Daughter of Sir Thomas Leigh, of Stonely in Warckshire, Knt. and Bart. Her Mother was Katharine, Daughter to Sir John Spencer, of Wormleighton, Knight, and Great Grandfather to Earl Sunderland. The foresaid Sir Thomas Leigh had by the said Katharine, John Leigh, Knt. who was the Father of the Lord Leigh, Baron of Stonely.

THERE is her Funeral Sermon preached by Dr. Boreman, Minister of St. Giles's; and a Narrative of her Life and Death, which was published after the Sermon.

SHE was the Relict of Sir Robert Dudley, Kt. Son to Robert, Earl of Leicester. And for his excellent Merits created a Duke by Ferdinand II. late Emperor of Germany. She was by Letters Patents, bearing Date at Oxford the 20th of May, 20 Car. I. advanced by him to the Title of a Dutcheſs: Being by the foresaid Robert the Mother of five Daughters, Alice Daughter, 1611-ces, Wife of Sir Gilbert Kniveton, Knt. Anne, Wife of Sir Robert Holburſe, late of Lincoln's-Inn. All these deceased; and Katharine, the only surviving Picture, in Piety and Goodness, of her Lady Mother, and Widow of Sir Richard Levison, Knight of the Bath. She was born in the Town of Stonely.

THERE is a Catalogue of her Charities to the Reparation and Rebuilding of the Church, and the Ornaments of the Altar; besides her Charities to Stonely, where her Body lies intombed; and many other Churches and Augmentations of poor Vicarages. She purchased a fair House and Garden near the Church of St. Giles; for the Incumbent there, and other Charities: Which are all set down in an Account of her good Deeds in her Life, and at her Death.

As to the New Church built here, the Author of the Critical Review gives the following Account of it:

"THE New Church of St. Giles's is one of the most simple and elegant of the modern Structures: It is raised at very little Expence, has very few Ornaments, and little beside the Propriety of its Parts, and the Harmony of the Whole, to excite Attention, and challenge Applause; yet still it pleases, and justly too; the East End is both plain and majestick, and there is nothing in the West to object to but the Smallness of the Doors, and the Poverty of Appearance that must necessarily follow. The Steeple is light, airy, and genteel, and argues a good deal of Genius in the Architect, and looks very well both in Comparison with the Body of the Church; and when 'tis consider'd as a Building by itself in a distant Prospect. Yet after all I have confess'd in Favour of this Edifice, I can't help again arraigning the Superstition of situating Churches due East and West; for, in Complaisance to this Folly, the Building before us has lost a great Advantage it might otherwise have enjoy'd; I mean the making the East End the Front, and placing it in such a Manner, as to have ended the Vista of what is call'd Broad St. Giles's; whereas, now, it is no where to be seen with Ease to the Eye, or so as justly to comprehend the Symmetry and Connection of the Whole.

THE Ornaments within this Church are not many; the Roof is arched, adorned with Fretwork, and is supported by stately Columns of the Tonick Order. The Chancel is raised one Step higher than the rest of the Church, and is paved with Marble; there is an Iron Rail and Balister before the Communion-Table, and several Wainscot Pannels about it, but nothing written in them. The Organ that was in the Old Church is a very good one, and is intended to be set up again in this New one; but at present there is none, nor any Bells.

THIS Church being finished, was opened upon Easter Sunday, the 14th Day of April, 1734.

THE Living is a Rectory, in the Gift of the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, for the Time being; the Value upwards of 400 l. per Annum, and rated in the King's Books at 4 l. 2 s. 6 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Galley, and the Lecturer the Rev. Mr. Smith.

Number of Houses upwards of 2000.

THERE is a Chapel in Great Queen-street, in this Parish of St. Giles's; erected by the Means of one William Baguley, pretending to be a Minister of the Church of England. Wherein, for some Time, he preached without Licence or Authority, consecrated the Holy Sacrament, and administer'd the same. Wherefore in this Chapel the Bishops of LONDON and Peterborough caused two Declarations, Dec. 22, 1706, to be read.

THAT of the Bishop of LONDON was:
" That whereas he was credibly informed that
" Mr Baguley gave out to the Congregation as" sembled in that Place, that he had his [the " Bishop's] Permission and Encouragement for " what he did, he thought it necessary, for the " undeceiving of this Part of his Flock, with the " Care of whose Souls the Divine Providence had " entrusted him, to publish and declare that he " had several Times sent to the abovesaid Mr.
" Baguley, and had ordered him to exhibit to " him the Testimonial of his Ordination, that " he might be the better enabled to judge of " his Qualifications for the Ministry: But that " the said Mr. Baguley, though often called up" on, had never given him any Satisfaction in " this Particular. That he had Reason there" fore to conclude that he had not been admitted " into the Order of Priesthood in the Church of " England. And that therefore he was not duly " qualified for the reading of publick Prayers, or " preaching of God's Word, and administering
" of the Holy Sacrament in the same. And " that for this Reason all good Christians ought " to take Care how they communicated with " such “ such a Person who proceeded in Contempt of

 “ the Episcopal Authority, and the good Disci“ pline established in the Church of England.
Henry London.

AT the same Time was published the following Certificate under the Hand of the Bishop of Peterburgh, viz. “ These are to certify whom it may concern, that William Baguley offered himself to me this Day to be admitted to the Order of Priesthood; which I refused him, there being Crimes of a very heinous Nature alledged against him. Witness my Hand this 21st Day of Decemb. 1706.

Rich. Peterburgh.

THIS Chapel was not built for this Purpose, but made out of an old House, and is but ordinary, considering the Neighbourhood, and how many Persons of Fashion attend it. The Length of it being North and South, the Communion-Table is on one Side the Pulpit, on the East Side, there are three Pannels over it against the Wall, with the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and Ten Commandments, done in Gold coloured Letters upon Black. There are three Galleries, one on the West Side, and two other at the North and South Ends; that on the North has Doors into it out of some Houses in Great Queen-street.

THERE are Prayers here every Day at Eleven o'Clock in the Forenoon, and twice on a Sunday. The Morning Preacher is the Reverend Mr. Stevens, and the Afternoon Preacher and Reader the Reverend Mr. Burges, whose Father is the Owner of the Chapel.

THERE is no Organ, and but one little Bell.

The PARISH of St. GEORGE at Bloomsbury.

OUT of the Parish of St. Giles was taken the new Parish of St. George at Bloomsbury. The Church here takes its Name from St. George the Martyr, to whom it was dedicated in Honour of of his late Majesty King George I.

It was consecrated January the 28th, 1731.

It is situated on the North Side and at the West End of Hart-street, and Bloomsbury is added to distinguish it from other Churches dedicated to the same Saint.

THE Author of the Critical Review, before quoted, gives the following Account of this Church: “ It will be impossible, says he, to pass by the new Church of St. George, Bloomsbury, without giving it a very particular Survey: 'Tis built all of Stone, is adorned with a pompous Portico, can boast many other Decorations, has been stinted in no Expence; and yet, upon the Whole, is ridiculous and absurd even to a Proverb. The Reason is this, the Builder mistook Whim for Genius, and Ornament for Taste; he has even err'd so much, that the very Portico does not seem to be in the Middle of the Church, and as to the Steeple; it is stuck on like a Wen to the rest of the Building: Then the execrable Conceit of setting up the King on the Top of it, excites nothing but Laughter in the Ignorant, and Contempt in the Judge. In short, 'tis a lasting Reflection on the Fame of the Architect, and the Understanding of those who employed him.

THIS Living is a Rectory, is in the Gift of the King, the Value is about 400 l. per Ann.

THE Rector is the Rev. Dr. Vernon, and the Lecturer is the Rev. Mr. Kapper.

PRAYERS are twice every Day, viz. at Eleven in the Morning, and Four in the Afternoon. No Organ, 1 Bell. The Vestry is Select.

The PARISH-OFFICERS
are,

2 Church-Wardens.
4 Overseers.
2 Sidesmen.

The PEACE-OFFICERS

2 Constables.
2 Headboroughs:
4 Scavengers.

IN Plumbtree-street is a School for 101 Boys, and as many Girls; the Boys are taught to Read, Write, and cast Accompts, and 3 l. given with each of them when put Apprentice. The Girls are taught to Read, Mark, Knit, and Sew, and put to Service, but no Money given with them. Thirty of the Girls are cloathed, fed, and maintained, in the School, which is supported by Subscription, and Collections at the Church twice in the Year.

THIS Parish begins two Houses Eastward from the Vine Tavern in Holbourn, and extends to Dyot-street in St. Giles's-street, and takes in all the East Side of Dyot-street; thence crossing Great Russel-street, it takes in Part of Dr. Stewart's House, and so to the End of the Ground belonging to the Parish in the Fields behind the said House. From the Doctor's House Eastward it reaches to King-street, taking in Southampton-row and Southampton-court, at the North End of King-street, Swan-passage, the West Side of King's-gate-street, and thence to the second House, inclusive, beyond the Vine Tavern in Holbourn; and all the Streets, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, &c. in this Compass.

THIS Parish, which is taken out of St. Giles in the Fields, as is before said, consists of Part of the second Part of the Old Town, and Part of the third Part of the Old Town.

STREETS, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, &c.

In Part of the second Part of the Old Town:

PART of Dyot-street, Nottingham-street, Plumbtree-street, King's-head-court, Plumbtree-court, Plumbtree-square, Nottingham-court; Part of Vine-street, Castle-street, Duke-street, Little Russel-street, Gilbert-street, Chapel-street, Wyan's-court, Hole-in-the-wall-yard; Part of King's-street; Part of Swan-passage, and King's-gate-street.

NUMBER of Houses about 900.

IN this Parish is the House of his Grace the Duke of Montagu, which, says the ingenious Author before quoted, “ has been long, but very “ ridiculously esteemed one of the most beautiful Lodgings about Town. I must own 'tis grand and expensive; will admit of very noble Ranges of Apartments within, and fully answers all the Dignity of a British Nobleman of the first Rank: But after I have allowed this, I must add, that the Entrance into the Court-yard is mean and Gothick, more like the Portal of a Monastery than the Gate of a Palace; and the Cupola over it is even still more contemptible and absurd. I am ready to confess the Area spacious and grand, and the Colonnade, “ nade to the Wings, graceful and harmonious ;

 “ but then the Wings themselves are no Way “ equal to it, and the Body of the House has “ no other Recommendation than merely its “ Bulk, and the Quantity of Space it fills. It is “ my Opinion, that the Height is not equal to “ the Length, and that the Roof and Garrets
 “ are both a Load to the Fabrick, and absurd
 “ in themselves ; that the Windows are too large
 “ and numerous ; that Decorations are wanting,
 “ and that the whole Front is defective, both in “ Beauty and Variety.

THE House of his Grace the Duke of Bedford, in Bloomsbury-square, which is likewise in this Parish, is situated as well as any House possibly can be ; and being likewise much decayed in its Beauty, is now lately repaired in a Manner that shews the fine Taste of the Owner.

The PARISH of St. GEORGE the Martyr, in Queen-Square.

THE Parish next adjoining to St. Giles, is St. George in Queen-square : The Church here was originally a Chapel of Ease to the Church of St. Andrew in Holbourn, and was built by Subscription of divers Gentlemen, in the Year 1706. It was made Parochial, Anno Domini 1723, by Virtue of the Act of the 9th of Queen Anne for building 50 new Churches.

It takes its Name from being dedicated to St. George the Martyr, in the County of Middlesex, and Queen-square being added to it, partly by Reason of its Situation, and partly to distinguish it from other Churches dedicated to the same Saint.

It is situated on the West Side of Queen-square, near Great Ormond-street, and at the End of Gloucester-street, in the said County of Middlesex.

It is a Rectory in the Gift of the Duke of Montagu.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Green, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Richard Lucas.

PRAYERS are every Day at Eleven and Four. No Organ, one small Bell. Here are two Charity Sermons in the Year, one for the Boys, and one for the Girls.

THE Vestry is Select, consisting of 30 Gentlemen.

THE remarkable Places and Things are, the Lord Powis's House in Ormond-street, now let to the Conde Montijo, Ambassador from Spain ; it is a noble House looking into the Fields backwards towards Highgate, and was built at the Expence of the late French King, his Ambassador, the Duke d'Aumont, in the Reign of Queen Anne, living in the former House of the Lord Powis, which at that Time was consumed by Fire ; the Front is Stone, adorned with Pilasters of the Corinthian Order, and over the Door is carved the Emblem of a Phoenix rising out of the Flames alluding to the afore-mentioned Accident. The Stair-Case within is finely painted by that great Artist Signior Amiconi.

IN this Parish are two Charity-Schools for 50 Boys and 40 Girls. The Boys are taught to Read, Write, and cast Accompts ; and when put out to Trades, with each Boy is given 5 l. The Girls are taught to Read, Write, Knit, Sew, and do Household Work, and with each of them is given 3 l. when put out to Service or Trade.

VOL. II.

THE Burying Ground belonging to this Parish is at some Distance from the Church, in the Fields, where are several Monuments and Grave-stones; the most remarkable are the following :

A handsome Marble Monument with an Urn at Top, being the first that was erected here ; there is a very long Latin Inscription on it, which tells us it was placed here to the Memory of Robert Nelson, Esq; who died the 16th of January 1714, aged 59.

This Gentleman was a Man of great Piety, and wrote several Religious Books, particularly one on the Fasts and Festivals of the Church.

A square Marble Monument with Iron Rails round it, erected to the Memory of Dr. Thomas Gibson, Physician, who died the 16th of July, 1722, aged 75 ; and Anne Gibson, Daughter of Richard Cromwell, the prudent, pious and chaste Wife of Thomas Gibson, who died the 7th of December, 1727, aged 69.

ON a large Marble Monument, having an Urn at the Top, with a Flame issuing out it, is this Inscription :

To the Memory
of

Mr. ROBERT BURFORD, who departed this Life the 10th of March, 1727, in the 65th Year of his Age.

This Monument is erected according to his last Will.

ON the Base of a high and very handsome Stone Obelisk, is this Inscription :

In this Vault lies the Body of Thomas Falconer, Esq; descended from an antient honourable Family of the same Name in Scotland, who after having been employed eighteen Years by the Honourable East-India Company at Bengal, returned into England in 1727, with the just Reward of his extensive Skill, and honest Industry, in Commerce, an established good Name, and a very ample Fortune, with that rare Felicity and Largeness of Mind, that knew the Pleasure of possessing only from the Power it gave him of dispensing ; of being generous to his Acquaintance, grateful to his Friends, and charitable to the Poor ; with the same sound Church of England Principles in Religion that he took with him from home, and in which he died on the 25th of January 1729-30, and in the 35th Year of his Age. To the Memory of this, her much beloved Son, his Mother erected this Monument.

ON a polish'd white Marble Table-Monument, erected in the Wall, at the East End of the Burying Ground, is this Inscription :

Here lyeth interred the Reverend Dr. Marshall ; he was many Years Morning Preacher of St. George's Chapel in Queen-Square, and the first Rector of St. George the Martyr, in the County of Middlesex.

Obiit 2d die Octob. An. Dom.

ON a white Marble Grave-stone :

To the Memory

Of Dame Alice, the late Wife of Sir Brocas Gardiner, of Roche Court in the County of Southampton, Bart. who intends to be buried in the same Grave. She dyed on the third Day of January, 1734, in the 66th Year of her Age.

THE Buttings and Boundings of this Parish are as follow ; beginning at the North End of Lamb's-conduit-street, it extends on the North West Side of Red-lion-street to Eagle-street, and extending Westward on the North Side of Eagle-street to King's-gate-street, taking in the East Side of that Street. It takes in all Glocester-street, New Little Ormond-street, and all Queen-square, and Brunswick-court, and from thence extends to the End of Great Ormond-street, with all the Streets, Courts, &c. in this Compass.

CHAP. IV.

The LIBERTY of the DUTCHY of LANCASTER.

NEXT without Temple-bar, and the Liberty of the City of LONDON, the New Temple is a Liberty pertaining to the Dutchy of Lancaster, which begins in the East on the South Side, or Left Hand, near the River Thames, and stretches West to Ivy-bridge, where it ends. And again, on the North Side or Right Hand from some small Distance without Temple-bar, to where stood a Stone Cross, taking in one Middle Row of Houses, opening partly to the South, and partly to the North.

IN the Room of which Cross of later Years was placed a Maypole, commonly called The Maypole in the Strand, being above 100 Feet in Height. This being grown old and decayed, was, Anno 1717, obtained by Sir Isaac Newton, Knt. of the Parish; and being taken down, was carried away thro' the City in a Carriage of Timber, to Wanstead in Essex. And by the Leave of Sir Richard Child, Bart. Lord Castlemain, now Earl Tinley, granted to the Reverend Mr. Pound, Rector of that Parish, was reared up and placed in his Park there, the Use whereof is for the raising of a Telescope, the largest in the World, given by a French Gentleman to the Royal Society, he being a Member thereof.

AND these are the Bounds of this Liberty.

BUT to go over the Bounds again, with the modern Names of the Places, for the better understanding thereof, according to a late Survey.

THIS Dutchy begins without Temple-bar, and runs on the South Side, as far as the East Side of Cecil-street, which is built on the Ground where Great Salisbury House and Garden stood; and so running down to the Thames, and thence to Essex Buildings, taking in all to Temple-bar. Then on the North Side, some Distance from Temple-bar, there is a large Row of Houses which runs up in the Strand Side, as far as the said Maypole, where antiently stood the Stone Cross; and so coming down to Hallowel-street, commonly called the Backside of St. Clement's, passes by the Butcher-row, taking in all that large Rank of Buildings: Then beyond the Place of the Maypole, this Liberty again begins by the Fountain Tavern in Catharine-street, and thence into the Strand by Wimbleton House; thence to Exeter-change, and so turning up Burleigh-street runs up to the Corner of Exeter-street, except four Houses, and thence it crosses over the Buildings into Catharine-street, by the Fountain Tavern.

AND these are the Bounds of that Liberty which some Time belonged to Brian Lisle, since to Peter of Savoy, and then to the House of Lancaster, as shall be shewed.

By a Record it is likely that this Place of the Savoy did also some Time belong to Montford Earl of Leicester, before it was the Earl of Lancaster's. The Record is this, Tho. Comit. Lancast. placea subtus litus Thamise, ubi Com. Leic. aliquando hab. mansum suum, &c. "The Earl of Lancaster's Place, near the Thames Side, where some Time the Earl of Leicester had his Mansion, and 37 s. Rent there of a Messuage below the Bars, called the New Temple, and 4 l. 9 s. Rent belonging to the same Messuage of a Place of Land near the Thames Side, bordering upon the Curtalage of the Bishop of Landaff."

IN the Reigns of King Edward I. and II. were many vacant Pieces of Land from Temple-bar, and so toward the Strand, lying in the Parishes of St. Clement's Danes, and St. Mary Strand, which were then granted and built upon. These are to be met with in the 29th of King Edward I. "Walter Le Barbur had granted him a void Place in the High-street in the Parish of St. Clement's Danes without the Bars of the New Temple. The same Year Robert Le Spencer had another vacant Place of Ground in the same Parish, containing 40 Feet in Length, 40 in Breadth. The 2d of King Edward II. "Thomas Earl of Lancaster granted to the Bishop of Landaff, a Place of Ground near the Church of St. Mary at Strand, containing fourscore Feet in Length, and eight in Breadth, pro manso suo ibidem elangand, i. e. for the enlarging of his Mansion-House there. And 15 Edward II. John de Langton obtained for the Bishop of Worcester a Place in the Parish of St. Mary at Strand, containing thirty Perches in Length, and four in Breadth."

Henry III. in the 30th Year of his Reign, did grant to his Uncle, Peter of Savoy, all those Houses upon the Thames, which sometimes pertained to Brian de Insula, or Ile, without the Walls of this City of LONDON, in the Way or Street called the Strand, to hold to him and to his Heirs, yielding yearly in the Exchequer, at the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel, three barbed Arrows for all Services, dated at Reading, &c. This Peter of Savoy built the the Savoy.

THIS

THIS Liberty of the Dutchy lying between LONDON and Westminster, was look'd upon as some Security to the Court, when any Plague should happen to be in the City, by the Care that should be taken to keep it thence: And therefore, when the Plague came among the Citizens, great Care was taken to keep it from spreading Westward. In the Year 1577, the City being infected, and the Court removed to Windsor and elsewhere, in this Dutchy was appointed one Ledsham, Bailiff, who had been negligent in taking Care of the Dutchy. The Earl of Leicester hearing of the Increase of it there (where he also had a House) grew very angry with him, and threatned the said Ledsham (who was his Servant). to pluck his Coat from his Back, and to punish him otherwise for his Negligence: And for the Sick there he offered very honourably, to give as much as any should for their Relief. But Fleetwood, the Recorder, an active and a good Man, having something to do in that Liberty also, was very comfortably diligent, weekly himself surveying the Dutchy; and took order there to stop the Increase of it. He twice past with all the Constables between the Bars and the Tilt-yard in both Liberties, to see the Houses shut in.

AMONGST other Buildings, memorable for Greatness, the first was Exeter House, so called, for that the same belonged to the Bishops of Exeter, and was their Inn, or LONDON Lodging; who was the first Builder thereof, is not to be read; but that Walter Stapleton was a great Builder there, in the Reign of King Edward II. is manifest; for the Citizens of LONDON, when they had beheaded him in Cheap, near to the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, they buried him in a Heap of Sand or Rubbish, in his own House without Temple-bar, where he had made great Building. Edmond Lacy, Bishop of Exeter, built the great Hall in the Reign of King Henry VI. &c. The same has since been called Paget House, because the Lord William Paget enlarged and possessed it; obtained from John Bishop of Exeter (who made a great Spoil of his Church Revenues) and was confirmed to Sir William Paget, and also a certain Parcel of Land within the Garden of the Middle Temple, LONDON.

THEN Leicester House, so named, because Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, of new built there; and Essex House, the Earl of Essex there inhabiting. And it was thought the Bishop of Exeter had no Recompence for the same, of any other House in or near LONDON, as Sir Henry Spelman writes.

THEN West was a Chapel dedicated to the Holy Ghost, called St. Spirit, upon what Occasion founded is unknown.

THEN is Milford-lane down to the Thames; but why so called, none have conjectured.

THEN was the Bishop of Bath's Inn, called also Hampton-place) built (for a great Part thereof) by the Lord Thomas Seymour, Admiral, being Parcel of his Possession. This House of the Bishop of Bath and Wells was assured to the said Admiral Seymour in King Edward VI.'s Reign, and was quite severed from that Bishoprick without Recompence; which House came since to be possessed by the Earl of Arundel, and thereof called Arundel Houses. This Earl having upon the Admiral's Attainture, bought it of King Edward VI. in the 3d of his Reign, with several other Messuages, Lands and Tenements in the Parish, for 41 l. 6s. 8d.

NEXT beyond which, on the Street Side, was some Time a fair Cœmity, or Church-Yard, and in the same a Parish Church, called of the Nativity of our Lady, and the Innocents at the Strand; and of some (by Means of a Brotherhood kept there) called of St. Ursula at the Strand.

William Wynnningham, Rector Ecclesie Sancte Mariæ Le Strand, Anno 1376.

IN former Time it was an Highway leading from LONDON to Westminster, and so was called in a Deed. Roger, called The Amner, gave and confirmed to Roger de Mulent, or de Molend, who was also called Longespe, Bishop of Chester, in the Year 1257, a Parcel of Land and Buildings lying in the Parish of St. Mary le Strand, without LONDON, toward Westminster; and the same to hold to the said Roger and his Successors, by the yearly Rent of 3 s. at Easter, for the Purchase of which, the said Bishop gave 20 Marks of Silver. On this Land we presume Chester Inn was built, situate by St. Mary le Strand.

FOR near adjoining to the said Church, betwixt it and the River Thames, was an Inn of Chancery, commonly called Chester's-inn, because it belonged to the Bishop of Chester; by others named of the Situation, Strand-inn.

THEN was there a House belonging to the Bishop of Landaff: For it is said in a Record, the 4th of King Richard II. that a vacant Place, lying near the Church of our Lady at Strand, the said Bishop procured of Thomas Earl of Lancaster, for the enlarging of this House.

THEN in the High Street was a fair Bridge, called Strand-bridge, and under it a Lane or Way down to the Landing-Place on the Bank of Thames.

THEN was the Bishop of Chester (commonly called of Litchfield and Coventry) his Inn, or LONDON Lodging. This House was first built by Walter Langton, Bishop of Chester, Treasurer of England, in the Reign of King Edward I.

THESE two Bishops Places, viz. that of the Bishop of Landaff, and this of the Bishop of Chester, (that is, of Litchfield and Coventry) were defaced and taken away, without any Recompence to the said Bishops.

AND next adjoining to it was the Bishop of Worcester's-inn. All which, viz. the Parish of St. Mary at Strand, Strand-inn, Strand-bridge, with the Lane under it, the Bishop of Chester's-inn, the Bishop of Winchester's-inn, with all the Tenements adjoining, were by the Command of Edward Duke of Somerset, Uncle to King Edward VI. and Lord Protector, pulled down and made level Ground, in the Year 1549. In Place where he built that large and goodly House, now called Somerset House.

KING James I. his Queen made this House her Palace, and on Shrove Tuesday, Anno 1616, she feasted the King here. At this Time the King changed the Name of this House, appointing it to be henceforth called Denmark House. This House was much repaired and beautified, and improved by new Buildings and Enlargements by this Queen, who also brought Water from Hyde-park in Pipes.

THE Bishop of Worcester, in Respect of his former House demolished, was recompenced with an House in White-friars; which formerly in Sir Henry Spelman's Time, the Bishop of Worcester enjoyed. This, perhaps, was in Favour to Bishop Hooper, Bishop of Glocester and Worcester, some Time the Duke of Somerset's Chaplain.

IN the High-street near to the Strand, some Time stood a Cross of Stone, against the Bishop of Coventry or Chester his House, where it is read, that in the Year 1294, and divers other Times, the Justices Itinerants sat without LONDON, at the Stone Cross over-against the Bishop of Coventry's House; and some Time they sat in in the Bishop's House, which was hard by the Strand, as is aforesaid.

At or near which Cross in the Strand stood, 'till of late a Maypole, commonly called the Maypole in the Strand; near to which is erected a Stone-building over a Spring, designed at first to supply the Neighbourhood with Water, but now of little Use.

THE Savoy House is a very great, and at this present a very ruinous Building. In the Midst of its Buildings is a very spacious Hall, the Walls three Feet broad at least, of Stone without, and Brick and Stone inward. The Ceiling is very curiously built with Wood, and having Knobs in due Places hanging down, and Images of Angels holding before their Breasts Coats of Arms, but hardly discoverable: On one is a Cross, Gules, between four Stars, or else Mullets. It is covered with Lead, but in divers Places perished where it lies open to the Weather. This large Hall is now divided into several Apartments; a Cooper has a Part of it for the stowing of his Hoops, and for his Work. Other Parts of it serve for two Marshalseas for keeping Prisoners, as Deserters, Men impress'd for Military Service, Recruits, &c. Towards the East End of this Hall is a fair Cupola with Glass Windows, but all broken, which makes it probable the Hall was as long again, since Cupola's are wont to be built about the Middle of great Halls.

IN this Savoy, how ruinous soever it is, are some good Houses, as Mr. Nut's Printing-House, a Prison, a Parish Church, and three or four other Churches and Places for Religious Assemblies, viz. for the French, for Dutch, for High Germans and Lutherans; and lastly, for the Protestant Dissenters. Here are also Harbours for many Refugees and poor People.

IN the Year 1687, Schools were set up and ordained here at the Savoy, the Masters whereof were Jesuits. Rules were provided for these Schools, and published in print. It was declared therein, that the Intention of them was to teach Youth, Vertue and Learning: That those that came thither should be taught gratis, and to be at no further Charge than in buying of their own Pen, Ink, Paper and Books: That these Schools should be common to all of what Condition soever, and none to be excluded when they should be thought fit to begin to learn Latin, and writ sufficiently well. In these Schools, to be taught Greek and Latin, Poetry and Rhetorick. And whether Catholics or Protestants came to these Schools, yet in Teaching no Distinction to be made, but all to be taught with equal Diligence and Care; neither by Masters or Scholars any tampering or meddling, to persuade any one from the Profession of his own Religion. But few there were but did believe, nay could not believe otherwise than that this pretended charitable Project was for the Advantages hereby to be compassed for the promoting the Roman Religion. These Schools were soon dissolved, upon the ceasing of the Government of King James; and the Clock that was made for the Use of this Savoy School, was afterwards set up upon a Gentleman's House in Low-Leyton, as was said.

IN this Savoy were placed by King William III. many Families of poor French Protestants, and where they that had Skill in Trade and Manufacture, wrought to get something for their Livelihood; however they were opposed and complained of by many of the Tradesmen of LONDON, as hindering and prejudicing many of them. Here also was, and is, a Church for them. The late Bishop of LONDON came thither himself sometimes, and passionately desired their Good, and maintained many of their Profelytes. The poor French here, inhabiting with their Families had; many of them, three Shillings Allowance weekly, and some four. To countenance them the more, to this Church came many of the said King's Privy-Counsellors, Secretaries of State, and other great Officers of the Kingdom. And thro' them and their Contributions, the Church chiefly was able to subsist. They used the Liturgy of the Church of England, turned into French, and their Ministers are episcopally ordained.

THE Deans of Westminster hold themselves Visitors of the Savoy; and when some Exchange of Lands belonging to this Hospital was in Hand, Anno 1565, with Mr. Fanshaw, Dr. Goodman, the Dean, out of his great Care that no Wrong might be done to that charitable Foundation thereby wrote an earnest Letter to the Lord Treasurer, "That being in Conscience much bound to that poor Hospital; and considering the good Meaning of the most noble Founder, he desired him for God's Sake, that in that Bargain of Exchange that was towards, nothing might pass to the Prejudice thereof"; suspecting it seems, and not without Cause, the Integrity of that Master.

THE Parish of St. Clement Danes is large, well built and inhabited, by many Persons both of the Nobility and Gentry, as well as rich Tradesmen: Where also many Noblemens Seats stood, as Essex House, Arundel House, &c. though now pulled down, and improved in Rents, by building them into fair Courts and Squares.

To give the Girt Line, or present Bounds of this Parish, we must in abundance of Places run through, or cross Houses, nay long Piles of Buildings. We shall begin at the West End of Portugal Row in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, where the Parish Stone-Mark is set up; and from thence it runs cross the Back-sides of the Houses in Portugal Row, taking in the Play-house, and the Stablings into the New Court in Lincoln's-Inn, almost to the Pump placed at the Pallisado Pales by the Garden; and from thence strait cross the Court and the Row of New Buildings into Shear-lane, and down the same to the Gate by Temple-bar, taking in all the West Side thereof. Then it runs from Temple-bar, cross to the Cock Ale-house on the other Side of the Way, and so to the River Thames; taking in all the Buildings, except the Temple: Which the Templers and Baristers claim a Jurisdiction unto: So that it passes from the Cock Ale-house in the Street-side, unto all the Buildings to the Palsgraves Head Court, which it takes in, and so down into Devereux-court, with all Essex Buildings on both Sides to the River Thames: Then along the Banks of the River from Essex Stairs unto Strand Bridge; and there it runs Northwards, taking in the East Side, with Part of the West Side, at the upper End; where it joins to the Garden-Wall of Somerset-house: Which Buildings it crosses, and so up to Three-helmet-court, over-against St. Mary in the Strand, and there it crosses the High Street to the Bell-Inn; thence through the said Inn, and crosses Wick-street to May-pole-alley; from whence it passes by Craven House and Craven Buildings, on the East Side of Drury-lane to two Doors on this Side the Horse-shoe Tavern; and there it crosses the Houses on the Back-side of Princes-street, and so cross Stanhope-street and then runs down the South Side of Duke-street, to the House where the Parish Stone Mark is set up; and from this House it crosses the Houses into Bear-yard, and so into Sheffield-street by Clare-market, next the Oil-Shop, where it crosses the Street to the Glasiers, and so thro' the Houses; and again crosses to the Parish Stone Mark, on the Backside of Portugal Row, where we began. But there is a considerable Part of the the Parish separate from the rest, and that Part begins at Wimbleton House in the Strand, over-against Dutchy-Lane, and so runs to the Corner of Exeter Exchange, and from thence up Burleigh-street, taking in Exeter-court, with Exchange-alley, and the back Buildings against Exeter-street, with all the East Side of Burleigh-street, except two or three Houses by the Corner of Exeter-street. Then again from the Corner of the said Exchange it runs cross the Strand, taking in Fountain-court down to the River Thames, with all Beauford Buildings, and the East Side of Cecil-street, built out of Great Salisbury House: All which said Buildings it takes in: And this is the Extent of this Parish.

Now for the Description of the Streets, Lanes, Alleys and Courts in this Parish, with their Buildings of chief Note: We shall first begin at Temple-bar, and so go Westward. First is the Strand, on both Sides to St. Mary's Church; and here this Street is not so broad as by and beyond the said Church; but being so great a Thoroughfare, is well inhabited by Shop-keepers. The Blue Posts Tavern, adjoining to Temple-bar, is a noted House. Thence, passing Westward, is Cross-key-alley, very small; the Rose Tavern is a well accustomed House with good Conveniences of Rooms, and a good Garden. The next Place that offers itself is the Palsgrave's-head-court, very handsome, large, well built and inhabited, with Free-stone Pavement, ascended by Steps, which causes it to lie dry and clean. It has an Outlet into the Temple with a Door to it. Next to this is a small Alley not worth naming. Then through a Passage is an Entrance into Devereux-court, which leads to the Temple Back-gate. It is a large Place with good Houses, and by Reason of its Vicinity to the Temple, has a good Resort, consisting of Publick Houses, and noted Coffee Houses; from this Court is a Passage into Effex-street.

ALMOST against St. Clement's Church is an open Passage for Coaches into Effex-street, or Building, being a broad, clean, and handsome Street, especially beyond the Turning into the Temple, where it crosses Little Effex-street into Milford-lane. It consists of two Rows of good built Houses, well inhabited by Gentry; at the Bottom of which Street is a Pair of Stairs to go down to the Water Side where Watermen ply. This Place, before its being converted into Buildings, was a large Garden with one great House, first called Exeter House, as belonging to the Bishop of Exeter. Afterwards it came to the Earls of Effex, and was called Effex House. Which Name it retained, although afterwards possessed by Seymour, Marquis of Hertford. At length it was purchased by Dr. Barbon, the great Builder, and by him and other Undertakers converted into Buildings, as now it is; of late the Passage into it out of the great Street is widened and made more convenient.

OUT of this Effex-street, Westward, is a small Street or Passage for Carts, called Little Effex-street, which leads to Milford-lane, which opens out of the Strand, against St. Clement's Church, and this Lane runs down on the Backside of Effex-street to the Water Side; a Place much pestered with Carts and Cars, for the bringing Coals and other Goods from the Wharfs by the Water Side, and therefore this Lane is but ill inhabited, with old Buildings, and the rather for that the Entrance into it out of the Strand is so narrow. On the West Side of this Lane, and opposite to Little Effex-street, is Greyhound-court, a handsome new built Place, which has a Passage into Water-street, on the Backside of Norfolk-buildings. Then lower down in Milford-lane, near the Wood-Wharf, is a small Place called Pissing-alley, a very proper Name for it; and this Alley goes down to Milford Stairs, and also up into Water-street, being ascended by Steps.

BETWIXT Milford-lane and Arundel-street, is Crown-court, very small. Then betwixt Norfolk-street and Surrey-street in the Strand, is Angel-court, containing two or three Houses, and hath a Free-stone Pavement. Then beyond Surrey-street is the Talbot-Inn, well resorted unto, which hath a Passage into Surrey-street, next to Mr. Foxe's House.

Strand-bridge goes down to the Thames Side, a Place of some Note, for its Stairs to take Water at. The East Side of this Lane joins to Surrey-street, into which there is a Passage up Stone Steps; and the West Side hath a Brick Wall belonging to Somerset-house Garden.

BEYOND Strand-bridge, towards Somerset-house, is a small Court called Three-halbert-court, which is the Extent or Out-bounds of this Parish Westward.

Now back to Norfolk-buildings, formerly the Bishop of Bath's Inn, which in Process of Time came to the Family of the Howard's, Dukes of Norfolk; it then was a very large and old built House, with a spacious Yard for Stabling, towards the Strand, and with a Gate to enclose it, where there was the Porters Lodge; and as large a Garden towards the Thames. This said House and Grounds was some Years since converted into Streets and Buildings, and contains four large Streets graced with good Buildings, which are well inhabited, and resorted unto by Gentry; three of which, in a strait Line from the Strand, run down to the River Thames, where there are good Stairs for taking Water, viz. Arundel-street, Norfolk-street, and Surrey-street; and the fourth, viz. Howard-street, runs cross about the Midst. The first of these Streets Eastward is Arundel-street, which hath the best Buildings towards the Thames; on the East Side is a Street called Water-street, chiefly for Coaches and Stabling; at the Bottom of which is a pretty handsome House with a Garden towards the Thames; and under the House there is a Passage into the Thames for the watering of Horses. Out of this Street are two Passages into Arundel-street, one of which is broad for Coaches, and the other narrow, which is called Pissing-alley. And out of this Place there are two Passages into Milford-lane, the one towards the Bottom very small and bad, being descended by Steps, very ill built and inhabited; the other is called Greyhound-court, already mentioned in the Description of Milford-lane. At the upper End of this Street is the Crown Tavern, a large and curious House, with good Rooms and other Conveniencies fit for Entertainment.

Norfolk-street, very large and spacious, lies in the Midst, and is esteemed the best both for Buildings and Pleasantness of a Prospect into the Thames.

Surrey-street, also replenished with good Buildings, especially that of Nevison Fox, Esq; towards the Strand, which is a fine, large and curious House of his own Building; and the two Houses that front the Thames; that on the East Side being the House of the Honourable Charles Howard, Esq; Brother to Henry Duke of Norfolk, both fine Houses, with pleasant tho' small Gardens, towards the Thames.

Howard-street, also a large open Street, running cross as aforesaid, but not so well inhabited as the others.

THE North Side of the Strand begins at Temple-bar, from thence runs to the Butcher-Row, which goes to the Passage into Clement's-Inn, thence to the Angel-Inn, and so on the Backside of St. Clement's Church, unto where the May-Pole stood.

THE Parish-Church of St. Clement's is before-mentioned; near to which, on the North Side, is Clement's-Inn, which has a Passage into New-Inn, and another into Clare-market.

St. Clement's-lane comes out of Butcher-Row, and fronts Clements's-Inn. And near the Gate is the Lamb-Inn, of some Note and Trade. Then passing by Clement's-Inn, and Boswel-court, it runs Northwards into Clare-market, and in its Passage takes in St. Clement's Pump, or Well, of Note for its excellent Spring-Water. A little above this Pump, is Plough-alley, which with three Turnings, goes into a Street by the Plough Stables, which fronts the Play-house by Lincoln's Inn Grange, in little Lincoln's-Inn-Fields. More towards Clare-market is Horse-shoe-court, a pretty handsome Place, with a Free-stone Pavement, having a Prospect into Clement's-Inn Garden. And opposite to this Court is Yates's-court, not over good nor large; and then nearer to Clare-market, on the Right Hand, is a very small Place, with a narrow Entrance, called Pigmy-court.

BETWEEN Temple-bar and the Turning into Clement's-Inn on the North Side of the Butcher-Row, (so called from the Butchers Shambles on the South Side) are several Courts, most of which are but small. The first is Skip-yard, a Thoroughfare into Little Shear-lane, with a pretty broad Passage; on the East Side is an open Place going into a small Court, called Chair-court, with a fair Free-stone Pavement. This Yard seems to take its Name from the Ship Tavern at the Entrance thereof. Next to Skip-yard are these Courts, Swan-court, very small; Star-court, indifferent good and large, with an open Air. White-hart-court, long, but narrow; Lock-alley, but small; Windmill-court, very small and inconsiderable; Crown-court, hath an open Air about the Midst, and leads into Little Shear-lane; Bear and Harrow-court, so called from such a Sign, a noted Tavern, at the Entrance into it. This Court (or rather Alley for its Length and Narrowness) runs into Boswel-court. Then, beyond St. Clement's-lane is the Angel-Inn, a very large Place, and of great Resort, especially for the Cornish and West-country Lawyers. And near unto this Inn is Knights-court, a Place of small Account.

Hollowel-street, commonly called the Backside of St. Clements, a Place inhabited by divers Salesmen and Piece-Brokers. This Street runs up to the New Church in the Strand, where is the Five-Bell Tavern, which is a Thoroughfare into Wick-street; and near it is a small Alley called Sallets Alley, also with a Passage into Wick-street. In this Hollowel-street is Lyon's-Inn, another of the Inns of Chancery, which is but small and old. It hath a Back-door into Wick-street; and against the Fore-Door is a small Passage into the Strand, called Pissing-alley, perhaps in Contempt.

Wick-street begins at the Angel-Inn, and so runs into Drury-lane; it is a Street much taken up by Upholsters for the Sale of Bedding and second-hand Household Goods. In this Street is New-Inn, another Inn of Chancery; and here the Students of Strand-Inn settled, when that House was pulled down in the Reign of King Edward VI. for the Building of Somerset-house. This Inn is of late much increased by the new Buildings in the Garden Part; which is severed in with Palliades, and neatly kept with Grass-Plats and Walks, set with Rows of Trees, so that the Chambers (which all front the Garden) are very pleasant and airy. Through this Inn there is a Passage into Haughton-street, and another into Clement's-Inn.

Near unto New-Inn is Wickham-court and Wick-alley, both very small; and on the North Side, next to Lyon's-Inn, is Ogden's-court, also but ordinary. May-pole-alley also hath a narrow Passage into Stanhope-street, but meanly inhabited; the East and West Sides are taken up by the back Buildings of Craven-house: And over-against Haughton-street is Sherborn-Court, which is but small and ordinary.

Drury-lane, so called from Drury-house, once the Seat of the Earl of Craven, which with the Additions built by his Lordship, called Craven-house, made together a very large House, or which may be termed several Houses: The Entrance into this House was thro' a Pair of Gates which leads into a large Yard for the Reception of Coaches, and on the back Side was a handsome Garden.

Blackmoor-street, near unto Craven-house, a Street of no great Account. In this Lane, on the East Side, which is in this Parish, are these Places of Name, Clare-court, a very handsome open Place with a Passage into Blackmoor-street; and another into White-horse-yard; it hath very good new built Houses, fit for good Inhabitants; and is handsomely paved with Free-stone. White-horse-yard hath a Passage into Stanhope-street, being a Place but ill built, nor over well inhabited. King's-head-court hath a Passage down Steps into Stanhope-street, an indifferent good Court. Rain-deer-yard, but ordinary, and hath a Passage into Stanhope-street, and Drum-court, or alley, a small Place.

Stanhope-street, a pretty broad, well built and inhabited Street; and besides the Places which come out of Drury-lane, on the same Side is Blue-boar-court, which is but small.

Peter-street, but short and ordinary.

Clare-street, a good open Place fronting the Market, here is White-horse-inn.

Holles-street, also fronting the Market.

Haughton-street, also falling into the Market, all which three last Streets are well built and inhabited; and from this Street to Peter-street, there runs an Alley without a Name, that crosses Holles-street and Clare-street.

Vere-street comes out of Duke-street, and falls into Clare-street, a Street well inhabited by Tradesmen; on the East Side is a Passage into Bear-yard, which is a broad Place with Shambles and Stalls built, as designed for a Market-Place to join to Clare-Market, but the Project did not take; so of no Use, and but ordinarily inhabited. Out of this Yard is an Alley which leadeth into Lincoln's-inn-fields against Portugal-row, and another Passage into Sheffield-street, adjoining to the Market, a Place of some Trade.

Clare-market, very considerable and well served with Provisions, both Flesh and Fish; for besides the Butchers in the Shambles, it is much resorted unto by the Country Butchers and Higglers, the Market Days are Wednesdays and Saturdays. The Toll belongs to the Duke of Newcastle, as Ground Landlord thereof.

ON the Backside of Portugal-row, is a Street which runneth to Lincoln's-inn-gate, which used to pass without a Name, but since the Place is increased by the new Buildings in Little-lincoln's-inn-fields, and the Playhouse being built there, it is called Playhouse-street. Fronting the Playhouse, is a Street which goes to Plough-stables; which also had no Name; but it is now called Carey-street, in this Street is the Grange-inn, a Place of good Resort; near which is the Parish Round-house, on the Backside of which is a Church-yard also belonging to the Parish.

The new Buildings made by Sir Thomas Cook in Little-lincoln's-inn-fields, now make a large Street with good built Houses, and before likewise had no Name; but now may be called Lincoln's-inn-street, at the Upper End of this Street is Plough-alley, and Stable-alley, already spoken of; then Hooker's-court, a very fine large Court, with with very good Buildings, well inhabited; it hath a Passage down Steps in Boswel-court, and to both Passages or Entrances are Gates to shut up in the Night, for the Safety of the Inhabitants.

Boswel-court, chiefly for Stablings and Coach-Houses, except the End towards St. Clement's-inn, where there are some Houses; this Court hath a Passage into Little-shear-lane; which is but narrow and not over well built.

Hemlock-court, a neat Court with a Free-stone Pavement, lately new built with pretty good Houses; it hath a Passage into Lincoln's-inn, and fronts Ship-yard.

Shear-lane, very narrow towards Temple-bar, but upwards against Little-shear-lane it groweth wider, hath better Buildings and well inhabited: Of this Lane, only the West-side is in this Parish, the other being in the Liberty of the Rolls.

Serle's-street, hath on the East, the new Row of Buildings of Lincoln's-inn, and on the West that large Pile of Buildings which takes up the rest of Little-lincoln's-inn-fields; and in the Midst of which is Cook's-Court, which is a very handsome and cleanly Place, with good Buildings very well inhabited.

WE shall next shew the Buildings lying Westwards and separate from the Body of the Parish; to wit, in the Strand, beginning at Wimbleton House, a very handsome large House, and so all the Houses, with Exeter-Exchange and Court, and the Houses adjoining, the East Side of Burleigh-street, except some few Houses, together with all the Back Buildings into the Fountain Tavern in Catharine-street, and the Courts within the same, as aforesaid; likewise all Beauford-Buildings, and the East Side of Cecil-street, built on Part of great Salisbury House and Garden.

To begin with Exeter Change, with Exchange-alley, Exeter-street, and Burleigh-street, &c. These formerly belonged to Exeter-house and Garden, until thus built, being a large House belonging to the Earls of Exeter, and was antiently said to be a Convent or Monastery; and Covent-Garden, then unbuilt, was the Gardens and Fields belonging to it. This Exchange contains two Walks below Stairs, and as many above, with Shops on each Side, for Semsters, Milleners, Hosiers, &c. the Builders judging it would come in Great Request; but it received a Check in its Infancy, perhaps by those of the New Exchange; so that instead of growing in better Esteem, it became worse and worse, insomuch that the Shops in the first Walk next the Street can hardly meet with Tenants, those backwards lying useless, and those above converted to other Uses; and here the Managers of the Land Bank keep their Office. From hence the Company of Upholders furnish out Funerals. Here was lately drawn the Lottery granted by Parliament to the Sufferers in the Charitable Corporation. Adjoining to this Exchange Eastwards in the Strand is Exeter-court, very handsome, and well inhabited, with a good Free-stone Pavement.

Burleigh-street comes out of the Strand and runs up to Exeter-street, a Place not over well inhabited. And behind the Exchange is Exchange-alley, which hath one Passage into this Street, another into Exeter-street, and a third into the Change. The Court is indifferent large, and well inhabited.

THEN on the South Side of the Strand, near adjoining to the Savoy, but more westwardly, is Beauford-buildings, which formerly was a very large House with a Garden towards the River Thames, with vast Ground and Yards behind it Eastward, called Worcester House, as belonging to the Earls of Worcester, and descending to Henry Duke of Beaufort; his Grace finding it crazy, and by its Antiquity grown very ruinous; and altho' large, yet not after the modern Way of Building, thought it better to let out the Ground to Undertakers, than to build a new House thereon, the Steepness of the Descent to the Thames rendering it not proper for great Courts, nor easy for Coaches, if the Houses were built at such a Distance from the Street as would have been proper: And having, at the same Time, bought Buckingham House at Chelsea, in an Air he thought much healthier, and near enough to the Town for Business. However, his Grace caused a less House to be there built for himself to dispatch Business in, at the End of of a large Street leading to it, and having the Conveniency of a Prospect over the Thames. On both Sides are now very fair and good Houses built, well inhabited generally by Gentry, especially in the Part next the Thames, which is much broader than at its Entrance out of the Strand. The Front Houses in the Strand, which are lofty and well built, are inhabited by Tradesmen, with one very large Tavern, the Sign of the Fountain, very conveniently built for that Purpose, with excellent Vaults, good Rooms of Entertainment, and a curious Kitchen for dressing of Meat, which, with the good Wine there fold, makes it well resorted to: Close by this Tavern is an Alley that leads to Fountain-court, a very handsome Place, with a Free-stone Pavement, and good Buildings, which are well inhabited. Out of this Court is a Passage into the Street, where the Duke's House stood, which gave the Name to Beauford-buildings. This House of the Dukes, with some others, was formerly burnt down by the Carelessness of a Servant in one of the adjacent Houses. This is now built into a very handsome Court: On the West Side of this House is a Passage out of the Strand for Carts and Cars that belong to the Wharfs adjoining to the Thames.

CONCERNING building the old House there goes this Story; that there being a very large Walnut Tree growing in the Garden, which much obstructed the Eastern Prospect of Salisbury House, near adjoining, it was proposed to the Earl of Worcester's Gardener, by the Earl of Salisbury, or his Agent, that if he could prevail with his Lord to cut down the said Tree, he should have 100 l. Which Offer was told the Earl of Worcester, who ordered him to do it, and take the 100 l. both which was performed to the great Satisfaction of the Earl of Salisbury, as he thought; but there being no great Kindness betwixt the two Earls, the Earl of Worcester soon caused to be built in the Place of the Walnut Tree, a large Brick House, which then took away the whole East Prospect.

NEAR to this House was Salisbury House, already spoken of, built by Sir Robert Cecil, Knt. Principal Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, made Lord Treasurer and Earl of Salisbury, by King James I. being both large and stately, and called Salisbury House; and to make it commodious for Passengers, he caused the High Street of the Strand, near adjoining, to be levelled and paved.

THIS House afterwards became two, the one being called Great Salisbury House, as being the Residence of the Earl, and the other Little Salisbury House; which was used to be let out to Persons of Quality, being also a large House; and this was many Years ago contracted for, of the then Earl of Salisbury, for a certain Term of Years to build on, and accordingly it was pulled down and made a Street, called Salisbury-street, which being too narrow, and withal the Descent to the Thames too uneasy, it was not so well inhabited as was expected. Another Part, viz. that next to Great Salisbury House, and over the long Gallery, was converted verted into an Exchange, and called the Middle Exchange, which consisted of a very long and large Room, (with Shops on both Sides,) which from the Strand run as far as the Water Side, where was a handsome Pair of Stairs to go down to the Water Side to take Boat at; but it had the ill Luck to have the Nick-name given it of the Whores-nest: Whereby, with the ill Fate that attended it, few or no People took Shops there, and those that did, were soon weary and left them. Infomuch that it lay useless, except three or four Shops towards the Strand; and coming into the Earl's Hands, this Exchange, with Great Salisbury House, and the Houses fronting the Street were pulled down, and now converted into a fair Street called Cecil-street, running down to the Thames, having very good Houses fit for Persons of Repute; and is accordingly very well inhabited. The East Side of this Street only is in this Parish, the West Side being in that of St. Martin's in the Fields.

Thus much for the Bounds and Antiquities of this LIBERTY, which is governed by the Chancellor of the Dutchy, who is at present the most Noble John Duke of Rutland.

To the Court of the Dutchy of Lancaster also belongs an Attorney-General.

Receiver-General, Richard Lechmere, Esq;

Auditors, William East; Thomas Wyndham, Esqs;

Clerk, the Hon. Sir Thomas-Lumley Saunderson, Knight of the Bath.

King's Serjeant, John Fenwick, Esq;

King's Counsel, Hon. John Finch, Tho. Trevor, Esqs;

Record Keeper, Mr. Wainwright.

Attornies, Mr. Thomas Asheton, Mr. John Page.

Usher, John Grubb, Esq;

Deputy-Clerk and Register, Mr. John Wolfe.

A Deputy-Usher and Messenger.

THEN are there four Burgeses, and four Assistants, to take up Controversies; a Bailiff, who has two or three Under-Bailiffs, that make Arrests within that Liberty; four Constables, four Wardens that keep the Lands and Stock for the Poor; four Wardens for Highways; a Jury or Inquest of 14 or 16, to present Defaults; four Aleconners, which look into the Assize of Weights and Measures, &c. four Scavengers and a Beadle; and their common Prison is Newgate.

THERE is in this Liberty 50 Men, who are always to be at an Hour's Warning, with all necessary Furniture, to serve the King as Occasion shall require. Their Charge at a Fifteen is 13 s. 4 d. Thus much for the Suburb in the Liberty of the Dutchy of Lancaster.

CHAP. V.

St. PAUL'S SHADWELL, and other Parishes within the Bills of MORTALITY.

THE Parish Church of St. Paul Shadwell is situated on the South Side of Upper Shadwell, near the Market, without the Walls, Liberty and Freedom of LONDON, being Eastward of the Tower about 1560 Yards.

It is denominated from St. Paul the great Apostle of the Gentiles, as is farther explained in the Account of St. Paul's Cathedral.

It was first built Anno 1656, and made Parochial, and distinct from the Parish of Stepney, in the Year 1666, the dismal Fire that Year not spreading so far Eastward as this Church, by about a Mile. The Vestry was built about 1675, the South Gallery at the Charge of the Inhabitants in 1683, and the North at the Charge of Mr. Thomas Bryant, Anno 1691; in which Year the Porch on the South Side was also built, and the Church repaired at the Parish Charge: The Tower has these Dates on it, 1671, and 1683.

THE Walls and Tower are built of Brick. The Roof within appears cambered, and is supported with Columns which are of no single Order; the Galleries are supported with Columns of the Tuscan Order; there are three Isles, and Areas paved with Stone.

THE Finishing and Ornament is as follows: The Roof is adorned with Arches of Timber; there are Galleries on the North, South and West Sides of Deal, painted White, and veined. It is pewed with Oak, and about half the Church towards the East is wainscotted, and the Pillars cased about six Feet and a half high. The Altar-Piece is adorned with the Decalogue between the Portraits of Moses and Aaron, and these between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done as the Commandments, Black on Gold, each in a handsome moulded Frame. Over the Commandments is a Glory, and a little higher, the King's Arms under a Compass Pediment, all embellish'd with painted Cherubims, Roses, &c. enclosed with Rail and Baluster; the South Portico is adorned with Pilasters and Entablature of the Tuscan Order, enrich'd with Cherubims, Festoons, &c.

DIMENSIONS within are, Length, 87 Feet, Breadth, 63, and Altitude about 28 Feet; and that of the Tower (wherein are six Bells to Ring in Peal, that chime at Twelve and Four) is about 60 Feet.

BENEFACTORS.

To the pious Memory of Mr. James Cook.

View, Traveller, as you pass by;

Cook's Relicks of Mortality;

Whose Angel's Face, Seraphick Skin;

Proclaim'd some noble Soul within;

N^o 49. Vol. II.

Whose blooming Hope, whose airy Breath,
Whose Bud was nipp'd by cruel Death.

Whose sacred Guest was forc'd to fly
By Death's tyrannick Cruelty,
And take a Mansion in the lofty Sky.
View all his Virtues (if you could Have Time to stay) Modest and Good,
Pious to God, to all was kind,
In short, a universal Friend.
Go, Traveller, and now begin
A virtuous Life, make God thy Friend,
Give him thy Heart in youthful Days,
As pious Cook, whose very Praise
Will warbled be, Ages shall hear
Cook's great and mighty Character.

Isabella Berry, Wife of Thomas Berry, deceased, 29 March, 1696, aged 54.

Rest thou, whose Rest gives me a restless Life,
Since I have lost a kind and virtuous Wife;
Whose Charity procured her such a Name
As is recorded in the Book of Fame.
Her well plac'd Charity the Needy knew;
None that were truly poor escap'd her View.
But Vagabonds and common Beggars she Never admitted to her Charity.
The real Objects were her chiefest Care
To such she never would her Bounty spare;
Therefore the Poor do much her Loss deplore,
For few did give such Alms, but none gave more.

Arms; Ermin, on a Bend ingrailed, three Flowers de Lis, impaled, with a Lion rampant within a Bordure, ingrailed, charged with six Mulletts.

On the North Side of the Church, the Children of Mr. Robert and Anne Spelman; and on a Stone standing upright this Inscription:

Here lieth interred the Body of Martha Willis, Wife of Thomas Willis, obiit Decemb. 1699, aged 21 Years.

Of Death and Judgment, Heaven and Hell,
Who oft does think, must needs die well.

On a Tomb near the North East Angle of the Church, this Inscription:

Here lieth interred three Sons and two Daughters of Richard and Anne Merry; and also three Sons and two Daughters of Andrew Herring, Grandchild to the said Richard and Anne Merry.

Let Friends forbear to mourn and weep,
While sweetly in the Dust they sleep.
This toilsome World they left behind,
A Crown of Glory for to find.
Their Days were short, like Winter's Sun,
From Earth they came, to Heaven they run:
God blest the rest with Length of Days,
On Earth to live, his Name to praise.

On a Grave-stone a little Westward from the last, this Inscription:

Here lies the Body of Anne, Wife of Ambrose Goodwin, ob. Febru. 20, 1673; also six Sons of Henry Goodwin and Jane his Wife.

No Age so young that Death will spare;
All Ages they must die;
Therefore to die, let us prepare
To live eternally.

At the East End of the Church is this Inscription on a Grave-stone:

Here lie the Bodies of five Children of John Cofin and Elizabeth his Wife; also of the said Elizabeth, who departed this Life the 5th of April, 1691, aged 29 Years, one Month and five Days.

Here now sleeps one that lived her Sexes Wonder,
For Wife, for Friend, or Mother, none beyond
her:
And sleep she must, 'till the last Trump shall wake her,
And her dear Lord to his vast Glory take her.

NUMBER of Houses 1800.

The PARISH of St. JOHN's at Hackney.

ON the Side of the River Ley is situated the pleasant and healthful Town of Hackney, where divers Noblemen in former Times had their Country Seats, as an Earl of Northumberland, a Countess of Warwick, Lord Brook, &c. This Church of Hackney hath been of late stiled by the Name of St. John's at Hackney, as tho' it belonged to the Knights Templars of St. John at Jerusalem, as certainly they had a Mill and some Tenures in the Parish. But in an antient Record of the Tower, it is found to have been written Ecclesia Parochialis S. Augustini de Hackney. And in the Cotton Library there is a Volume about the Knights Templars, wherein Mention is made of St. Augustin's Hackney, and of the Lands and Rents they had there, namely, about twelve Acres, and 7 l. Quit Rents, and a Mill commonly called Temple Mill.

THERE is in the Tower Records a Patent, being a Licence to erect a Guild in the Church of Hackney, to the Holy Trinity, and the Glorious Virgin Mary, granted to Henry Sharp, Person Ecclesie Parochialis S. Augustini de Hackney.

THE Bishop of LONDON had Demesnes in Hackney, in the Time of Edward I. In the 19th of whose Reign, which was Anno 1290, free Warren was granted to Richard de Gravesend, Bishop of LONDON, in terris suis dominicis de Stepenhethe, [alias Stebunhithe] & Hackeneye.

THERE was one John Duckett held Lands in Hackney, of the Bishop of LONDON, who had granted them to St. Mary's Spittle without Bishopsgate, as was found by an Inquisition in 12 E. 1. concerning a Licence, Hospitali Ste. Marie extra Bishopsgate, for Lands in Hackney granted to John Duckett. The Inquest found that he held those Lands of the Bishop of LONDON, and the Bishop of the King.

Hackney Church had, five hundred Years ago, a distinct Rectory and Vicarage, as appears by a Record in the Tower, 20 E. 1. of the Value of that Ecclesiastical Preferment: Ecclesia de Hackney val. 50 Marc. Vicaragia 12 Marcas. Which was occasioned by an Order from Pope Nicholas, that all the Benefices in England should be taxed, to know their Values.

ADD also a Patent 26 Ed. 3, about 1352, to the Bishop of LONDON, that instead of the Church of Stortford in Hertfordshire, (which belonged to the Precentor of St. Paul's) for the Church of Hackney, to be appropriated to the same Precentor of St. Paul's, for the Maintenance of his Quality. The Patent run to this Tenor:

“ UPON the Supplication of Radulph, Bishop
“ of LONDON, for the better Sustainment
“ of the Estate of the Precentor of St. Paul's,
“ to which the Church of Stortford of the Tax-“ ations of twenty Marks, was only annexed;
“ which by Reason of the Smallness of it, was “ not sufficient to sustain a Man of so great Es“ tate: We do will and grant to the said Bi“ shop that he, for the Augmentation of the “ said Precentorship, and that he that is now
“ Precentor, and his Successors, may more de“ cently live, and in a more competent Manner “ sustain themselves, may annex, appropriate,
“ and unite the Church of Hackney, which is of “ the same Bishop's Advowson, taxed at fifty “ Marks to the said Precentorship, in the Room “ of the said Church of Stortford. So that the “ Precentor of the same Dignity, and his An“ cestors, may have the said Church of Hackney “ annexed and appropriated, in the Room of the “ said Church of Stortford, to him and his Suc“ cessors.

THE King once presented a Clerk to the Living of Hackney, in the Vacation of the Bishoprick. So it is found in the Patent Rolls of the 10th of E. 2. (i. e. about the Year 1316) Robertus de Wodehouse Clericus habet literas Regis de Presentatione ad Ecclesiam de Hackney, Lond. Dioc. vacantem ad Regis donationem. Speciant. rone. Epatus. London. vacantis & in manu Regis existent. Et diriguntur litere Regis Electo Lond. Confirmato. In cujus, &c. Teste Rege apud Clarryndon x die April.

WE will here also subjoin King Edward IV's Letters Patents, for allowing the Chantry above-mentioned in the Church; that as well something may be seen of the Devotion of the Inhabitants of Hackney in those Times; as also what Tutelary Saint this Church then owned.

Omnibus ad quos, &c. That is in English,
“ To all whom these Presents shall come, greet“ ing. Know ye, that of our special Grace, we “ have granted and given Licence for us and our “ Heirs, as much as lies in us, To our beloved “ Master Henry Sharp, Parson of the Parochial “ Church Sti. Augustini de Hackney, to our be“ loved Symon Elryngton, Gentilman, and John “ Elryngton of Hackney, Gentilman, Parishioners
“ of the Parochial Church aforesaid; that he, or “ any of them, or their Executors, longest li“ ving, to the Praise, Grace, and Honour of “ the Holy Trinity, and the Glorious Virgin
“ Mary, may, either he or they, in the same “ Church, begin, found, erect, unite, create,
“ and establish one perpetual Fraternity or Guild, “ consisting of two Guardians, and Brethren, and “ Sisters of the same Parish, and of others, who,

“ of their Devotion, will be of the same Frater“ nity or Guild. And that the Guardians, and “ Brethren, and Sisters, may augment the same “ Fraternity or Guild, as often and when it “ shall seem hereafter to them necessary: And “ on the Feast of Trinity they might choose to “ themselves two Guardians.

Hackney has several Wells of wholesome and excellent Water; as Pig-well; another Well in Church-field; another, which gives the Name to Well-street; another on the Downs; and also Shacklewell seems to take its Denomination from some Well thereabouts. There is also another Chalybeat Well, passing a little Way out of Church-street towards Dorleston, but now disused. For the greater Convenience of this Parish, Pipes have been lately laid from the River up to Clopton, and so to other Parts and Places of the said Town, at the Charge of Mr. Tyssen, late Lord of the Manor.

IN Shacklewell is an antient Manor-House, formerly belonging to the Family of the Rowes, eminent Citizens, ever since Queen Elizabeth's Time: Late possessed by Francis Tyssen, Esq; Father and Son, both deceased. In the Hall and Parlour Windows are several painted Coats of Arms, that seem to have stood there from antient Times; as, besides the Rowes, the Mortymers, &c.

THE Manor of Wyke in Hackney and Stepney, was granted antiently, 1 Hen. 4. to Matild Wife of Alane Buxbul, and John Aubrey; and after married to John Montague, Earl of Sarum. She was Daughter and Heir of Adam Francis, a mighty wealthy Citizen, and Alderman of LONDON.

THERE is a Manor in this Parish, called, The King's Hold; where, near Well-street, is an antient House, called Shore-place; because, they say, Jane Shore had an Habitation here. And, in this House, to preserve this Tradition, now, or late, was her Picture. We have been told, it was formerly the Manor-House, and the Lord's Court kept here. It now belongs to St. Thomas's Hospital in Southwark. But more probably its right Name is Shoreditch-place; and so Stow calls it, though he cannot tell why it is so named. 'Tis likely enough it was the Mansion of Sir John Shoreditch, a Gentleman that lived 3 or 400 Years ago, read of in our Chronicles, and whose Corpse lay in Hackney Church, and had antiently a Monumental Stone and Inscription, tho' now gone.

THERE was a fair House near the Church, called, The Black and White House, formerly belonging to Sir Thomas Viner, some Time Alderman and Mayor of LONDON, now a School for young Gentlewomen. In a large Dining-Room above Stairs, is a very fair Bow Window, with several Coats of Arms curiously painted; whereof one is the Arms of K. James I. underneath is his Motto, Beati Pacifici. Next, the same Arms with a Label, for Charles Prince of Wales; underneath are these two Letters, C. P. then are the Arms of the Prince Palatine of the Rhine, (whose Titles were Elector, Cup-bearer, and High Steward of the Empire) impaled with the Arms of Elizabeth, eldest Daughter of the said King James, with the Crest and Supporters of the said Elector, who married the said Princess Elizabeth, Feb. 14, 1612, the Ancestors of our present King George II. All which Arms make it probable, that that Prince some Time dwelt here, or, at least, that it was his House of Country Retirement.

ONE Stephen Cobbe, Esq; formerly lived in this Parish: And by his Will, bearing Date Dec. 4. 1565, willed to be buried in the Chapel of the said Parish-Church: “ Where my Wife lyeth “ buried; and my Arms there to be set up for “ a Memorial. At which Burial I will, ordain,
“ and

“ and appoint, that there be 24 poor Men, and “ that every one of them, during the Funeral “ Service, bear and hold a black Staff in his “ Hand, standing about the Corpse; to every
 “ of which poor Men I give, will, and bequeath,
 “ a Gown of Black Frieze at 18 d. the Yard,
 “ and 12 d. in Money. Item, I give and be“ queath to all such poor People, Man, Woman,
 “ or Child, as shall inhabit in the said Parish of “ Hackney, and to every of them, 4 d. Item, I “ give and bequeath to the worshipful and ablest
 “ to live in the said Parish, for Token of good “ Will, for a Dinner among them, to be had on “ the Day of my Burial, 10 l. And to the “ Preacher that shall fortune to preach at the “ said Time of my Burial, 6 s. 8 d. Item, I give “ and bequeath 10 l. of lawful Money of Eng- “ land, to be paid by my Executors at their “ Discretion, toward and for the Maintenance
 “ of two Singing-Men, or Conducts, for the due “ Ministration of God’s Service, celebrated and “ done within the Parish-Church of Hackney
 “ afore said ” And he appointed his well-be“ loved Son Rob. Cobb, and his faithful Friend “ Henry Smith, Citizen and Girdler of LON- “ DON, to be his Executors, &c.

Joh. Roberd of Hackney, Yeoman, by his Will, dated Oct. 28, 1484, gives to the Vicar of Hack- ney, and his Successors for ever, an half Acre of Land, in a Field called Dammold’s Field: To the Intent, that they every Sunday pray for the Souls of him the said John, Alice and Isabel his Wives; Nicholas Roberd, his Father, and Ag- nes and Cecille his Wives; Joh. Roberd, and Elyn his Wife; in the Pulpit in the Church.

Alexander Broke of Hackney, buried in the Church-yard there, by Will, Aug. 16, 1484, gave to Agnes his Wife 20 l. and his whole House;
 and one Cottage, called Busterd’s House, with a Garden, in Fee Simple. And also bequeaths to his Son William Broke, Bastard, xx Marks, and two Cottages in Well-street, in Fee Simple.

THIS Church takes its Name from the Saint to whom it was dedicated, and the Word Hack- ney, partly by Reason of its standing in that Town, and partly to distinguish it from other Churches, which are dedicated to St. John.

It is situated in Church-street, on the East Side.

THIS Living is a Vicarage in the Gift of the Lady Tyson, Value 3 or 400 l. per Annum.

THE Vicar is the Reverend Mr. Peter New- come, and the Lecturers are the Rev. Mr. Du- bourdieu, Mr. Simson, Mr. Coppin, and Mr.
Sherlock.

PRAYERS are every Wednesday, Friday, and Holidays, about 11 o’Clock. An Organ and Six Bells.

THE Gift Sermons are; one on the Fifth of November, the Gift of Mrs. Ann Wood, for which the Minister has 20 s. One on the 17th of November, the Gift of George Clarke, Esq; to the Minister 20 s. to the Clerk 5 s. to the Sexton 5 s. One on New-Year’s-Day, the Gift of a Person unknown. One on Good Friday; and one on Ascension-Day, both the Gift of the Rev.
 Mr. Jamson, who was Vicar of this Parish; for which the Minister has 20 s. each Sermon.

THE Vestry is Select.

THE remarkable Places and Things are, three Dissenting Meeting-Houses, one of which is lately set up in Brook-house. And in this Parish are six Boarding-Schools, three for Gentlemens Sons, and three for young Ladies. And here is a Chapel in Homerton, built by Stephen Ram, Esq;

ONE Free-School in the Church-yard, wherein twelve Boys of this Parish are taught to Read, Write, and cast Accompts. This School was built by Christopher Uswick, in the Reign of King Henry VIII. who was then Rector of this Parish, and about one hundred Years after endowed by Mrs. Margaret Audely, with 20 l. a Year to the Master, paid by the Skinners Company.

ONE Charity-School, wherein 50 Boys are taught to Write, Read, and cast Accompts, and 5 l. given to put each of them out to Trades:
 Also twenty Girls, who are taught to Write,
 Read, and Work with their Needle, with each of whom is given 5 l. all done by Subscription of the Gentlemen of the Parish.

IN Church-street are six Alms-houses for six poor Widows, who are allowed 4 l. a Year, the Gift of Dr. Spurstow, who was Vicar of this Parish.

IN Clopton are Ten Alms-houses, for ten poor Widows, the Gift of Bishop Wood, they have 5 l. a Year allowed them, and cloathed once in two Years.

IN Well-street are Alms-houses for six poor
 Men and their Wives, and are allowed 50 s. a Year to every House.

THE Bounds of this Parish are as follow: Cam- bridge-beath, near the Watch-house, is the South Bound. The West is the Spittal-house, in Kings- land Road, and takes in the East Side of the Road through Newington. The North Bounds are the Lower Part of Stamford-hill next Tottenham. The East is Temple Mills, which were formerly Powder-mills, and were blown up, but now are Lead-mills.

Love-lane, Shacklewell, Shacklewell-lane; Part of Newington; and Part of Stamford-hill.

NUMBER of Houses are upwards of 600.

IN this Church of Hackney are these ensuing Monuments of later Times.

First, in a Chapel South of the Communion-
 Table, the Monument of Sir Henry Row and his Lady, represented in Effigy kneeling: Before him a Head-piece and Gauntlet, before her a Bible.

Here, under Fine of Adam’s first Defection;
 Rests in the Hope of happy Resurrection,
 Sir Henry Row, Son of Sir Thomas Row,
 And of Dame Mary, his dear Yokefellow:
 Knight and right worthy (as his Father late)
 Lord Mayor of London, with his virtuous Mate,
 Dame Susan, his twice fifteen Years and seven:
 Their Issue five, surviving of eleven.
 Four named here, in these four Names forepast;
 The fifth is found, if Eccho found the last.
 Sad Orphans all, but most their Heir (most Debtor)

Who built them this, but in his Heart a better.
 Pie obiit Anno Salutis 1612, die Novembr. 12.
 Etatis 68.

His Coat, Gules; a Quarterfoil, Or; impaled with hers, a Fesse Sable. Underneath, kneeling, six Figures, viz. three Sons and three Daughters.

This Monument is opposite unto the other, supported by two Boys in white Marble, one with a Spade, setting one Foot on it, and the other holding a Torch downwards, resting on a Death's Head, and has this Inscription on the Wall North.

Memoriæ Sacrum.

What needs an Epitaph, to sound our Praise,
Our Wealth, our Greatness, Birth, or Length of Days;

When briefly on this Marble we may read
The Glory of the Living and the Dead?
A modest, chaste, religious, loving Wife,
Lyes here at rest, patient in Death and Life:
Even all the Graces which 'mongst many were Divided, sweetly flow'd and met in her.
And tho' Death did his worst, thinking in Rage
To leave no Pattern for succeeding Age;
Yet lives her Vertue, and this Memory
Tells what she was, and what her Sex should be.

Erected by John Bennet, in Memory of Elizabeth his beloved Wife, who departed this Life the 18th of Novemb. 1625. The Coat of Arms, Gules, three Demi-Lions, Argent.

In the same Chapel, against the East Wall, is another very handsome large Table Monument of black polished Marble; and on it these Words:

In Memoriam Henrici Rowe de Shacklewell in Com. Middlesex. Armig. Qui duxit in uxorem Warwick Staverton, unam e filiis Deodati Staverton de Everfly in Comitatu Southampton, Armig. Obiit 15 die Augusti, An. Dom. 1670, & Ætat. suæ 36. Posuit hoc illi moestissima Conjux.

In the Chancel, over the Vestry Door, a Monument against the Wall, with the Effigies of a Man and Woman, and this Inscription:

Here-under lyeth the Body of Henry Thoresby of Thoresby in the County of York, Esquire, late Counsellor in the Law, Benchor and Reader of Lincoln's-inn, Justice of Peace, and of the Quorum; one of the Masters of the most Honourable Court of Chancery, and one of the sixteen Governors of King James's Hospital, elected at the first Foundation thereof by John Sutton, Esquire, the only Founder. Which Henry Thoresby passed his Pilgrimage in this Life in all Godliness and Christian Piety, and so constantly did continue unto his last Breath, which he yielded up to the Almighty in this Town of Hackney, on the eleventh Day of May, 1615.

Under the Woman thus:

Here-under lieth the Body of Jane, late Wife of the said Henry Thoresby, Esquire, Daughter to John Palmer of Clerkenwell, in the County of Middlesex, Esquire, and Paulina his Wife, Daughter of Anthony Sandes of Throwly in the County of Kent, Esquire; which Jane lived with the said Henry in Wedlock 30 Years and more, and had Issue by him two Daughters, viz. Jane, who died in her Infancy about six Years of Age, and Eleanor Lady Hardres, the now Wife of Sir Thoms Hardres of Great Hardres in the County of Kent, Knight, by whom she had Issue four Sons and one Daughter; which said Jane over-lived her said Husband Henry Thoresby, and died in all Christian Piety on the 18th Day of August, 1616.

An Epitaph upon the Death of the virtuous and worthy Gentleman, Edward Saunders, Esq; obiit ultimo die Novembris, Anno 1599.

His Name, his Place, the Gentry of his Birth,
And Credit held unto his dying Days;
Were Things that gave him Favour here on Earth;
But gave him not the greatest of his Praise.

His greatest Glory was his godly Life,
The Bounty of his House, and open Door;
His Country's Love, his Kindness to his Wife,
Faith to his Friend, and Pity to the Poor.

His Virtue, Valour, and all good Desires,
His Zeal and Life agreeing to the same;
And last the Death that such a Life requires,
These be the true Records of lasting Fame.

These write him Blessed in the Heavens above,
And leave him in the World Good-will and Love.

On the North Side of the Chancel, first an antient Table Monument, with a fair grey Marble Stone without Inscription; there were Coats of Arms on the Sides, but torn off. This Monument is concealed by the School-master's Pew.

Next a Memory of the Right Honourable the Lady Lucy Latymer.

Such as she is, such surely shall ye be,
Such as she was, such if ye be, be glad;
Fair in her Youth, tho' fat in her Age she grew,
Virtuous in both, whose Glass did never fade:
Tho' long alone she led a Widow's Life,
Yet never Lady liv'd a truer Wife.
From Wales she sprang, a Branch of Worcester's Race,

Graft in a Stock of Browns her Mother's Side,
In Court she held a Maid of Honour's Place,
Whilst Youth in her, and she in Court did bide.
To John Lord Latymer then she became a Wife;
Four Daughters had they breathing yet in Life,
Earl of Northumberland took the first to Wife,
The next the Heir of Baron Burleigh chose;
Cornwallis Hap the third for Term of Life,
And Sir John Danvers pluck'd the youngest Rose.

Their Father's Heirs, them Mothers all she saw;
Pray for, or praise her, make your List the Law.

Made by Sir William Cornwallis, Knt: this Lady's Son-in-Law.

This is a very advanced Monument, whereon lies a Lady with a Coronet, in a Scarlet Robe, praying, her Hands broke off; and against the East Wall are these Words inscribed:

The Right Hon. Baron John Nevyl, Kt. Lord Latymer, departed this Life at his Manor of Snape, in the County of York, the 22d of April, 1577, in the Year of his Age 61, and lyeth buried with his Ancestors at his Church in his Town of Well.

Under her Head, near the Bottom, is this Inscription:

Here lyeth the Right Honourable Lady Lucy, Daughter to the Right Noble Henry Earl of Worcester, Wife to the late Right Honourable John Nevyl, Kt. Lord Latymer; by whom she had Issue four Daughters, Katharine, Dorothy, Lucy, Elizabeth; she departed this Life the 23d of February, 1582, in the Year of her Age 59.

As she had four Daughters, so they are placed kneeling under her, two on one Side of the Monument, and two on the other; their Names, and with whom they matched, mentioned, and set set over their Heads, and their Children Names under them. The two former on the South Side, are obscured by a Pew, that they cannot be read. Those on the North Side are as follows :

Dorothy, her second Daughter, married with Sir Tho. Cecyll, Kt. and had Issue as hereunder appeareth, viz. William Cecyl, Richard, Edward, Christopher and Thomas ; Katharine Cecyl, Lucy, Mildred, Mary, Susan, Elizabeth, Dorothy and Frances.

Next on the said North Side, kneels the youngest Daughter, and over her thus written :

Elizabeth her youngest Daughter, married with Sir John Danvers, Knt. and had Issue as hereunder appeareth, Charles and Henry Danvers, Anne, Lucy, Eleanor and Mary ; with another Name obscure.

Near this, against the North Wall, Altarwise, is an old Monument without any Inscription at all ; only on the Sides appear the Arms of the Hernes, antiently Lords of Shacklewell.

But to return back to the upper-most Part of the Chancel :

On the North Side, against the Vestry Wall, is another ancient Monument, whereon is engraven, Anno Dni. 1519.

Christophero. Urswyk. Rectore.
M. J. A.

The Coat of Arms is, The Field — a Bend, Sable, charged with three Lozenges, on each of which are as many Croffes, Gules.

At the Foot of this Monument is the Effigies of the Man at Length, in Brass, with his Habillments, and this Subscription under him :

Christoferus Urswicus Regis Henrici VII. Elemosynarius : Vir sua aetate clarus ; Summatibus atque Infirmatibus juxta charus : At exteros Reges undecies pro Patria Legatus : Decanatum Ebor. Archidiaconatum Richmondia, Decanatum Windosore habitos vivens reliquit. Episcopatum Norvicensem oblatum recusavit. Magnos Honores tota vita sprexit, frugali vita contentus hic vivere, hic mori maluit ; plenus annis obiit, ab omnibus desideratus. Funeris Pompam etiam Testamento vetuit. Hic sepultus carnis Resurrectionem in adventum Christi expectat.

Obiit anno Christi incarnati MDXXI. die xxiiii Martii, Anno aetatis suae LXXIII.

Above this old Monument is the Effigies of another Churchman, a Bishop in his Ruff and Lawn Sleeves, and a Book in his Hand, in a preaching Posture.

P. M. S.

Hic jacet, Justorum Resurrectionem expectans, Reverendus in Christo Pater David Doulsen, S.S. Theolog. Dr. Episcopus Bangorensis Gegrotti in Agro Denbensi natus. Penatibus non obscuris. Qui cum in Pastoralis hujus Ecclesiae Curam tria annorum Lustra transgisset, Episcopus Bangorensis factus est. Unde in Beatorum numerum adscitus est xxvii die Novembr. An. Dom. 1633. Aetatis suae LII.

Above his Head are these Latin Verses :

Conditus exigua jacet hic Doulsenus in urna,
Qui nuper Praeful Bangoriensis erat.
Hic tria Lustra prius Christi invigilabat Ovili,
Et Domino errantes voce reduxit Oves.
Ergo quies ubi sudor erat, messetq; ubi sevit,
Expectat, munusq; hic, ubi pavit Oves.

Not far hence, somewhat on the North Side of the Communion Table, was buried also another Vicar of this Parish, under a flat Stone, having a Brass Plate fastened on it, with the Resemblance of a Man in a Gown, and this Inscription :

Robertus Stokes, vir Doctrina & morum Probitate insignis, Cantabrigiae olim Sacrae Theologiae Baccalaureus fuit ; necnon hujus Villae Hackneyae per duos & viginti annos Vicarius. Qui Anno Dom. 1570, Octavo Calendas Aprilis Naturae concessit : a Summis juxta atque ab infimis magnopere desideratus.

There is yet in this Chancel the Monument of another Vicar of this Parish ; where, upon a Pillar on the North Side is a Brass Plate, with the Effigies of a Minister in a Pulpit, with this Inscription :

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Hugh Johnson, who was Vicar of this Church 40 Years, and departed this Life the 16th of Jan. 1618, aged 72 ; and was a good Benefactor to the Poor of this Parish, and to the Poor of the Town of Macclesfield in Cheshire, where he was born.

Mr. Styve retrieved one Vicar more, incumbent here in former Times, but whether buried in this Chancel, he could not tell, namely, Thomas Hert, who had his Monument in this Church, and his Effigies thereon, and these Monkish Verses :

Subjacet hic strictus hoc marmore nunc homopictus

Thomas Hert dictus hic Vicarius benedictus.
O Cambrig. per te fuit ille Magister in Arte.
C. quater & Mille, Sex X. quarto ruit ille,
Et Julii plena Septena luce ferena.

So that you may compute his Death to fall on the 7th of July, Ann. Dom. 1464.

Advanced on the South Wall against the Communion Table, is the Monument of the Woods ; the Man and Woman standing before one Desk, facing one another, with their Hands in a praying Posture ; Sons and Daughters behind them, with a Mitre at the Side of the third Son, who was a Bishop, viz. of Litchfield. The Inscription is as follows :

In the Vault near to this Place lye the Bodies of Thomas Wood, Esquire and Susan his Wife :

He was buried the 18, May, 1649, } aged { 84
She was buried the 17, Octob. 1650, } aged { 80

They had Issue four Sons and four Daughters ; Sir Henry, Kt. and Bart. John Citizen of LONDON, Thomas, D. D. and Chaplain in Ordinary to King Charles I. and King Charles II. and William, one of the Clerks of his Majesty's Spicery.

Joan Dorothy, Mary and Elizabeth.

All go unto one Place : All are of the Dust, and all turn to Dust again, Eccl. iii. 20.

Just without the Rail on the South Side of the Communion Table, a flat Stone thus engraven :

Here lyeth interred the Body of George Clark, deceased 14 Aug. An. Dom. 1668.

If any desire to be me nigh,
Pray let my Bones in quiet ly,
'Till Christ come in the cloudy Sky,
Who will us all both judge and try.

This

This Gentleman left 20 s. yearly for an Anniversary Sermon to be preached on the 17th Day of November; and other Monies to be distributed charitably in the Parish on that Day.

In the Body of the Chancel, under a fair black Marble, is this Inscription:

Hic jacet Joannes Ivat de LONDON, Mercator, filius natu secundus Gulielmi Ivat, hujus Parochiae Generosus. Qui dum rem mercatoriam per varios annos prosperè egisset, tandem hanc vitam pro beatiori sine prole mutavit, 23 die Februarii, 1693. P. M. tam dilecti viri Maria conjux superstes hoc Marmor mœrens ploransq; posuit, Ætatis suæ 44.

The Coat of Arms here engraven is Baron and Femme. Baron, a Cross charged with five Flowers de Lis. Femme, a Fesse with three Trefoils, between as many Bulls Heads guardant, erased.

Upon the Ground, on the North Side of the former, under a fair Marble Stone with an Inscription, is buried the Body of Thomas Blackall, Esquire, late of this Parish, who departed this Life, Novemb. 7, 1688, in the 68th Year of his Age. And Thomas Blackall, his eldest Son, who departed Jan. 22, 1693, in the 45th Year of his Age. The Coat of Arms engraved upon this Stone is, A Greyhound running, upon a Chief indented three Roundlets.

Against the East Wall, on the upper End of the North Isle, is a Monument for Richard Halilly, Gent. who married Margaret Lathom, died 1605.

Now to pass over to the South Isle:

First, against the East Wall, a good Monument, where appear two Statues, the one of a Man in a Gown kneeling, the other of his Wife kneeling also, facing each other, and this Epitaph:

Near this Place interred ly the Bodies of Henry Banister, Esq; of late Citizen, Goldsmith, and some Time Sheriff of LONDON, and Justice of the Peace in the County of Middlesex. He was born in Preston in Anderness in Lancashire, and deceased in this Parish on the 25th of July, Ann. Dom. 1628, aged 90. He was

The Hand of Amity to all deserving,
The Heart of Integrity in all his Dealing,
And the Soul of Sincerity in religious Living.

And of Anne his Wife, who, after his Decease, married to Sir William Bulstrode, of the County of Rutland, Kt. She left this Life on the 4th of Jan. Anno Dom. 1633, aged 55. She was

The Mirrour of Discretion, in chusing and using her Friends,

The Platform of Providence for her Kindred.

And the Pattern of Piety both in publick and private.

Reader, note this, and labour to lay down,
Such Earnest for an everlasting Crown.

A Tablet hung up near this Monument, thus inscribed:

AN EPITAPH,

Made by Sir William Bulstrode, Kt. upon the Death of his most dear Wife Anne, Lady Bulstrode, and consecrated to the Memory of her excellent Virtues, and his faithful Affection:

Sad Fate! here lies interred Woman's Glory,
Whose rich and rare Endowments were a Story,
Fit for the Shrill and golden Trump of Fame
To make eternal; that her virtuous Name
Might be a sober Pattern, Rule and Guide,
To all her frailer Sex, in whom, beside
Her modest Beauty, grave and pious Wit,
Wisdom and Judgment so enthron'd did sit,
And so unnatur'd in her Female Passion,
As all the Actions of her Life, Discretion
Did always measure; and to crown her Praise,
Religion was the Pilot of her Ways.
Nor did she her great Zeal as fruitless smother;
But by her Practice still incited other:
Her Nature sweet, fix'd with a Mind so even,
As here on Earth her Soul enjoy'd a Heaven.
Which to Perfection her strong Faith hath carried,
And to the Lamb for ever blessed married.
So that her Death but Jacob's Dream express'd,
A Ladder to convey her Soul to rest.
Rest then, dear Soul, ne'er to return to me.
While I here mourn, and long to come to thee.

She dyed Jan. 4, 1633.

On one Side of this Monument, against the same East Wall, is a Brass Plate, representing a Man kneeling before a Desk, and four Women kneeling before Desks, behind each other, and Children behind them; and upon the same Plate these Epitaphial Verses:

Here-under lyeth Authur Dericote,
Who was buried of late:
Of LONDON some Time Citizen.
And of Esquires State.
Of Drapers whilome Company,
But late of Hackney Town,
A Parishoner he was full good;
All Vice he laid a down.
Wives four by Marriage he had,
That lawful was and right,
Mary, Anne, and Margaret,
And Jane the fourth the hight.
By whom two Children here he had,
And ended then his Life,
The twelfth Day of November Month,
One Child alive and Wife.
A thousand and five hundred
And sixty Years and two.
Since Christ his Incarnation,
He 'gan to live a-new.
God grant to Christians all,
Of Life such Race to run,
That at length they may receive
Of Christ a joyful Doom.

The Coat of Arms of this Dericote set here, is, A Dragon passant, on a Chief three Escalop Shells.

This Gentleman's Funeral was solemnized after this Manner, on the 18th of November, 1562. He gave 24 poor Men 24 Gowns of Rats Colour, at 7 s. the Yard. He had a Penon of Arms, and Coat Armour. Mr. Richmond was the Herald attending. Many black Gowns more were given, and 32 Dozens of Escutcheons were used; 20 Clerks of LONDON singing before the Corpse, with the Masters of the Hospital walking with their green Staves; Mr. Avenon and Mr. Minors Chief Mourners.

The Funeral Sermon preached by Mr. Plessyon, and after, all return'd to his Place to Dinner.

On the other Side of Banister's Monument are the Resemblances of a Boy and two Girls kneeling upon Cushions, named Henry, Mary, Anne, holding each by their Hand over their Heads, and these Verses:

By

By Truth, the Word of God, these guided were,
By Death, the Way together they did go :
The happy Life where living now they are
In Joy celestial, void of earthly Woe.
These Daniels far surpass the Graces three,
Which did in Life and Death so well agree.

Between them kneeling is this Word :

The Way,

The Boy points upward to a bright Cloud,
wherein is writ,

To Life.

Above their Heads these Words :

Mense Oct. 1592, diem obierunt.

But who these were, it is not mentioned, their Surnames being omitted, but probably the Children of Henry Banister.

In this Isle, on the South Wall, is Sir Thomas Row's Monument : The Man and his Wife kneeling before a Desk, with their Hands together in the Posture of Praying. The Coat of Arms is, Sable, a Chevron charged with three Bezants, between as many Cinquefoils.

Anno Dom. 1570, Septemb. 2.

Sir Thomas Rowe lies buried here,
Of LONDON Knight and Alderman ;
Who late was Maior, and Rule did bear,
To right the Cause of every Man.
A Merchant Venterer was he,
Of Merchant-Taylor's Company :
A Citizen by Birth also,
And eke his Wife Dame Mary Rowe.
In Wedlock one and thirty Year,
They did continue Man and Wife :
Eleven Children she did bear,
But five of them have left this Life,
And six alive do yet remain,
Four of them Sons, and Daughters twain.
His Soul, we hope, with God is blest,
And doth remain in Abraham's Breast.

Next to this, against the Wall in the Chancel, is a little neat Monument of white Marble, thus inscribed :

Near this Place lyeth interred the Body of John Stock, late of LONDON, Gent. born at Royle in Comit. Lancast. May 18, 1631, descended from a very antient and good Family, Ob. 17 Jan. 1703. Ætat. 73.

Lower in this South Isle, against the Wall, is this Inscription in gilded Letters, for the Father of the wealthy and wise, notable and prosperous East-India Merchant, Sir Josiah Child, Bart.

Richard Child, Merchant of LONDON, died May the 7th, 1638, and Elizabeth his Wife, late Wife of Thomas Sone, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, departed Jan. 1, 1670 ; left behind her two Sons and one Daughter, by her first Husband, viz. John, Josiah, and Anna.

Lower, towards the Belfrey, is a very comely Table Monument of black Marble polished, inscribed with Letters deeply engraven :

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. Fredeswede Kekewich, Wife of Mr. Samuel Kekewich, Merchant, who dyed in Puerto Sta. Maria, [in Spain] the 29th of Aug. 1693.

And there also is buried her Husband, being a Gentleman of a good Family in Cornwall, who dyed about the Year 1701.

VOL. II.

UNDER the Belfrey, another fair Table-Monument of black Marble, with this Inscription :

Here lye the Bodies of Capt. Robert Dean, who dyed the 13th of Feb. 1699, the 46th Year of his Age. And Mary and Robert, and Katharine his Children, who all dyed before him.

THIS was lately erected at the Charge of his Wife, now or late living at Portsmouth.

AT the lower End of the North Isle of the Church, joining to the Wall, is a Table-Monument of black Marble polished, for JOHN DOD, Citizen and Mercer of London, Son of Peter Dod of Tuffingham in Cheshire, Gent. by Jane his Wife. Who married Mary Daughter of Richard Thorowgood, Esquire, Alderman of LONDON, and Elizabeth his Wife. By whom he left Issue five Sons, and one Daughter, viz. Benjamin, Richard, John, Piers, Edward, and Mary. He departed this Life June the 4th, 1681. Ætat. 44.

ON the Stone is this Coat : On a Fesse three Crescents, between two Bars wavy.

AGAINST this Wall, at the West End of the Church, is set up a handsome Monument of white Marble, of Thomas Cartwright's making, with this Inscription :

Prope jacent Cineres BENJ. DOD, Generosi & Civis Londinensis: Ob patrium ferè in suos, & verè fraternum animum, ab iis præcipuè multum Lugendi: Ob genii autem Probitatem & Mores suavissimos, ab omnibus desideratissimi. Qui vitæ benè transactæ Documentis mortis incertæ Monitionem adjecit, præcipiti ex Equo Casu immaturè, improvisò decumbens, Anno Ætat. 32. Domini 1706.

Memorati etiam jacet chara, unica & dilectissima Soror MARIA CRADDOCK, ejusdem Tumuli Consors, tridui solummodò superstes: Hujus vitæ exuvias deponens in spem melioris.

Obiit { Jun. 10.
Ætat. 19.

THE two last Monuments set up in this North Isle, somewhat higher against the North Wall, are :

ONE for Richard de Beavoir of Balmes, in the County of Middlesex, Esq; of the Island of Guernsey. Who departed this Life the 17th of June, A. D. 1708, in the 67th Year of his Age. His Arms: Argent, a Chevron Gules, between three Quatrefoils of the same.

THE other higher Eastward: In Memory of Mr. James Cesar Paget, of LONDON, Merchant. Who dyed the 11th of Dec. 1714. In the 80th Year of his Age.

IN the Body of the Church, upon a flat white Stone, this Inscription :

Here lyeth the Body of Robert Matson, Citizen and Salter of LONDON. Departed the 18th of Novemb. 1695. Aged 44.

The Body of Edward Matson, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON. Departed the 30th of September, 1688. Son of John Matson of Dover, and Mary his Wife.

Mr. John Johnson, departed the 4th of November, 1686.

ON a fair Marble :

The Body of Sarah, the loving and beloved Wife of John Pierse. She departed the 26th of Aug. 1702. And John Pierse, their Son, the 23d of Jan. 1694. Aged 4 Years.

THE Coat: A Bend wavy, between two Unicorns Heads erased.

IN the Body of the North Isle, a fair Stone covering the Body of Mr. Thomas Cook, Merchant: Who departed the 20th of December, 1694, in the 60th Year of his Age.

AND lower, under another Marble Stone:

Alex. Johnstown, Esq; buried 1709. Aged 60.

A Hatchment upon a Pillar in the Chancel Northward, thus inscribed:

In the Vault near this Place, lyeth the Body of Dame Katharine Reynolds, Widow to Sir Samuel Reynolds of Castle Camps in Cambridge-shire: Who was buried the 3d of March, 1658, in the Year of her Age 52. Also the Bodies of Phebe Berry her Mother, and Elizabeth South her Sister.

IN this Church was buried Frances, the Wife of John Mauchel, or Machel, of Hackney, Esq; Daughter to Will. Coton of Panfield in Essex, Esq; Dyed at her House in Homerton, May 11, 1574, in Childbed: Deliver'd of two Children, John, Son and Heir, and Frances. Buried May 21. But her Monument (if she had any) is gone.

THE Monuments of many more of antienter Times are perished and gone; and so had their Names and Memories too, had they not been preserved by an industrious Antiquarian in the former Age. Some of the most remarkable we shall specify:

Henry Lord Percy, Earl of Northumberland, of the most Honourable Order of the Garter. Who died 1537, 29 H. 8. the last Day of July.

Sergeant Alexander, a Lawyer, who, in his Inscription, was charactered to be,

————— Sacer Ecclesiæ; Deiq;
Cultor, & in populo Pacificator erat.

He dyed 1438.

The Date of his Death being set out by this Distich:

Seno ter deno bis centeno quater anno,
Milleno Domini qui pius assit ei.

Alice Ryder, she dyed 1517.

HER Portraiture was in Brasse, with a Milk-pail upon her Head. She seems to have been a Milk-woman, and to have obtained great Wealth by selling it into the City. She was said to have been a good Benefactress to the Church. This was her Epitaph:

For the Sowl of Allis Ryder of your Cherite, Say a Pater Noster, and an Ave.

Hic jacet in fossa Robertus Stork, Elizabeth uxor suo honore vivebant Pauperes debiles & alebant Robert. Obiit primo die Mensis Octobr. Anno Dom. M^oCCCC^oXVI. Elizabeth. obiit die Mensis, Anno Domini M^oCCCC^o.

Quorum aiab. propitiatur Deus.

Jane Onely, the onely most faithfull Wiffe of John Onely of Warwickshire, Esquire.

To whose Sowle the Onely Trinity be merciful, Amen. She dyed 1525.

By another industrious Collector of Monuments, she is written, Jane, Daughter of Henry Smith, of Sherford in the County of Warwyke.

William Heneage, the Son of Robert Heneage, one of the King's Auditors. Dyed August the 5th, 1535.

John Elryngton, Filycer [or Filazer] of LONDON, and Keeper of the Records of the Common Pleas. Departed 1504. He was Founder of a Guild in this Church.

Robert Walsingham, third Clerk of the Spice-ry to King Henry VIII. and Margaret his Wife. Dyed 1522 [1524]

By the Review of these Persons here interred, one might conclude, that many of the Nobility and Court in former Times, chose to have their Country Seats at Hackney.

To all the rest we shall add these few very antient:

Here lies Joan Curtelys, the Daughter of Shordych, Anno 1399. This Gentleman might give Denomination to that old House near Well-street in this Parish, called Shoreditch-place.

Roger Ford, 1453.

John Butterfield, 1454.

Thomas Symond, May 11, 1542.

John Catcher, May 9, 1487.

Henry Therket, 1503.

John Jennyns, 1423.

William Lowthe, of LONDON, Goldsmith, 1528.

John Hern, Esq; hath a Monument without an Inscription or Date, and was the Founder of this Church, as is supposed, by the Representations of Herons graven in Stone upon every Pillar of the Church.

MONUMENTS in the Church-yard.

ON the North Side of the Church are these Table-Monuments adjoining to the Church.

NEAR the little Chancel-Door is a Table-Monument for Bailiff, thus inscribed:

Successioni.

You that remain, disturb not the Rest of the Body of Thomasine, when she lived, the Wife of John Bailiff, Esq; here under this Stone preserve the Dust, by the Power of the Almighty, unto the appointed Day for the Resurrection of the Just. She died the second Day of February, in the Year of Christ her Redeemer 1641.

ANOTHER well-wrought Table-Monument of Marble, more West, on the same Side, is set up for Thomas Trench, a very honest, discreet, charitable, pious, as well as wealthy Merchant of LONDON, while he lived; buried here according to his last Desire, with this Inscription only:

Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Trench, Esq; who died the 10th of December 1699, aged 51. Near this Place lye Rebecca and Thomas, his Children, that dyed very young.

ON this Side also East, is a Monument for George and James, Sons of Andrew Hutchinson, and Luce his Wife. The former dyed An. 1688. The latter 1689.

A raised Monument also on this Side adjoining to the Church, for William Gray, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON. Who dyed Aug. 5, 1663: And his Son Josiah Gray, 1669, aged 26.

ON the South Side of the Church in the Church-yard, is a Monument for John Burstall, late of LONDON, Merchant: Who dyed May 28, 1681, aged 40.

ANOTHER more West for John Kent, Chirurgeon: Who dyed 1660.

AT the West End of the Church-yard, a fair Table-Monument somewhat antient, without any Inscription or Coat of Arms.

THERE be many other raised Tombs lately made in the same Church-yard: One of the last, on the North Side, is for Sarah Hill, Widow of the Rev. John Hill, of Worcestershire, who died December 18, 1715; the 87th Year of her Age.

Reader, if thou wouldst know her Character, examine all the Duties of Nature and Religion: Which, as conscious of the End of her Being, she fulfilled. And then go, and do thou likewise.

To all the rest, we shall add this Inscription upon a Head-Stone in the East Part of the Churchyard:

PENINNAH JUCKES.

A Maid near eighteen, we have laid in this Green,

To rest herself here a short Space:

And after that Time, this Rose in her Prime,
Shall rise up again by God's Grace.

WE will here insert, in Memory of this pious Bishop, his Letter, wrote scarce a Fortnight before his Death, to the Inhabitants of Hackney, concerning his charitable Gift, as it is extant in their Parish Books.

To the Inhabitants of the Parish of Hackney, but especially to the poorest Sort of People, that maintain their Livelihood by Carriage of Burthens to the City of LONDON: All Blessing from the Fountain above and below, be multiplied upon you.

I DAVID; by the Permission of God; Bishop of Bangor, some Time your unworthy Pastor, in Testimony of my unfeigned Christian Love to you, as to the Place where I was, so much beholden unto you all, do earnestly intreat you to accept and take in good Part, this Mite of 30 l. according to my poor Estate; which I have sent unto you by my worthy Friend Mr. Richard Davies, to be employed for continuing and everlasting repairing (I hope) to Posterity, of the Causeway, or Footway leading from Clopton and Hackney Church unto Shoreditch. Which poor Mite of 30 l. I desire may be employed or laid out on some proportionable Parcel of Ground, Tenement, or yearly Rent-charge, or otherwise, by my loving Acquaintance; Mr. Richard Davies, Mr. George Robins, and Mr. Roger Jones, as soon as possible may be: But with the Approbations of my Right Worthy Friends; Sir William Bulstrode, Mr. John Baily, Mr. John Milward, and Mr. William Cheney, or by any four of these Men.

And likewise my Desire and Request is, that the said yearly Rent, issuing out of the said Lands, Tenement, or Rent-charge, may be, by Order of the Vestry, yearly paid unto the Church-wardens, for the Time being, of the said Parish: And the Church-wardens to be accountable thereof.

And lastly, my earnest Desire is, that according to my said Trust, the said Rent, with its Profits, or Increase, at every three or four Years, being accounted for by itself, and particularly reserved for that Use, may be employed every third or fourth Year at the farthest, for the sufficient Repair of the said Way. Conceiving, for divers Reasons, that it will not be requisite to repair it oftener. Wherein I do earnestly desire the Vicar for the Time being, in the Bowels of Charity, to have a special Care to accomplish this my Request.

Provided always, that if there be a Surplusage remaining of the said Rent, after the Repair or Mending of the said Way at the Term aforesaid; that then the said Money and Surplusage shall be distributed by the Discretion of the Vicar, Church-wardens, and four of the antientest substantial Parishioners, among them of the poorest Families, that have the greatest Charge of Children: Also, likewise provided, that if it may appear that the said 30 l.

it shall revert and be for the Use of the Poor of the Town of Denbigh, where I was born:

Your Faithful Friend and 1716. An Anniversary Sermon, to be preached on New-Years-Day, given by a Person unknown, yet alive.

In this Parish stands Kingsland, where there is an antient Hospital, with a Chapel: Some Account whereof, this Extract from an old Will in the Bishop of LONDON's Register, will shew :

JOHAN Pope, Citizen and Barber, by his Will, dated 1437, gave to the Masters and Governors of the House of Lepers, called Le Lokes at Kingsland, without LONDON, an annual Rent of 6 s. 8 d. issuing out of certain Shops and Tenements situate in Sketebone (Sherebone-lane) in St. Mary Abchurch Parish, towards the Sustentation of the said House at Kingsland for ever. The following is An ABSTRACT, or brief Relation of the two Manors or Lordships of Stebunhith, alias Stepney, and Hackney, Suburbs North East in the County of Middlesex; with the free Customs, Benefits and Privileges to them belonging; and how they are holden by the Copyhold Tenants of the Right Honourable Thomas Lord Wentworth. With some other especial and remarkable Notes, both of reverend Antiquity and modern Memory.

Concerning the INDENTURE of COVENANTS, &c.

WHEREAS (of late) Differences have arisen between the Right Honourable Thomas Lord Wentworth, Lord of the Manors of Stepney and Hackney, and his Lordship's Copyhold Tenants of the said Manors, for and concerning some of the Customs, Benefits, and Privileges of the said Tenants; It has now pleased the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, in Consideration of Three Thousand Pounds of lawful Money of England, in the thirtieth Year of the Reign of our late Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth, by the Copyholders of the said Manors, to the Right Honourable Henry Lord Wentworth (his Lordship's Father) then satisfied and paid: As also of other Three Thousand and Five Hundred Pounds more, to him the said Thomas Lord Wentworth now paid, by Indenture bearing Date the twentieth Day of June, in the fifteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord King James, of England, France and Ireland, and of Scotland the fiftieth, made between him the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, Lord of the said Manors on the one Part, and Sir John Folles, Kt. and Alderman of LONDON, and divers other of the Copyhold Tenants of the said Manors (whose Names are particularly in the said Indenture recited) on the other Part: For the appeasing and final End of the said Differences, and for Prevention of the like, and all other which (in Time to come) might happen, arise or grow betwixt the said Lord, his Heirs or Assigns, Lords of the said Manors, and the said Copyhold Tenants, their Heirs or Assigns, do covenant, grant, conclude, and fully agree to the Effect following: That is to say,

Imprimis, That the said Thomas Lord Wentworth is, and until a perfect Act of Parliament shall be had and made, (whereby all the Liberties, Privileges, Benefits, Customs, Immunities, Discharges, Additions, Alterations, Enlargements, Matters and Things, in the said Schedules to the said Indenture annexed, mentioned, shall be for ever confirmed) confirmed) shall be and continue seized of a good, absolute and indefeasible Estate of Inheritance in Fee-simple to him and his Heirs for ever in Possession of, and in the said Manor, and either of them, and of the Copyhold Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments of the said Copyhold Tenants before-mentioned, Parties to the said Indenture. And that he now has, and then shall have, full Power and lawful Authority, to ratify, confirm, establish, and make good, all and singular the Covenants, Articles, Alterations, Enlargements, free Customs, Immunities, Discharges and Agreements contained in the said Indenture and Schedules, or either of them, to the said Copyhold Tenants respectively, and to their several and respective Heirs and Assigns, of and in the several and respective Messuages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, whereof they are seized of any Estate by Copy or Court-Roll.

And that the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs, Assigns, and all other Lords of the said Manors, shall for ever hereafter observe, perform, fulfil, allow, ratify, make good and keep all the said Articles, Certainty of Fines, Usages, Customs, Privileges, Benefits, Immunities, Discharges, Compositions and Agreements in the said Indenture and Schedules contained: And shall not at any Time hereafter levy, take, require, or demand any other Fines, Suits, Customs, Works or Services, or in any other Manner, than in the said Schedules are specified; and the Rents which for the said Copyhold Tenements, by the Space of two Years now last past, have been yielded and paid by the Copyhold Tenants thereof. And also, that the said Tenants, their Heirs and Assigns shall for ever hereafter peaceably and quietly have, hold, maintain, and enjoy their several and respective Copyholds, with their Appurtenances, according to the several Grants thereof to them made; and under the several Rents for the same respectively, now due and payable according to the true Meaning of the said Indenture and Schedules, without Let, Suit, or Hindrance, Interruption, Alteration, Question, or Contradiction whatsoever of him the said Lord Wentworth, his Heirs or Assigns, or under any other claiming any Estate, Right, Title, Use, Interest, Office, Profit, Charge, or Demand, under his Lordship, his Heirs or Assigns, or under the said Henry Lord Wentworth, deceased.

And that the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs or Assigns has not, nor hereafter shall grant or convey, severed from the Manor thereof, the same is now holden; any of the Messuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments of the said Copyholders, for any other Estate or Term, other than by Copy of Court-Roll, according to the Custom of the said Manors, except the Freehold to be severed, at the Desire of such Person, as then shall be Copyholder thereof respectively: And that the Certainty of Fines, free Customs, Immunities, Liberties, Privileges, Articles, Discharges, and Agreements in the said Schedules contained, for and concerning the several Messuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, whereof the said Parties to the said Indenture are Copyholders, or reputed Copyholders; shall (for ever) be, and be had, used, accounted, adjudged, taken and enjoyed, as the true Customs, Usages, Privileges, Immunities, Discharges, and Liberties, of and within the said Manors, and either of them, not to be violated, altered, changed, or denied by the Lord or Lords of the said Manors, or either of them now or hereafter, at any Time or Times in any wise being.

Item, That for the better ratifying, establishing, confirming, strengthening, perfecting, and making good of all and singular the said Articles, Covenants, Agreements, Certainty of Fines, Usages, Customs, Enlargements, and Alterations of Usages and Customs, Compositions, Liberties, Privileges, Freedoms, Immunities, Discharges, Matters and Things in the said Indenture and Schedules contained, and for the setting forth of what Estate the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, is now and then shall be seized of the said Manors and Premises, upon a Bill of Complaint against his Lordship, in his Majesty's Court of Chancery to be exhibited; his Lordship will appear, and make such Answer, and further such Proceedings, that thereupon a perfect Decree (with the free Consent and Agreement of his Lordship) may be had, and there enrolled against his Lordship, his Heirs and Assigns: By which the said Articles, Covenants, Agreements, Certainty of Fines, Usages and Customs, and all the Compositions, Liberties, Privileges, Freedoms, Immunities, Discharges, Matters and Things in the said Indenture and Schedules, or any of them contained, shall be decreed, ratified, established and made good, and put in Use, used and enjoyed for ever.

That he the said Thomas Lord Wentworth his Heirs and Assigns, at his and their own proper Costs and Charges, will procure at the first Session of the next Parliament of our Sovereign Lord the King's Majesty, his Heirs or Successors, one Statute or Act of Parliament, by Force whereof the said Articles, Covenant, Agreements, Certainty of Fines, Usages, Customs, Compositions, Enlargements and Alterations of Usages, Customs, Compositions, Liberties, Privileges, Benefits, Freedoms, Immunities, Discharges, Matters and Things in the said Indenture and Schedules, or either of them expressed, shall be established, ratified, enacted and confirmed to be, and to continue for ever of Force, and to be put in Use, and used for ever hereafter, in such State, Manner and Form, Quality, Condition, and Degree, as the same are in the said Indenture or Schedules, or any of them expressed, for and concerning the Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, whereof they now are Copyholders, or reputed Copyholders. Towards the Charges of procuring of which the said Act of Parliament, the said Tenants are to pay to the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs or Executors, within one Month next after the obtaining and passing thereof, the Sum of twenty Pounds.

That he the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs and Assigns, at any Time within five Years next ensuing the Date of the said Indenture, before such Act of Parliament, as aforesaid, had and obtained, at the Costs in the Law of the said Copyhold Tenants, or some of them, upon Request made to him the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs or Assigns, by the said Sir John Jolles, Kt. and Alderman of LONDON, William Gough, Edmund Barber, John Eglesfield, Isaac Cotton, Thomas Best, Richard Hoskins, George Saris, Henry Dethick, John Howland, Thomas Yardly, John Lowden, Richard Cheyney, Gresham Hoogan, William Palmer, Nicholas Dickens, Nicholas Diggins, Peter Summer, John Bennet, Richard Edwards, Michael Bonner, and Nicholas Hollam, or any ten of them, or any ten of the Heirs or Assigns of them, shall and will make, do, acknowledge, execute and suffer all and every such further Acts, Deeds and Assurances, for better settling, assuring and confirming of the Usages, Customs, Benefits, Liberties, Privileges, Immunities, Discharges, Certainty of Fines, Compositions, Agreements, Matters and Things in the said Indenture and Schedules contained, as by them, or any ten of them shall be reasonably devised, advised and required. That every one of the said Copyhold Tenants, their Heirs and Assigns, shall and may freely hereafter from Time to Time, grant, lease or demise by Deed or otherwise (without Licence or Copy of Court-Roll) such such or so much of their said Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, to such Person and Persons, and for such Term and Estate, not exceeding one and thirty Years and four Months, in Possession from the Time of the making of any such Grant or Demise, as to them; and every, or any of them respectively shall be thought fit or necessary, without any Forfeit of Estate, Seizure, Claim, Disturbance, Denial or Impeachments of his Lordship, his Heirs or Assigns, or of any of his or their Officers. So always that such Grant, Lease and Leases so to be made, be at the first or second general Court, (for the Manor whereof the Lands or Tenements so happening to be granted, leased or demised are Parcel) to be holden next after the making thereof, be published in open Court of that Manor, before the Homage there, and a Remembrance thereof to be required to be made in the Rolls of the said Court, for the Date, Term and Quantity of Lands, Cottages or Tenements so granted, leased or demised; which Remembrance the said Thomas Lord Wentworth covenants and grants for him, his Heirs and Assigns, to and with the said Sir John Folles, and the rest of the said Copyhold Tenants, upon the Tender of a Certainty thereof in Writing, to the Steward, or Deputy Steward of that Manor for the Time then being, together with Six-Pence in Money, for the entering thereof, shall be in the Court-Rolls of that Manor duly, and in convenient Time, and without Delay enrolled, and a Note thereof delivered by the Steward or his Deputy, to the Party so leasing, or any for him, without any other Consideration, Fee or Reward, to be given or paid for the same.

That whereas the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, by his Highness's Letters Patents under the Great Seal of England, dated the nineteenth Year of his Majesty's Reign of England, and forty eight of Scotland, has obtained Licence to grant to such of his Majesty's Liege-People as he shall think fit, Messuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, Parcel or reputed Parcel of the said Manors: To hold to them, their Heirs and Assigns (in free and common Socage) respectively, of his said Manors of Stepney and Hackney, by such and the same Rents and Services, and other Profits, as in the Conveyances thereof shall be expressed, and not to hold of the King in Capite, nor of any of his Majesty's Honours, or Manors in Knights-Service, as by the said Letters Patents more at large may appear.

Now if the said Thomas Lord Wentworth shall not at the first Session of the next Parliament procure such an Act of Parliament to be good and effectual in Law for the Purposes aforesaid: Then his Lordship will at all Times, after the End of the said first Session of the said next Parliament, upon reasonable Requests, and at the Costs of the Tenants (whom it shall concern) their Heirs or Assigns, make, do and execute such reasonable Acts, Devices, and Assurances in Law, whereby the said Copyholders, their Heirs or Assigns respectively, shall hold and enjoy their, and every of their said Copyholds, Messuages, Houses, Lands, Cottages and Hereditaments, with the like Ways, Easements, Commons and Commodities, as are now thereto belonging, or now therewith used or enjoyed. And the Freehold and Inheritance thereof respectively to them and to their respective Heirs and Assigns for ever, to be holden for such of the same Manors, whereof the same is now holden in free and common Socage, for and under the several and respective yearly Rents for all Services and Demands, as they or any of them do now severally and respectively pay for the same, as by them, or their Council learned, shall be reasonably devised and required.

That the said Copyhold Tenants, their Heirs and Assigns respectively, shall and may for ever hereafter, without any Lett, Impediment, Interruption, Denial, or Contradiction of his Lordship, his Heirs or Assigns, or any claiming under the said Lord Henry Wentworth, deceased, not only during the Time they shall be Copyholders, but also afterwards, when they have obtained the Freehold and Inheritance of their several and respective Copyholds, peaceably hold and enjoy such and the like Commons of Pasture, and in such Manner, in all the Commons, Wastes and commonable Places of the said Manors, as they or any of them heretofore have had, used, held, taken, or enjoyed, or might lawfully have taken or enjoyed. Nevertheless it is agreed, That neither the said Indenture and Schedules, nor any Covenant therein contained, shall in any wise extend or enure to the Benefit or Advantage of any other Copyhold Tenants of the said Manors, other than the Copyhold Tenants named Parties to the said Indentures, their Heirs and Assigns, and that for such and the same Lands, Tenements, Cottages, and Hereditaments, with the Appurtenances only, as they or any of them now hold, or claim to hold, by Copy of Court-Roll of the said Manors, or one of them, as by the said Indenture (whereunto Relation be had) more plainly and at large appears.

Memorandum, That the said Indenture of the twentieth of June, together with a Duplicity thereof, were acknowledged by the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, the twenty first Day of July, 1617, before Sir Matthew Carew, Knight, to be enrolled, and is enrolled in the Chancery accordingly. The one Part of which Indentures is left in the Custody of the Company of Goldsmiths in the City of LONDON, and the other in the Custody of the Brethren of the Trinity House at Radcliff, in Trust, and to the Use of the said Copyhold Tenants, named Parties to the said Indentures.

The ninth Day of July, 1617, in the said fifteenth Year of his Majesty's Reign, the said Thomas Lord Wentworth acknowledged a Statute of the Sum of Twelve Thousand Pounds of lawful Money of England, to Alexander Prescot and John Gore, Aldermen of LONDON, Thomas Jones, Common Sergeant of LONDON, Francis Fulner and George Whitmore, Esquires, and Robert Mildmay, Grocer, in Trust for, and to the Use of the Copyholders named in the Indenture, and thereof is a Defeasance by Indenture, dated the same Day, to this Effect, viz. That if the said Thomas Lord Wentworth do perform the Covenants and Agreements contained in the aforesaid Indenture of the twentieth of June: Then the same Statute to be void, and that the said Conusees shall deliver up the same Statute to the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, his Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, so soon as the said Act of Parliament shall be procured, according to the Intent and true Meaning of the said recited Indenture.

To this End, the said Statute and Defeasance are left in the Chamber of the City of LONDON, to be kept in such Sort as that the said Conusees may have the same to be delivered according to their Covenant. And the Chamberlain of the said City has charged himself with the Receipt thereof, by Order of the Court of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, 1617, Sir John Leman, being then Mayor, and Master Cornelius Fish, Chamberlain.

IN Trinity Term, in the said fifteenth Year of his Majesty's Reign, to a Bill of Complaint was by the Copyholders, named Parties to the said Indenture

Indenture of the twentieth of June, exhibited against the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery; whereto the said Thomas Lord Wentworth did appear, and by his Answer confessed the Contents of the said Bill to be true. Whereupon, a perfect Decree (with the free Consent and Agreement of the said Thomas Lord Wentworth, bearing Date the two and twentieth Day of July, in the said fifteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord King James) was obtained. And by the same, the said free Customs, Orders, Immunities, &c. and all and whatsoever contained in the said Indenture of the twentieth of June, and the Schedules unto the same Indenture annexed, are for ever established and confirmed. The said Decree is likewise there enrolled. The true Copy of the said Schedules followeth.

The SCHEDULES containing the free Customs, Orders, Immunities, Discharges, Benefits, and Privileges of the Manors of STEPNEY, alias STEBUNHITH and HACKNEY, in the County of Middlesex, agreed unto, approved, allowed and ratified, as well by the Right Honourable Thomas Lord Wentworth, Lord of the said Manors; as also by his Lordship's Copyhold or Customary Tenants of the said Manors, or of either of them, named Parties to the said Indenture, whereunto those Schedules are annexed: By which all and every the same Copyholders, or Customary Tenants, their, and every of their Heirs and Assigns, are to hold, use, and enjoy, inherit, alien, demise, or dispose all and every, or any of the said Lands Messuages, Tenements, Cottages, and Hereditaments, which they, every or any of them respectively do hold, claim, or enjoy, by Force, or Pretext of any Grant heretofore made by the Copy of Court Roll of the said Manors, or either of them, the Day of the Date of the said Indentures: That is to say, the twentieth Day of June. in the Years of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord James, by the Grace of God, of England, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. the fifteenth, and of Scotland the fiftieth.

These COPYHOLDS are of Inheritance, held of the Lord by the Rod, according to the Custom.

Imprimis. By the Customs of the said Manors, and either of them, all the Copyhold Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, which the particular Persons, (named Parties to the Indentures, whereunto these Schedules are annexed) do hold or enjoy, and (Time whereof the Contrary hath not been within the Memory of Man) have been Copyhold and Customary Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments of Inheritance, demised and demiseable, by Copy of Court Roll of the Manors aforesaid, or one of them respectively, according to the Customs of the Manor whereof the same are holden. And all Copies of Court Rolls of the same Manors, and either of them, by all the Time aforesaid, for the same Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, have been made, and ought to be made, to hold of the Lord by the Rod, according to the Custom of the Manor whereof the same is holden, by the Rents and Services therefore due and accustomed. And all the said Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments have been passed, and are to pass and go from such Persons, as (according to the Contents of these Schedules) have Power, and are enabled to make Surrenders to any other Person or Persons by Way of Surrender, to be made to the Hands of the Lord, by the Acceptance of the Steward of the Manor, or his Deputy for the Time being, in Court or out of Court; or by the Acceptance of the Reeve of the Manor, whereof the same are holden, or by his Deputy within the same Manor, or elsewhere, in Presence of six customary Tenants, or by any Headborough of some Township or Hamlet within that Manor, in Presence of six customary Tenants in or out of the same Manors; which Surrender, or Surrenders have been; and shall, and may be to the Use of any Person or Persons, and their Heirs for ever, in Fee-tail, or for Life or Lives, with Remainders, or without Remainders, as Lands may be assured by the Course of the common Laws of this Realm, or else to the Use of the last Will and Testament of the Surrenders, or of any other Persons, according to the Intent and Limitation of such last Will and Testament.

QUIT-RENTS are to be paid Yearly at Michaelmas.

Item. The Rents of all the Tenants both Freeholders and Copy-holders, which hold any Messuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments of the said Manors, or of either of them, are yearly payable only at the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel, to the Lord and his Heirs, the same to be collected by the Reeves of the said Manors, (severally and respectively to be yearly chosen, as hereafter is expressed) or their Deputies: And all and every the said customary Copyhold Tenants to pay the several yearly Rents, now yearly due and payable for their several Copyholds. And if any of the said Copyholds, for which any intire Quit-Rents is now paid, shall hereafter come into several Hands, the Rents thereof shall then be appointed by the Homage, at the Court of the Manors whereof the same are holden, and so much only as by Homage shall be appointed to be paid, (prorata) shall be paid to the Lord for the Time being.

At what Court TENANTS are bound to appear.

Item. All and every Copyhold Tenant of the said Manors; or either of them, which now be, or hereafter for the Time being shall be, ought to appear yearly at two several general Courts holden for the Manor, whereof his Lands or Tenements are holden, upon Warning, as hereafter followeth: And also so many of them, at all other set or appointed Courts, set, appointed, and kept for the said Manor whereof their Lands are holden, under the Number of eighteen, as shall be (for that Purpose) especially warned thereunto by the Reeve, or his sufficient Deputy for the Time being. And the said Tenants shall do their Suits and Services according to their Tenures, except they be essoined, licensed, or have some other lawfull Excuse, upon the Pain hereafter following. Which two general Courts have been commonly kept, (and are to be kept yearly) the one of them on Tuesday, the ninth Day after Easter-Day; and the other, about the Feast of St. Andrew the Apostle, upon reasonable Warning; that is to say, in the Churches and Chapels, within the said Manors, openly upon the Sunday Sevensnight, or Sunday Fortnight before the Day of such Courts to be holden.

TENANTS failing to appear, and not essoined, or reasonable Excuse, shall be amerced.

Item. If any of the Copyhold, or customary Tenants of the said Manors, or of either of them, do, or shall make Default of their Appearance at any of the said two general Courts, to which their Suits shall be due; or if such Copyhold Tenants, as shall be especially and lawfully warned to appear at any of the said Courts (in Form aforesaid) yearly to be holden, do make Default (to which the said Suit is or shall be due) and Warning openly given (as aforesaid) of the Day and Place of the holding of the same General Courts, and upon special and lawful Warning to be given for the said set or purchased Courts: That then they that shall so make Default (except they be excused, or have some other lawful or reasonable Excuse) shall be amerced by the Homage of the said Court, to be taxed and assessed by two Assessors of the said Court; that is to say, by two Tenants of the Homage, or of either of them for the Time being, hath always used to chuse, and shall chuse one for the Lord, and the Residue of the Homage have chosen, and hereafter shall chuse the other.

What the TENANTS are to be allowed at set COURTS.

Item, if any Tenant be summoned to appear at any set Court or Courts to be holden within the said Manors, or in any of them, and doth appear upon the said Summons, he ought, and is to have for his Pains four Pence, and his Dinner, or eight Pence and no Dinner; which ought and is to be paid (by the said Custom) by such Person or Persons, who shall be the Cause that any such Tenants do appear for his or their Matter: So it be not any Matter or Cause that concerneth an Enquiry or Presentment to be made, only for the Lord for the Time being, his Heirs and Assigns.

The like Allowance for View, Partitions, and other Summons.

Item, the Copyhold Tenants of the said Manors, and of either of them, ought to have every of them like Allowance, upon every View by them to be made, and upon every Partition by them to be made, or upon other Summons to appear betwixt Tenant and Tenant, when they be appointed thereunto by Precept from the Steward of the said Manors, or of either of them for the Time being, or by his sufficient Deputy.

How TENANTS may be righted against Encroachments, Annoyances, &c.

THE Homage of the Court of the said Manors, or of any of them, may appoint six or seven Tenants, upon any Complaint to them made, by any Person or Persons, being Tenants of the said Manors, or of either of them in open Court; that he or they be wronged by any Incroachment, or any other Annoyance to their Copyhold Tenements, which Tenants shall (after the said Court) view the same Incroachment, Annoyance, and Impediment, or Place whereof any such Complaint shall be made. And thereupon, to present or notify the same by a Day to the Steward, or to the Homage at the next General Court; that there may be set a Pain or Amerciament, or both, for the same, by the Homage at the said next Court, according to the Quality of the Offence.

The Homage at every General Court is to present deceased TENANTS.

Item, the Homage of either of the said Manors, are to make Presentment at every General Court to be holden for the said Manors, or of either of them, of all the Customary or Copyhold Tenants, that they shall know shall be deceased after the Court then last past, or at any Time before the said Court, whose Deaths were not then found and presented, and that held any Copyhold, or Customary, or reputed Copyhold or Customary Lands or Tenements of the said Manors, or of either of them. And also (as near as they can) present what Lands every of them died seized of, and of what Estate, and when he died, and who is the next Heir or Heirs to the same Person or Persons so dying seized, and of what Age or Ages the said Heir or Heirs shall then be of, as near as they can.

Also they must present the Deaths of FREEHOLDERS, &c.

Item, the Homage likewise ought to present the Deaths of the Freeholders, and when they died, and who be their next Heir or Heirs, and the Ages of their Heirs, which held any Lands or Tenements of the said Manors, or of either of them, and the Nature of their Tenures, so near as they can: To the Intent the Lord may have his Relief, which is but the Value of one Year's Quit-Rent, of the Tenements holden of the said Manors, or of either of them by Socage Tenure.

What shall be done, if the next HEIR be not known.

IF the Homage at any of the said Courts of either of the said Manors, shall not know who is next Heir or Heirs to any of the said Customary Tenants so dying seized, when they shall make their Presentments; that then they shall make their Presentment so accordingly, and then upon the said Presentment at the next General Court then after, the Steward of the said Manors of either of them, or his Deputy for the Time being, within the said Presentment shall so be made, shall cause a Proclamation to be made in open Court, to the Intent every such Heir or Heirs may have Knowledge to come, and take up the Lands and Tenements of his or their Ancestors; and so the Steward or his Deputy shall cause a Proclamation to be made, from General Court to General Court, until three open and publick Proclamations be made in full Court, at three General Courts: Which General Courts (by the said Custom) are used to be holden commonly one half Year after another, or thereabout: So that from the Presentment made by the said Homage, of the dying seized of the said last Tenant, unto the last Proclamation, shall be fully two Years.

And if there shall come no Heir of the said Lands or Tenements, nor any for him or them, before the End of the Court next after the Court whereat the last of the said three Proclamations shall be made, to make his or their Claim, and prove himself, or themselves to the Homage of the Court in such Sort as They, or the greater Part of Them shall allow of, to be the next Heir or Heirs of the whole Blood to the said Tenant deceased, or to have Title to the Lands and Tenements, nor to shew and prove, as aforesaid, who is or ought to be next Heir or Heirs of the whole Blood to the said Tenant deceased, or next Heir or Heirs expectant, upon any Estate determined: Then the Lord of the Manor, whereof the same Land is holden for the Time being, shall and may, after the next Court, next after the said three Proclamations so to be made, seize the Lands and Tenements, which were the said Persons so dying seized, whose next Heir or Heirs, or such as shall have Title thereunto cannot be found, or shall not come and make his or their Claim and Proof as aforesaid: And the same Lord then to make the Issue and Profits thereof to his own Use until such Person or Persons sons come, that shall prove him or them next Heir or Heirs to the said Person or Persons so dying seized. And if none shall come in within three Years next after the third and last Proclamation made as aforesaid, that shall and can convey and prove him or them to be next Heir or Heirs of the whole Blood, or shew or prove, who is or ought to be next Heir or Heirs, or to have Title as next in Remainder or Reversion as aforesaid; that the said Lands and Tenements be forfeited, or shall escheat unto the Lord of the said Manor or Manors for the Time being.

Except, that if the said Land and Tenements shall or ought immediately to descend, remain, revert, come to any Woman Covert, or Infant within the Age of one and twenty Years, or to any Person or Persons being in Prison, or any Person or Persons not of Sanæ Memoriae, or that shall not be within the Realm at the Time of the Death of the said last Tenant dying so seized, or at the Time of the first, second and third Proclamation to be made as aforesaid; that there in every such Case, the Lord (for the Time being) shall have but the Profits of the said Lands and Tenements, until such Persons, or his or their Heir or Heirs shall come and make their Claim: So that the said Claim be made by the said Woman, or her Heirs, within five Years next after the Death of her said Husband, or by her Husband and herself during Time of her Coverture: And by such Person being within Age, or his Heirs, before he shall or should accomplish his Age of one and twenty Years: And by the Person of Non Sanæ Memoriae, within five Years next after he shall recover, and be of Sanæ Memoriae; and by the Heir of such Person of Non Sanæ Memoriae, within five Years next after the Death of his said Ancestor, or before: And by the said Person that shall so be out of the Realm, or his Heirs, within five Years after he shall return; or if he shall not return within five Years after his Death: And by the said Person or Persons in Prison, within one whole Year next after his or their Enlargement from such Imprisonment.

No Dower for WOMEN, nor Courtesy of England for MEN.

Item, In the said Manors, or either of them, Women ought not to have Dowers of any customary Lands or Tenements within the Manors aforesaid, nor any of them: Nor Men to have any Estate as Tenants, by the Courtesy of England.

ESTATES of Inheritance shall descend according to Gavelkind.

Item, If any shall be seized of any customary Lands or Tenements, holden of the said Manors, or of either of them, of an Estate of Inheritance, and shall have two Sons, or three Sons, or more; or having no Sons, shall have divers Daughter; or having neither Sons nor Daughters, shall have divers collateral Heirs in one Nearness of Blood; or that are to make their Resort from those that were of the same Nearness of Blood to the Tenant dying: They shall be all Coheirs to their said customary Lands and Tenements, according to the Custom of Gavelkind.

Touching Descents where the TENANT left Issue.

Item, If any Man or Women die seized (as aforesaid) of any customary Lands or Tenements of any State of Inheritance, holden of the said Manors or of any of them, and shall have Issue two or three Sons, or more, whereof one or two or more of them shall be married, and have Issue in the Life of their Father or Mother, and shall die before his or their Father or Mother; or having no Sons, shall have divers Daughters, whereof one or more shall be married and have Issue, and die in the Life of the Father or Mother; that then the said Issue shall inherit, and be Coheir with the said Son or Sons, Daughter or Daughters that shall survive his, her or their said Father or Mother that so shall die seized as is aforesaid, whether the said Issue be Male or Female, according to the Custom of Gavelkind.

How LANDS shall descend to those of the whole Blood, where the Tenant left no Issue.

Item, If any Person or Persons die seized as aforesaid, and shall leave behind him neither Son nor Daughter, then the next of his or their Kin (being of the whole Blood) shall be Heir or Heirs to the said Person or Persons so dying seized; that is to say, his, her or their Brother or Brothers, Brother or Brothers Children, or Childrens Children, according to the Custom of Gavelkind, &c. as long as any of that Issue shall be alive, being of the whole Blood. And in Default of such Issue, the Sister and Sisters Children, according to the Custom of Gavelkind, &c. so long as any Issue shall be alive, and of the whole Blood; and for Lack of such Issue, the Uncles and their Issues, being of the whole Blood, so long as any Issue shall be living: And in Default of such Issue, the Aunts and their Children, so long as any shall be living of the whole Blood; and for Lack of such Issue the next of Kin of the whole Blood, according to the Custom of Gavelkind.

MALES and FEMALES of one Womb cannot join to be COHEIRS.

Item, If any Person so dying seized as aforesaid, without Issue of his Body, and having divers Brothers of the whole Blood, whereof the one or some of them shall have been married, and shall have Issue, and after Issue had, shall die, before the said Brother dying seized as aforesaid; that then the Issues of the said Brother or Brothers, so dying before him that died seized, as aforesaid, shall join and be Coheir with his Brother or Brothers that surviveth the Brother that so died seized, as aforesaid, whether the said Issue be Males or Females. But Males and Females of one Belly or Womb cannot join to be Coheirs together: So that the Course of Descents is to be observed by the said Custom, according to the Custom and Nature of Lands in Gavelkind.

Touching DESCENTS:

Item, Likewise shall the Issue of the Daughter, that shall die in the Life of the Father or Mother, be Coheir with the Aunt that liveth, being of the whole Blood.

DESCENTS.

Item, Likewise shall the Uncles, and the Uncles Brothers Children (being of the whole Blood) be Coheirs together as aforesaid.

DESCENTS.

Item, Likewise shall the Aunts, and the Aunts Sisters Children join and be Coheirs as aforesaid, and so forth of all other further Degrees, of all collateral Heirs, being of the whole Blood, which may convey themselves to be any Cousins, and Heirs of the whole Blood to any Person or Persons dying seized of any of the aforesaid customary Lands or Tenements, according to the Custom of Gavelkind.

How COPYHOLDERS of Inheritance may surrender.

Item, By the Custom of the said several Manors, every Copyholder of Inheritance in Fee Simple, may surrender his said Copyhold Lands and Tenements, or any Part or Parcel thereof unto the Lord, to the Use of any Person or Persons, and to his and their Heirs for ever, or to his or their Heirs of his or their Bodies, or any otherwise in Taile, or for Life, or Lives, or Years, or to any Person or Persons, and his or their Heirs: To the Intent the said Copyhold Tenant may declare his last Will and Testament upon the same Lands and Tenements, or to any other Use or Uses, unless it be to any Corporation or Corporations, or Bodies Politick or Corporate. And every Copyholder in Tail, or for Life, Lives or Years, of either of the said Manors, may in like Manner (by the Customs of the said Manors and of either of them) surrender their Copyhold Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or any Part thereof, according to the Nature of their Estates; so the same Surrender be made according to the Custom concerning Surrenders, as afore in these Presents is specified, or hereafter ensueth. And all the same Persons, to whose Use every Surrender shall be made, are to have their Copies made to hold of the Lord by the Rod, according to the Custom of the Manor, whereof they have been holden by the Rents and Services therefore due and accustomed. Upon every of which Surrender, the Fine and Fines for the same hereafter expressed, is by the said Custom to be paid, and to be entered into the several Copies or the Margents of them.

SURRENDERS taken by the Headborough or Reeve, in Presence of six TENANTS.

Item, By the Custom of the said Manors, and of either of them, every Surrender taken out of the Court by the Headborough or Reeve, or his Deputy, and in the Presence of six Customary Tenants of the Manor, of which the said Lands or Tenements surrendered shall be Parcel, witnessing the same Surrender of any Person or Persons, of his or their Customary Lands or Tenements, holden of the said Manors, or of either of them. And being of the full Age of one and twenty Years, or upwards (except Women Covert-baron, and such as are not of perfect Mind) to the Use of any Person or Persons; are; and ought to be as good, as if it were taken in open Court by the said Steward of the Manors, or of either of them; so that such Surrender be by the Homage presented, as hereafter followeth.

Surrender of WOMEN Covert-baron, in Extremity of Sicknes.

Item, The Surrender by a Woman Covert-baron, being of the Age of one and twenty Years, made together with her Husband, of the Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, whereof she is seized or estated; is, and shall be a good Surrender of her Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, whereof she is seized and estated; and shall be a good Surrender of her Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, holden of the said Manors, or of either of the same; the same Surrender being made in her Extremity of Sicknes, or Likelihood of Death, by the Acceptance of the Reeve of the Manor, whereof the Lands and Tenements so surrendered, are Parcel, and his Deputy, or either of them, in the Presence of six Customary Tenants, or by the Acceptance of the Headborough, in the Presence of six Customary Tenants. But if any such Woman Covert-baron, so surrendering, do after that recover her Health, and do not at the next General Court then following ratify and confirm the same, before the Steward or his Deputy, in the Presence of the Homage, then the same Surrender is and shall be void. And all other Surrenders made by any Woman Covert-baron, except before the Steward of the Manor, or his Deputy, where she shall be solely examined, or in Extremity of Sicknes, as is afore said, are and shall be void.

All SURRENDERS, taken by the Reeve or Headborough, must be presented at the first or second next General Court.

Item, All Surrenders taken of Women, as afore said, or of Men by the Reeve, or his Deputy, or by a Headborough for the Time being, and in the Presence of six Customary Tenants, as afore said; shall be, and ought to be, by the Homage presented, at the first or second next General Court, holden for the Manor whereof the same is holden, after the taking thereof; or within one Year and a Day next after the taking of the same Surrender, if any such General Court be holden within a Year and a Day next after the same Surrender so taken: Or else if no such General Court be holden within a Year and a Day; then to be by the Homage presented at the next General Court to be holden for the same Manor, next after the same Year and Day; is and shall be a good Surrender, as if the same had been taken by the Steward or Deputy of that Manor; or Woman examined, as afore said, in open Court, or otherwise. All Surrenders taken by the Reeve or his Deputy, or by a Headborough, and in the Presence of six Tenants, and not presented by the said Homage in Manner and Form afore said, are and shall be void. But when any Surrender shall be made by any Person, to the Use of his or her Will and Testament, to the Intent that he or she may thereby, or thereupon, make and declare his or her last Will and Testament; that Surrender is to be presented at the first or second Court General of that Manor, happening next after the Decease of the Party so surrendering perfectly known, and not before. But if the same be not at the first or second Court (next after Death of the same Party) presented; or if the same Party hath before (in his Life-time) made any other Surrender of the same Lands or Tenements, and the same to be presented; then the said Surrender, to the Use of such last Will and Testament, is, and shall be void.

The HOMAGE must write Billa Vera upon their Presentments and good Surrenders.

Item, The Homage must write Billa Vera upon every Surrender by them presented, when they find the same Surrenders agreeable to the Custom. And also upon every other of their Presentments, shall make Billa Vera, when they be agreeable to the said Custom: Or else, if the said Homage receive any Surrender, or other Bills to them exhibited, which be doubtful or repugnant to the Custom of the Manor whereof the Land is holden, upon every such Surrender or Bill, Ignoramus shall be made, or the like Supercription, to the Intent it may be known to be doubtful or naught, or else return the same naughty Surrenders or Bills back again, to the Parties that exhibited the same.

What WOMEN COVERT-BARON may do.

Item, Every Woman being Covert-Baron, of the Age of one and twenty Years, or upwards, having any customary Lands or Tenements to her or her Heirs for Life, Lives, or Years, and holden of the said Manors, or either of them, may, together with her Husband, (by the Hands of

of the said Steward, or his sufficient Deputy) surrender all her said Lands, and Tenements, Interest and Term of Years, to the Use of her said Husband, or to any other Person or Persons at their Will and Pleasure, so as she be solely and secretly examined before the Steward, or his sufficient Deputy.

SURRENDERS taken out of Court by the Steward, or his Deputy.

Item, All Surrenders taken out of the Court by the Steward of the said Manors, or of any of them, or his sufficient Deputy, of any Person or Persons, being of the full Age of one and twenty Years or more, and of Sanæ Memoriae, of any or their customary Lands and Tenements holden of the said Manors, or of either of them, be good by the Customs of the said Manors, and of either of them; and the same ought to be published and notified to the Homage at the next General Court; or else Surrenders are also void.

The FINES are certain, and not arbitrary.

Item, All the Fines upon Admittances for any the now Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, of all and every the Persons named Parties to the said Indenture, holden by Copy of Court-Roll, are and ought to be certain, and not arbitrary, or at the Will of the Lord. And the Lord or Lords of the said Manors, or of either of them, ought to have and take Fines upon Admittances, as hereafter follows, and not other or greater; that is to say, upon the Admission of the Heir or Heirs, after a Descent for every Acre of Land (of what Nature and Kind soever) sixteen Pence, and so after that Rate, for greater or less Quantities of Land. And upon Admission of one Person only, after any Surrender, the like Sum of sixteen Pence for every Acre; and so after that Rate for every greater or less Quantity of Land: But if more than one Person be admitted after or upon any Surrender, then every of the same Persons are to pay half so much as one Person ought to pay, and not more. Likewise upon Admission of the Heirs or Heir, after a Descent for every Messuage customary, with the Courts, Yards, Easements, Orchards, and Gardens, thereunto belonging, for a Fine, the Sum of thirteen Shillings, four Pence, and not more. And for a Dwelling-House, called a Tenement, with the Courts, Yards, Orchards, Easements, and Gardens thereunto belonging, the Sum of ten Shillings, and not more. And for a Cottage, used for a Dwelling, with Easements and Gardens thereunto belonging, or without Garden, and not demised for more than three Pounds by the Year, the Sum of twenty Pence. But for a Building, not used for a Dwelling-House, so much only as according to the Quantity of the Land after the Rate of sixteen Pence the Acre. And for greater Cottages used for dwelling, and which shall be let for above three Pounds by the Year, with the Courts, Yards, Orchards, and Easements thereunto belonging, the Sum of ten Shillings. And the like is of Messuages, Tenements and Cottages hereafter to be built. And upon or after any Surrender, at the Admission, the like Fines are to be paid for one Person: But if any Surrender be made by any Person or Persons, to a Man and his Wife, then a whole Fine is to be paid for the Husband, and half a Fine is to be paid for the Wife. And if more Persons be admitted upon one Surrender, then every of the same Persons are to pay for Fine, half so much as one Person ought to pay, and not more.

All Acres to be accounted, according to the Statute or Ordinance, De terris mensurandis, and Orchards and Gardens not belonging to such Messuages, Tenements or Cottages, are to pay as Lands, according to the Quantity thereof, according to the Rate aforesaid. And Parts of Messuages, Parts of Tenements, and Parts of Cottages, are to pay for Fines respectively (in regard of the Whole) according to the Rate of the Whole. And all Fines paid are to be set down and expressed in the Copy of the Court-Roll thereof, or in the Margent of the same Copy. And if any Question or Doubt shall hereafter arise, about the discerning and true Estimation what, or which be, or ought to be accounted a Messuage; and what, or which, a Dwelling-House, called a Tenement; and what, or which, a Cottage, the same is to be referred to the Homage of the Manor at the next General Court, and by the same to be tried, ordered, determined, and presented, and according to such Presentments, Fines are to be paid.

If the LORD refuse to admit, then, &c.

Item, If the Lord or Lords of the said Manors, or either of them, or his or their Steward (for the Time being) shall refuse to admit any Person or Persons, to whom or to what Use such Surrender (as in the precedent Article is expressed) shall be made, or shall refuse to admit such Person or Persons, to whom any of the said Copyhold, or customary or reputed Copyhold, or customary Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments shall descend, according to the Custom of the said Manors, and true Meaning of these Schedules: Then the Person so not admitted, paying or tendering to the Lord or his Reeve, Fine or Fines for the same (according to the true Meaning of these Schedules) shall and may into such Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, so surrender or descended, respectively enter; and the same quietly have, hold, and enjoy as freely, and in such Sort, as if he or they had been thereunto lawfully admitted, and not otherwise.

SURRENDER to make the Wife a Jointure.

Item, If any Man make a Surrender, only to the Intent to make his Wife a Jointure, or to assure it to his Wife for Term of her Life, or during her Widowhood, not altering the Estate of the Inheritance; then for the Fine of the same, or any Admittance thereupon, there shall be paid but half a Fine for the same Things so surrendered: That is to say, half so much as one Person should pay upon Admittance, according to the true Meaning of these Schedules. And the like is to be used where the Husband and Wife make a Surrender of the Lands of the Wife; to the End only to make an Estate thereof to the Husband jointly with his Wife, or to the Husband for Term of his Life in Possession or Remainder. And likewise (by the said Custom) for every Tenant that shall not be admitted in Reversion or Remainder expectant, upon the Estate of any particular Tenant for Life, in Taile or for Years, granted by the Copy; the same is but half so much as it is upon other Admittances, upon Alienations, Surrenders, or dying seized as aforesaid.

DUTIES to the HOMAGE and Tenants for Bills and Surrenders.

Item, Every Person that exhibits or delivers any Surrender, or Bill to the Homage, ought to give and pay to the same Homage, for every such Surrender or Bill, four Pence, and every of the said six Tenants, and also the Headborough or Reeve (which shall be at the taking of any Surrenders Surrenders as aforesaid) ought to have four Pence a-piece of the Parties that make the Surrender, if the same Surrender be taken within the said Manors, or in either of them. But if they go out of the said Manors, or either of them, for the taking of the same; then to have eight Pence a-piece, and their Charges, if they shall go further off. And the Party that procures the said Surrender, ought to give to the said Tenants four Pence, beside the said Fees, which four Pence is to be delivered with the said Surrender, or else he that brings in the said Surrender, without the said four Pence, shall pay it of his own Purse to the Homage.

Though an HEIR be admitted, yet upon a new Claim, the HOMAGE shall enquire, &c. for a Co-HEIR.

Item, If it chance at any Time, upon the Death of any Copyholder, or customary Tenant, that there is an Heir or Heirs found, and presented by the Homage, and after is or are admitted to the Lands or Tenements of the said Copyholder, and at that Time no other Heirs shall be known; and after it shall chance that one other comes and claims to be Co-heir with the said Heir that is admitted; then the Homage ought thereof to enquire, and if they find his Claim true, they ought to present the same. And then he or they so claiming, shall be likewise admitted, and pay his Fine, and have his Part of the Premises, notwithstanding the former Admission.

Where TENANTS are admitted, and after that another claims the Whole: The HOMAGE is not bound to enquire, but he is driven to his Suit.

Item, If any Man be admitted to any Possession, or to any Reversion or Remainder of any Lands or Tenements, whether they be to him descended as shall be supposed, or to him surrendered by any other Person, and after that comes another Person or Persons, who pretends a Title to the whole Premises, or any Part thereof, and desires that the Homage may enquire thereof: In this Case the said Homage is not bound thereof to enquire; but he or they are driven to his or their Suit or Complaint, whether his or their Title be right or wrong; except in such Case where any Person or Persons shall claim as in the next precedent Article. And yet if any shall require the Homage, to find whether he or they were the Son or Daughter, or Sons or Daughters of such a one or no, and the Homage knowing, or well informed of the Truth, that he or they shall be the Son, or Sons or Daughters of him or her, that died seized of the Lands then in Question; the Homage ought therein to present the Truth: But not to present, whether he or they ought to have the Premises, or any Part thereof, to which another Person is already presented. But in such Case, he or they shall be driven to his or their Suit or Complaint, as aforesaid, for Recovery of their said Right, if any Right they have; except in such Case where any Person or Persons shall claim, as in the next precedent Article.

How LANDS descended are to be taken up.

Item, After the Death of every Person, being a customary Tenant of the said Manors, or of either of them, the next Heir or Heirs ought to come and take up the Lands and Tenements, whereof his or their Ancestors so shall die seized; of what Age soever he be. And if he or they be of the Age of fourteen Years or upwards, he is to be admitted in his own Person, within a convenient Time after he or they shall be presented.

Or else if he or they be under the Age of fourteen Years, then to come and take it up by his Guardian, until he be of the Age of fourteen Years, as aforesaid; and to pay for his Fine, according to the Rates expressed in these Schedules; and the Guardian to pay but three Shillings and four Pence at the most for his Fine for the Guardianship, or less, as the Steward or his Deputy shall think fit. And for Lands descended from the Part of the Father; the next Cousin of the Part on the Mother, not able to inherit those Lands, ought to be Guardian. And if the Lands came from the Part of the Mother, then the like Cousin of the Part of the Father ought to be Guardian, if that Person will accept thereof. And upon their Refusal, or not praying to be admitted Guardian at the first or second Court after that Infant ought to be admitted; then may the Steward admit any other of the Kindred of the Infant (to whom his Lands cannot descend) to be Guardian. And if none of the Kindred will accept of the Guardianship, then may another be admitted. And every Guardian shall account to the Heir of the Profits, and repair the Copyhold Tenements of him whose Guardian he is: And upon Admittance be bound to the Lord for the Time being, with Condition for Performance thereof, in such Sum as the Homage of the said Court, or the greater Part thereof shall like of. And of the Lands of every Infant under fourteen Years of Age, that shall be a Purchaser; a Guardian shall be admitted, and shall so demean himself in such Manner, as for the Guardian of an Infant (having Lands by Descent) is limited and appointed.

They to whose Use LANDS are surrendered ought within three Years after the Presentment take them up.

Item, Every Person to whose Use any of the said Lands or Tenements shall be surrendered, ought to come within three Years after the same be presented, and take up the same by himself, if he be of Age, and to be admitted as aforesaid, and to pay his Fine, or else by his Guardian, as is aforesaid.

The LORD may distrain for the FINES, or by Default of Distress, seize the Lands.

Item, If any of the said Heirs, Aliens or Guardians, do not pay their Fines within one Month after the same Fines be extracted, and the Extracts delivered to the Reeve or his Deputy, for the gathering thereof, and by them or either of them demanded; then it shall be lawful for the Lord or Lords of the said Manor or Manors for the Time being, or his or their Officers to distress, and avow as for Rents: And for Want of Distress, to seize the Lands and Tenements, for which the said Fine or Fines are to be paid, and to enjoy the same to his or their own Use, until he or they shall be fully satisfied, and paid the said Fine or Fines to be paid by him or them that so ought to pay the same.

The like he may do for Non-payment of the QUIT-RENT.

Item, If any Customary or Copyhold Tenant of the said Manors, or either of them, shall not pay his Rents for his Copyhold, for which the same is due, and demanded by the said Reeve or his Deputy, then it shall be lawful for the Lord or Lords of the said Manor or Manors, for the Time being, or his or their Officers, to distress and avow. And for Want of sufficient Distress, to seize the Lands and Tenements, out of which the same ought to be paid, and to take and enjoy joy the Rents, Issues and Profits of the same to his or their own Use, until he or they shall be fully satisfied and paid the same Rents by him or them that so ought to pay the same.

Who shall be the GUARDIAN

Item, That when any Tenant dies seized, leaving his Heir under the Age of fourteen Years, the next of the Kin (to whom the said Lands and Tenements cannot descend) shall have, if he shall require it, the Custody of the Heir, and of his Lands and Tenements, committed to him for the Use of the Heir, until he come to the Age of fourteen, as is aforesaid, and then he to chuse his own Guardian, and the former Guardian at any Time after (upon reasonable Request) to yield Account to the Heir of the Profits of his Lands received.

TENANTS may. let Leases for one and thirty Years, and four Months, without any Licence or Fine.

Item, If any Person or Persons be disposed to let his or their Customary Lands, or Tenements to any other Person or Persons, and to their Executors and Assigns, for the Term of one and thirty Years, or less; the same Person or Persons have, and shall have full Power and Authority, to set or let to Farm, his or their Copyhold Lands or Tenements to any Person or Persons, their Heirs, Executors and Assigns, for the Term of one and thirty Years, and four Months or less, in Possession from the Time of the making thereof in Writing, without any Licence to him or them to be granted, and without paying Fine to the Lord, or incurring any Forfeiture or Seizure of or for the same; so as the same Lease do not exceed one and thirty Years and four Months, from the Time of the making thereof; but such Lease is and ought to be presented to the Homage of the Manor, whereof the Lands or Tenements so leased are held, within one Year after the making thereof, or else the same Lease so made and not presented as aforesaid, shall be void and of none Effect.

Either Manor is upon every Change of LORD, to pay five Pounds for Recognition-Money.

Item, The Custom of the Manor is, to give to the Lord of every of the said Manors, upon the Change of every Lord, at the next Court after the first Entry, bona fide, ten Pounds of lawful Money of England, that is to say, out of each Manor five Pounds for the Recognition and acknowledging the Service, which is to be levied and collected by the Reeve for the Time being, amongst all the said Copyholders of the said Manors respectively, according to the Rates they shall be taxed at by the Homage at the next Court to be holden after the Coming of the new Lord.

How the REEVE of either MANOR is to be chosen.

Item, The Homage of every of the said Manors ought yearly (at the General Court to be holden next after Michaelmas) to elect and chuse several Reeves for every of the said Manors; that is to say, to elect and chuse two Customary Tenants, either of the said Persons named Parties to the said Presents, their Heirs or Assigns, or of others not named, to bear the Office of the Reeve for each of the said Manors; namely, he that was before in Election (if he be alive) and one other; or if he be dead, two other, to the Intent the Lord of the said Manors, or of either of them, or his Steward, may appoint the one of them so elected for one whole Year; that is, one to serve for each of the said Manors; so he be appointed within that Manor of which he is a Tenant, and for which he shall be so chosen. Which Reeve being so appointed, ought to take upon him the said Office for one whole Year then next ensuing, to execute the same by himself or his Deputy, for whom he shall answer, and to be subject to account and answer for the same, as in the said Presents is set down.

And if a Copyholder shall be duly chosen, and appointed by the Homage to be the Lord's Reeve, as aforesaid, and (according to his Turn) presented by the Homage, and shall refuse to serve the said Office by himself or his Deputy; then every such Person so refusing, within the said Manor of Hackney, shall pay for a Fine six Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence. And every such Person so refusing, within the said Manors of Stebenhith or Stepney, shall pay for a Fine ten Pounds to the Lord of the Manor, whereof his Lands are holden. And the Homage of the same Manor shall be charged from Time to Time to chuse another Reeve, in the Place of him that shall so refuse until such Time as (for the same Manor) one be chosen that shall and will serve the said Office. And every Copyholder that shall be chosen and appointed to the said Office as aforesaid, and shall refuse to serve the same Office, shall pay the Fine aforesaid to the Lord of that Manor for his Refusal. The one half of all which Fines or Fine of Tenant or Tenants so refusing to accept and execute the said Office of Reeveship, according to the true Meaning of these Schedules, the Lord or Lords of the said Manors, or either of them, of whom such Tenant or Tenants so refusing shall hold, ought, and shall from Time to Time allow to such Person or Persons, as being chosen and appointed to be Reeve, as aforesaid; and shall and will, next after the Refusal of any one or more of the said Tenants so chosen, accept and serve the said Office; the Moiety of the said Fine or Fines, respectively to be by him defaulted and retained in his Account. And by the Lord of that Manor, upon the same Reeves Account (whensoever he shall account for the same) to be duly and justly allowed.

In what Cases the LORD may seize the Reeves Lands.

Item, If any Copyholder, that shall accept, and execute the said Office of Reeve, shall refuse to satisfy and pay to the Lord, the yearly Quit-rents and Fines for Admittances upon Alienations or Descents, wherewith such Reeve shall or may be lawfully charged, by and according to the true Meaning of these Presents; or shall refuse to account with the Lord, within two Months next yearly after Michaelmas, having had the Rental and Extracts of Fines upon Admittances, as aforesaid, for that Year, by the Space of two Months: Every such Reeves Lands, and Tenements, that shall so refuse to account, and pay the said Rents and Fines which he shall or may have collected, as aforesaid, shall be seized into the Lord's Hand, and the Lord shall and may take to his own Use the Issues and Profits of his said Lands and Tenements, until he shall pay to the Lord the Rents and Fines aforesaid: And until he has also satisfied and paid for his said Offence, (viz.) being Reeve of Hackney, six Pounds thirteen Shillings four Pence, and being Reeve of Stepney, ten Pounds. Nevertheless, the Reeve ought not, nor shall be charged or chargeable to answer any Quit-Rents contained in any Rental or Extracts, unless it appear to him by the Rental of the former Reeve, or otherwise be made known to him by some of the Lord's Officers, who is the Tenant, or where the Land lies, for and in Respect of which the same Quit-Rents ought to be paid.

No REEVES, within this Composition, shall be charged with the Leet, or Court-Baron, otherwise than in Article 45, nor provide for any Dinners, except, &c.

Item, No Copyholder of the said Manors, or of either of them, being named Parties to the said Indenture, nor their Heirs or Assigns, ought or shall (at any Time) be charged to collect or gather any of the Amerciaments, Fines; or other Issues or Profits of the Courts-Leets, or Courts-Baron, holden within the said Manors, or of either of them, otherwise than in the last precedent Article is mentioned; nor to provide or allow for any Dinners, either on the Day or Days the Court-Leet shall be holden upon; or on the Day or Days of the two General Courts, but are and shall be thereof for ever freed and discharg'd, except that such Tenant, or his Heirs, shall hereafter purchase or have other customary Lands than those that the said Persons, named Parties to the said Indenture, or some one of them the said Persons do now hold, which shall be worth to be sold (at least) two hundred Pounds of lawful Money of England, or shall be of the clear yearly Value of twenty Pounds of like Money.

What TENANTS may be chosen REEVES.

Item, Every one of the said Customary Tenants, named Parties to the said Indenture, whose Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, holden by Copy or Court-Roll of either of the said Manors, are worth sixteen Pounds of like Money, as aforesaid, by the Year to be let, or two hundred Pounds to be sold, by the Estimation and Presentment of the Homage of the same Manor, shall bear the Office of Reeve, of and for such of the said Manors whereof he shall be a Tenant by Copy of Court-Roll, and for which he shall be chosen and appointed Reeve, as aforesaid, when his or their Time and Course doth come.

What Allowances the REEVE is to have of the LORD.

Item, Every of the said Reeves is to be allow'd of the said Lords or Lord, for the executing of the said Office for one Year, as follows, viz. The Reeve of Stebenhith, three Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence; and six Shillings eight Pence more, for and in Respect of an Allowance of a Coat Cloth to the said Reeve; and the Reeve of Hackney, fifty three Shillings and four Pence, and six Shillings eight Pence more, for and in Respect of an Allowance of a Coat Cloth to the same Reeve; and all other Commodities due and incident to the said Office for either of them, or used heretofore to be paid to the said Reeve, by any of the Tenants of the said Manors respectively.

The REEVE to deliver the Rental to his Successor.

Item, The Reeve of the said Manors, and of either of them, shall at the next General Court, after his Year of Service expired, deliver the Rental by which he made his Account, to the Reeve that shall next succeed him, upon Pain to be amerced or fined by the Homage, if he shall not so do.

What the COPYHOLDERS may freely do without Forfeiture.

Item, All the Customary Tenants of the said Manors, and of either of them, may break and dig their Copyhold Grounds holden of the said Manors, and of either of them, at his or their Will and Pleasure, and fell and cut down their Timber and Woods growing, or that shall grow upon the same, and convert it to their best Use and Profit, and may also suffer their Copyhold Tenements and Houses to decay without incurring any Seizure or Forfeiture of their Estates therefore, or other Pain; and may take and pull down their said Tenements, and erect or set them up again, either where they stood before, or upon any other Lands holden by Copy of Court-Roll of the said Manors, or of either of them; but they may not, or shall not take or pull them down, to set them (or any Part of them) upon their own Freeholds, or upon the Freeholds of any other.

COPYHOLDERS may lop Trees growing upon the Waste before their Houses.

Item, Every of the said Copyholders, or reputed Copyholders, named Parties to the said Indenture may lop and shred all such Trees as grow before their Houses or Tenements upon the waste Ground, and convert the said Trees stand for the Defence of their Houses, Yards or Gardens: And also they may dig Gravel, Sand, Clay and Lome upon the said waste Grounds, to build or repair any of their Copyhold Tenements within the said Manors, or in either of them, without any Licence, so always as every of the said Copyholders do fill up so much as shall be digged by him or them.

Letting of LANDS for more than thirty one Years and four Months, is a Forfeiture.

Item, If any Person or Persons, being Tenant Customary, shall (without Licence by Indenture, or other Writing, or otherwise) let his said Customary Lands or Tenements for more than one and thirty Years and four Months, it shall be a Forfeiture of his Estate, by the Custom of the said Manors, and of either of them, being found and presented by the Homage, or else otherwise lawfully and sufficiently proved.

For what Offences these COPYHOLDERS may forfeit their Estates.

Item, For Treason or Felony whatsoever, that shall be committed by any Copyholder of the said Manors, or of any of them, for which he shall be lawfully attainted, he shall forfeit Copyhold Lands and Tenements to the Lords of the said Manor; and for all other Offence or Offences, Act or Acts whatsoever, for which a Freeholder ought (by the common Laws of the Land) to forfeit his Freehold Lands and Tenements: There a Copyholder of the said Manors, or of either of them, shall forfeit, as a Freeholder ought to forfeit, in like Case, his Freehold. But if a Copyholder be outlawed for any Cause, saving Felony or Treason, the Lord shall not have the Issue or Profits of his Lands. And if a Copyholder make a Feoffment of his Copyhold, Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life or Lives, by Deed or without Deed, by Livery and Seisin thereupon, or shall suffer a Recovery at the Common Law, levy a Fine, or willfully refuse or deny to pay, do or perform his Rents, Fines, Suits, Customs and Services at any Time due to the Lord or Lords of the said Manors, or either either of them for the said Copyholds : The same willful Refusal being presented to the Homage, the same shall be holden and reputed a Forfeiture of his Estate, whatsoever he shall have by Copy of Court-Roll, at the Time of any such Act committed or done ; in so much of his or their Copyhold Lands and Tenements, as he shall have committed by any such Act ; and only for so much of his Lands and Tenements out of which the said Quit-Rent and other Duties is demanded and shall be due, and willfully denied by the said Tenants, as aforesaid. Or if any Copyholder shall in the Lord's-Court, or elsewhere in any Court of Record, disclaim to hold his said Copyhold Lands and Tenements of the Lord of the Manor, whereof his Lands and Tenements are holden, or shall (by pleading in the Lord's Court, or other Courts of Record) willfully claim their Copyholds to be Freeholds, or willingly and wittingly plead in any Real Action at the Common Law in chief as a Freehold Tenant, or shall willingly and wittingly do any other Act or Things, in or concerning his now Lands and Tenements, which shall be a Disseisin or Disinheritance of the Lord or Lords of the said Manors, or either of them, their Heirs or Assigns other than such Acts, as in these Articles are especially mentioned (or dispensed withal) that then he should forfeit his and their Estate, of and in the said Lands and Tenements so disclaimed, to be holden or claimed to be Freehold ; or for which he shall plead in Chief, or do any such Act or Thing, as is aforesaid. Finally, the Lords of the said Manors, or either of them, shall have all such other Forfeitures, Issues, Profits and Advantages of the said Copyholds, as shall grow due to him by any Statute-Laws of this Realm, being not against and contrary to these Articles and Customs here expressly set down.

The Act or Neglect of the TENANT for Lives or Years, shall not prejudice those in Remainder.

Item, If any Person or Persons, having any Estate of any Copyhold Lands or Tenements, holden of the said Manors, or of either of them, for Term of Life or Lives, or for Term of Years, or (in the Right of their Wives) of any Estates, although he, she, or they, shall do or suffer, or neglect to do any Act or Acts during the Time aforesaid, in or upon the said Copyhold Lands and Tenements, which may or shall be contrary to the Custom of the said Manors, or either of them. The same Act or Acts so being done, shall not be prejudicial or hurtful to the next Person or Persons to whom the said Customary Lands or Tenements should or ought to remain, revert, or come, nor to the said Wife or her Heirs, not being Party in Court, or consenting in Court to the said Act or Forfeiture. Nor that the Lord of the said Manors, or of either of them, shall take any longer Advantages, Issues, or Profits of the same Copyhold Lands or Tenements, than during the Time of such Estates as aforesaid, of the Party committing, doing, or assenting to such Act or Acts ; so that after his or their Decease, or Estates determined, the said Lands and Tenements shall remain, revert, or come to the next Person or Persons, or to such Person or Persons to whom the same should have come or remained, or go or revert immediately after such Estate or Estates ended or determined ; as tho' there had been no such Act or Acts done, contrary to the Tenor or true Meaning of these Presents, by any such Person or Persons.

Private Acts of TENANTS hurt not the Customs of the rest.

Item, The particular or private Act or Acts of any Customary Tenant or Tenants of any of the said Manors, which shall happen to be done by, or between them, or any of them, and the Lord or Lords of the said Manors, or either of them, and his or their Reeve, or of either of them, contrary to the Articles and true Meaning of these Presents, neither doth nor shall extend to be construed to be a Breach of the antient Customs of the said Manors, or of either of them, to the Hurt or Prejudice of the rest of the Customary Tenants, but of themselves only, doing the said particular Act.

TENANT for Life or Years, making waste, shall be fined by the HOMAGE.

Item, That if any Tenant for Term of Life, or Lives only, or for Term of Years of Customary Lands, shall make any Waste, then he shall be fined by the Homage ; the third Part of which Fine shall be to the Lord, and the other two Parts shall come to him in the Reversion or Remainder of the said Copyhold.

The LORD may distrain, but not seize.

Item, the Lord, for Non-payment of Amerciaments, may distrain his said Tenants, Parties to these Presents, and avow for the same as for Rents : But he cannot seize any of his or their Customary Lands or Tenements, Parties to these Presents, for Non-payment thereof, until he be paid.

How PARTITION is to be made between Co-heirs, Joint-Tenants, or Tenants in common.

Item, Upon the Admission of any Coheirs, Joint-Tenants, or Tenants in common, if they cannot agree to occupy their Lands and Tenements, or to make Partition among themselves ; then he or they that be grieved, may (by the Custom of either of the said Manors) have a Precept from the Steward, directed to seven Customary Tenants, or more, of the said Manors within which the said Lands and Tenements do lie : And they shall make Partition thereof, and the same return to the Steward of the said Manors again, to be enrolled in the Court Rolls of the said Manors, whereof the said Lands or Tenements be holden : Whereupon the said Heirs shall go to the Steward of the said Manor, within which the said Lands or Tenements shall lie ; and then elect and chuse their Parts in Form following :

That is to say, The youngest Son to chuse first, and then he that is next to the youngest to chuse next, and so after that Rate unto the eldest (how many soever) which eldest shall chuse last. And likewise the same Order is to be observed amongst Daughters, if there be no Sons, and amongst all other Degrees of Heirs, touching the Customary Lands and Tenements holden of the said Manors, or either of them. And upon every such Partition, they shall pay for a Fine to the Lord, two Shillings and Six Pence, or less, at the Discretion of the Steward, according to the Quantity of the Lands or Tenements so parted between Tenants in common and Joint-Tenants ; for the like Fine the said Division to be by the said Tenants, without Election of the Parties themselves, but by casting of Lots, if they cannot otherwise agree.

COPYHOLDERS shall pay but a Penny for Poundage.

Item, if any Customary or Free Tenants Cattel, or the Cattel of their Farmers, be brought to the Lord's Pound, the said Tenant, or his Farmer, shall pay for all his Cattel (if they be a hundred Heads, or upward or under) for the Poundage thereof, but one Penny. And he that is no Tenant, shall pay for every Distress of Cattel so pounded, four Pence.

CATTLE

CATTEL impounded to be delivered by two COPYHOLDERS.

Item, If any Cattel be impounded within the Lord's Pound, by any Person or Persons, being a Customary Tenant or Tenants of the said Manors, or of either of them, for any Trespass committed or done within the said Manors, or in either of them, upon their Copyholds; that all such Cattel being so impounded, may by two of the said Customary Tenants, of such of the said Manors, or of either of them, wherein the said Trespass shall be committed, which will answer for such Damages and Costs as shall be recovered in the said Court, against the Owners of the same Cattel for the said Trespass, be delivered out of the said Pound, unto the Owner of the said Cattel, by the Custom of the same Manors, and of either of them.

No Suits for Title of COPYHOLDS out of the Lord's Court, without Licence.

Item, No Customary Tenant shall sue, vex, or trouble any other Customary Tenant, for any Title of Lands or Tenements, lying and being within the said Manors, or in either of them, being Copyhold Lands or Tenements of the said Manors, or of either of them, out of the Lord's Court, without the special Licence first had and obtained of the Lord of the said Manors, or of either of them, or of his Steward for the Time being. If any Person do the contrary, he shall have his Lands or Tenements seized into the Lord's Hands, until he pay a Fine to the Lord for the same Offence, viz. such Fine as shall be seized by the Homage at the next General Court of the said Manor.

CATTEL offending, shall be driven to the LORD'S POUND.

Item, That no Customary Tenants of the said Manors, or of either of them, for any Offence to be done by any Man's Cattel, within the said Manors, or in either of them, shall drive the same Cattel to any Foreign Pounds, but to the Lord's Pound, being within the said Manors, or in either of them: If any Man do the contrary, to be amerced at the next General Court, by the Homage; so always as there be a sufficient Pound of the Lord's there.

How Stakes, Marks, and Mears, between Tenant and Tenant ought to be set.

Item, That no Tenant, or any other Person, shall set any Stake, Mark, or Mear, between Tenant and Tenant, or between Tenant and any other Person that lieth next to him, without the Parties do thereunto agree, unless an Order be appointed by the Homage, or the greatest Part of them, that it may be first viewed by twelve Tenants of the said Manors, or of either of them, where the Stake or Mear is to be set; and there to set the Stake or Mear (indifferently) between both the said Parties, and so to continue it, upon Pain of Amercement by the Homage.

DRIVERS of Commons, when to be chosen.

Item, The Homage do, and shall yearly use at the next General Court, holden upon the Tuesday, the ninth Day next after Easter-Day, to elect and chuse out of the Hamlets within every of the said Manors, certain Customary Tenants, to be Drivers and Viewers of the Wastes and Commons of the said Manors, and of either of them, for one whole Year. Which Tenants so elected, have Authority (by the said Custom) to drive the Commons at any Time when they find it surcharged, and to impound the Cattel by them so taken; and no other to drive the said Common, than the Persons that were so chosen as aforesaid.

How surcharging the Common is to be remedied.

Item, If by their driving, the surcharging cannot be remedied, then they ought to inform the Homage thereof at the next Court, that they may amerce the Offenders, whether the Offenders be Tenants or no Tenants. And also to put a Pain or Amerciament upon their Heads, that they shall not likewise offend.

The DRIVERS shall account to the Homage.

Item, If the said Drivers receive by the said Poundages, any more Money than they spend in Travel, the rest shall be employed to the scowring of the Common Sewers, which be upon the said waste Ground and Commons, and laying of Bridges over the said Common Sewers; and shall make their Account (in that Behalf) to the Homage at the General Court, when the Year (for which they were chosen) shall expire.

The Homage may make BY-LAWS, which shall bind the Tenants.

Item, The Copyhold and Customary Tenants may make By-Laws at their General Courts, when Need shall require, which Custom shall be so continued. And the said By-Laws so by them made, shall bind all the Copyhold Tenants of the said Manors, or of either of them, so the same be not contrary to the true Meaning of these Articles.

RECOVERIES may be suffered to barre ENTAILS.

Item, By the Custom of the said Manors, and of either of them, Tenants in Tail of Customary Lands and Tenements, may suffer common Recoveries within the said several Manors, with single or double Vouchers; or (by Agreement) forfeit the said Lands and Tenements into the Lord's Hands, for the cutting off the Estate Tail: Which Custom (by these Articles) shall have still Continuance, and such Recoveries and Forfeitures, are and shall be good to barre the said Entail.

TENANTS not appearing at Set Courts, shall not be amerced above Four Pence.

Item, Whensoever there shall be any Court, or Courts Baron (or other than the said two General Courts) kept within the said Manors, or either of them; no Copyholder ought or shall be amerced above the Sum of four Pence, for any Default of his Appearance at any the same Court or Courts, except the said two General Courts: Neither shall incur any Forfeiture, or Seizure of his Copyhold Lands or Tenements, or any other Damage for any such Default. And the said Amerciament to be taxed by the Assurers Tenants of that Court.

The STEWARD'S Fees.

Item, The Steward or his Deputy, is to have such Fees and Allowances, as hereafter is expressed, viz. for every Surrender taken out of the Court five Shillings, and nothing for any Surrender taken in Court. For every Woman Covertbaron, that shall be examined, six Shillings and eight Pence; for every Admittance of every Person, two Shillings; for entering every Surrender, and and making the Copy of Court Roll thereupon, six Shillings and eight Pence; for every Precept for a View of Partition, and entering the same, and the Return thereof upon the Court Roll, and the Copy thereof, two Shillings and Six-pence: And if it exceed two Sheets of Paper, then for every Sheet over and above two Sheets, twelve Pence more. For searching the Court Rolls for every Year, four Pence. For every purchased Court, thirteen Shillings and four Pence. For entering a Note of a Lease, granted of any Lands or Tenements, containing the Date, Quantity of Lands or Tenements, and Certainty of Term, and to whom the same shall be granted, and for a Note thereof to the Party, six Pence. For these Things before expressed, the Steward shall have only such Fees as before is declared; and for all other Things, he shall have as formerly hath antiently been used, and no more.

BUILDINGS to be erected, shall pay Fines, as those already built.

Item, All Messuages, Tenements, and Cottages, that shall hereafter be built upon any the Copyhold Lands, whereof the Customs are hereby meant to be declared, shall be held and enjoyed by the Copyhold Tenants thereof, under the same Customs and Articles herein declared, as the Lands whereon they shall be built are holden and enjoyed; but shall pay such Fines therefore, as is before expressed or declared for Messuages, Tenements, and Cottages, that shall be new built.

The LORD shall not sever from the Manor any of these COPYHOLDERS, to any Persons in Fee Simple, or other Estate of Freehold.

Item, The Lord of the said Manors, or of either of them, their Heirs or Assigns, shall not at any Time hereafter grant, or convey (severed from the Manor whereof the same is now holden, or ought to be holden) any of the Messuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, whereof any of the said Persons, named Parties to the said Indenture hereunto annexed, is now Copyholder or Customary Tenant, to any Person or Persons in Fee Simple, Fee Tail, or for Term of Life, or other Estate of Freehold, or for any Estate or Term, other by Copy of Court Roll, according to the Customs of the said Manors, and true Meaning of these Presents, and the Indenture whereunto the same are annexed; except the Freehold to be granted or severed, at the Petition and Desire of such Person or Persons as then shall be Copyholder thereof, according to the true Meaning of these Presents.

And if the Lord hath granted away the Freehold of any the Copyhold Lands or Tenements, whereof the Custom is hereby meant to be declared; he shall get and take the same back again; and the same shall (notwithstanding such Grant or Alienation) be annexed to the Manor whereof it was, or is held, and shall be held and enjoyed by the Tenant, his Heirs and Assigns thereof, by Copy of Court Roll of the same Manor, under the Rents, Services, and Customs in these Articles expressed, and not otherwise; and also, that the Lord shall admit by his Steward or his Deputy, all such Tenant and Tenants that ought of Right to be admitted upon the Presentment of the Homage.

The PARISH of St. MARY at ISLINGTON.

monly called Islington, placed pleasantly upon a Hill; whence is a fine Prospect of LONDON, on the North West Side of which it is situated.

THE Church here is on the North West Side of the Town; the first Foundation of which is unknown; but the present Structure is supposed to be about 230 or 40 Years ago. The Gallery was built Anno 1663, the Fire of LONDON three Years after not having Power thus far Northward. The present Altar-piece was made in 1671.

As to the Nature and Order of the Building; the Walls are Brick and Boulder Roof cover'd with Tile, and the Columns (which support it) and Arches are Gothical; the Windows of the modern Gothick; the Floor paved with Stone and Tile, which is higher by two Steps at the Altar, than in the Body of the Church, which has three Isles. It is built directly East and West, as appears by an Erect direct South Dial on the Tower, whereon is this Motto:

Dum spectas fugit Flora.

As to the Ornament, it cannot be expected any considerable should be in so old and decaying a Structure: But what is there to be found, is agreeable enough.

THE Roof is divided into Pannels, and (over the Chancel) painted. Here are good Pews of Oak, and the Church is wainscotted in many Places about seven Feet high; but higher round the Communion-Table, painted Olive Colour, and the Mouldings gilt with Gold, adorned also with a Cornice at the East End, in the Middle whereof is a Glory; over which is a spacious Window, (wherein appears the Ruins of fine Glass Painting) between the two Tables of the Decalogue, depencill'd in black Letters on the white Wall.

THE Dimensions are, Length 92 Feet, Breadth 54, Altitude 28, and that of the Tower 74 Feet; in which are six Bells to ring in Peal.

MONUMENTS.

ON the South Wall, near the End of the South Isle, is a very spacious costly Marble Tomb and Monument of white and veined Marble, adorned with two Columns, and their Entablament, of the Corinthian Order; also pyramidal Figures and those of the Lady, lying on her Left Side under an Arch, as reading; and of eleven Children in a kneeling Posture, in the Front of the Tomb lower; also Enrichments of Cherubims, Fruit and Leaves, partly gilt, and the whole enclosed with Iron Rail; with this Inscription:

Under the Hope of the Resurrection,

Here lyeth the Body of Alice Owen, Widow, the Daughter of Thomas Wilkes: She was first married to Henry Robinson; by whom she had six Sons, John, William, Henry, John, Thomas, and Henry; which said Henry the younger was married unto Mary, the Daughter of Sir William Glover, Kt. Alderman of LONDON. And five Daughters, Margaret, married to Sir John Bret of Edmonton, in the County of Middlesex, Kt. Susan, Anne, and Anne the Younger, married Robert Rich of Horndon on the Hill in the County of Essex, Esquire; and Alice, married to John Washborn of Wittingfoord in the County of Worcester, Esquire.

The second Husband was William Elkin, Esq; Alderman of the City of LONDON; by whom she had Issue only Ursula Elkin, married to Sir Roger Owen of Condover in the County of Salop, Knight.

The third Husband was Thomas Owen, one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas to Queen Elizabeth.

ARMS of Owen: Vert on a Chevron between three Bucks Trippant Or, as many Lozenges Gules.

Impaled with that of Wilkes; Argent on a Mount in Base proper, a Fig-tree Vert Fruited Or.

On a fair Stone in the Chancel is the following Inscription:

Hinc
Sperat Resurrectionem (Filius HARBOTELLI GRIMESTON,
Militis & Baronetti
Natus tertius)
HENRICUS GRIMESTON.

Anagramma:
En! Christi Regno sum.
Qui moritur, vivit Christo: huic mors

Angelus, ad vitam janua Christus erit.
Hac iter ad superos, calcans vestigia lethi,
Intrabam Christi Regia, Templa Dei.
12^o die Mensis Julii, An. Dom. 1627.

On the North Side of the Chancel is a very spacious Marble Monument, adorned with four black Columns and Entablament; also the Figure of him between those of his two Wives, in a kneeling Posture, and Enrichments of Cherubims, Gilding, &c. and this Inscription:

Here lyeth buried the Body of Sir Nicholas Kempe, Knight, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, and an Honourable Member of the High Commission Court, &c. who had to his first Wife Cicelia, with whom he lived in blessed Amity near forty Years together; with Sarah his second Wife six Years; and having past, with much Prosperity, Love and Credit, the reverend Years of 72, he changed this terrestrial Condition, for that everlasting State of Blessedness, the third of September 1624.

Wife, loving, liberal, religious, just:
Those Graces fill'd the Soul of him whose Dust
Lies here intomb'd all that Praise can bring forth.

There are not Words enough t'express his Worth
For his good Works, this Stone cannot comprise Half the Particulars of his Pieties:
What Goodness ever was is, and to come,
In mortal Man, that makes up his just Sum.

Near this is a Stone for D—— Kempe, married to Thomas E——, and after to Sir —— Knt. She dyed 1650, in the 77th Year of her Age.

Another Monument on the North Side of the Chancel hath this inscribed:

Vivit post funera virtus.

A Monument in the South Isle with this Inscription:

To the Sacred Memory of Anne late Wife of Henry Chittin, Esq; Chester Herald at Arms, eldest Daughter of William Bennet, Gentleman, by Joice, Widow of Richard Joselin, of Newhall Joselins in Essex, Esq; and Daughter of Robert Atkinson of Stowell, in the County of Gloucester, Esquire. She had four Children, whereof three are living Thomas, Joyce, and Henry; of which last she died in Childbed the 8th of May, 1630, in the 27th Year of her Age; and 4th Year of her Marriage.

Mors mihi vita.

Life is Death's Road, and Death Heaven's Gate must be,

Heaven is Christ's Throne, and Christ is Life to me.

The Angels of the Lord protect,
All those that are his own Elect.

Vivit post funera virtus.

Later Monuments erected in Issington Church; or more antient omitted before, are for these Persons following:

Memorandum, That this Survey was copied out of the Survey, annexed to the laſt Leaſe granted to the Lord Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON, of the ſaid Prebend, Mar. 15, 1582. Reg. Elizabethæ 25.

Now croſſing over the Thames at London-bridge, the next Pariſh, not yet ſpoken of, within the Bills of Mortality, is,

The PARISH of St. MARY at Rotherhith.

THE Church here is ſo called as being dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and Rotherhith (or rather Red-roſe-haven, becauſe the Sign of the Red-roſe was there) is added to diſtinguiſh it from other Churches dedicated to the ſame Saint.

No Hiſtory gives an Account of its firſt Foundation; it had a general Repair in 1687, which coſt upwards of 1200 l. and it was intirely rebuilt in 1714.

THE old Church was deſcended into by Steps, and was not ſufficient to contain the numerous Inhabitants; and notwithstanding the coſtly Repair before-mentioned, it ſtanding low, and near the Banks of the River Thames, was often overflowed, whereby the Foundation was rotted, and the Church in ſo great Danger of falling, that the Inhabitants could not, without Danger of their Lives, aſſemble to hear Divine Service therein; which occaſioned them to obtain a Brief, Anno 1710, to enable them to take it down and rebuild it, which was done accordingly, and finiſhed Anno 1714, as is ſaid before.

THIS Pariſh conſiſts of Abundance of Seafaring Mens Families, which increaſes the Poor there exceedingly; ſo that in 30 Years the Aſſeſſments for the Poor were advanced in the Year 1710 from 80 l. to above 700 l. per Ann.

MONUMENTS.

In the South Iſle, on the Wall of the old Church was this Inſcription:

Poſt tenebras, ſpero Lucem.

Next without this Wall are buried Brian, Richard, and Marke, Alice, and Elizabeth, the three Sons and two Daughters of Nicholas Reynolds, Citizen and Goldſmith of LONDON, and of Elizabeth his Wife. The forenamed Elizabeth their younger Daughter married to Robert Wheatley, Salter, the 20th Day of Auguſt, 1593, and died the 18th of September, in the ſame Year.

Theſe Bloſſoms young and tender, loe,
Blown down by deadly Wind,
May urge the riper Sort to know,
Like Blaſt ſhall them out find.

For Fleſh, as Graſs, away doth wither,
No Age can it eſchew;
The Young and Old decay together,
When Death ſhall them purſue.

No Parents, Friends, or Advocate,
Can him intreat to ſpare
The Fair, the Fine, or Delicate,
For Threats he doth not care.

Let that moſt certain Statute made
By God our heavenly King,
All Men aſſure, and eke perſwade,
Death ſhall them equal bring.

Poſt Mortem, Vitam Æternam.

In the Middle Iſle of this Church is thus written:

Trinitas in Unitate.

Here lies buried the Body of Richard Hills, Mariner, one of the eldeſt Brothers and Aſſiſtants of the Company of the Trinity, and his two Wives; who, while he lived in this Place, gave liberally to the Poor, and ſpent bountifully in his Houſe; and after many Troubles, being of the Age of 80 Years, and upward, departed this Life without Iſſue, upon the 16th of February, 1614.

This was made at the Charge of Robert Bell.

Tho' Hills be dead, Hill's Will and Act ſurvives,
His Free-School, and his Penſion for the Poor,
Thought on by him, perform'd by his Heir,
For eight poor Seamens Children, and no more.

1627.

On the Outſide of the North Wall is a Monument bearing the Figure of a Ship at Sea; under it the Portraiture of him for whom it was erected, with his Wife, ſix Sons and four Daughters; the Living and the Dead diſtinguiſhed by Death's Head, which the Buried ſeem to bear in their Hands, and under them this Inſcription:

Here beneath lyeth interred the Body of Capt. Anthony Wood, who departed this Life the 24th of Auguſt, 1625, being the 40th Year of his Age, and had Iſſue by his Wife, Martha Wood, ſix Sons and four Daughters.

In the Chancel:

A little Monument againſt the Wall, and this Epitaph:

Roger Tweedy, Eſq; was interred in the Middle Iſle of this Church, in the Year 1665. He gave by Will two Shillings every Lord's-Day for ever, to be diſtributed among 12 poor Seamen, or Seamens Widows, in Bread, the Officers of this Church to take Care to diſtribute it; and thoſe neareſt of Kin to him to enquire of its Diſpoſal, and if not performed according to the Will to take it into their Hands.

In Commemoration of Mr. Roger Tweedy:

Who living, was Landmen's, Counſellor, Seamens Glory,
Schifm's Scourge, and Truth's living Story;
His Soul a Ship with Graces fully laded,
Thro' Surges deep did plow, and ſafely waded.
With Principles of Faith his ballanc'd Mind,
Did ſteddy ſail 'gainſt Blaſts of boiſterous
Wind, &c.

At Rotherhith he did at length arrive,
And to their Port his Tribute freely give;
And in this Port he did at Anchor ſtay,
Hopefully expecting Reſurrexion's Day.

On

On the North Side of the Church; in the Church-Yard, is a Tomb with this Inscription :

As the Earth the Earth does cover;
So under this Stone lies another.

Here lyes interred in this Vault the Body of Capt. Thomas Stone, Junior, of this Parish : He departed this Life the 9th of August, 1666, and had to Wife Agnes, which surriveth :

To you that live possess'd, great Troubles do befall,

Where we that sleep by Death, do feel no Harm at all.

An honest Life does bring a joyful Death at last,
And Life again begins when Death is over-past.
Death is the Path to Life, and Way to endless Wealth,

The Door whereby we pass to everlasting Health.
These forty Years and two have passed here my Life,

And eighteen Years thereof thou, Agnes, wert my Wife.

My loving Wife, farewell, God guide thee with his Grace ;

Prepare thyself to come, and I will give thee Place.

Acquaintance all, farewell, and be assur'd of this,
You shall be brought to Dust, as Tho. Stone here is.

On a Tomb-stone, on the South Side of the Church in the Cœmety, is this Inscription :

Here lyeth interred the Body of Anne Blake, late Widow of Capt. John Blake, of Rederiffe, who departed this Life the 21st of October, Anno 1681, and in the 65th Year of her Age; and with her lye buried four Sons and two Daughters.

In Jettepore the Head, in Calebar the Heart,
The Body here intomb'd must meet, tho' far a-part.

A Hatchment for Mr. Thomas Lewsley and Anne Lewsley, 1698.

On the South Wall a small Hatchment for Mr. John Roupe, 1678.

Under a flat Stone in the Chancel :

The Body of Thomas Pasfield, the faithful Yokefellow, and beloved Wife of George Pasfield, Esq; and the only Daughter of William Hacker of Rotherhith, Gent. 1659; also Thomasin, their youngest Daughter, 1660, and the said George Pasfield, 1660, and Samuel Pasfield, June 1700.

North Wall of the Chancel, a Hatchment for Mr. Phil. Mell, Mercer, second Son of Mr. Gustavus-Adolphus Mell, 1699.

Another small one for Joseph Lyne, 1688.

A flat Stone over Elizabeth Lock, Daughter of Charles Lock, 1683.

In the Middle Isle, a great Brass Plate torn off and gone, and a little Brass Plate thus inscribed :

This was made at the Charge of Robt. Bell.

Though Hills be dead, Hills Will and Acts survive, &c. as before.

In the North Isle, a flat Stone over Elizabeth, Wife of Capt. William Evan, 1703.

An Hatchment for Jone, late Wife of Jonas Shish, 1685.

VOL. II. N^o 51.

Another for Matthew Hungerford, Esq; late of Chisbury in the County of Wilts, 1677.

Elizabeth Wife of Gustavus-Adolphus Mell, Daughter of Lancelot Coppleston.

Capt. Nathaniel Pecket.

Here lyeth interred the Body of Mrs. Alice Buxton, late of this Parish, Widow; she departed this Life the 11th Day of November, 1722; aged 71 Years.

Here lies the Body of Mrs. Hannah Buxton, late Wife of Mr. John Buxton of this Parish, Shipwright, who departed this Life, April 2; Anno Domini 1731, and aged 55 Years.

She was a Woman void of Strife,
A tender Mother, and a loving Wife.

WE come next to

The PARISH of
St. MARY at Newington.

THE Church here is situated on the Westerly Side of Newington-butts, in the County of Surrey, and Diocese of Winchester, at the South End of Blackman-street, Southwark, and without the Walls, Liberty, and Freedom of LONDON.

THERE is no Author gives any Account of its first Foundation, but it is very old; the last Church here was built of Brick and Boulder, and the North Gallery in it was erected at the Expence of Sir Hugh Brawn, about the Year 1600, it was repaired in 1705; but upon a Sunday, in the Month of July, 1715, in the Time of Divine Service, there happened a sudden Rupture in the Wall, which put the Congregation, then assembled, into such a general Consternation that they all ran out, and many in making their Escape, were bruised and trodden under Foot, and received great Hurt. And upon a careful Review of the Church by experienced Workmen, (the Structure being very antient) it was found so much decayed in the Pillars, Walls, and Beams, and in the Roof and Foundation, that notwithstanding the Sum of 850 l. laid out in Repairs by the Parish, the same could not any longer be supported: And so, Anno 1720 all was taken down, and rebuilt from the Foundation; for which the Parish got a Brief, wherein the Charge was said to amount to 926 l. and upwards.

THIS Parish is called Newington-butts, because there were in antient Times Shooting-butts in this Place, and this Name distinguishes it from Stoke-Newington in Middlesex.

MONUMENTS.

On the North Side of the Church, near the East End, is a spacious marble Monument of the Corinthian Order, adorned with Columns, Entablature, and the Figures of himself, two Wives, four Sons and six Daughters, and all in a kneeling Posture, and this Inscription:

Deo Viventium, Pietati Sacrum.

Sir Hugh Brawn, Knight, the sole Founder and Adorner of this Isle; and, for the Space of 22 Years, the whole Ornament of this Parish, religious towards God, and respectful of the Poor, determining to provide against the Day of his Death, desires here to repose his Body, in a happy Hope of a glorious Resurrection.

Reader, it pleas'd th'Almighty to infuse
Sence of his Goodness in my fleshly Heart; Faith quicken'd Love, Love did his Church-
work chuse;

Both jointly here do shew themselves in part.
His be the Glory, Peace (Soul Sabbath) mine;
Prayer, Thanksgiving, Use, Example, thine.

1614. Vivens posui, Anno Ætat. 77.

His Arms: Argent, three Bars Sable, on a Canton, Or, a Griffin's Head erased of the second.

On the South Side of the Chancel is a white Marble Monument, thus inscribed:

Under the Communion-Table, in Hopes of a glorious Resurrection, lyeth the Bodies of James Reading, Esq; and Mary his third Wife, whose Exemplary { Piety towards God,

Integrity towards Men,
Charity to the Poor,
Humility to all, }

Made them { Live desired } by all that knew { Die lamented } them.

Lovely and pleasant they were in their Lives:
And in their Death not long divided. He departed this Life the 24th Day of November 1694, in the 70th Year of his Age.

She on the 9th Day of August 1696, in the 62d Year of her Age.

To whose Memory and Paternal Care their Son Edmund hath erected this Monument.

In the Church-yard.

Underneath this Stone lieth the Body of Anno Massey, who departed this Life Nov. 4, 1729; aged 16 Years and three Weeks, the Daughter of Thomas and Ann Massey.

Short

Short was my Stay;
Longer is my Rest,
God took me hence
Because he knew it best.

Ah! cruel Death, why did'st thou use thy Power,
To crop the Hopes of this my blooming Flower.

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Adcock, who departed this Life December 13, 1724.
Aged 39 Years.

Also six pretty Infants dear
Lie sleeping with their Mother here.
Cease dear Friends, and weep no more,
We are not lost, but gone before.

To perpetuate the Memory of Dorothy and Elizabeth, Wives of Robert Tedstell, was this Monument erected:

One died January 19, 1724, } Aged { 24 } Yrs:
The other died Oct. 28, 1725, } { 28 }

Entomb'd here lyes Youth, Beauty, Virtue, Wit,
Till they appear at the Tribunal Great:
Till in last Sound the dreadful Trumpet speaks,
When Judgment calls and quickned Nature
wakes,
Fearless, arise, they shall on Christ rely;
Through him Death's Sting, Grave's Victory to defy.

The PARISH of St. MARY at LAMBETH.

IN Lambeth is a most magnificent and antient Palace belonging to the Archbishops of Canterbury; adjoining to which, on the South West Side, is the Church; it is in the County of Surrey, in the Diocese of Winchester, near the Thames, being distant cross that River, from Westminster-Abbey, 750 Yards, and directly cross the River; from the South Part of Westminster, 350 Yards.

It is called St. Mary's, being dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, and Lambeth (as the great Camden saith) from Lamehithe, i. e. a dirty Haven, famous for the Death of Canutus, the valiant King of England; but since the Year 1183, more so from the Archbishop of Canterbury's Palace; Baldwin, A. B. exchanging with the Bishop of Rocheſter at that Time.

It is probably of an antient Foundation, having been for so many Years the Seats of Bishops, who seldom reside where there is no Church.
Mr. Weaver has it, That Hubert, Archbishop of Canterbury (who died in the Year 1205, July the 13th) finished a Collegiate Church at Lambeth, of Canons Regular, begun by Baldwin his Predecessor; which on Complaint of the Monks of Canterbury to the Pope, was pulled down.

THE present Structure appears antient, and was so as to require a new Roof over the middle Isle, and a Reparation of the Walls, Anno 1681, by which, and some other Circumstances, it cannot be supposed less than 200 Years old. The North Gallery was given by Mr. Roger Jenson, in the Year 1615. But the present North Gallery was erected at the Charge of the Parishioners, in 1705; and the South Gallery in 1699. The Church was last beautified and adorned in the said Year 1705, with Wainscot, Painting, Carving, &c. hereafter accounted for.

As to the Nature and Order of the Building, the Church within is pleasant, the Walls are built of Boulder, with some Brick and Stone rendered over (except the Tower) with a Finishing; the Floor pav'd with Stone, and the Roof covered with Lead; the Bases of the Pillars are Octogonal; the Arches, and most of the Windows, are of the modern Gothick Order; the Floor of the Chancel is two Steps higher than that of the Church, and there are three Isles;
the East End of the North Isle is called Howard's Chapel, (some of the Duke of Norfolk's Family being bury'd there) and that of the South Isle, Leigh's Chapel, Sir John Leigh, Son of Ralph Leigh, Esq; Lord of the Manor of Stockwell, and his Lady, being there buried. Here is also a Tower and Turret.

THE Church is ornamental; the Roof over the Nave is ceiled with Plaster, but the Side-Isles with Timber; the Walls mostly wainscotted about seven Feet high, and higher about the Altar; the Pews are new fronted with Oak; in the

the North and South Isles; the Galleries have also Oak Bolection-work Fronts; and over the Entrance into the Chancel, is a spacious Piece of Ornament, i. e. the Decalogue between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, the two first supported by Moses and Aaron in their Habits, the latter sustained by two Angels. Immediately over the Commandments is a Glory surrounded with Cherubims, all finely done between two Columns, of the Corinthian Order. Above these are the King's Arms, adorned with Cupids between the Portraits of two Fames well painted, the one founding a Trumpet, the other holding a Flaming Heart.

THE Altar-piece is light Cedar-colour, adorned with carv'd Pilasters (having gilded Capitals); and Entablature and Compass-Pediment, of the Corinthian Order; under which Pediment is a Glory, and these Words in Capital Characters, Lift up your Hearts; and on the Cornice, at each End of the Pediment, is a Vase or Lamp, the whole being inclosed with Rail and Baluster.

IN the East Window is painted

I.H.S.

Or, Jesus Holy Saviour; and over the Pulpit, in the Glass, the Effigies of a Pedlar and his Dog, who gave (besides the following Gifts) one Acre of Land, on Condition the said Picture be from Time to Time kept in good Repair.

DIMENSIONS of the Church and Chancel; Length 111 Feet, Breadth 53, Altitude about 38, and that of the Tower 87, to the highest Part of it.

THERE is no Table of Benefactors, but the Principal to the Poor are as follow:

Mrs. Oakley, in Bread, per Ann. for ever 13 l.

Mr. Smith per Ann. 12 l.

Capt. Forster gave 50 l. or twenty Three-penny Loaves every first Sunday in the Month.

Mrs. French the Use of a Pall.

Mrs. Baston the Use of another, computed together at about 12 l.

Mr. Soldwel in Cloth, 6 l.

Ralph Snow, Esq; gave the Ornamental Painting, and the Altar-piece, and a Branch.

Mr. Eston gave 100 l.

Mr. Walker 18 l. per Ann.

A Pedlar, besides an Acre of Land valued per Ann. at 6 l. gave also to the then Archbishop 100 l.

To the Rector, 20 l.

To the Clerk and Sexton, each 10 l.

Mrs. Tredescant gave, for Leave to erect a Monument, 50 l.

MONUMENTS.

On the North Side, on a Marble Table, is the following Inscription:

Here under this Tomb lyeth buried the Body of Thomas Clere, Esq; Son of Robert Clere in the County of Norfolk, Knt. Which Thomas deceased the 14th Day of April, An. Dom. 1545, on whose Soul, and all Christian Souls, Jesus have Mercy.

And upon a Table hung up was an Epitaph made by the Right Noble Henry Earl of Surrey, being thus written:

Epitaphium Thomæ Clere, qui fato functus est 1545, auctore Henrico Howard Comite Surrey. In cuius fœlicis ingenii specimen & singularis Facundiæ Argumentum, appensa fuit hæc Tabula per W. Howard filium Thomæ nuper Ducis Norfolkciensis, filii ejusdem Henrici Comititis.

Norfolk sprung thee, Lambeth holds the Dead;
CLERE, of the County of Cleremont, thou Height:

Within the Womb of Ormond's Race thou bred;
And saw'st thy Coffin crown'd in thy Sight:
Shelton for Love, Surrey for Lord thou chace,
Ah! me, whilst Life did last the League was tender,

Tracing whose Steps, thou sawest Kelsal base,
Landerley burnt and batter'd Bulleyn render.
At Muttrel Gates, hopeless of all Recure,
Thine Earl, half dead, gave in thy Hand his Will.

Which Cause did thee this pining Death procure;
Ere Summers four Times seven thou couldst fulfill.

Ah! CLERE, if Love had booted, Care or Cost,
Heaven had not won, nor Earth so timely lost.

In the Chancel on the North Side, is an old Tomb, on which was this Inscription, long since obliterated:

Sub Pedibus ubi statis jacet Corpus Magistri Hugonis Peyntwin, Legum Doctoris, nuper Archiep. Cant. Reverendissimorum Patrum, Dom. Johannis Morton Cardinalis, Henrici Dene, & Willielm. Warrham Curia Archiep. Audien. Causarum Auditoris. Qui obiit VI. die Augusti, Anno Dom. MDIII. Cujus animæ propitiatur Deus. Amen.

On a Flat Stone before the Communion-Table, within the Rails, is thus written:

Volente Deo.

Hic jacet Richardus Bancroft, S. Theologiæ Professor, Episcopus Londinensis primo, deinde Cantuariensis Archiepiscopus, & Regi Jacobo à Secretioribus Consiliis. Obiit secundo Novembris, Anno Dom. 1610. Ætatis suæ 67.

Volente Deo.

On another Flat Stone is thus written:

Here lyeth the Lady Elizabeth Howard, some Time Countess of Wiltshire.

On the South Side

Lyeth the Body of Sir Noel Caroon, Ledger Ambassador for the States of Holland, with his Arms and Hatchment; as namely, his Crest, Helmet, Arms, Sword, Gantlet, and Spurs.

In the South Chapel is a fair Monument of Marble engraven as followeth:

Here Lyeth Sir John Leigh, Knight of the Bath, Son of Ralph Leigh, Esq; Lord of the Manors of Stockwell and Levehurst, and Dame Isabel his Wife, Daughter of Otwell Worsley. Which Sir John deceased the 17th Day of August, Anno Dom. MDXXIII. And the same Isabel deceased the 18th Day of April.

On the upper End on the Wall, a Monument as followeth:

Here lieth the Body of John Arundell of Gwar-nicke, in the County of Cornwall, Esquire, Sonne and Heire of Roger Arundell, of the said County, Esquire, of an antient, honourable, and faire descended Family, who died the 25th of May, 1613, without Issue, and in the 56th Yeere of his Age.

Sape & prævale.

ARMS here: Sable, three Chevronelles Argent.

In the same Place, near the last, a Monument in Memory of John Goston, Esq; but nothing notable in the Inscription.

Ob. May 1636. Aged 70 Years.

ARMS: A Unicorn's Head erased, quartered with Ermin. No Colours.

On

On the North Side of the Choir is this Inscription, against the Wall near the Rails, with the Effigies half Way :

Neere to this Place lyeth interred the Body of Robert Scot, Esquire, descended of the antient Barons of Bawery in Scotland. Hee bent himself to travell, and study much, &c. And, amongst other Things, he invented the Leather Ordnance, and carried to the King of Sweeden 200 Men; who, after two Yeeres Service, for his Worth and Valour, was preferred to the Office of Quarter-Master General of his Majesties Army; which he possessed three Yeeres. From thence, with his Favour, he went into Denmarke, where he was advanced to be General of that King's Artillery. There being advised to tender his Service to his own Prince, which hee doing, his Majesty willingly accepted and preferred him to be one of the Gentlemen of his most Honourable Privy Chamber, and rewarded him with a Pension of 600 l. per Annum.

This deserving Spirit, adorned with all Endowments befitting a Gentleman, in the Prime of his flourishing Age, surrendered his Soul to his Redeemer, 1631.

Of his great Worth to know who seeketh more,
Must mount to Heaven, where he is gone before.

In France he tooke to Wife Anne Scot, for whose Remembrance she lovingly erected this Memorial.

ARMS are: Or, three Lions Heads erased Gules; impaled with Vert a Greyhound springant Argent.

Overagainst the other, in the same Isle, lieth the Body of Elizabeth Bayly, late Wife of John Bayly. Obiit June 24, 1629. Ætatis suæ 25.

Reader, tread soft, under thy Foot doth lye,
A Mother buried with her Progeny:
Two Females and a Male, the last a Sonne,
Who with his Life, his Mother's Thred hath spun,
His Breath her Death procur'd (unhappy Sinne, That thus our Joy with Sorrow ushers in.)
Yet he being loth to leave so kind a Mother,
Changes this Life to meet her in another.
The Daughters first were robb'd of vital Breath,
The Mother next in Strength of Yeeres met Death,
The Father's only Joy, a hopeful Sonne,
Did lose his Life when Life was scarce begun.
If harmlesse Innocence, if loyal Truth,
Found in a constant Wife combin'd with Youth;
If a kind Husband's Prayers, or Father's Teares
Could have prevail'd, they had liv'd many Yeeres.
But these all fayling, here rak'd up in Dust,
They wait the Resurrection of the Just.
A Husband's Love, a Father's Piety,
Dedicates this unto their Memory:
And when he hath his Debt to Nature paid,
In the same Grave himself will then be laid,
That altogether, when the Trumpe shall sound,
Husband, Wife, Children, may in Christ be found.

On the South Side of the Choir, a small Marble Monument, with this Inscription:

Here lyeth four Feet Distance from this Wall the Body of William Suthes, Gentleman, a Man adorned with the Gifts of Grace, Art, and Nature. By Grace he was religious and charitable; he was in Masonry exquisite; by Nature he was human and affable. He, by God's Appointment, changed his human Life of Misery for a glorious Immortality, on the 5th of October 1625. His sorrowful and grateful Wife, Mrs. Anne Suthes, as a loyal Testimony of her Love to her deceased Husband, caused this Monument to be erected for an Exemplary of his Worthiness and her Affection. He was Master Mason of Windsor-Castle, a Citizen and Goldsmith of London, and an Assistant of the said Worshipful Company. He left three Sons, towardly and hopeful, to be each of them Imitators of their Father's Virtues, John, James, and Matthew. And herein the Reader may see express'd the Goodness of the deceased Husband, and the Thankfulness of a surviving Wife.

VOL. II.

He now sings praise among the Heavenly Host,
To God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

ARMS: Sable, on a Bend between two Cottises Argent, three Martlets Gules: Impaled with Barry of eight, Or and Sable; three Escutcheons Ermin.

Other antient Monuments there have been in this Church; as of Katharine Howard; one of the Sisters and Heirs of John Broughton, Esq; and Wife of L. William Howard, one of the Sons of the High and Mighty Prince L. Thomas, Duke of Norfolk. She deceased April the 23d, 1535.

In Howard's Chapel:

Good Dutcheß of Norfolk, the Lord have Mercy upon thee: Which dyed at Lambeth the last of November

On a Table:

Farewel, good Lady and Sister dere,
In Earth we shall never meete here;
But yet I trust, with Godis Grace,
In Haven we shal deserve a Place:
Yet thy Kindnesse shal nere depart,
During my Life out of my Heart.
Thou wast to me both fare and nere;
A Mother, a Sister, a Frende most dere;
And to al thy Freneds most sure and fast;
When Fortune had founded the froward Blast.
And to the Powre a very Mother,
More than was known to any other.
Which is thy Trefure at thys Day
And for thy Sowle they hertily pray.
So shall I do that here remayne;
God thy Sowle preserve from Payne.

By thy most bounden Brother,

HENRY Lord Stafford.

There be also these Monuments, besides those already mentioned, in this Church of Lambeth, and some of them more modern.

A large plain Stone in the Chancel, with this Inscription:

Hic jacet Thomas Thirleby, olim Episcopus Eliensis. Qui obiit xxvi Aug. Anno Dom. 1570.

Next beneath him lay the Stone of Bishop Tunstall, some Time Bishop of Durham; but a Pew is now erected over his Monumental Stone, which antiently was under the Communion-Table. Both these Bishops being confined by Queen Elizabeth's Command, in the Palace at Lambeth, whilst Matthew Parker was Archbishop, died there in Peace, and was buried here by his Order.

Near lyeth Elizabeth, one of the Sisters of William Sancroft, Archbishop of Canterbury, some Time Wife of Francis Herdson, Clerk; after whose Death she lived 17 Years a Widow indeed, and dyed Sept. 7, 1689.

At the Head of this Stone, a Stone for Katharine Battely, Wife of John Battely, S. Th. P. and Chaplain to the abovesaid Archbishop; she lived 23 Years, nine Months, nine Days; dyed the 1st of October, 1685.

John Alsop, Comptroller of the Family of Richard, Archbishop of Canterbury, afterward Treasurer to George Archbishop of Canterbury, died July 12, 1611. Ætatis 51.

On the Side of Archbishop Bancroft's Stone, within the Rails, lyeth a fair Stone over Miles Smith, Secretary to Gilbert Archbishop of Canterbury. Ob. 17. of Feb. 1671.

Without the Rails near adjoining, lyes Rob. Thompson, L. L. D. Secretary also to Gilbert and William Archbishops of Canterbury. Obiit Feb. 3, 1683. Ætat. 42.

In the North Chancel or Chapel, a plain Stone, round about thus engraven:

Hic jacet Margaretta castissima & integerrima Conjunx quondam Matthæi Archiep. Cantuariensis, Quæ obiit 17 Aug. An. 1570. —

The rest not legible.

In this Chancel or Chapel, is a standing Monument of the Duke of Norfolk, as is said, but the Inscription is pulled off.

On the Wall on the South Side of the Chancel is this Inscription:

In Memory of Anthony Burleigh, third Son of John Burleigh, late of the Isle of Wight, Esq; who was Lieutenant to King Charles I. of Blessed Memory, and was put to Death at Winchester, the 26th of Jan. 1647, for endeavouring to release his sacred Majesty, Prisoner in Carisbrook Castle in the said Isle of Wight. His two elder Brothers were slain at Worcester Fight, in the Forces of his present Majesty K. Charles II. This being the last of that Loyal Family, except his truly loving and sorrowful Sister, who caused this Monument to be erected. Obiit 17 of Febr. 1681. Ætat. suæ 48.

Spe Resurgendi.

Near this, a Monument of William Beeston of this Parish, Esquire, who died the 9th of August, 1679; and Jane his Wife, who died the 17th of May, 1652; left only one Daughter, who married Edward Leventhorp, Esq; by whom she had Issue three Sons and five Daughters.

In the South Chancel a Stone upon Elias Ashmole:

Hic jacet inclytus ille & eruditissimus Elias Ashmole Litchfeldiensis, Armiger. The PARISH of CHRIST-CHURCH in Surrey.

THIS is the last Parish within the Bills of Mortality. The Church here takes its Name from being dedicated to our Saviour CHRIST, pursuant to the Deed and Direction of the Founder.

It is situated at the South End of Bennet-street, on the South Side of Upper-Ground, in the County of Surrey, and within the Diocese of Winchester.

THE Parish was taken, by Act of Parliament, out of St. Saviour's, commonly called St. Mary Overree's Parish, it being that Part called the Liberty of Paris-garden; of this we have spoken before in Vol. I. Pag. 806 and 807. Mr. John Marshal was the Founder and Endower of the Church, which was built and finished in the Year 1671, the Steeple in the Year 1695, and the Altar-Piece in 1696.

THE Church is well built of Brick, and so is the Steeple, consisting of a Tower and Spire. The Roof is supported by Pillars of the Tuscan Order, and here is a Gallery built at the West End End, at the Charge of Mr. Richard How; and the Floor of the Chancel is four Steps higher than that of the Nave of the Church.

As to the Ornamental Parts, it is wainscotted round about six Feet and an half high, with Deal, and pewed with that and Oak.

THERE is likewise an Altar-Piece very neat, having the Commandments in Gold on Black, and the Creed and Lord's Prayer done in Gold on Blue, upon four Pannels, moulded round between as many Pilasters, of the Corinthian Order, with the Entablément. And on a Window in the Middle, is painted the King's-Arms, with the Supporters, Crest, and Motto. And Northward of that is the Bishop of Winchester's Arms, being Ruby, two Keys linked together in a Bend, the one Topaz, the other Pearl, and a Sword interposing between them Saltireways of the third, bilted of the second, impaled with Pearl, a Lion Rampant, Diamond crown'd with a Ducal Coronet; and for the Crest a Mitre. Likewise these Arms Southward from the King's: Argent, a Chevron, lettised Sable, between three Bucks Heads cabossed Gules, and for the Crest a Greyhound segreiant Argent. And these Words under the Arms, John Marshal, Founder and Endower of this Church 1671. And above the Window, in large Gold Letters on Black, the Words of 1 Cor. xi. 25, 26. and Anno Dom. 1696.

HERE are two Wainscot inner Door-cases, of the Corinthian Order; and over the Door near the South-East Corner of the Church, are these Words, Nosce Teipsum. Over the other Door that opens Southward, the Words in Psal. lxxxiv. ver. 1. And over the North Door, these Words, Cave! Deus videt.

ON the North Side of the Church, on the Wall, are the Words of Psal. cxxxii. 7, 8, 9. also of Psal. xxvii. 4. And on the South Side, the Words in Heb. x. 24, 25. and in Nehemiah xiii. 11. Also by the Pulpit, these Words: Verbum Dei manet in Aeternum. And those in 1 Cor. ix. 16. Prov. xiii. 13.

BY the Christening Pew, where is a Marble Font, but without Cover, the Words in Rom. vi. ver. 3.

The following were worthy BENEFACTORS to this Church.

Mr. William Angell, gave the Ground of the Church and Church-yard.

Mr. John Marshall, the whole and sole Founder of this Church, also settled upon the Minister 60 l. per Ann. for ever.

An EPIGRAPH in Memory of Sir William Blake, who deceased the 30th Day of October, Anno Dom. 1630.

Stay, Reader, gaze, admire,

And pass not slightly ore

The Casket of his Corps,
Embalmed in this Flore.

Let his industrious Hand,

Paterne of Paternes be;

And blazon forth his Worth

To al Posteritie.

And let his oft Footsteps

Unto this sacred Place,

Be pious Clues to guide

Thee to like holy Trace.

Let him in Peace rest here in Peace,

Till God of Peace return:

And give him Peace, that loved Peace,

And call him from his Urne.

Unto the Worldly Wife,
Death doth apologize.

Suspend thine own By-thoughts :
His Thoughts did ever aim at Good :
Had I forborne, they had
At full been better understood.

The Figure of Death lying under these Lines.

A very fine Monument is lately erected in this Church, in Memory of the late Earl of Warwick and Holland, on which is the following Inscription :

Hoc subter marmore conduntur exuviae
Edvardi Henrici, Comitis de Warwick & Holland,
Baronis Rich, & de Kensington,
Adolescentis nobilissimi,
Propriis tamen, quam majorum virtutibus, clarioris.

Inerat illi jam a pueritia,
In vultu ipso, in voce, gestuque corporis,
Virile nescio quid, & plenum dignitatis.
Miram sane ingenii ubertatem
Excoluit, atque promovit optima disciplina ;
Omnem doctrinam liberalem ab eo perceptam
Illustravit
Nativa quaedam, & quae virum nobilem deceret, eloquentia.

Ita natus, ita educatus, quam primum in lucem processit.

Dignus extemplo visus est,
Quem in amicitiam cooptarent homines primarii ;
Neque erat in amicitia jucundior quisquam, aut cordatior.

Ad aulam accessit,
Serenissimo Regi Georgio primo
A cubiculo, & brevi acceptissimus ;
Hoc sibi merito non ultimae ducebat laudi
Principi placuisse
Non minus acri ad judicandum, quam ad faven-dum pronus.

Tam aperta illi facilisque
Ad maxima quaeque cum pateret via,
Cum nihil ei defuit ad summam laudem, nisi
longa vita ;
In medio aetatis & fortunae curriculo,
Gravi febre correptus,
Spes audentissimas amicorum prope jam ratas
Immatura morte frustratus est.
Obiit die Aug. 16^{to}. anno 1721. aetat. 24.

Which may be thus translated :

Under this Stone, are deposited the Remains of Edward-Henry, Earl of Warwick and Holland, Baron Rich, and of Kensington, a most noble Youth ; yet more illustrious by his own Accomplishments, than by those of his Ancestors. Even from his Youth, in his very Appearance, in his Voice, and in his external Deportment, something becoming a Man, and expressive of his Worth might be discerned. The admirable Copiousness of his Genius, he cultivated and promoted by the best Literature, having attain'd a Knowledge of all the Parts of liberal Education, he adorn'd them by a certain innate Eloquence, and such as befitted a Man of Quality. Thus descended, thus educated, as soon as he enter'd into publick Business, he was instantly found worthy to be admitted into the Friendship of Men of the best Figure ; and never was there in Friendship, one more pleasing, or sincere. He came to Court, as a Lord of the Bed-chamber, and became shortly very dear to his most sacred Majesty King George I. He justly thought of this, as not the meanest Part of his Praise, to have been acceptable to a Prince, who was no less accurate in distinguishing Merit, than ready to advance it. Having so open and easy a Prospect to the Height of Dignity, when nothing was wanting in his Course to attain it, but Length of Life ; in the Midst of his Youth and Fortune, falling sick of a violent Fever, the most flattering Expectations of his Friends, now on the Point of being accomplish'd, were frustrated by his untimely Death. He died August 16, in the Year 1721, of his Age 24.

In the Church-yard are the following INSCRIPTIONS :

Here lyes the Body of William Partridge, who died November 24, 1726 ; aged 51 Years.

Here lyeth the Body of Mary, the Wife of John Cornforth, who dyed July 1, 1728 ; aged 54 Years.

Also two Children, John and Mary, of the Parish of St. George's Hanover-square, by Hyde Park-Corner.

Here lyes the Body of Mr. William Heaton, who departed this Life March the first, 1728-9 ; aged 45 Years.

Mrs. Susan Wingfield, died July 9, 1729, in the 58th Year of her Age.

Here lyes the Body of Mary, Daughter of Robert and Sarah Young, late of the Parish of St. James's Westminster, who departed this Life the 7th of October 1729 ; aged 22 Years.

Here lyes the Body of Tho. Marshall, Son of John and Avis Marshall of this Parish. He departed this Life the 7th of March 1733-4 ; aged 12 Years.

Mr. John Francis, of Clare-market, Fishmonger, died April 10, 1734 ; aged 45 Years.

Since Death will never be denied,
But doth the dearest Friends divide,
Lord grant that we may meet again,
In Heaven for ever to remain.
A careful Man, a Husband dear,
A faithful Friend lyeth here.

Here lyes the Body of Mr. James Biggins, of this Parish, who departed this Life the 11th Day of December, Anno Dom. 1734, in the 50th Year of his Age.

Another Monument on the South Side the Choir, with this Inscription :

Epitaphium D. Gulielmi Buttii Equitis Aurati, & Medici Regis Henrici Octavi, qui obiit An. Dom. 1545. Novem. 17.

Quid Medicina valet? quid Honos? quid Gratia Regum?

Quid popularis Amor, Mors ubi sæva venit?
Sola valet pietas, quæ structa est, Auspice Christo,
Sola in morte valet, cætera cuncta fluunt.
Ergo mihi in vita fuerit quando omnia Christus,
Mors mihi nunc lucrum, vitæque Christus erit.

Epitaphium hoc primitus inscriptum pariete, & situ jam penè exesum, sic demum restituit Leonardus Buttis, Armiger. Norfolciensis. Oct. 30, 1627. Amoris ergo.

Another Monument near the last, with this Inscription on it :

At Earth in Cornwall was my first Beginning,
From Bonds and Corringtons, as it may appear:
Now to Earth in Fulham God dispos'd my Ending,

In March the thousand and six hundred Year
Of Christ, in whom my Body here doth rest,
Till both in Body and Soul I shall be fully blest.

Thomas Bond. Obiit Anno Ætatis suæ 68.

Against a Wall in the Chancel there is a handsome Monument erected for the Lady Margaret Legh, with the Effigies of her and a Child in her Arms. She was Daughter of Sir Gilbert Garrard, Master of the Rolls, Wife to Sir Peter Legh of Lime, in the County of Chester; and by him Mother of seven Sons, and two Daughters. She dyed July the 29th, 1603.

Against the Wall, a Monument of William Plumbe, Son and Heir of John Plumbe, of Eltham, Esq; He married two Wives, Margaret, Daughter and Heir of Sir Thomas Nevyl, Kt. who was Widow of Sir Robert Southwel. His other Wife was Elizabeth, only Daughter and Heir of Edward Dormer, of Fulham, Esq; youngest Son of Geoffry Dormer, of Thame, Esq; Elizabeth's first Husband was John Gresham, of Mayfield in Suffex, second Son of Sir John Gresham, sometime Maior of LONDON; by whom she had three Sons, Thomas, William and Edward Gresham. William Plumbe, dyed February the 9th, 1593. Aged 60.

A Noble Monument of John Mordaunt, appearing in his Effigies, of white Marble, in full Proportion; younger Son of the Earl of Peterburgh; who was derived 600 Years ago from the Normans: And so in the Inscription is mentioned, Stemma Gentilitia Mordauntiorum, qui per Annos sexcentos, primum in Normannia, deinceps in Anglia floruerunt.

Osbertus Mordaunt,
Miles Normannus, &c.

This John married Elizabeth Cary, of the Family of the Earls of Monmouth; by whom he had many Children. He dyed June the 5th, 1675.

Thomas Winter, Armiger, Inclyti illius Winteri pronepos: Qui Hispanorum Classem (quæ vinci non potuit) fudit ———— Hic pacis filius in Indos Mercator Navigat.
And there in those East-Indies became Governor of Massalipatan. He is said to have been like another Joseph, raised to help his Relations reduced to Poverty for their Fidelity to the best of Kings. He dyed Jan. the 15th, 1681.

Upon a Stone on the Pavement, is this Inscription :

The Body of Thomas Carlos, Son of Colonel William Carlos of Staffordshire. Who departed the 25th Year of his Age, the 19th of May, 1665.

The Coat of Arms here engraven is, An Oak, on a Fess three regal Crowns: Given this Gentleman (together with the Alteration of his Name from Careless to Carlos) for his preserving of King Charles the Second in the Oak, after the Defeat at Worcester.

Before the Communion Table is the Monument of William Rumbold, Esq; Clerk, Comptroller of his Majesty's great Wardrobe, and Surveyor-General of all the Customs of England. Dyed in May, 1667.

On the South Side, a fine black Marble Stone, with these Words inscribed :

Sub certa spe resurgendi, hic jacent Reliquiæ Humphredi Henchman, Londini, Episcopus.

He was Almoner and Privy Councillor to King Charles the Second. Two Years Bishop of Salisbury, and twelve of LONDON. He dyed October the 7th, 1675. Aged 83.

Of antienter Date there were several others interred here, whose Monuments are gone, viz.

John Fisher, Treasurer to the Lord Cardinal Stæ Balbinæ, and Arch-Bishop of Canterbury. Who dyed 1463.

Lora, Daughter of John Blount, Lord Mountjoy, 1480.

Henry Compton, the late Rt. Reverend Lord Bishop of LONDON; lyes interred under a large black Marble Stone, encompassed with Iron Pallisadoes, at the East End of the Church-yard pretty near the Chancel, with this Inscription on-ly, engraven upon the Middle of the Stone, being the Words of St. Paul, Gal. vi. 14.

M D C C X I I I

At the Head of this Tomb, upon the Ground, lyes a black Marble Stone, over the Body of the said Bishop's Brother.

Sir Francis Child, Knight, late Alderman of LONDON, lyes also buried in this Church-yard, under a black Marble Stone, enclosed with an Iron Palisado. The Insignia of the L. Maior, viz. The Sword and Mace engraven on the North and South Sides; and his own Coat of Arms, and his Lady's at the Head and Feet. The Words of the Inscription are as follow:

In a Vault under this Tomb is deposited the Body of

Sir Francis Child, Kt. and Alderman, and President of Christ Church Hospital in LONDON,

Who departed this Life, October the 4th, 1713. Ætat. 71. He was Lord Maior in the Year 1699: And in the Year 1702, he was chosen one of the four Citizens, to serve for the said City in the first Parliament of the Reign of Queen Anne.

He married Elizabeth, the only Daughter and Heiress of William Wheeler, Goldsmith. By whom he had 12 Sons and 3 Daughters. The Bodies of his Sons James and William, and of his Daughter Martha, Wife of Anthony Collins, Esquire, are removed from the Church into this Vault.

Near the West Door is a Grave-Stone, with the following Inscription:

In hopes of a joyful Resurrection:

Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Rench, late Gardiner of this Parish, he departed this Life the 31st day of March, 1728, in the 98th Year of his Age.

Christ was to me as Life on Earth,
And Death to me is Gain;
Because I trust in Christ alone
Salvation to obtain.

Prepare to follow me.

Another, near the last, thus inscribed:

Here lyeth the Body of Nicholas Nayler, who departed this Life, September the 23d, 1734. Aged 52 Years.

Pale visag'd Death has took a Husband kind,
A faithful loving Friend; left mourning Wife behind.

P U T N E Y.

OF the Bridge over the Thames, between this Town and Fulham, we have already given some Account. VOL. I. Page 42.

In the Church at Putney are the ensuing Monuments.

This Monument is in the Chancel on the North Side, and hath this Inscription:

Memoria Sacrum.

Here lyeth the Body of Richard Lusher, of Putney, in the County of Surrey, Esq; who married Mary, the second Daughter of George Scot, of Stepleford Tauney in the County of Essex, Esquire. He departed this Life the 27th of September, Anno 1615. Ætatis suæ 30.

What Tongue can speake the Vertues of this Creature,

Whose Body faire, whose Soule of rarer Feature?
He liv'd a Saint; he dy'd a holy Wight,
In Heaven, on Earth, a joyful heavy Sight:

Body Soule united, agreed in one,
Like Strings well-tuned in an Uni-son.

No Discord harsh this Navel could untie,
'Twas Heaven, the Earth this Musicke did envie:

Wherefore may well be said, he lived well;
And being dead, the World his Vertues tell.

Though Richard Lusher sleepeth in the Dust,

He sleeps in Hope, and hopes to live again;
His Soul in Heaven is waking with the Just,

And wakes in Joy, being freed from Sense of Pain.

Bones, take your Rest, your Soul in Heaven attends,

The blest Re-union of two loving Friends.

Marito dilectissimo, Maria Lusher, conjux Mœstissima, in perpetuum Amoris Testimonium, hoc Monumentum plorans posuit.

Mary, (by her first Match married Lusher) Daughter of George Scot, Esq; descended from John Scot, Lord Chief Justice of England in the Reign of King Edward the Third; and after Wife to Thomas Knivet, descended from John Knivet, Knight. Lord Chief Justice in the same King's Reign, and Lord Chancellor of England:

To Thomas Knivet.

That you have laid my Body here,
By that first Side I lov'd so dear,
I thank you, Husband: That the Poor
Are still your Care, I thank you more.
These last I charg'd you with alive,
Being done, I rest, while you survive.
But yet I have another Boon,
When Fate shall come, (as come full soon
It will, and will not be deny'd)
That you would close my other Side.
Y'ave thought it worthy to be read
You once were second to my Bed;
Why may you not like Title have,
To this my second Bed, the Grave?
This Stone will cover us all three,
And under it we shall be free
From Love, or Hate, or least Distrust
Of Jealousy to vex our Dust:
For here our Bodies do but wait
The Summons for their glorious State.

On the same Monument is this Inscription:

Quam Diu, Domine.

Siste,

Siste Hospes:

Quod Reliqui est Lectissimæ Fœminæ

O Christianæ perfectionis Imago,

Injuriarum contemptrix Facilis,

Doloribus Ferendis Fortis:

Omnes in te certabant virtutes,
sed vicit Pietas.

Fulges etiam in ipsa mortis umbra,
Divini amoris, dum vixisti, Flammia,

Et postquam vixisti, Astrum.

Vale, Vale, Maria:

Nullum de te dolorem,

Nisi ex Acerbissima tua morte,

Accepi.

At (Cara Conjux) non ego te desinam

Lugere, donec vi doloris obrutus,

Meis & ipse liquero luctum parem.

Later MONUMENTS erected in this Church of Putney are these that follow:

On the North Side, next the Pulpit, one for James Martin of LONDON, with this Inscription:

D. O. M. S.

Hic situs est JACOBUS MARTYN Londini oriundus, ejusdem Civitatis Municeps, & Orna-mentum non vulgare. Facultate sua tam sollicitè diligens, ut Procurator Dei visus sit. In omni Contractu tam feliciter secundus, quasi a Deo fidelis agnitus. Moribus sine fūco, & fallaciis, & ab omni fastu alienissimus: Pietate insigni, super ævum Fide, & supra Fidem Charitate. Quam vividus assidue exercens, ipsa morte extendebat.

Upon the same Stone are these English Verses added in his Praise:

Blessings and Vertue here do ly,
Examples for Posterity.
His Piety no Fashion had,
But scrup'lous Care t'avoid the Bad.
His Hope did then most firm appear,
When Death, fierce Champion, drew near.
His Faith was such as would have stood
An Abraham's Trial wrote in Blood.
His Charity above them all:
Yet neither fond nor prodigal.
His Dealing, Friendship, Moral Parts,
Shewed his own, won others Hearts.
He was and is, take him in Gross,
The common Love, the common Loss.
James Martyn said, his Name alone,
Is all, both Epitaph and Stone.

Sæculum æternitate commutavit Decembr. 2^o
Anno Dom. 1651, Ætatis suæ 54.

Next, on the same Side, is a white Marble
Pillar, thus inscribed:

Sir Thomas Dawes, Knt. dyed Friday the 5th of December 1655.

And underneath, upon the same Pillar:

Dame Judith Dawes, the 28th of Jan. 1657; slept here with her Husband: To whose Memory she erected this Pillar.

Next to this, on the same Side, is a middle sized Monument, thus inscribed:

Near to this Place lyes the Body of Sir Robert Wymondesolde, who departed the 28th of July,
1687, in the 24th Year of his Age: Together with three of his Sons, Thomas, William, and Robert, who dyed all Infants.

On this Side near the Communion-Table, an Inscription on a white Marble for Andrew Welch, Merchant, departed the 2d of June 1704, in the 30th Year of his Age.

Over-against it, a small white Monument for
Tho. Paine, Esq; Sergeant at Arms for 36 Years to the Crown. Departed the 25th of December
1698, in the 66th Year of his Age.

Near to it, another Oval Monument, with this Inscription:

M. S.

Therefore prepare to follow me.

WANDSWORTH.

IN the Church at Wandsworth, are the ensuing Monuments :

In the Chancel :

On the North Side of the Communion-Table lyeth a flat Stone, on which in a Brass Plate is this Inscription :

Under a Stone, within this Place,
Doth lie John Powel, who for the Space
Of thirty Years before his Death,
Did serve the Queen Elizabeth :
And to King James, of worthy Fame,
For nine Years more he did the same.
And when the Years of seventy four
Were now come to an End,
Into the Hands of God above,
His Soul he did commend.

Obiit 26. die Junii
Anno Dom. 1611.

Against the East Wall is the Figure of a Man kneeling, and under him is thus written :

Here lyeth the Body of Henry Smith, Esq; some Time Citizen and Alderman of L O N D O N, who departed this Life the 30th Day of January, Anno Dom. 1627, being then near the Age of 79 Years; who while he lived gave unto these several Towns in Surrey following, One Thousand Pounds a-piece, to buy Lands for Perpetuity, for the Relief and Setting the poor People on Work in the said Towns, viz. To the Town of Croydon one thousand Pounds; to the Town of Kingston one thousand Pounds; to the Town of Guilford one thousand Pounds; to the Town of Dorking one thousand Pounds; to the Town of Farnham one thousand Pounds; and by his last Will and Testament did farther give and devise, to buy Lands for Perpetuity for the Relief, and setting their Poor on Work, unto the Town of Rigate one thousand Pounds; and unto this Town of Wandsworth, wherein he was born, the Sum of five hundred Pounds, for the same Uses as before : And did farther bequeath one thousand Pounds, to buy Land for Perpetuity, to redeem poor Captives and Prisoners from the Turkish Tyranny : And not here stinting his Charity and Bounty, did also give and bequeath the most Part of his Estate, be-Mœrens ejus Maritus, hoc Qualecunque Monumentum Epitaphium, Amoris vere conjugalis ergo, posuit composuit,

D. C.

This Stone doth tell, the Children and the Mother,

That liv'd and dy'd all in one Year together:
The Children first Death did deprive of Life,
Yet staid not here, but took away the Wife.
Insatiate Death, not with the Fruit content!
But thy last Malice on the Tree hast spent.
Her virtuous Life it needful were to praise,
That's still the Gloss to cover vicious Ways:
I'll say but this, that all who knew her well,
For Life, for Death, will say she did excel.

It is a middling handsome Monument, the Letters are in Gold.

Another Monument against the North Wall of the Chancel, with this Inscription:

To Henry Hussey, Esq; his loving Wife Judith Paget hath erected this Monument. He was born at Slinkfold in Suffex: He was Clerk of the Spicery to Queen Elizabeth and King James, and lived in the Court 35 Years. He deliver'd his Soul to God the 23d of May, 1611, in the 64th Year of his Age. His Body lyeth buried here, waiting for a joyful Resurrection.

Besides these, are many other Monuments of the Dead, some more antient, some more modern, viz.

In the Chancel.

On the Ground, on a Brass Plate, this Inscription:

Here lyeth the Body of Richard Ratcliff, late of Battersey, Gent. who deceased the 8th of July, 1587.

On the Stone was the Figure of a Man, but the Brass torn off.

On the North Side of the Table, a Brass Plate very Antient, thus engraven:

Undre this Stone John Stanley lyeth.
Pray for hym and Kateryn hys Wyf.
For such Gooden God hem sent,
They gaf to the Chirch with good Entent.
For that, for their Solles doon pray,
Christ guyte ther Mede at Domys Day.

A fair Marble Stone thus inscribed:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Charles Chappel, Son of Mr. John Chappel, who was Prebendary of Salisbury fifty Years. He departed this Life the 6th of February, 1685, in the Year of his Age. He married Mary, Daughter of Sir Alexander Radclyff, Kt. of the Noble Order of the Bath: By whom he left one Daughter, viz. Anne, aged seven Years.

Next to this, the Figures of two young Men in Brass; and betwixt them, on a Brass Plate, these Words:

As we were, so are ye:
As we are, so shall you be.
Your selves by us see here, which lie,
Who dyed to live, though born to die.

And on another Plate under this, thus written:

Hereunder lie buried Rowland and William Prat, two of the Sons of Jacob and Margaret Prat, of Barmondsey in the County of Surrey.

An old Brass with three Lines; and another Brass with Arms. The Inscription is as followeth:

Hic jacet Robertus Moro de Devonio, quondam de Interiori Templi. Qui obiit 7mo die mensis Septembr. Anno Dom. MCCCCLXVIII. Cujus anime propicietur Deus. Amen.

South Isle. South Wall.

A Woman kneeling against a Desk, and this Inscription:

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Hillary, late the Wife of Thomas Hillary, Gent. both deceased. Whose Love, Piety, and Charity to the Poor, deserveth never to be forgotten. She dyed an old Woman, childless, the 10th Day of September, Anno Dom. 1592.

Roland Benson, Gent. being her Kinsman, and brought up by her, (who likewise departed this Life the 9th Day of October, 1606, and lyeth buried hard to this Church Wall) carefully in his Life-time, at his Cost, provided this Monument, to shew his Thankfulness unto her; and for her Remembrance.

Edwardus Randolph, Armig. eorum Con. hoc Monumentum post eorum mortem confici fecit.

Lower:

Near this Place are buried the Bodies of Nicolas Wyld of London, Merchant, and Inhabitant of this Parish, and Elizabeth his Wife. With whom he lived 35 Years in Marriage, and had four Sons and five Daughters by her. One of which Sons, viz. John was buried by them. Elizabeth his Wife dyed the 1st of April, 1688, aged 58. And the said Nicolas Wyld departed this Life the 15th of April, 1693, being the 73d Year of his Age.

Next, a very fair Monument of white Marble: On the Top of all, an Head of Sir Edward Wynter curiously cut. This is the Epitaph:

P. M. S. Edwardi Wynter, Equitis. Qui adhuc puber ex patria proficiscens in Orientalibus Indiis Mercaturam feliciter exercuit, magnas Opes comparavit, majores conflaturos, si non sprevisset. Ibidem splendide vixit, & honorifice post annos 42 Angliam revisit. Uxorem duxit Emmam filiam Richardi Howe, Armigeri, Norfolciens. Deceffit Martii 22, Anno ætatis 64. Anno Domini, 1685-6.

Posuit marito optimè de se merito ux. mœstissima.

Born to be Great, in Fortune as in Mind,
'Too great to be within an Isle confin'd:
Young, helpless, friendless, Seas unknown he try'd:
But English Courage all those Wants supply'd.

A preg-

A pregnant Wit, a painful Diligence;
Care to provide, a Bounty to dispense,
Joyn'd with a Soul sincere, plain, open, just,
Procur'd him Friends, and Friends procur'd him Trust.

These were his Fortune's Rise, and thus began
This hardy Youth, rais'd to that happy Man.
A rare Example, and unknown to most,
Where Wealth is gain'd, and Conscience is not lost.

Nor less in martial Honour was his Name,
Witness his Actions of immortal Fame.
Alone, unarm'd, a Tyger he oppress'd,
And crush'd to Death the Monster of a Beast.
Thrice twenty mounted Moors he overthrew,
Singly on Foot; some wounded, some he slew;
Dispers'd the rest. What more could Sampson do?

True to his Friends, a Terror to his Foes.
Here now in Peace his honoured Bones repose.

Under these Verses is writ,

VITA PEREGRINATIO.

The Representation of both these his Exploits are engraven on the Monument.

In this South Isle is a flat Stone, with an Inscription; under which lyeth the said Edward Wynter.

On another Stone, on a Brass Plate, the Figure of a Man in a Gown, and a Woman, both standing, with their Hands together, and this Inscription:

and Rebecca his Wife; and John, Son and Heir of the said John, dyed Decemb. 31, 1666; and Mary his Wife dyed the 14th of May, 1659; and Samuel, Rebecca, and Edward, Brothers and Sister of the said John; and three Children of John Sayer, Gent. (now living, 1706) lie buried in the Middle Isle near this Place.

North Isle.

On a Brass Plate are these Words:

Hugh Morgan, late of Battersey, Esq; sleepeth here in Peace: Whom Men late did admire for worthful Parts. To Queen Elizabeth he was Chief 'Pothecary, till her Death.

And in his Science as he did excell,
In her high Favour he did always dwell.
To God religious, to all Men kind,
Frank to the Poor, rich in Content of Mind.

These were his Virtues, in these dyed he,
When he had liv'd an hundred Years and three.

On the same Stone another Plate, thus inscribed:

Hic jacet venerabilis vir Hugo Morgan: Moriebatur 13 die September, Anno Dom. 1613.
Cui Robertus Morgan Generosus, ejus ex fratre nepos saxum hoc amoris ergo posuit.

Maria Atkins, Reverendo in Christo Patri Gulielmo (Moreton) Episcopo Kildarensi in Hibernia nupta est.

Agnes, Edwardo Atkins, Armigero, filio secundo genito Roberti Atkins de Saperton in Comit. Gloucester. Militis Balnei, se Connubio junxit.

Elizabetha, Thomæ Tooke de Wormley in Com. Hertford. Armigero, desponsata est.

Et Rebecca, Wolstano Dixie, Armigero, (filio & Hæredi Apparenti D. Beaumontis Dixie de Bosworth in Com. Leicestr. Baronetti) se Matrimonio copulavit.

There farther belongs to this Monument three other curious Figures in white Marble, placed against the East Wall, somewhat advanced, which were Sir Richard's three deceased Children.

Under the first, which is a Female Child, holding between both her Hands a Death's Head, is this Inscription :

Here lyeth the Body of Rebecca, the Daughter of Sir Richard Atkins of this Place, Kt. and Bart. by Dame Rebecca his Wife. She departed this Life in the 9th Year of her Age, the 10th Day of June 1661.

Reader, survey with piteous Eye,
The Merciless Hand of Destiny :
Which, from a tender Parent's Breast,
With Fury tore this welcome Guest :
Still culling out the fairest Gem,
T'adorn his mighty Diadem.
But Heaven concern'd to hear those Cries,
Which did perform her Obsequies,
In Compensation, gave no less Than everlasting Happiness.

Under the second Figure which is a Lady sitting, having a Book in her Left Hand, with her Finger in it, and an Handkerchief in the other Hand) is thus written :

Here lyeth also the Body of Annabella, the Daughter of the aforesaid Sir Richard; who dyed at Paris, January the 1st, in the 19th Year of her Age, and interred here, Anno 1670.

9 U

Could

Could Tears have sav'd her precious Life, no doubt

A general Deluge had been poured out :
Or could the Skill of all the Learned have Prevail'd but to reprieve her from the Grave ;
Mankind had ne'er permitted so much Worth,
To their great Loss to vanish from the Earth.
She dyed young ; not that she really cou'd,
Be weary yet so soon of doing Good :
But fit for Heaven, she without Pretence,
Might justly scorn a meaner Residence.

The third Figure is a Man sitting in Armour, having a Commanding Staff in his Hand : Of whom is this Account given underneath :

And also the Body of Henry, the eldest Son of the aforesaid Sir Richard. He departed this Life the 5th of February, 1677. Ætatis suæ 24.

That Miroir of all Youth, whose Genius stood
So happily dispos'd towards all that's good :
And who could never, for the base Delight
Of filthy Sin, find any Appetite :
Here rests in Peace, until the Day shall come,
When Men must all receive their fatal Doom :
Then he, attired like a wedding Guest,
Shall be admitted to the Bridegroom's Feast :
Mean Time it shall be my continual Strife,
Next unto Christ to imitate his Life.

In the Church-Yard,

Are several Monuments, one on the South by the Wall, bearing this Inscription :

Conditur hoc tumulo Reverendi viri Sam. Symonds Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ Presbyteri, admodum pii, probi, prudentis, fidi animo quo digna fuit, & quod diu deperiit, ad Beatorum Consortium concessit 30 Jan. Anno Dom. 1699, & peregrinationis suæ 45.

Other Monuments, for Margaret Whiting, Wife of William Whiting, late Minister of Turin, departed 1676 ; for Mary, the Wife of Will. Kendrick, 1661 ; and John Kendrick their Son ; and of Rich. Birch, 1693 ; and Jane Birch, 1692 ; Thomas Barkley, late of LONDON, Goldsmith, 1695 ; and Hester Barkley, Widow, his Mother ; and Jane Wright, a Sister to the said Hester ; Elizabeth Leach ; Francis Bridges, late Citizen and Salter of LONDON ; George Langham, Esq; 1683 ; Tho. Juxon of Mortlake, Gent. 1705 ; Andrew Crawley, 1690, and Joseph his Son ; and Will. Manistie his Grandson ; and Wm. Shelden, Gent. aged 84, 1700.

In the Church-Yard,

Here lyeth the Body of Joanna Burch, late of this Parish, who died 29th of August, 1715, in the 28th Year of her Age.

Here also lyeth the Body of John Burch, Husband to the abovesaid Joanna Burch, who departed September 3, 1732.

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Hirst, who departed this Life October 10, 1722, aged 100 Years.

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. Margaret Wavell, late Wife of Mr. Richard Wavell of this Parish, who departed this Life February 22, Anno Domini 1723-4, Ætatis suæ 46.

Here lyes Sarah, the virtuous and loving Wife of Humphrey Bell, of LONDON, Merchant, who departed this Life the 5th Day of June, 1725, in the 34th Year of her Age ; and also three Children.

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. Mary King of this Parish, who dyed December the 17th, 1726, aged 68 Years.

On a very stately Monument is the following Inscription :

In hoc subtus Conditorio
Jacent Reliquiæ

Near the last is the following Inscription :

Under this Tomb lies interred the Body of Wm. Lethicullier, Esq; late of this Parish, who married Mary, Daughter of Henry Powell of the said Parish, Gent. by whom he had eleven Children, seven of which survived him, viz. Mary, John, Sarah, Anne, Elizabeth, Martha, and William ; he departed this Life Sept. the 17th, 1728, in the 82d Year of his Age.

Sufanna Stevens, who departed the 20th of September, 1728, aged 36 Years.

Beneath this Stone lyes interred the Body of John Ridlough, who died the 1st of July, in the 42d Year of his Age, 1729.

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. Martha Cox, late Wife of Mr. Thomas Cox of this Parish, who departed this Life March the 27th, 1732, aged 71 Years.

Also the Body of Mr. Thomas Cox, who departed this Life September 10, 1733, in the 73d Year of his Age.

CAMBERWELL.

Somewhat farther on this Side is situated the pleasant Town of Camberwell, where the antient worshipful Families of the Scots and Bowyers now (or lately) inhabited, with divers other fair Seats. This Parish takes in Peckham and Dulwich, famed for its purging Waters and the College.

THE Church is antient, and adorned with many Monuments for Remembrances of the Dead :

In the Chancel :

On the North Side, against the Wall, is an antient Monument raised from the Ground ; where, on a Plate of Brass, is the Effigies of a Woman kneeling, her Hands together, with a long Pair of Beads hanging at her Girdle, and reaching to the Ground ; and a Man in Armour also kneeling, Hands together ; Labels of Brass proceeding out of their Mouths, but torn away. Coats of Arms, some remaining, and some torn off. The Arms are, On a Fesse three Boars Heads coupé. Behind the Woman kneel seven Daughters ; behind the Man four Sons.

The

The Plate underneath them was thus inscribed, in the old Black Letter :

Of your Charite pray for the Sowl of John Scot, Esquier, and one of the Barons of the Eschequer, which John decefyd the vi. Day of September, in the xxiiii Yere of the Reygne of our Sovereign Lord King Henry the VIII. and in the Yere of our Lord God xv^c and xxxii. on whose Sowles Jesu have Mercy - - - - Amen.

By this Eastward, against the Wall, on a Brass Plate, is a Man in a Gown, kneeling, and eight Sons kneeling behind him ; and a Woman kneeling, with four Daughters behind her. The Inscription :

Here lye buried the Bodies of John Bowyer, Esquire, and Elizabeth his Wife, one of the Daughters of Robert Draper, Esquire. They had Issue eight Sons and three Daughters, and John dyed the xth of October, 1570 ; Elizabeth after married William Foster, Esquire, who had Issue by her, one Son and one Daughter, and dyed April 27, 1605.

On the South Side of the Table, against the Wall, a small Monument plated :

Here lyeth the Body of Mathye Draper, Esq; who was married unto Sense Blackwell, Daughter of William Blackwell, of LONDON, Esq; who dyed without Issue the 21st Day of July, in the Year of our Lord God 1577 ; his Picture and her's kneeling.

Next to this, Westward, against the Wall, on a very old Monument, is the Effigies of a Man and a Woman in Brass, kneeling ; behind him five Sons, behind her five Daughters, and this Inscription :

Hic jacet Rycus Skynner, & Agnes uxor ejus. Qui quidem Rycus, ob. 3d die Januar. Ann. Dom. MCCCCVII. Agnes vero ob. V^o. die Martii Ann. Dom. MCCCCLXXXIX. Quorum - - - - [Here must needs be a Mistake in the Date.]

Just over this is an Inscription, engraven in Stone :

Here lies interred the Body of Dame Anne Vernon, deceased the first of March, 1629, Wife she was to Sir Robert Vernon, Kt. Clerk of the Green Cloth to his Majesty, and Mother of seven Children to her Husband, yet living.

Her virtuous Life and godly End, God grant they all may imitate : That as she is departed in Peace, by God's Mercy, and through Christ's Merits, they may all at the last Day meet again in Joy.

Chancel, South Wall :

A handsome Monument there advanced some what higher for Dame Hester Bowyer, late Wife of Sir Edmund Bowyer of this Parish, Kt. and eldest Daughter of Sir Anthony Aucher, Knight.

There was a happy Sympathy between the Vertues of the Soul and the Beauty of the Body of the excellent deceased Person. She lived an holy Life, and dyed the Death of the Righteous, Decemb. 19, 1665.

A good Life hath but few Days, but a good Name endureth for ever.

Sir Edmund also (as he desired) lyes here by his most loving and well-beloved Wife. Likeness begat Love, and Love Happiness ; true Here, compleat in Heaven, where they reap the Fruit of Faith and good Works ; he dyed the 27th of Jan. 1681, aged 67.

Tam pios Cineres nemo conturbet.

In the Middle Isle :

Before the Communion-Table, the Figures of a Man and Woman in Brass, praying ; the Arms and Inscription torn off.

By this Stone, another with the Figure of a Child in Brass, but torn off with the Epitaph ; only a Part of the Label remains, containing these Words : Sancti Innocentes, orate pro nobis.

Lower in this Isle, an antiënt Figure of a Man in Brass, and thus written :

Hic jacet Mighel Skenner, Generos. qui obiit die Novembr. Anno Dni. Millimo CCCCLXXXX VII. Cujus anime propitiatur Deus. Amen.

Lower, under a fair Marble Stone, are buried four Sons of Robert Maddocks, Esq; and Anne his Wife, Roger, Richard, Robert, Roger, and afterwards was buried by she.

Margaret Dove, Wife to John Dove, Daughter of Thomas Kelette of Surrey, Gent. and had Issue by the said John five Sons and four Daughters, and deceased the 22d of April, 1582.

North Isle :

A Monument against the Wall of a Woman kneeling, with a Book before her. She was Jane, the Daughter of Sir Thomas Hunt, and Wife of Thomas Grimston. By whom she seems (for the Inscription is obscure) to have had ten Sons and three Daughters.

When twenty Years and - - - Days were spent
In wedlock Bands, and loyal Love's Delights ;
November 12 Day then she was content

This World to leave, and give to God his Right

Her 63 Year ful complete and ended,

Her Soul to God, to Earth her Corps commended.

Ann. Dom. 1604.

On a Brass Plate :

Here lies buried the Body of Thomas Muschamp, Gent. youngest Son of Francis Muschamp, Esq; married Elizabeth the Daughter of Thomas Nayler of Standish in the County of Lancaster, Gent. who departed this Life, in certain Hope of a joyful Resurrection, the 3. Day of May. Anno Dom. 1637. For whose Memory, Elizabeth his loving Wife, caused this Memorial, &c.

Engraven upon the same Stone :

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Pearse, the Widow of John Pearse, Gent. and Daughter of Francis Muschamp of this Parish, deceased, Esq; who departed this Life the 14 of May, 1694. Aged 84. And her dear Son George Pearse, Gent. April 29, 1685. Aged 48.

Henry Duntet, born at Horsham in Suffex ; dyed Novemb. 20, 1600.

On a Pillar, between the Middle Isle and North Isle, is erected a decent Monument, upon which is the following Inscription :

This Monument is erected in Memory of the virtuous Mrs. Joanna Vincent, by her most sorrowful Husband Thomas Vincent, Esq; one of the Justices of the Peace of this County, and Alderman of the City of LONDON. To whom she was Wife twenty Years ; and by whom he had five Sons and nine Daughters : The last, finishing her Mother's short, but pious, Course ; made Death her Triumph, not her Conqueror, in the 27. Year of her Age, the 22. Febr. 1654.

She

She was one of the Daughters of Thomas Burgefs of Horly in the County of Surrey.

In her Grave, at the Foot of this Pillar, is interred Vincent Blayney, Son to Richard and Elizabeth Blayney: He was Son to Henry Lord Blayney; and she the eldest Daughter of Thomas and Joanna Vincent. He was born the 17th, and buried the 29th of March, 1654-5. O Lord, how glorious art thou in thy Saints!

What Solomon scarce found, was truly here;
And Time to come will hardly find her Peer:
For all the Vertues now in one you find,
One of ten thousand, she excell'd her Kind.
Her vertuous Life, if writ, might t'all Instruction give;
To be a Wife, a Mother, Friend, and teach them live.

VINCENTI corona dabitur.

South Isle.

Against the East Wall, a Monument for Robert Waith, Gent. Pay-Master of the Navy, to King Charles the Second; who dyed the 28th of Octob. 1685. And Elizabeth his Wife, who dyed the 13th of April, 1667. And Rob. Waith, Gent. their eldest Son, the 16th of Decemb. 1686.

Against the South Wall in this Isle, a fair large Monument, thus inscribed:

D. O. M.

Here sleeps, in Hope of Resurrection, the Body of Sir Peter Scot, Kt. who having lived desired and beloved both of his Friends and Neighbours, deceased the 28th of June, 1622, and in the — Year of his Age. He married Elizabeth, eldest Daughter of Edmund Kedermister, Esquire, one of the Six Clerks of Chancery; and left behind him one Son and three Daughters, with their most sorrowful Mother; who, among other Testimonies of a pious Affection to his Memory, consecrated this Monument in her Tears.

Here might be Praises, but he needs not them;
Those Puffs the Vertuous and the Dead contemn;
For such are better pleased good to be,
Than to be called so; and such was he.
This then for Ostentation raise we not,
Nor out of Fear his Worth may be forgot;
But that the Readers, and the Passers by,
Reflecting on the Shrine of Death an Eye,
May mind their own, So neither will the Cost Seem vain, nor the Beholder's Labour lost.

Next adjoining on this Wall:

Juxta quam jacet ejusdem maritus PETRUS SCOT supradict. Qui Margaretam Clementis Spelmani Baronis Scaccarii filiam, viduam reliquit. Obiit 26. die Decembris MDCLXXXIX. Ætatis suæ XLIX, Lower on the said Wall, the Figure of an old Man in a Gown, kneeling; and on the Back of him, one kneeling in Armour, and a Woman in the same Posture facing him: And thus under-written:

John Scot, the Son and Heir of John Scot, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, being married to Elizabeth the Daughter and Heir of John Roberts of London, Merchant of the Staple at Calais, had Issue, John, Richard, Edward, William, Bartholomew, Aëtton: Being also married to a second Wife Chis, (the Widow of John Sandford) had Issue Mary; and by Margaret Borton, his third Wife, had Edgar and Southwel. Of which his nine Children, Bartholomew Scot the fifth Son, repairing the decayed Ruins of this Right Worshipful and antient Family, reviveth the Deceased.

Bartholomew Scot, the Son of John Scot, Esq; and Justice of Peace in the County of Surrey, having no Issue of his Body begotten, liveth notwithstanding after Death, by the never dying Commendation of his Vertues, being a valiant, wife and religious Gentleman; and leaveth behind him Peter Scot his Nephew, the Son of Aëtton Scot his Brother, whom he had carefully and lovingly fostered from his Youth, the Heir of his Lands, and the Hope of their Family. This Gentleman was married to three Wives; the first was Margaret the Widow of the Right Reverend Prelate and Martyr Tho. Cranmer, Archbishop of Canterbury. The second was Christian, the Widow of — Laud, Citizen of LONDON. And the third and last was Margaret, the Widow of William Gardiner, Esq; Justice of Peace in the County of Surrey.

Margaret the last Wife of Bartho. Scot, at her own Cost erected this Tomb, to the happy Memory of her beloved Husband.

In this South Isle, on the Pavement, is a Stone with a Brass Figure of a Man in Arms, and this Inscription:

Of your Charite pray for the Soul of Edward Scot, one of the Sons of John Scot, Esq; which Edward deceased the 29th Day of September, Anno Domini M^o CCCCXXXVIII. On whose Soul, and all Christian Souls, Jesu have Mercy.

This Gentleman is figured with a great long Sword, reaching to the Ground, hanging before him, fastened to his Belt, and a lesser Sword or Dagger hanging on the Right Side of him.

Anthony Stanlake, Esq; Citizen and Dyer of LONDON, who departed July the 26th, 1671. And Anthony Stanlake his eldest Son, 1671.

On the East Window in the Chancel of this Church is painted in the Glass between the Letters ters R. W. a Mitre and a Crozier-Staff struck through it, (which seems antient) for some Bishop of Winchester, probably a Benefactor here.

Also in the East Window of the North Isle, an antient Figure in the Glass, of a Lady crowned, her golden Hair hanging about her Shoulders, with a Sword in her Left Hand, the Point downwards, perhaps intended for Queen Elizabeth on her first Accession to the Crown, when Executions, so rife in the former Reign, were happily stopp'd.

Sir Richard was younger Son of an antient Family of Hitchin in Kent, seated afterwards at Horsley in Essex; who being Student in the Temple, was, by Robert Dudley, the great Earl of Leicester, taken into the Service of the Crown, where he was Governour of the United Netherlands; and was afterwards by Queen Elizabeth made Clerk of the Green-cloth, in which honourable Office he also continued under King James, until the Time of his Death, in May 1604, aged 65 Years.

Of Christopher Browne, Esq; Son and Heir of Sir Richard, 1645.

Of Thomazin his Wife, Daughter of Benjamin Gonson, of Much-Baddow in Essex, Esq; 1638.

Of Sir Richard Browne, Kt. and Bart. only Son of Christopher.

Of his Wife Dame Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir John Prettyman of Dryfeld in Gloucestershire, 1652.

This Sir Richard was Gentleman of the Privy-Chamber to King Charles I. and Clerk of the Privy-Council to his Majesty, and to King Charles II. And after several foreign and honourable Employments, continued Resident in the Court of France from King Charles I. and from King Charles II. to the French Kings, Lewis XIII. and Lewis XIV. from the Year 1641, until the happy Restoration of King Charles II. Anno 1660. He deceased 12 Febr. 1682-3, aged 78 Years, &c.

This Title was erected by John Evelyn of Sayes-Court, Esq; who married Mary, sole Daughter and Heir of Sir Richard.

Robert Castel of this Parish, Gent. 1698, a Man of excellent Worth: Margaret his Wife erected this Monument.

North Isle, against the East Wall:

GREENWICH.

THE next is Greenwich, a Town on the Bank of the River Thames.

HERE the Kings of this Land had a fair Palace and Park on a Hill adjoining to it: Part of which is turned into a vast Structure of Charity for the Reception and Harboursing of such who have served in the Royal Navy or Merchant-Ships; and by Reason of Wounds, Loss of Limbs, or Age, are disabled. Of this Hospital we have already spoke, Vol. I. Chapters VI. and XIV.

THE Church of Greenwich is a very handsome New Building, it is dedicated to St. Alphage, Archbishop of Canterbury, who is said to have been kill'd by the Danes in the very Place where the Church is built.

PRAYERS are said here twice every Day; that is, in the Morning between Ten and Eleven, and at Night between Six and Seven: And 12 Monthly Sermons are preached here on the Wednesdays before the first Sundays in each Month. For both which, by a Collection made in the Parish, is paid 30 l. per Annum.

THERE be two Free-Schools in this Parish, one founded by Sir William Boreman, Kt. for twenty Boys, who are to be boarded as well as taught. For which Use there is a large House appropriated for the Master and Scholars. The Boys wear Green Coats and Caps. This School is but of late Foundation, of thirty Years and upwards. For which the Founder left an Estate in Houses about the Church for ever. It was founded by Sergeant John R. . . . The present Schoolmaster is Mr. William Herringham, who hath a Salary of 20 l. a Year. These Boys wear Grey Coats.

In the Church are these ensuing MONUMENTS.

In the Chancel, on the South Side, a pretty Monument of a Man in Armour, kneeling at a Desk, with eight Sons behind him; and a Woman kneeling at the same, with seven or eight Daughters behind her. Over their Heads this Inscription:

Dilectissimæ Conjugi Saræ Heitonæ Franciscus Heitonus Viduus Mœstus, non sine Lachrymis, posuit.

O mea

O mea Sara, oculis multo mihi Charior ipsis
 Deferis (heu!) viduum cur ita Sara, virum?
 Tu secura manes, portu requiescis Amano,
 Non tibi fraus, moribus nec mala obesse valent.
 Tu pace æterna frueris, in vivis ovasque,
 Quippe tibi est terris gratior Aula Dei.

COLLEGE at Greenwich.

THERE is at Greenwich a handsome College built fronting the Thames, for the Maintenance of 20 poor Men and a Master, founded and well endowed by Henry Earl of Northampton, and committed by him to the Care of the Worshipful Company of Mercers of LONDON.

IN this College is a Chapel, where the Body of the said noble Peer is laid, whose said Body, together with his Monument, was lately translated by the said Company from the Chapel of Dover-Castle hither, where is a costly Mausoleum erected for him.

There is a black Marble Sarcophagus, resting upon Pedestals. Four Figures in white Stone, on the Corners of the Fabrick, resembling the four Cardinal Virtues. On the Top of all is the Figure of the Earl kneeling: His Hands clasped, his Sword by his Side, with his Robes of the Garter on. It is placed on the South Side of the Communion-Table. There is an Inscription on this Side, viz.

Inclutus hic Comes tria Hospitalia fundavit, & latifundiis dotavit, unum Greenwichi in Cantio: In quo xx egeni, & Præfectus: Alterum Cluni in Comitatu Salopiæ, in quo xii egeni cum Præfecto: Tertium ad Castrum Rising in Comitatu Norfolciæ, in quo xii pauperculæ cum Gubernatrice in perpetuum aluntur.

On the Wall South, by the Tomb :

Deo Patri Domini nostri Jhesu Christi, Omnipotenti, Glorioso, sempiterno, & Primæ Trinitatis individua Personæ, Henricus Howardus tri-næ & unius Majestatis Cultor obsequentissimus Fæsto quo natus erat B. Matthiæ Apostoli, devotissimè sua manu posuit, Anno Domini 1613, Februarii die 25^o.

Upon the West Side is this Inscription :

Johanne Griffitho huic Comiti ab Epistolis curante, Positum.

On the North Side of the Chapel is another Inscription, shewing the Removal of this Monument and the Body of the Earl from the Chapel of Dover Castle (of which he was Constable) to this Chapel, by the Company of Mercers, William Ivat, Esq; Master.

Upon a flat Stone in this Chapel :

Here lyeth buried the Body of Robert Gilbert, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, who was the Son of Thomas Gilbert of West-Beer in East-Kent, Gent. and Anne his Wife, who was the eldest Sister unto George Fitz-Gerald Earl of Kildare in Ireland; which Robert was late Warden of this College several Years, and dyed May 28, 1689, aged 63. In Memory of whom, his Son Robert Gilbert caused this Stone to be laid.

CROSSING again over the River Thames at Greenwich, we come to

POPLAR and BLACKWALL.

POPLER, or Poplar, is so called from the Multitude of Poplar Trees (which love a moist Soil) growing there in former Times; and there are yet remaining in that Part of the Hamlet which borders upon Limehouse, many old Bodies of large Poplars standing, as Testimonials of the Truth of that Etymology.

To

To Poplar adjoineth Blackwall, a notable Harbour for Ships, so called, because it is a Wall of the Thames, and distinguished by the additional Term Black, from the black Shrubs which grew on it, as on Black Heath, which is opposite to it on the other Side of the River: [Or, perhaps, from the Bleakness of the Place and Situation.]

THE Manor of Poplar did belong to the Crown, as some have informed; but now it is in the joint Possession of Thomas Middleton and William Benson, Esquires.

Poplar and Blackwall, which make one of the Tower Hamlets, is about seven Miles in Circumference; for about four of which, it bordereth on the Thames.

THE fertile Soil of the Marsh here is much admired, usually known by the Name of the Isle of Dogs. Of this Place we have spoke before in Book I. Chap. VI. Vol. I. and there given some Account how it came to be so called; but others say it had this Name, because, when our former Princes made Greenwich their Country Seat, and used it for Hunting, (they say) the Kennels for their Dogs were kept on this Marsh; which usually making a great Noise, the Seamen and others thereupon called the Place The Isle of Dogs; though it is not an Isle, indeed scarce a Peninsula, the Neck being about a Mile in Length.

THERE is in this Marsh, just opposite to Greenwich, an House, called, The Chapel House; where are the Remains of a Chapel built of Stone. And near this are Foundations of Houses found; and sometimes Hooks of a great Size, as though of some great Gate, taken up. Which maketh it probable, that hereabouts were Inhabitants formerly; perhaps Fishermen, or such as had their Livelihood from the Water: And that, by some Inundation, or the Unhealthfulness of the Situation, they left those Parts at length, for some more safe and commodious Settlement.

SUCH is the Fertility of this Marsh, that it produceth Sheep and Oxen of the largest Size, and very fat. They are brought out of other Countries, and fed here. I have been assured by a Grazier of good Report, (saith the Reverend Dr. Woodward) that he knew eight Oxen sold out of this Marsh for 34*l.* each. And all our Neighbourhood know, that a Butcher undertook to furnish the Club at Blackwall with a Leg of Mutton every Saturday throughout the Year, that should weigh 28 Pounds, the Sheep being fed in this Marsh, or he would have nothing for them; and he did perform it.

SOME other Matters of Remark happening here at Poplar, may be added. In the Time of the Elder Sir Henry Johnson, Kt. Ship-builder, an Horse belonging to his Ship-yard, was wrought there 34 Years, driven by one Man: And he grew to that Experience, that at the first Sound of the Bell, for the Men in the Yard to leave off Work, he also would cease labouring; and could not, by any Means, be brought to give one Pull after it. And when the Bell rang to Work, he would as readily come forth again to his Labour, which was to draw Planks, and Pieces of Timber, from one Part of the Yard to another.

A Person lately living in this Hamlet, having a great Concern for the Safety of a Ship that was like to break her Back at Blackwall, had his Blood and Spirits set into such an extraordinary Ferment, or Ebullition rather, by the Fear of her Miscarriage, that by the Violence of it, the Tops of the Nails of his Hands and Feet were cast off to a great Distance from their natural Situation, and so remained to his Death. And many Persons now living have attested the same.

A Sperma Ceti Whale was landed here not long ago; which, had the Owner known the Value of it, for making from the Blubber thereof (as they call it) Parma Ceti, might have brought him incredible Gain.

THERE is, in the Border of this Hamlet towards Bromley, a large Copperas Work; wherein a great Quantity of Copperas is made every Year.

Now for the Chapel of Poplar, and the Foundation, and of the Hospital, and the several Benefactors to that, and to the Poor of that Part of Stepney Parish, the following is an Account, given in a Letter from the late Minister thereof, Dr. Josiah Woodward.

“ I very willingly reply, Sir, to your Letter
“ of the 13th Instant, wherein you desire an Account of the pious and charitable Benefactions
“ in this Hamlet, because some of them deserve “ to be better known. And here it is but just
“ that I begin with the Society of the East India “ Company, not only because of my particular “ Obligations to that honourable Body, but also “ because their Bounty is the most considerable
“ of any, tho’ it be not confined to this Hamlet.

“ OUR Chapel, which is very large and commodious, was built on their Ground in the “ Year 1654, partly by the voluntary Contributions of the Inhabitants, Mr. Gilbert Dethick
“ leading the Way by the Gift of one hundred “ Pounds, and others of the Inhabitants following, according to their Ability and Disposition. But this pious Work was chiefly advanced by those very worthy Gentlemen, Mr.
“ Maurice Thompson, from whom the present
“ Lord Haversham is descended; and Mr. Thomas Tomlins, whom I must by and by mention again; who partly by their own Bounty,
“ but chiefly by their earnest Application to “ wealthy Persons of their Acquaintance, carried “ on this noble Building to its Perfection, at the “ Cost of above Two Thousand Pounds, as it is “ usually computed. And at the preaching of
“ the first Sermon in this Chapel, our aforesaid “ Benefactor, Mr. Thompson, gave an uncommon “ Instance of his great Humility and Piety, in
“ that he condescended to go into the Clerk’s “ Desk, and there named and set the First Psalm
“ that was sung in this Chapel. And though “ some, perhaps, thought that he did a Thing “ too mean for his Quality, as the Dancing of “ King David before the Ark was censured of “ old; yet the great Honour, whereby God has “ since distinguished his Posterity, may serve to “ demonstrate the sure Accomplishment of God’s “ Promises of exalting the Humble, and honouring those that honour him. But to return to “ our Benefactors:

“ EVER since the Building of this Chapel, the “ East India Company has been pleased to grant
“ to the several Ministers that have officiated “ therein, (of which, by the Providence of God,
“ I am the Fourth) the Yearly Allowance of “ twenty Pounds, as Minister of this Hamlet,
“ with a convenient Dwelling-house, Garden,
“ and a Pasture-Field of about three Acres: But “ they could never yet be prevailed with to grant
“ this otherwise than during their Pleasure; tho’
“ for Want of a settled Endowment, which the “ Lord Bishop of LONDON did very lately “ importune, by his Letter to them, the Consecration of this very decent Chapel has been “ hitherto deferred.

“ ABOUT the same Time that our Chapel was “ built, it pleased the East India Company to “ erect a School here for the Education of the “ Children of such Seamen as are or have been employed in their Service, to the Number of 24, “ endowing it with twenty Pounds a Year, and “ a Dwelling-house for the School-master. They “ also erected an Alms-house about the same “ Time,

" Time, for fourteen Seamen disabled in their Service by Age or Accidents; to each of which they allot particular Pensions, according to their Circumstances; as they do likewise to many others, who are not lodged in their Alms-house; they that have least having the Allowance of two Shillings and Six Pence a Week, with half a Chaldron of Coals for the Winter, and a superadded Bounty at Christmas, when the Gentlemen of the Committee come down hither to distribute an hundred Pounds, and sometimes much more, to the Widows and Orphans of such Seamen as have served them; which has been their Practice for many Years past.

" IN the Year 1665, Mr. John West gave a Rent-Charge of twelve Pounds a Year, to be distributed among twelve poor Men, and as many poor Women of this Hamlet, at the Yearly Feast of our Blessed Saviour's Nativity. SOME Time before this, Capt. John Crouthers gave an House, now divided into three Tenements, for the Use of the Poor of this Hamlet for ever, with a Weekly Allowance of Bread.

" IN the Year 1669, Capt. William Curtis bequeathed a Rent-Charge of sixty Pounds a Year, for the Release of poor Prisoners, the Relief of aged People, the placing out of poor Children to Trades, and a weekly Distribution of Bread, for the Benefit of the Poor in the Hamlets of Poplar, Limehouse, Ratcliff, and Mile-end for ever.

" HERE is an Alms-house for eight poor Widows, which was formerly called Col. Blunt's Alms-house, but ever since it has been rebuilt by Capt. Harman; it has been usually called by his Name.

" IN the Year 1676, our aforesaid Benefactor, Mr. Tomlins, gave 25 l. to remain as a Fund, for buying of Coals for the Poor of this Hamlet in the Summer, that they might have them at the prime Cost in the Winter.

" THE elder Sir Henry Johnson, beside his Contribution towards the Building of our Chapel, was pleased to beautify it with Painting soon after that it was finished; and at his Death bequeathed an Alms-house for six poor Shipwrights of this Hamlet, with a Weekly Allowance of Bread to the Poor.

" Mrs. Esther Hawes, besides Communion-Plate, which she gave for the Use of our Chapel, erected also here a very convenient Alms-house in the Year 1686, for six poor Widows, appointing one Pound ten Shillings a Year to be paid to each of them.

" THESE, Sir, are the Names of all our Benefactors, that I can find either in the Table that is hanged up in our Chapel, or by Enquiry among our Inhabitants. But for the Encouragement of more secret Charity, permit me to add, that I received the last Year one Hundred Pounds from a bountiful Benefactor, whose Name I am not like to know, till the publick Reward of private Alms be given by the Judge of all. I was ordered to distribute it among the poor Widows and Orphans of such Seamen as had sustained Loss in the Service of the Old East India Company, which I did accordingly distribute.

" AND as to this Private Charity, which some unknown Persons belonging to the said Company have given, it may truly be said, that I and a Friend of mine have distributed within the Compass of a few Years, at the least Eight Hundred Pounds to the Widows and Orphans of Seamen that used those Voyages.

" AT Limehouse there is a pretty Work-house set up lately by Charity for Children, to keep them to honest Labour.

THIS Chapel of Poplar, within the Parish of Stepney, contains three Isles.

ON the East Window, over the Communion-Table, are the Arms of Sir John Gaies, Knt. some Time Mayor of the City of LONDON, and Alderman Abdy, who seemed to have been at the Charge of that Window, and (it is likely) Benefactors towards the Building of the Chapel.

THERE is likewise a painted Coat of Arms in the Glass of the East Window of the North Isle, inscribed:

William Dethike, dyed Aug. 22, 1655.

And in another Window in this Isle, the Dethik's Coat, with the following Inscription:

Insignia Gilberti Dethike, Armigeri, (filii Guilielmi Dethike equitis aurati) a cujus Beneficentia fundamentum accepit hoc Sacellum, Anno 1654.

ON a Window in the South Isle is the Coat-Armour of Maurice Thompson, Esq; 1657; a worthy Benefactor: Of whom it is remembered, that when this Chapel was first opened, and dedicated to the Service of God, himself set the Psalm before the Sermon. There is also in this Window another Coat of Arms, whereof the Name is gone, viz. Argent, a Bend Azure, between three Oak Leaves proper.

In the North Isle these Persons lie buried under flat Stones with Inscription:

John Barham, Son of Francis Barham of Blackwall, Shipwright, Anno 1665.

And Elizabeth Wife of the said Francis, 1668.

And Francis Barham, 1695. Aged 77.

Also William Hall, Grocer, 1696. And his Son Barham, and his Daughter Anne.

The Wife of Tho. Lancaster, 1656.

And Dennis, 1657; and Elizabeth, Wives of Tho. Lancaster.

Capt. Thomas Lancaster of Blackwall, one of the Elders of Trinity-house, 1666.

South Isle.

Capt. George Phenny, Sen. 1697. Aged 75.

John Dighton. Grace Rawlins.

Elizabeth Collins, Wife of William Collins, of Limehouse, Shipwright, 1693.

Middle Isle.

Mary Christmas, Wife of William Christmas of Poplar, Shipwright, 1701.

The said William Christmas, 1702; aged 77.

Tho' Bodies sleep in Dust, yet Souls not few,
Glisten in Glory: So must Bodies too;
Which sown in Weakness, shall be rais'd in Power:

We therefore wait for that triumphant Hour.

In the Church-yard several fair Tombs; One for Capt. Curtis, with this Inscription:

William Curtis, of this Parish, Gent, warns you to Repentance.

Whiles you can, before this Bed on you have Pow'r,

Make your Calling and Election sure.

Fix your Mind on the Day of Doom,

Be always waiting 'till your Change do come.

That so through Christ you rais'd may be,
To heavenly Joys, and blest Eternitie.

Deceased this Life the 27th of Septemb. 1669.

Who

Who in this Life fifty Years did stand,
And to East India some Time did bear Command :

Who in his Life-time kept not fast his Door,
And afterwards provided for the Poor,
Sixty Pound per Annum for ever.

Elizabeth Curtis, Wife of the said William, 1659. And Elizabeth their Daughter.

Thomas, Son of Thomas Wharton and Mary
his Wife, 1703.

Also Agnes Wharton, Relict of Will. Wharton, of Waitby in the County of Westmoreland,
1704. Aged 76.

John Akers, late of Limehouse, deceased.
Approaching now to th' Age of fifty seven,
In Spirit translated was from Earth to Heaven :
To th' Spirits of just Men join'd, which perfect
are,

And while enjoying Bliss and Glory there,
Behold! his mortal Flesh interred resteth here ;
Sleeping in Jesus, hoping to arise,
Immortal Life t'assume among the Wise,
To shine, tho' now to Death become a Sacrifice.

Reader :

Do just Mens Spirits, which here imperfect are,
Perfect commence at Death? Believe them ne'er,
Who say, their Souls do die, or else lie sleeping
here.

The former being Scripture in my Sense,
Disproves the latter by just Consequence.

John Paulson. Margaret Langerwood.

Margaret and John Bridge.

Jane Sincock, Wife of Capt. Rob. Sincock, 1698.

Sarah, the Wife of Edmund Garrat, 1701.
Aged 80.

Richard Gorton, 1665. And Avelyn his Wife, 1675.

Edmund Garrat of Limehouse, Shipwright,
1689. Aged upwards of fourscore and six.

Judith Mordew, 1701. Aged 76.

Mary March, 1695, in the 76th Year of her Age : A Woman afflicted with Sorrow and Grief to the End of her Days, by Reason of her Husband Mr. Tho. March his Captivity upon the Island of Ceylon in the East Indies.

Capt. Joh. Brumwel of Mile-end, 1706.

Capt. John Beere, 1605 ; and Mary his Daughter, 1703-4.

Jarret Lestock, eldest Son of Capt. Richard Lestock, 1700.

William and Abigail Elderton.

Let Friends forbear to mourn and weep,
While sweetly in the Dust they sleep :
This toilsome World they left behind,
A Crown of Glory for to find.
Their Days were short, like Winter's Sun :
From Earth they came, to Heaven they run.
God blest the rest with Length of Days,
On Earth to live, his Name to praise.

Abigail Weston, Wife to Richard Weston of Limehouse.

John Hicks of Poplar, Shipwright, 1703.

Edward Gilman of Blackwall, 1701.

William Terrard, Son of Edward and Jane
Terrard of Limehouse, 1705.

Thomas Hopkinson, 1679. And John his Brother, and Alice his Wife.

St. LEONARD'S BROMLEY.

HERE in this Church, while it was Part of the Monastery of St. Leonard, was buried a right noble Personage, (if we may believe one
Vol. II. N^o 53.

of our Antiquaries) namely, Earl John de Bo- hum, Son of Humphrey, Earl of Hereford and Effex, Lord of Breckneck, and Constable of Eng- land. And there is, this Day, a large Stone lying in the Body of the Church, having formerly much Brass, now torn off, containing the Effigies of a Man a Woman, and much ornamental Work over their Heads. They seem to be some Nobleman and his Wife interred in this religious House ; perhaps the said Earl and his Lady.

BUT how to reconcile the said Antiquary with an elder than he, viz. John Leland and the Monasticon Anglicanum will not be easy ; for Weaver writes, that this Monastery was replenished with white Monks, and founded by King Henry II. in the 23d of his Reign. Leland and the Monasticon report it a religious House for Nuns. And here again, the two last differ in the Founder. Leland, as we are told by a late Author, makes the Founder to be that William,
Bishop of LONDON, that lived in the Con-queror's Time ; but the Tenour of a Confirmation of this Priory by King Stephen (extant in the Monasticon) seems to make it to be founded and endowed by one Christiane de Sumeri and her Son.

In the Chapel of the Blessed Virgin Mary within the Claustrum (Cloisters) of this Nunnery, was interred Elizabeth Sister to Queen
Philippa, and one of the Daughters of William Earl of Henault. Her Will bears Date Anno 1375, wherein she gave a Ring to Sir Thomas de Wodestok.

In this Church of St. Leonard lay interred
Elizabeth, Wife of Thomas Torell of the County of Effex ; she dyed Anno 1375 : Also Joyce, the Wife of Sir Hugh Blunt, Kt. according to the Register, viz. Jocosu quondam Dni. Hugonis
Blunt, Mil. by her last Will, Anno 1375, ordered to be buried in Prioratu Sti. Leonardi de Stratford at Bow.

Richard Gosselyn, Citizen and Ironmonger, by his last Will bequeathed ten Marks for mending the Highway at Bromley, reckoning from the House of Stephen Miller, usque ad Domum Mo-nialium de Stratford, i. e. unto the House of the Nuns at Stratford.

Robert Sudbury, Gent. of the Parish of Bromley, in the County of Middlesex, by his Will,
Oct. 5, 1484, gave to the High Altar of Paddyfwyk, for Tithes forgot, 20 d. Item, To Katharine, Priorefs of the House of Nuns of St. Leonard of Stratford at Bow, and the Convent, if they shall suffer his Body to be buried where his Executors shall dispose it, his Tenements in the Parish of St. Leonard in the East Part of East-cheap, LONDON, on Condition they keep his Anniversary on the Day of his Obit.

Richard Baynard of Messing, Esq; gave by Will, An. 1432, to the Abbess and Convent of Barking, five Marks, to pray for the Souls of Katharine and Isabel, his Daughters ; and to the Nuns of Stratford, 40 s. to pray for his Soul ;
and the Souls of Johan and Johan, his Wives ;
and five Marks to pray for his Soul, and Isabel Doreward's Soul.

William Gobyonne, buried in the Church of Brambeley in Stratford at Bow, 1435.

Against the South Wall, next the East Part of the Church, is a very fair Monument of Mr. Jacob, some Time Proprietor of this Manour, and his Wife.

They are represented both kneeling : Over his Head is writ, Abraham Jacob, Armiger ; over her's, Maria Conjux : Under him, Obiit 6^o.
Maii, A. D. 1629. Ætat. suæ 56. The Inscription as follows :

Hic Tumulus,
 Parentes optimi, cum prole numerosa non vestra
 virtutis, sed Doloris mei Monumentum esto.
 Quàm uterq; erga Deum pius.
 Quàm Regi suo obsequiens & commodus.
 Quàm amicis fidus.
 Quàm patris utilis.
 Quam pauperibus benignus.
 Aliorum esto effari meum imitari,
 Pii Lectoris supplere,
 Quod filialis modestia retinuit,
 Valet posteri.

Here is the Representation of a Vine, on the Leaves whereof are inscribed the Names of his Children, whereof some were married and some unmarried at the Time of the Erection of this Monument: The Names of those that were married, and their respective Husbands, are expressed, with their Coats of Arms, born Baron and Femme, viz.

1. Henry Rolt married Ellen Jacob.
2. George Bury married Mary.
3. John Jacob married Elizabeth Halliday.
4. Thomas Wilmer married Elizabeth Jacob.
5. Robert Seylliard married Barbara Jacob.

The Children of Henry Rolt and Ellen are expressed to be Mary, Ellen, Thomas, and Elizabeth.

George Bury, by his Wife Mary, had Jacob, George and John.

John Jacob, by his Wife Elizabeth, had Susan and Jacob.

Thomas Wilmer, by his Wife Elizabeth, had Thomas, Jacob and Mary.

The Names of the unmarried Children:

Inscription on the Vine Leaves are these; Francis, the first Son; Richard the third Son; Henry, the fourth Son; Abraham, the fifth Son; Robert, the sixth Son; Darcy, the seventh Son, and Frances the fifth Daughter.

Next Jacob's Monument, on the West against the Wall, is the Monument of Roberts, another Proprietor of the Manor, and these Inscriptions:

In this Vault lyeth the Body of Dame Margaret Roberts, Daughter of Mr. William Amy, Merchant, in Exon, and late Wife to Sir John Roberts of Broomly, Bart. by whom he had four Sons and five Daughters; all which dyed in their Infancy. She departed this Life, September the 21st, An. Dom. 1690; in Memory of whom, her Husband caused this Monument to be erected.

Here only is reserved her pious Dust,
 Until the Resurrection of the Just.

In the same Vault also lyeth Sir John Roberts, Bart. Patron of this Church, who dyed the 14th of Decemb. 1692; to whose Memory his Relict, Dame Deborah Roberts, being his second Wife, caused this Inscription:

Tho' Death the Body in the Grave doth bind,
 The nobler Soul is free and unconfin'd:
 And both shall reign with Christ,
 When by his Power enjoyn'd.

In this Monument of Roberts are represented two Women sitting in a mourning Posture, with Palms in their Hands. The Coat is Baron and Femme. Baron, quarterly, 1. Or, a Lion rampant, Gules. 2. A Bow extended in Fesse, with an Arrow upon it in Pale. The Third as the Second, and the Fourth as the First.

Next downwards, against the same South Wall, is the fair Monument of the Ferrers. Here you see a Man and Woman half Way, well cut in Stone; both laying one Hand upon the same Death's Head, and in the other holding a Book. The Epitaph this:

Here lyeth the Body of William Ferrers, the only Son and Heir of William Ferrers, Esquire, late Citizen and Merchant of LONDON, who took to Wife Jane, one of the Daughters of Sir Peter Van-lore of LONDON, Knight; by whom he had one Child. His Wife and Child both dyed before him, and he departed this Life a Month before his Father. He was a Gentleman of a religious Soul towards God, and a sweet Behaviour towards Men. And his Death was, by his Kindred, and generally all, much lamented. He dyed the 25th of August, 1625, and left his Uncle, Thomas Ferrers, his Executor, who to the Memory of him hath erected this small Monument.

In this most pure and blessed Shade,
 (Such by the sacred Ashes made,
 That here inhabit must) does lye
 The Man, whose Vertues cannot dye.
 His Alms, his Prayers, his Piety,
 Have sent his Soul above the Sky.

Nature full well had taught his Wife,
 To sum his Hours in pious Life:
 To God, to Friend, to Poor, to all,
 She was as good as we dare call
 Frail Flesh: Good Passenger give Praise
 To them who liv'd such happy Days.

His Coat was, Argent, a Bend Gules, charged with three Horseshoes, Or, between two Bendlets; Azure.

The Epitaph for the Child of the said Ferrers was:

As Nurfs strive their Babes in Bed to hie,
 When they too liberally the Wantons play;
 So, to prevent his future grievous Crimes,
 Nature, his Nurse, got him to Bed betimes.

In the same Church was this written in a Place where Bread was set to be disposed of to the Poor:

This Bread is given to the Poor, for the Honour of God, and to the Memory of William Ferrers, the Younger, by Thomas Ferrers, his Executor.

In the Chancel still, upon the Ground, on a Brass Plate:

Of your Charity pray for the Soul of Roger Horton, Citizen and Goldsmith of LONDON, and Margaret his Wife; which Roger deceased the 15th Day of January, A. Dom. MCCCCCLVI, on whose Soul Jesu have Mercy.

The Effigies in Brass on this Stone, is a naked Man, only wrapt in a Sheet, holding his Hands together in a praying Posture.

The Coat of Arms on the Stone is the Goldsmiths Arms impaled with that of the Fishmongers.

Near adjoining, on the Ground, a Man in Brass between his two Wives:

Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Graye, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, the eldest Son of Alexander Graye; he had two Wives, Elizabeth and Barbara; he had Issue by his first Wife, four Sons and two Daughters; Elizabeth dyed the 5th Day of Jan. 1580; the said Thomas dyed the 30th of Jan. 1590, when he had lived 62 Years.

Next

Next this, on the Ground, another Stone with Effigies in Brass :

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Michael Barker, Gentleman, who having lived 62 Years a quiet Life in very honest Fame, dyed in the Faith of our Saviour Christ the 16th Day of Aug. 1699, leaving only one Daughter.

Against the North Wall in the Chancel, nearest the East :

Here underneath lyeth, in Hope of a blessed Resurrection, the Body of Sir Richard Munden, Kt. one of his Majesty's Captains at Sea, who having been (what upon publick Duty, and what upon Merchants Accounts) successfully engaged in fourteen Sea Fights, after several considerable Exploits, and singular Services performed to his King and Country (whereof that of taking St. Helena, is not to be forgotten) dyed in the Prime of his Youth and Strength, in the 40th Year of his Age, June the 2d, A. D. 1680.

He had to Wife Mrs. Susanna Gore, by whom he left one Son Richard, born since his Father's Death, and five Daughters, Susanna, Elizabeth, Dorothy, Anne and Rachel.

Think, Reader, how every Man, even at his best Estate, is Vanity, Psal. xxxix. 5.

The Shield is bore Baron and Femme. Baron quarterly, 1. Parted per Cross, Gules and Sale, the Cross engrailed, Argent, charged with five Lozenges, Azure. Upon a Chief, Or, two Legs of a Crane crested, Vert. On a Canton Ermin an Anchor, Or.

In the Church hangs up the Hatchment and three Streamers of Sir William Cranmer, Kt. and some Time Governor of the Company of Ham-burgh Merchants. His Coat, Argent, a Chevron, Az. charged with three Cinquefoils, Or, between as many Pellicans, Sable.

Another Hatchment. Az. a Fesse, Arg. charged with a Lion passant, Sable, between three Annulets, Or. for Major Cowden.

Another Hatchment of Dame Turner, Wife of Sir William Turner, Kt. She dyed the 7th of May, 1681, buried on the South Side of the Chancel.

Divers other Hatchments.

Will. Fowler dyed the 30th of March, 1663.

In the Porch is a very antient Stone of some hundred Years old ; on which is engraven in Letters Capital, resembling the Saxon Character, Wodehouse, who was probably some Person of Quality buried in this Monastery.

In the Church-Yard, a Vault with an Altar Monument erected over it, inscribed :

Mr. Thomas Gibby, Citizen and Dyer of LONDON, departed the 14th of Jan. 1697, in the 66th Year of his Age.

Another Altar-Monument in the Church-Yard for Philip Starky, Citizen and Cook of LONDON, who departed the 19th of May, 1677, in the 70th Year of his Age.

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. Barbara Tuck, who dyed Feb. the 1st, 1732, in the 40th Year of her Age.

On a Table hanging up in the Vestry at Bromley, is this Memorial of the Free-School at Stratford le Bow.

“ The Court of Assistants of the Worshipful “ Company of Drapers of LONDON, are,
“ according to the Will of Sir John Jolls,
“ late Knight and Merchant of LONDON,
“ dated Anno 1620, to choose a School-Master

“ and Usher for a Free-School at Bow, in the “ County of Middlesex, and to pay them a “ Salary of 26l. 13 s. 1 d. per Annum.
“ In Consideration that the said School-“ Master and Usher shall teach to the Number “ of 35 Boys, if there shall be so many tendered,
“ and sound Children of the Inhabitants of “ Stratford-Bow and Bromley St. Leonard's, to “ be freely in the said School, without paying “ any Thing for their Teaching, to learn the “ Grammar and Latin Tongue, and to Write
“ and Cypher.

STRATFORD Le BOW.

A Little Way from Bromley, by the great Road leading into Essex; stands the Church or Chapel of Stratford, called The Bow, from the Bow, or arched Bridge over the Lea; formerly belonging to the Mother Church of Stepney, but some Years ago made a Parish distinct by Act of Parliament.

IN the Chancel of this Church, against the North Wall, is this Monument :

Near this Place lyeth the Body of Mr. Thomas Jordan, of London, Merchant, who married Katharine, the only Daughter of Richard Whitlock, of London, Merchant : By whom he had Issue five Sons and nine Daughters ; of which he left living two Sons and five Daughters. He finished his Course the 62d Year of his Age, and yielded up his Spirit unto God April the 9th, 1671, bequeathing his Body to the Earth, to wait for a blessed Resurrection.

The Memory of the Just shall be had in everlasting Remembrance.

A Hatchment hangs up here, Baron and Femme. Baron, Sable, three Bells Argent, Femme, Argent, a Chevron Gules, charged with three Cinquefoils, between as many Gauntlets of the First.

A Stone in the Chancel for James Harrison, Esquire, departed the 3d of June, 1669, having lived in this transitory Life 67 Years.

A Table hanging up in the same Chancel, against the North Wall :

In Memory of Rachel Wilmer, Daughter of Mr. George Wilmer of Stratford-Bow, in the County of Middlesex, Esquire, who departed this Life the 25th of Sept. 1670, in the 24th Year of her Age.

On the Top of the Table divers Coats quartered ; the first, Gules, a Chevron, Arg. between three Spread Eagles, Or.

At the upper End of the South Isle, on the Wall, is this Inscription :

Here-under lyeth buried Grace, the Daughter of John Wilson, late Alderman of LONDON, and, while she lived, the Wife of John Amcotte of the same City, Fishmonger ; by whom she had two Sons, Hammond and Harry, and a Daughter named Grace, the Mother deceased the 13th of July ; and her Son Hammond deceased the 6th of August following, A. D. 1551, and lyeth buried with his Mother.

Whose Death and vertuous Ends have yee in Remembrance, calling to the living God for the Forgiveness of your Sinns.

Amcotte's Coat of Arms was in eight Quarters ; the first, A Tower between three Cups with their Covers ; the second, A Fesse Gule, between three Escalops of the same, &c.

In the North Isle, against the East Wall, is a very fair Monument of white Marble with a large Inscription of a Maid, Daughter and Heir of Mr. Coburne, a Brewer; who being to be married to one Mr. Wollaston, dyed of the Small-Pox on the Day appointed for her Wedding. The Epitaph is very long, framed by her Lover in Latin, and is thus put into an English Dress, by a Gentleman named Josh. Squier.

Know, Stranger, underneath this pious Stone,
Alicia Coburne's into Ashes gone.
Who half an Orphan at her Birth became,
And in ten Months she lost the filial Name.
Yet thriving in a better Stepdame's Care,
(Who less the Nature than the Name did bear:)
E're fifteen flow'ry Springs her Age had past,
She was with all the Virgin-Glories grac'd.
Within her Mind with Heavenly Gifts adorn'd,
Her Life to all the Rules of Vertue form'd.
Without, unblemish'd Rays of Beauty shone,
So powerful, that where she came she won.
And where she won, so gentle and so mild,
She triumph'd, and her Captives lov'd to yield.
Her easy Soul, which Men Good-Nature call,
To all was grateful, and belov'd of all.
The Joy and Darling of the Family,
The promis'd Glory, and their Hope was she.
Such was her Vertue, and her beauteous Form,
(And who would wonder these prevail'd to charm?)

When she her faithful did gain.
Who coming saw, and having seen was slain.
His Liberty was slain, and with it dy'd
All Hopes of Joy but in this beauteous Bride; }
Associate of his Life, and of his Bed.
Now all Things happily did seem to move,
And equal were their mutual Flames of Love: }
The Flames which inward burn'd, and fiercely } strove.

A Covenant eternal was begun;
The Nuptial Day did less'ning backward run:
On which their whole Delight and Hope were plac'd,
Both eager of the Joys which seem'd to haste.
When the fair longing Maid a black Disease;
Less kindly than th'expected Arms, did seize.
With hateful Stains her beauteous Face o'er-spread;
What lovely found her living, left her dead.
She dy'd; and all with sympathizing Grief,
Deplor'd her Fate, and with'd, too late, Relief: }
And Oh! in these her mourning Friend was } chief.

And here, upon the promis'd nuptial Day,
Her lifeless, yet still lovely, Body lay:
Preferring thus, before the kindest Breast,
Good Abraham's Bosom and eternal Rest.
Where now entranc'd in endless Joy she lies,
'Till all the Just from Sleeps of Death arise.
Then only shall more beauteous Bodies shine,
More perfect Vertue thou shalt see than thine:
And Love more pure, and violent, and free,
Than thine to me, or mine has been to thee.
'Till then this Monument shall here remain,
Imperfect Shadow of the Giver's Pain.

Thy Memory, blest Virgin, here shall live;
And here his Love, who does but half survive.

There is one Monument more in this Church;
and that is of Mrs. Coburne, late Brewer in Bow, the Mother-in-Law of the before-mentioned Alice, who lately died, and, being the Daughter of Clergyman, and some Time Minister of Bow, was a most noble Benefactor, leaving the Main of her Estate, which was large, to charitable religious Uses; whose Gifts, by her last Will, were to be set down particularly in the Inscription on her Monument, instead of a flattering Epitaph; which Inscription is in these Words:

In Memory of PRISCA COBURNE, Widow, who lieth buried in the Isle near this Pillar, and dyed the 13th of November MDCCI. And by her Will dated the 6th of May 1701, gave the Charities following:

To the poor Inhabitants of this Hamlet, who have no Pensions, to be paid as the Will mentions, per Annum 20 l.

To the Minister of Bow for the Time being,
per Annum 20 l.

To the Clerk of this Chapel for the Time being, per Annum 4 l.

To a creditable Man and his Wife, to instruct the Children of the poor Inhabitants of this Hamlet, not exceeding Fifty in Number at one Time, in the Principles of the Church of England, per Annum 50 l.

ALL which Charities are charged on all her Messuages and Lands within this Hamlet (except the Messuage, Coach-house, and Stable, given to Mr. Hardesty, her Executor): And also on all her Messuages and Lands in Stratford-Lang-thorne; and her Farm in Bocking in Essex, in the Possession of Joseph Eades; the Surplus of the Rents and Profits whereof (if any be) are to be applied for the placing out of the said Children to honest Trades or Employments.

THE Manor of Locking Hall, and all her Estates in Bocking aforesaid, (except the said Farm in the Possession of Joseph Eades) which were at her Death in the several Possessions of John Marjon, Tho. Ruggles, Smyth, Tho. Clayton, Samuel Carter, Henry Whitehead, and Jeseph Harridance, at several yearly Rents, amounting to 341 l. per Annum, are for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of Clergymen of the Church of England; and for placing out such Children to honest Trades and Employments.

ONE Messuage, and all her Lands in Laver Marley [Marney] and Wigborough in Essex, in the several Possessions of Mary Ody, Widow, and Benjamin Handler, at several yearly Rents, amounting to about 105 l. and her Wood Land, called Longwood, for the Relief of such poor Persons of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, LONDON, who shall be judged incurable.

AND her Manor of Covil Hall, with the Manor-house and Lands in White Roothing in Essex, in the Possession of Richard Bankes, at the yearly Rent of 110 l. for the Relief of poor Seamen's
Widows, inhabiting within the Parish of Stepney.

AND directed two Thirds of the Surplus of her Personal Estate, after Payment of Debts and Legacies, to be disposed of by her said Executor in such Charities as he shall think fit.

So that this Town of Bow hath received considerable Benefit of late, by the good Providence of God, as also have the other neighbouring Parishes, from this charitably disposed Gentlewo-man, Prisca Coburne, Widow, a Brewer, and Inhabitant of the same Town. She was the Daughter of one Foster, some Time Minister of Bow: Who by her last Will and Testament, dated May the 6th 1701, 13 W. 3. gave these Legacies following, (as they were extracted out of her said Will) viz.

SHE willed thirty Ministers of the Church of England, of good Reputation, to be invited to her Burial, and to each of them a Mourning Hat-band, Scarf and Gloves, and a good Ring of 20 s.
Value.

SIXTY poor Women of the Hamlet of Bow, and twenty poor Women of the Parish of St. Leonard Bromley, to attend her Funeral in Mourning Gowns, and ten Shillings a-piece in Money; and her

her Executor to pay for the Use of their Gowns, during their Attendance.

ALL her Tenants to be invited to her Funeral : And to each of them Gloves, and a Gold Ring of 20 s. Value.

SUCH single Women as were Victuallers, and the Wives of such Victuallers who were Customers to her at her Death in her Brew-house Trade, to be invited to her Funeral ; and to have each a Ring of 10 s. Value.

HER Executor, as soon after her Decease as conveniently, to cause the upper Part next the Roof of the Chapel of Bow, to be plaistered, ceiled, and wainscotted, in a decent Manner, and a Monument to be erected over or near her Grave ; and a Marble Stone erected near the same, and engraven thereon, in legible Characters, an Account of the several Charities herein after-mentioned ; and of the Estates by her subjected to the Payment thereof.

AND besides many Legacies to private Persons, she gave to the Poor of the Hamlet of Bow 20 l. to be distributed on the Day of her Interment, or as soon as the Executor shall think fit.

To Thomas White, the present Minister of Bow, and to such Ministers as shall succeed him, and preach at the Chapel in Bow for the Time being, and be elected thereunto by the Majority of the Inhabitants of the said Hamlet, who pay to Church and Poor, and to their Successors for ever, one Annuity or Yearly Rent of 20 l. to be issuing out of all her Messuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. within the said Hamlet, and not otherwise disposed of in her Will, and to Stratford Langton, and her Farm in Bocking in Essex, &c. to be paid unto such Minister half yearly for the preaching of four Sermons in every Year in the said Chapel of Bow on the Days following : On Friday next before Easter, commonly called Good Friday ; Ascension-Day, commonly called Holy Thursday ; the 24th of August, commonly called St. Bartholomew Day, being her Birth-Day : And the 30th of January yearly for ever.

To the Poor of the Hamlet of Bow, another Annuity or yearly Rent of 20 l. to be issuing out of the said Messuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. and to be paid to the Chapel-Warden and Overseer of the Poor of the said Hamlet, to be by them distributed yearly among the Poor of the Hamlet, and have great Charges of Children to maintain, and have no Pension from the Hamlet, on the several Days before-mention'd, by 5 l. on each Day.

To the present Clerk of the Chapel of Bow, and his Successors, Clerks of the said Chapel, for ever, one Annuity of 4 l. to be issuing out of her Messuages and Lands last mentioned, and to pay him or them on the four Days before-mentioned, at 20 s. each Payment, free of all Taxes and Deductions ; so as such Clerk or Clerks do take Care to clean the Monument or Stones that shall be placed over or near her Corpse, and preserve her Bones from being taken out of the Ground where she should be interred.

To Robert Hardesty, of the Middle Temple, LONDON, Gent. [her sole Executor] and his Assigns, during the Time of his natural Life, she gave all her said Messuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. within the Hamlet of Bow, and now in the Possession of Joseph Eades, upon special Trust and Confidence, that he and they do, from and after her Decease, take Care they be kept in good and tenantable Repairs ; and that the clear Rents and Profits of the said Premises be in the first Place applied to the Payment and Discharge of the said several Annuities charged thereupon. And that the Overplus of the said Rents and Profits be applied for the Maintenance and Support of some fitting and creditable Man and his Wife, who will take Care to teach and instruct the Children, Male and Female, of such poor Inhabitants of the said Hamlet of Bow, who shall not be of sufficient Ability to give them Learning and Education at their own Cost and Charges, in the Rudiments and Principles of the Church of England ; and shall teach the Male Children to Read, Write, and cast Account ; and the Female Children to Read, Write, and work at their Needle, or otherwise, as they find them qualified : And shall take Care to have all the said Children duly brought to Church to hear Divine Service, and to have them duly catechised, &c. The Executor to see good Orders and Rules made and set up for the Government of such Children ; the Number of them not to exceed 50 at any one Time.

AND for the Encouragement of such Master and his Wife, she appointed they should be allowed out of the Rents and Profits, the yearly Sum of Fifty Pounds, and that the Surplus of such Rents, if any were, should be applied for the placing out of such Children to some honest Trades and Employments, by the Consent of the Executor, Minister, Chapel-warden, and Inhabitants of the said Hamlet.

AND to render this Charity the more serviceable for the Ends aforesaid, she left it to the Discretion of her Executor to add this her Charity to the Revenue of the Free-School already erected at Bow by Sir John Folls, Knt. and Alderman of LONDON, or to keep and use it separate and apart from that Charity, as in his Discretion might most tend to the Benefit of the poor Children of the said Hamlet, and no other.

THE Reversion of her said Messuages, Lands, &c. expectant upon the Death of the said Robert Hardesty, she gave unto the Minister of Stebunbith, alias Stepney, Bromley, St. Mary Matfelon, alias Whitechapel, and of the Chapels of Bow and Poplar ; and to the Church-wardens and Overseers of the said Hamlet of Bow, for the Time being, and their Successors for ever, upon the like Trust, and the same Intents and Purposes, as she gave them to the said Robert Hardesty and his Assigns, during the Term of his natural Life.

SHE gave unto the said Robert Hardesty, and his Assigns, her Manor of Bocking, alias Bockinghall, the capital Messuage called Bockinghall, with the Rights, Members, and Appurtenances thereunto belonging : Her Messuage, Lands and Tenements, now in the Possession of Thomas Ruggle. Her Messuage, Lands and Tenements in the present Possession of Francis Smith. And all other her Messuages and Lands in Bocking, now in Mortgage to her from Sir William Barker, Bart. for a Term of 500 Years, (except the Farm now in Possession of Joseph Eades.) The Inheritance of which said mortgaged Premises was since decreed to her by the High Court of Chancery : To hold to the said Robert Hardesty, and his Assigns, for and during so many Years of the said Term as he shall happen to live ; upon special Trust and Confidence, that he shall apply the clear Rents and Profits thereof for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of the Clergy of the Church of England, and for placing out of any Child to such Trade or Employments, so as no one Clergyman's Widow be allowed more than 5 l. in any one Year, or more than 10 l. be allowed for the placing out of any Child to such Trade or Employment : And all the said Term of Years in the said mortgaged Premises, from and immediately after the Death of Robert Hardesty, she gave and devised unto the Governors of the Charity for the Relief of poor Widows and Children of Clergymen, and their Successors for ever, upon the like Trusts, and to the same Intents and Purposes.

SHE gave also to Rob. Hardesty, her Messuage and Farm, Wood-Lands, and other Lands and Hereditaments, in the several Parishes of Laver Marly [Marny] and Wigborough in Essex, with the Premises (except the Wood-Lands then in her own Possession) in the several Possessions of Oddy, Widow, and Benjamin Handler: Upon special Trust and Confidence, that the said Rob. Hardesty, do from and after her Decease, employ the clear Rents and Profits for the Relief and Maintenance of such poor Persons who shall be brought to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, LONDON, for Cure of the respective Maladies and Infirmities they labour under, and shall be there found and adjudged incurable, and in human Probability, destitute of all Means to gain a Livelihood by their own Labour: For whose Relief (as she was credibly informed) no Charity had been hitherto given. And the Reversion of her said Messuage, Lands, &c. last mentioned, from and immediately after the Death of the said Rob. Hardesty, she gave unto the Governors of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and their Successors for ever, upon the like Trust, and to the same Uses.

SHE gave her Manor of Covil-hall, with the Rights and Members, and her Messuage, Lands and Tenements, &c. lying in the Parish of White Roding, alias White Roothing in Essex, all the Rents and Profits thereof for the Relief and Support of poor Seamens Widows, inhabiting within the Parish of Stepney, as shall be recommended from Time to Time to the Ministers of the said Parish of Stepney, or of the respective Chapels within the same, or to the Church-wardens or Chapel-wardens, to be fit Objects of Charity; to be given them in such Proportion as the said Rob. Hardesty shall think fit, not exceeding 50 s. to any one Widow in any one Year. The Reversion of the said Messuage, &c. after Robert Hardesty's Death, to the Ministers of Stepney, Bromley, St. Mary Matfelon, and of the Chapels of Bow and Poplar, and to the Church-wardens, Chapel-wardens, and Overseers of the Poor of the same.

THAT as soon as the Value of her whole personal Estate could be adjusted, and the same could be got in, and a true State could be taken thereof, two Parts of the Surplus thereof to be laid out and disposed by her Executor in the best Charities he could be informed of; and the remaining third Part of the Surplus she gave to her said Executor for his own Use.

THIS charitable Gentlewoman lies buried in Bow Church, with a fair Monument, in Memory of her and her liberal Benefactions.

THERE is a fair Alms-house now lately built near Bow by the Company of Drapers of LONDON, upon a Gift of an Estate of about 180 l. per Ann. bequeathed to them in Trust for that Purpose, by Mr. Edmundson, a Sail-Maker, some Time since deceased. It is situated in a Field on the Right Hand of the Road coming from LONDON, on a Piece of Ground there, about three Quarters of an Acre more or less, which cost the Company 195 l. It fronts Sir John Folls his Alms-house, belonging to the same Company; and is to consist of twelve Rooms. To which belongs a Chapel and Gardens. There is a very good Water that serves the old Alms-house, which will supply the New.

THE Reverend Mr. White, late Minister of this Church, Rector of Stepney, and Lecturer there for many Years, lies buried in this Church, under a fair black Marble Stone, with this Inscription, composed by one who some Time was his Friend, and well acquainted with him:

Quicquid mori debuit Reverendi viri THO. WHITE, A. M. Cathedralis Ecclesiæ Litchfieldensis Prebendarii, Parochialis Stepneæ Rectoris, hic situm est. Vixit suis Præsidium, pauperibus Levamen, Ecclesiæ & Reip. Ornamentum. Vixit; Heu! Excessit Pastor vigilantissimus, Conjux fidissimus, Amicus conjunctissimus. Cui Virtus, Pudor, & Justitiæ soror incorrupta Fides, nudaq; Veritas, raro ullum invenient parem. Excessit, Heu! Fuit Ore disertus, Doctrina clarus, Moribus candidus, Aditu facilis, Affatu mitis, aliorum facilis Cenfor, sui severissimus, Prudens, Patientius, sibi constans; nisi in hoc diversus, quod indies melior; ut Verbo dicam, verè Christianus. Heu! Fuit.

Obiit 6ta Kal. Mar. Anno MDCCIX.

Ætat. 67.

THERE was an antient Custom for the Inhabitants of this Town of Stratford at Bow, to go in Procession to the Church of St. Peter Westminster, all through the City of LONDON, at Whitsuntide, in Token of some Dependence of this Town upon that Church. This they got themselves released of, in the Days of King Henry VIII, by a Licence or Toleration obtained from Thomas, Bishop of Westminster, That they should not be obliged to come in solemn Procession to the Cathedral Church of Westminster, in the Feast of Pentecost, being accustomed so to do of old. The like Processions the Parishes of Stepney and Whitechapel performed: And the like Letters of Licence were granted by the same Bishop, to the Rectors and Parishioners of those Parishes.

In the Records of the Tower, Mention is made in the Reign of King Edward I. of two Bridges in the Road between this Town and West-Ham, and for their Reparation and Foundation, viz. De Reparatione & Foundatione pontium inter Villas de Stratford & West-Ham, viz. Chaneres Bregge, & Lekke Bregge.

WEST-HAM.

A Mile from Stratford-Bow, in the Road into Essex, is Stratford-Langton, or Langthorn, lying in the Parish of West-Ham, a Place much frequented for Country-Houses of wealthy Citizens, and the Habitations of such other of them who cannot enjoy their Health in LONDON: The Parish is called West-Ham, in Distinction from another Ham on the East. In the Church are these Monuments of Note.

MONUMENTS.

In the Chancel upon the Pavement:

Henry Fallowfield, Merchant of LONDON, deceased the 4th of May, 1566, aged 54. having a steadfast Hope of a joyful Resurrection in the last Day:

On the Side of the Communion-Table is buried Henry Amcott and Katharine his Wife; he dyed 1583.

Under the Communion-Table is the Monument of Mr. John Shipman, who dyed An. 1583.

On the North Side of the Communion-Table, against the Wall, is a very fair Monument (with two Marble Effigies) of Sir Thomas Foot, Kt. and Bart. late Alderman and Lord Mayor of LONDON, in the Year 1650; dyed Oct. 12, 1688, in the 96th Year of his Age; together with the Body of Elizabeth his Wife, who dyed Octob. 6, 1667, in the 74th Year of her Age: They had four Daughters; the first married to Sir John Cutler of LONDON, Knt. and Bart. the second to Arthur Onslow of Clendon in the County of Surrey, Bart. the third to Sir

Sir John Lewis of Ledstone in the County of York, Kt. and Bart. the fourth to Sir Francis Rolle of Tuderley in Hampshire, Kt.

Against the Wall on the South Side of the Chancel is a Monument for John, eldest Son of Robert Faldo, Esq; who dyed May the 22d, An. 1613. Francis, fifth Son of Robert Faldo, dyed An. 1632.

John Fawcet, Gentleman; married to Jane, the second Sister of the said Francis, dyed An. 1625.

William Fawcet, the only Son of John and Anne his eldest Daughter, 1636.

In a Side Chancel is a fair Monument with the Effigies of William Fawcet of Upton; his Mother was a Daughter of ——— Arnclif of York. He endowed with an honest Salary a Chapel of Haughton Gil, and built there a Free-School, and gave 20 s. for a yearly Sermon on the 5th of November; he dyed May 18, 1631, aged 60.

William Toppesfield, a Justice of Peace, who married his Widow, set up this Monument in the Year 1636.

On the Pavement, under a fair Marble Stone, is buried James Wittewrangle, the Son of James Wittewrangle, a Fleming, a singular Friend to the Ministers of the City, a Mecenas of studious Youth, a Favourer of Piety and Learning, dyed the 5th of June, Anno 1622, aged 64.

Sir Robert Smith, Knt. and Bart. dyed the 13th of June 1669, being 75 Years of Age; and Judith, his Wife, departed in the Year 1653, aged 48.

Mrs. Jane Pyot, Daughter of Sir Robert Smith, Bart. Wife of Mr. John Pyot, dyed 1684, aged 28.

In one of the Side Chancels lies Thomas Salter, Citizen of LONDON, and departed June the 12th, 1640.

On the Wall is engraven:

Thomas Rookes, Esq; Captain of the Trained Bands of this Hundred; descended of the antient Family of the Rookes of this Parish; he gave a yearly Contribution of 5 l. to this Parish for ever; he had two Wives and seven Children, and dyed Oct. 5, 1630.

Thomas Staples of West-Ham, Tanner, deceased the 22d of July, 1592; he gave 20 s. a Year for ever, to the Poor of the Parish; his Effigies in Brass still remains, with his four Wives, Anne, Margaret, Denise, and Alice.

Thomas Wilmer, second Son of George Wilmer of West-Ham, Esquire.

At the lower End of the Church Nicholas Avenant lyeth, with a Table-Monument set over him, Citizen and Merchant-Tayler of LONDON, who gave 5 l. 4 d. for ever, to be distributed in Bread upon every Sunday after Morning Prayer; he dyed in July 1599; his Wives were Katharine and Margaret.

There is also an antique Table-Monument, that joins to the Vestry, and stands just behind Sir Thomas Foot's Monument: There is no Inscription, but no Question was set up for one of the Abbots of Stratford. There are these Coats of Arms upon the Monument; An Angel with a Cross on his Head, holding an Escutcheon on his Breast, with both his Hands, with a Chevron charged with three Tun's, as it seems, between as many Garbs: The Colours not visible.

Another bearing, Three Coats Palewise; the first is, A Pal, charged with Crosses, and a Cro- zier; the second, Three Eagles Heads erased; and third, the former Coat mentioned that was held by the Angel.

At the Head of the Monument is a Man, as it seems, cloathed in a Surplice, standing in a Glory, his Hand advanced a little towards his Breast: On the left Hand is something like a Chalice, or rather a Bottle, standing upon his Hand.

On the North Side of this Monument is the Coat of Arms of LONDON, that is, The Red Cross and the Dagger; and in another Place the Arms of the Goldsmiths, as being probably a Member of that Guild or Fraternity; for those Companies were founded commonly in Religion. In another Place stands the Cross, with the Crown of Thorns hanging upon the upper Part of it. And in a fourth Place on this North Side are the three Coats impaled, as before is mentioned; the first is, Gules, a Pal, charged with Crosses Patee Sable. Over the Pal, another open Cross, the lowest Point thereof Flowry. The three Eagles here are in full Proportion, not their Heads erased, as above.

On the opposite Side of the Chancel, against a Pillar, is a fair Monument, erected by the Reverend Mr. Buckridge, to the Memory of all his Children deceased; with the Figures of his Son in a Gown, and his Daughter, both kneeling: And of another Daughter advanced on the Top of the Monument, also kneeling; besides the Heads, in Marble, of four more dying young, this Inscription, viz.

Near this Place lie interred the Bodies of Amhurst, eldest Son of Nicholas and Eleonora Buckridge, A. M. and Fellow of St. John's College, Oxon, who dyed March 22, 1709, in the 29th Year of his Age; and of Elizabeth their eldest Daughter, who dyed September the 27th, 1698, in the 16th Year of her Age; and of Eleonora their second Daughter, who dyed April 4, 1710, in the 26th Year of her Age; and of Annabella their third Daughter, who dyed about 11 Months old; and of Anne their fourth Daughter, who dyed in the 6th Year of her Age; and of Nicholas their second Son, who dyed about two Months old; and of William their third Son, who dyed about 11 Months old.

Of these, Amhurst and Eleonora lived to be remarkable for their great Dutifulness to their Parents, for their most affectionate Kindness to and Fondness for one another, and for their being inoffensive and obliging to every Body. These both died of the Small-Pox in 13 Days Time one after the other. And whether the Grief of Eleonora for her Brother's Death, or the Small-Pox, contributed most to her Death, is uncertain: They were, indeed, lovely and pleasant in their Lives, and but a very little divided in their Deaths.

And to their dear Memory is this Monument erected.

In the Church-Yard:

Here lyeth interred the Body of Sarah, Wife of John Hayse of this Parish, who departed this Life the 5th of December, 1724, in the 45th Year of her Age.

Near this Place lyes the Body of William Cooke, who departed this Life the 24th of Sept. 1728, aged 62 Years:

Also,

Anne, his Wife, who departed this Life the 30th of Septem. 1727, aged 64 Years, and eight of their Children.

Here lyeth the Body of Moulton Frument, Wife of Simon Frument, who died the 2d of Aug. 1734, aged 33 Years.

I, in my Youth was snatch'd away,
Therefore repent, make no Delay.
A loving Wife, and tender Dear,
A vertuous Woman lieth here.

Here lyeth the Body of Edward, Son of Thomas and Elizabeth Frument, of this Parish, who departed this Life the 9th of November, 1719, in the 15th Year of his Age.

Cut down in Youth's gay charming Time,
I left the Pleasures in their Prime;
But leaving Earth, Heaven to obtain,
This early Change is my great Gain.

Here lyeth interred the Body of Thomas Frument, late of this Parish; he departed this Life, Octo. 4th, 1724, aged 48 Years.

Stop, Passenger, and with Amasement see
The mournful Relicts of Mortalitie.
Under this Stone our Brother now doth rott,
But his good Actions ne'er will be forgot.

Mr. Ralph Perin departed this Life Decemb. 18, 1733, aged 61 Years.

Stay, Reader, stand and spend a Tear,
And view the Dust that sleepeth here;
And while thou view'st the State of me,
Think on the Glass that runs for thee;
For I alone in Christ do Trust,
To raise in Number with the Just.

Here lyeth interred the Body of Mr. Robert Watts late of this Parish, who departed this Life the 27th Day of Septem. Anno Dom. 1730. Ætatis suæ 56.

Here lyeth the Body of Anne Story, Daughter of Gabriel and Katharine Story, of St. Paul's Shadwell, who departed this Life the 27th of November, aged 12 Years.

Here lyes interred the Body of Charles Wilkeson, who departed this Life, May the 16th, 1725, aged 25 Years.

Did unto all as he would be done by,
Modest in Behaviour;
Courteous to all Men,
And patient under Afflictions.

Here lyes the Ruins of an honest Mind
In this dark Cell to be confined:
Stay, Reader, stand and spend a Tear,
And think of me, and how I came here;
Being with much Grief whelmed o're,
By the Usage of my Fellow-Creatures,
Which so concerned my poor Soul
That caused my Life to pay for all;
And as thou reads the State of me
Think on the Glass that runs for thee.
In Christ alone I put my Trust
To rise in Judgment with the Just;
Think on't with Joy; here but his Body lies,
For Wilkeson is fled, and triumphs in the Skyes.

St. MARY LOW-LEYTON.

NORTH from Stratford-Langton, about a Mile and an half, lies the Parish of Low-Leighton, or Leyton; the Manor or Lordship whereof formerly belonged to the Abbot of the said Stratford; as another great Messuage in the Parish, now called The Forest House, once pertained to another great Abbot on the other Side, namely, the Abbot of Waltham. This Parish is washed along the West Side of it by the sweet River of Lee or Ley, (falling into the Thames) which gives the Village its Name. It lies all upon a gentle Rising, ascending for two Miles or better, from the said River Eastward to the pleasant Forest of Waltham. On which Side lyeth one Ward of the Parish, called Leyton Stone, pleasantly and healthfully seated. Low Leyton, planted on the Side of the Hill, as it is lower, so it stands more warm, and is guarded from the cold North by the Hills of its Neighbour Town of Walthamstow. Both Parts of this Parish are furnished with divers fair, and some of them, magnificent Houses, inhabited by divers wealthy Citizens, and other Gentlemen: But especially the antient Manor-House, and Seat of Ruckholls, and the Forest-House, loftily seated, fronting the Forest, whose present Owner and Inhabitant is Sir John Heathcote, Bart.

To which may be added, the magnificent and beautiful House of Sir Fisher Tench, Bart. of more modern Erection, adorned with large and most delightful Gardens, Plantations, Walks, Groves, Mounts, Summer-Houses, and pleasant Canals, stored with Fish and Fowl, and curious Vistoes for Prospect. As also the fair and pleasantly seated House of David Gansel, Esq; Lord of the Manor of Low Leyton, having a fine Prospect over the Marsh and River towards Hackney.

In this Parish-Church, dedicated to St. Mary, there was, in the Popish Times, a Taper of Wax, containing three Pounds, and the Wick to contain half an Ounce, that was burnt before the Image of our Blessed Lady, on her five Holidays: And a Glass Lamp, and a Gallon of Oil, to burn in the said Lamp, within the said Church, before the Crucifix or Rood there. As also, one Pound of Frankincense every Year, ad Laudem Dei, & omnium Sanctorum ibidem in eadem Ecclesia in diebus Festivalibus per totum annum thurificand. as the Record mentions it: And that the Abbot of Stratford, Parson of the Church, Beate Mariæ de Leyton, in the 35th Year of Henry VI. did sue an Affize, and set forth, ut supra.

In this Parish lived some Time the Lady Margaret Brian, and seems here also to be buried; eminent for having been chief Governess to the Princesses Mary and Elizabeth, and Edward Prince of Wales, Children of King Henry VIII. in their Minorities. Whose Will bore Date the 20th of August 1551, and was proved June 21, 1552, which ran in this Form: "I Dame Margaret Brianne, Widow, in the Parish of Leyton, in the County of Essex, &c. make, constitute, and ordain, this my last Will and Testament, in Manner, &c." And after divers Bequests to her Servants, Eliz. Hall, Will. Watson, Tho. Lamplaye, Jo. Watson, Tho. Smyth, Evans, Avys Dyal, Mary Festalf, Eliz. Gray, and others, &c. "And I do most humbly beseech the King's Majesty to be good and gracious to my Servant Eliz. Dudley, &c. And that it may likewise please his most excellent Majesty, towards the Payment of my Debts, and Reward of my Servants, to give unto me, or unto my Executrix, [who was the above said Eliz. Dudley] the Sum of 35 l. due unto me at Michaelmas next ensuing, for the Half Years of mine Annuity, granted unto me by the Virtue of his gracious Letters Patents, for my poor Service, done as well unto his Majesty in his tender Age, as also unto his dearly beloved Sisters, the Lady Mary's Grace, and the Lady Elizabeth's Grace. And in Consideration of my said Service, it may finally please his Majesty, to grant unto me, or my Executrix, a sufficient Discharge, or Quietus est, for all such Things I had in my Charge or Custody, of his Majesty's, during the Time of my daily Attendance upon his Highness: Having deliver'd the same, and every Part thereof, “ thereof, to the Hands of Sir Geo. Cotton, and “ Jasper Horsfye, Knts; as appears by the several “ Bills under their Hands and Seals, ready to “ be shewed.

In the Parish-Church of Low-Leyton are these
 MONUMENTS.

In the upper Chancel, an antient large Monument against the North Wall, with two Arches of the Doric Order, of Architecture: It hath no Inscription, but Coats of Arms under each Arch, impaled Baron and Femme. Sable, a Bend Argent, charged with three Mulletts Gules, between six Crosses Croislets of the Second. The other Coat impaled is defaced. The Crest is a Griffin's Head erased Argent.

Under the other Arch, another Coat impaled: The Coat of the Femme is plain, which is, Gules, a Chevron Ermine, between three Pelicans Or. Which is the Coat of Stone of Holme in Norfolk. The Crest the same as the other. This, I suppose, was his second Wife.

THIS is said to be the Monument of Sir William Rither, or Rider, Lord Mayor of LONDON, Anno 1600, and dyed Anno 1611. And if so, then the Coat of the Baron impaled, which is now not discoverable, was, Azure, three Crescents Or. The Griffin's Head erased is the Crest of Rither. This Sir William Rider (who was Lord of the Manor of Leyton Grange) was the third Son of Edward Rither of Leyton in Essex, and married Elizabeth Daughter of Richard Stone of Holme in Norfolk. By whom he had two Daughters, Mary and Susan, Coheirs. The latter married to Sir Thomas Cesar, Knt. and Mary (the elder) married to Sir Thomas Lake, Knt. some Time one of the principal Secretaries of State. To whom, by that Marriage, the Possession of the Manor of Low Leyton, or Leyton Grange, seems to have come.

BUT before this Family became Possessors here, Sir Ralph Fitz Warren bought this Manor and Advowson of the Church in the Year 1545, 37 H. 1. He was Sheriff of LONDON 1528, and Mayor 1536. His Coat of Arms, as it is in Stow, was, a Chevron engrailed, charged with three Griffins Heads erased, between as many Muscles. And therefore, perhaps, the Coat on the abovesaid old Monument in the upper Chancel or Chapel, now scarce visible, were the Griffins Heads, (the Crest being a Griffin's Head) the Warrens Arms: And he the first Erector of that Monument, with the Vault underneath: Built, undoubtedly, in the Popish Times, there being two Words on that Monument, viz: MERCY in one Place of it, and JESU in another, with Glories about each Word; which stood there of later Times, though now conveyed away. And that Part of the Church was, very probably, a Chapel, or Chantry, for the same Sir Ralph. He was a Merchant of the Staple, and Merchant Adventurer, and twice Lord Mayor, and was buried in great Splendor July 16, 1553. with a Standard and five Penons of Arms, a Coat Armour, a Target, a Helmet, &c. twelve Dozen Escutcheons, Three Heralds of Arms attending, the Lord Mayor and Sword-bearer, and the four Esquires, Mourners, and many Aldermen; and fifty Gowns given unto fifty poor Men, of Rats Colour, of Cloth of a Noble a Yard; and a great Dinner, where the Lord Mayor and divers Aldermen dined.

Sir Thomas White, and Joanna his Wife, presented to the Vicarage Anno 1564. Quære, If Sir Thomas had not this Church and Lordship in Right of his Wife, and she Sir Ralph Fitz-Warren's Daughter.

In the old Chancel, on a Brass Plate, against the South Wall, is this Inscription for the Lady Kingston:

If you wil the Truythe have Here lyeth in this Grave
 Directly under this Stone
 Good Lady Mary Kyngestone
 Who departed this Lyff, the Truythe to say
 In the Moneth of August, the twenty fift Day:
 And as I do well remember,
 Was buried honourably the fourth Day of September
 The Yere of our Lord rekyn'd truly,
 MV^c fourty and eight varily
 Whose yerly obyte and Anniversary
 Is determynd to be kept sure
 At the Cost of her Son Sir Henry Jerningham truly,
 Who was at this makynge
 Of the Queens Guard cheff Capteyn.

Upon a Brass Plate on the Floor hard by:

Here lyes interred the Body of Andrew Redich, who deceased on the 14th of March 1603.

And against the Wall, a small Monument, with these Words:

Near to this Monument lyeth the Body of Andrew Redich, the second Son of Ralph Redich, of Mottran in Long Dendal in the County of Chester, Gentleman, who had to Wife Margaret Fletcher, Daughter to Ralph Fletcher of Prescott within the County of Lancaster, Gent. Which Andrew deceased the xiiii Day of March, 1603, being of the Age of 45 Years. The Coat here is a Field Argent, a Lyon Rampant Gules.

Just by is a plain Stone, and engraven thereon HENRY PARVYSH, of August 1593. He was an eminent Merchant of LONDON, Owner of the Manor of Ruckholts in the said Parish: Whose Widow matched to Michael Hicks, Esq; afterwards Knight. The Posterity of whom remain there to this Day.

Upon another is a Brass Plate fastened with this Inscription:

Here under this Stone lyeth buried the Body of Henry Archer, late of Layghton, Esq; who deceased the 4th Day of October, in the Year of our Lord God 1585, being of the Age of 59.

This Gentleman gave to this Parish, wherein he lived, twenty Shillings a Year to be disposed of to such poor People as should be at Church Whitsunday.

One Henry Archer wrote of the Exploits of the English in those Countries against the Spaniard, Anno 1585, which J. Stow made Use of in his Annals. In one Page whereof, he thus acknowledgeth:

“ Thus far I have received Advertisement from “ my good Friend and dear Kinsman Henry
 “ Archer, one of his Excellency's Guard.” And in several other Places his Name is set in the Margin of that History.

Next, by the Side of this, a fair Stone, with a Coat of bearing Baron and Femme. The Baron, two Chevrons. The Femme, within a Border with Roundlets, the Field Checky. The Colours appear not, inscribed thus:

Here lyeth the Body of Lawrence Moyer, Esq; who dyed the 27th of August, in the Year of our Lord MDCLXXXV. Aged 77.

Alfo Frances, his late Wife, Daughter of Nicholas Alfey, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON; ſhe dyed Jan. 26, 1586, aged 53.

On the North Side of this Stone, another Stone with a Brafs Plate, containing the Figures of a Man with many Sons behind him; and of a Woman with many Daughters behind her, and underneath this written:

Piæ Memoria

Elizæ Wood, dilectiffimæ Conjugis Tobizæ Wood, Armigeri. Quæ duodena prole fucepta, feptima fupervivente, decimaq; tertia in utero matris intumulata quotquot illam nôſſe contigit triſte fui defiderium Reliquit; Posuit.

Then ſhe is brought in ſpeaking to her Husband in theſe Engliſh Verſes:

Wail not, my Wood, thy Tree's untimely Fall
They were but Leaves that Autumn's Blaſt could ſpoil.

The Bark bound up, and ſome fair Fruit withal
Transplanted only ſhe exchanged her Soyl;
She is not dead, ſhe did but fall to riſe
And leave the Wood's to live in Paradife.

Inſuper & Caro mea requieſcit in pace, Pſal. 16.

Lower in the Chancel Iſle is a plain ſmall Stone with a Plate of Brafs, representing a Female Child, with Hair diſhevelled, ſtanding and holding her Hands in a praying Poſture, and theſe Verſes underneath:

Urſula ſum Luce ſum Gaſparis unica gnata
Urſula virginis me pia junge choris.

Somewhat higher, in the ſame Iſle, is a large black Marble Stone, containing this Inſcription on a Brafs Plate:

Here lyeth buried, the Body of Sir Edward Holmeden, Kt. ſome Time Citizen and Alderman of LONDON, who took to Wife Dame Elizabeth, and had by her five Sons, viz. Thomas, Thomas, Edward, George, and John, and four Daughters, Mary, Suſan, Elizabeth, and Elizabeth; which Sir Edward dyed the 4th of July, 1616, Ætat. ſuæ 72.

This Holmeden was Sheriff of LONDON in the Year 1598.

On a Brafs Plate over the Epigraph, is the Coat of Arms, Baron and Femme, A Feſſe Ermin, between two Chevronels of the ſame.

A Lion paſſant. The Coat of the Taylors. An Annulet, for Diſtinction. The Creſt, A Tyger's Head, erazed.

Charles Mareſcoe, Merchant, lies under a ſmall Stone, buried in this Chancel, An. 1672, with ſeveral of his Children, as namely, Charles, James, Mary, and Elizabeth.

His better and more laſting Monument is a very ſtately Houſe near Capworth-Street, in the Pariſh, lately built by Mr. David Gaſſel, who married Anne, one of his Daughters and Heirs, deceased.

In the new Chancel are two very fair Monuments erected againſt the South and North Walls.

That againſt the South Wall is made with two Arches, where are the Effigies of Sir Michael Hicks, Kt. and his Lady, both lying at Length; he in the Habit of a Knight, ſhe with a mourning Veil, leaning their Heads on their Hands: Over the Man is this Epitaph:

In obitum Clariff. viri D. Michaelis Hickes,
Equitis aurati, &c.

Quæ volui in vita vidi, dulciſſima nuper
Pignora, Confortem charam, fortemq; beatæ

Prolis; Erant nati gemini, nota una parenti,
Optabam Chriſtum; hinc morti ſuccumbo, Lubenſq;

Confortem, Sortem, Natos, natamq; relinquo.

Over her, theſe Verſes:

Me tua mors viduam fecit; tu jam viduatus
Connubium Chriſti, non viduandus habes.
At junctam hoc tumulto me ſponſam rurus habebis.
Sic tua ſemper ero, quæ tua nuper eram.

This fair Monument originally ſtood againſt the Eaſt Wall in the Old Chancel. Which Wall being to be taken down for the Building of a new Chancel, (that Part of the Church being found neceſſary to be enlarged) the ſaid Monument was carefully taken down, and the new Building being finiſhed, it was ſet up again in the Place where it now ſtands.

Oppoſite againſt this Monument on the North Side, Sir William Hicks, Knt. and Bart. in his Life-time erected that magnificent Monument that appears there for Sir William Hicks, Bart. his Father, for himſelf and his Lady, in three ſtately Marble Statues; he and his Lady ſtanding, and in the Middle between them his Father, with a Truncheon in his Hand, as Lieutenant of Waltham-Forreſt, and one of the Deputy Lieutenants of the County, lying on one Side. The Monument hath this Inſcription:

S.

H. M. uti par eſt, Memoriis dicator,

I. D. Gulielmi Hickes, Barti. filii unici ex Elizabetha Colſtonorum ſtemmate prognata, Michaelis Hickes, Equitis Aurati, viri probi ac prudentis, D. Gulielmo Baroni Burghlæo ſummo Angliæ Quæſtori, quondam a Secretis. Qui vii Idib. Octob. Anno Dom. MDCLXXX, obiit, cum octogefſimum quartum compleſſet annum.

II. D. Gulielmi Hickes, Equitis aurati & Barti. præfati D. Gulielmi filii natu maximi & Heredis. Qui poſtquam Vicecomitis Eſſexienſ. munus ſplendide ac fideliter obiiſſet, Eccleſiæ, Principi, ſuis conſtanter ſtudiſſet, Annos LXXIII, plus minus honorabiliter vixiſſet, April. die 22, Anno Domini MDCCII, fata ceſſit.

III. D. deniq; Marthagnetis D. Gulielmi Hickes Conjugis lectiſſimæ juxta ac piſſimæ D. Harreii Conysby de North Mimms in Comitatu Hertfordien. Equitis aurati ex antiqua Conysbæorum in Com. Herefordien. proſapia oriundi filiz, natu maximæ. A qua numeroſam ſucepit prolem, Octo Scil. natos, natâſq; quinque. E quibus Harreius, & Carolus, Maria ac Margareta adhuc ſuperſunt. Illa degens annum ſuæ ætatis Ann. Dom. ad ſuperos evaſit.

Underneath Sir William Hickes, the Elder, is this Inſcription:

Sir William Hickes, Bart. Lieutenant of the Foreſt of Waltham, one of the Deputy Lieutenants of this County of Eſſex, and an ancient Juſtice of Peace for the ſaid County; and who, for his Loyalty to King Charles I. in the great Rebellion, underwent much Trouble and Danger, married Margaret, eldeſt Daughter of William Lord Paget of Beaudeſert; by whom he had Iſſue (beſides others that dyed young) Sir Will. Hickes, Kt. and Bart. Sir Michael Hickes, Kt. and Dame Lætitia matched to Arthur Earl of Donegal in Ireland. The ſaid William dying full of Days and Honour, was buried with a Decency due to his Quality, and lyeth in the Chancel; having lived 28 Years after the Decease of his Lady, who dying at Weſtminſter, was interred in the Abbey Church there.

In

In the North Isle, against the Wall, a handsome Monument of white Marble :

M. S.

Not far from this Place, in Hope of a blessed Resurrection lyeth interred the Body of Anne, the sole surviving Daughter and Heir of William Fisher, Esq; late of LONDON, Alderman; and the late dear Wife of Nathaniel Tench of LONDON, Esq; with whom she lived in holy Wedlock most piously and chastly 29 Years and nine Months; and had Issue by him eleven Children, viz. eight Sons and three Daughters; three only of which survived her, viz. one Son, Fisher, and two Daughters, Anne and Elizabeth; she departed this Life the 25th of April, 1696, and in the fifty first Year of her Age.

To whose dear Memory, her sorrowful Husband erected this Monument.

And upon the same Monnument, Alderman Tench being deceased, was inscribed these Words :

And in the same Grave, by his particular Direction, lyeth interred the Body of the said Nathaniel Tench; that as in Life, so in Death, they might be united in the two States of Life and Death; he departed this Life the 2d Day of April 1710, and in the 79th Year of his Age.

In the Church-Yard, West of the Church, in a new Vault, is interred the Body of Dame Elizabeth Hickes, late Wife of Sir Harry Hickes of Ruckolts, Bart. the Daughter of Sir John Holmes, a Flag-Officer in the Fleet in King Charles II's Reign. On a Tomb raised over her is this Inscription :

Hic inferius jacent Reliquiæ Dnæ Elizabethæ Hickes conjugis Harreii Hickes, Baronettii. Quæ obiit Januariæ 14^o. Anno Dom. 1705. Ætat. suæ 29^o. Fœmina venustate & moribus, & (quod magis est) Virtute & Pietate ornatissima : Fidelitate & amore, Marito, conjunctissima. Cui Filium unum, & duas Filias peperit. Cognatis suis Blanda, pauperibus benefica, Ægrotis medica Amicis fida, Comis omnibus. Morbum diuturnum, Dolores gravissimos patienter tulit, soli nixa Deo. Qui eam, quoniam dignus illâ non erat Mundus in cœlum recepit.

Si Charitas non moritur, æternum vivet.

P. M. M. P. A. Æ.

Here lyes the Body of William Jackson of this Parish, who died September 10, 1719, aged 54 Years.

Here lyes the Body of George Say, who dyed April the 30th, 1720, aged two Years, and six Months.

Here lyeth the Body of Mary the Daughter of John and Anne Hart, who died the 24th of May, 1721, aged 21 Years.

She was { Virtuous in Life,
Dutiful to Parents,
Modest in Behaviour,
Courteous to all,
And patient under Affliction.

In blooming Years Death with his fatal Dart,
Giving no Warning, pierc'd my tender Heart,
Weep not dear Friends; for to weep is vain;
Your Loss is not so great as is my Gain.

In a Vault beneath this Tomb is deposited the Body of Mrs. Elizabeth March, the most dear and most deserving Wife of Henry March, Esq; of LONDON, Turkey-Merchant, to whom she bore five Children, Henry, John, Henry-Francis, Mary and Elizabeth, John only surviving. She was eldest Daughter of Edward Lisle of Crux-Easton in the County of Southampton, Esq; by Mary the only Daughter of Sir Ambrose Philips, of Carenton in the County of Leicester, Kt. being born the XVIth Day of December, MDCXCV, and married the XVth Day of July, MDCCXXI. She dyed the XIth Day of December, MDCCXXVI, justly and truly commendable in every Part of Life, amiable for the Graces both of Mind and Body, late much delighted in, now lamented by her Friends.

In this Vault lies the Body of Elizabeth Bertie, she was the only Child of John Hungerford of Doctors-Commons, of the Family of the Hungerford's of Devon and Wilts; first married to John Fisher, Esq; then to Peregrine Bertie, Esq; by whom she left a Son Peregrine.

Let it be acknowledged how justly in her Life she was beloved and esteemed, and at her Death much lamented; she dyed October the 1st, 1731, aged 45.

In the Chancel of this Church lyes the Body of John Fisher, Esq; of this Parish, Son and Heir of John Fisher of LONDON, Merchant, and Descendant of the antient Family of the Fishers of Brackenthwaite in Cumberland. He was a just Man, a constant and grateful Friend; he dyed Decemb. 24, 1719, aged 38.

Here lyeth the Body of John Burton, Son of Mr. Hill, and Mrs. Sarah Burton, of this Parish; he died April the 26th, 1733, aged two Years.

Here lyeth interred the Body of Tho. Baker of Stratford, Apothecary, died Jan. 23 Anno Dom. 1725-6.

I desire to be dissolved, and go to my God, for my Soul doth magnify the Lord, and my Spirit rejoiceth in God my Saviour.

WALTHAMSTOW.

A Little North East of Low-Leyton is the Parish of Walthamstow situated, washed likewise and bounded on the West with the River Ley, from whence the Town gently rises to the Forest.

THE Church is fair and large, mounted upon a Hill, consisting of three Isles; that on the North Side built by a great Benefactor to that Parish, Sir George Monoux, Alderman and Mayor of the City of LONDON, in the Reign of King Henry VIII. whose Coat of Arms still remains in one of the Windows of that Isle; he built also the fair Steeple.

IN this Parish are divers antient Seats; as Higham-Hall, the Seat of the Rowes, an antient Family; a fair and graceful House in Hoo-Street, inhabited by Joh. Conyers, Esq; (Patron of the Vicarage) and his Ancestors.

In the Church are these Monument :

In the Middle Isle there still remain the Monumental Stones of two antient Vicars thereof.

On a Brass Plate is the Effigies of a Priest in his Minist'ring Garment, with a shaven Crown, his Hands clapp'd together, and this Inscription at his Feet :

Hic jacet Dns. Wilhelm. Hyll, nuper Vicarius istius Ecclesiæ. Qui obiit vii^o. die mens. Julii, An^o. Dni. Mill^o. CCCC^o. LXXXVII. Cujus animæ propitiatur Deus, Amen.

William Hyll, Vicar of Walthamstow in Essex, by his Will, dated May 17, 1487, gives to the Church of Walthamstow, an Acre of Meadow of the Lowhal Hold; upon Condition it be not sold, but yearly the Profit thereof come to the Church.

Church. Item, He gives to his Cousin James Bryce, a Grove at Leyton-Brigg, with the Croft adjoining, with divers other Parcels of Land in Walcomstow, and an House to his Relations.

At the Head of this, another Brass Plate, the Figure of the Priest gone. The Inscription as follows :

Hic jacet Dns. Henricus Crane, quondam Baccalaureus utriusq; Juris, & Vicarius istius Ecclesiæ. Qui obiit xxviii die Octobr. An. Dni. M^o CCCC^o XXXVI. Cujus animæ popitietur Deus.

To which may be added the Monument of another antient Vicar of this Church, though erected in another Place, being on a Brass Plate, an Effigies of a Preacher in the Pulpit, against a Pillar in the South Isle, with this Inscription :

Georgius Johnson, Verbi & Sacramentorum Minister, excessit Sept. die 5. Salutis Anno 1576. Ætat. 36. fedit hic Vicarius anais 10.

The Office set by Pastor true,
(By CHRIST) his Flock to guide,
Is unto them his Faith to preach,
And from it never slide.
The Duty to his Flock assign'd,
God's Word is to obey ;
And on the same to stay themselves
With Faith and Hope alway ;
For here on Earth, as Pilgrims strange,
We daily seek for Rest :
Yet finding none because we bee
With sinful Flesh oppress'd.
No State on Earth, no Pomp may last,
No Flesh can long endure ;
But being Earth, to Earth shall turn :
Of this we be most sure.
Then sith our Days be full of Ill,
While we do pass the same,
Let us redeem them, doing Good,
Not seeking Praise ne Fame.
But Glory, Praise, and Honour due,
Yield we to God of right :
Whose Promise is, all Darknes past,
To give us his true Light.

Out of his Mouth goes a Label with these Words :

Post tenebras spero Lucem.

Before the Communion-Table, within the Rails, upon a fair Marble Stone, covering the Body of Pierse, some Time Bishop of Bath and Wells, and who lived and dyed in this Parish, is this Inscription :

Hic jacet R. Prælatus, Gulielmus Pierse. Quia fede Petriburgensi ad Batheniensem Wellensem translatus fuit, Anno Car. I. 8vo. A qua Temporum iniquitate perturbatus fuit, usq; ad Reditum Caroli II. Restitutus, Templum Cathedrale Wellense reparavit, Episcopale Palatium exædificavit, cœlis maturus, terris valedixit, An. Ætat. 94. Salutis 1670.

Next to the Bishop's Stone was another, inscribed on a Brass Plate thus :

Margery, late Wife of William Nicolls, and Daughter of Marmaduke Fairbary of Darlington in the Bishoprick of Durham ; which Margaret dyed the v. Day of April, MCCCC LXI.

O ! Blessed Trinity have Mercy on her Soul, Amen.

This Stone is now removed to the South Chancel.

Against the East Wall, South of the Altar are two Effigies half Way in Stone, of a Knight and a Lady, and an Account of the Lady underneath engraven in these Words :

By Vertue of his Death, that was the Death of Death, and in Vigour of his Resurrection, and that the Resurrection and the Life, even her victorious JESUS ; here rests deposited, to the assured Hope of Immortality and Glory, all that was mortal of that Religious and Christian Matron, Dame Mary Merry, last and for ever the most desired Consort of Sir Thomas Merry of Walthamstow in the County of Essex, Kt. A Lady whom, if either intensive Piety to her God, or extensive Charity to her Neighbour ; if Faithfulness to her Celestial, or Fidelity to her Terrestrial Spouse ; if the Desires of her Friends, the Prayers of her Children, or the Tears of the Poor, could have embailed from the common Fatality, she had not, Reader, in these perishable Postures, stood the sad Remembrancer of their Loss, and thy Mortality.

Seeing she is gone, go speed thyself frail Dust, of a Monument of like permanent Vertues : They, they are the likeliest Morals to transmit thy Memory to Posterity, that have perpetuated hers to Eternity.

By a short Inscription following, (viz. Thomas Merry, Eques auratus Consors, &c.) it appears she dyed Anno 1632 ; and he, in his Life-Time, erected it in a dear Remembrance of her.

Under her Effigies the Inscription is wanting. There are two Heads of Men set under him, and two of Women, dressed in their Hair, under her : their Children, no doubt.

Under her, likewise, besides the Epitaph above, are added these Verses set in Gold, whereof the Tradition is, that Sir William D'avenant was the Composer :

Posteritati æmulæ Sacrum.

Tho' 'tis but vain to raise dead Stones to her,
Whose Vertues their own live Inscription were :
Yet, not to envy future Times their Part,
Of what a Wife's Loss hath gain'd on my Heart,
I have this hardy Pile inspir'd to mutter, Plaints that would break a Widow'd Heart to utter.

The Top of conjugal Obedience,
The Pattern of unconquer'd Patience,
The Closet of religious Prayer retir'd,
The Altar which devout Zele daily fir'd.
The Life of discrete Hospitality,
The Soul of Home-affecting Housewifry,
The rare Example of maternal Care,
Dead in this one Urn, and con are.
Press gently, Earth, and keep each Grain in Trust,
'Till Heaven re it of this rich Dust.

On the North Side of the Communion-Table, is an antient fair Table Monument of Sir George Monox, Knt. and his Lady ; the Brass Plates pulled off. A Label with these Words on a Brass Plate, coming out of his Mouth, O Lord, shew thy Mercy upon us. Another Label with these Words out of hers, O Lord, give to us thy Salvation. This Gentleman (who lived at Moons) was the noble Benefactor before spoken of, and was the Founder of the Hospital and School situated in the Church-yard : And also endowed them well ; but much of the Endowment withdrawn. For the Recovery of which, Endeavours have been made more than once, at Commissions for charitable Uses ; But as yet to none Effect.

Lower

Lower down on that Side of the Chancel, is a very fair Monument arched over: Where is the Effigies of a Lady upon her Knees: And this Inscription:

Sir EDWARD STANLEY erected this Monument for a Testimony of his Love which he bear to his Wife, Lady LUCIE, and his four Daughters deceased.

Two other Effigies of Women praying, and this written between them:

The Souls of the Saints live.

On the other Side of the Monument:

THOMAS STANLEY, Knt. second Son of Edward Earl of Derby, L. Stanley and Strange, deceased, from the Family of the Stanleys; married Margaret Vernon, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Sir George Vernon of Nether Haddon in the County of Derby, Knt. by whom he had Issue two Sons, Henry and Edward: Henry dyed an Infant. Edward survived, (to whom these Lordships descended) and married Lady Lucie Percy, second Daughter to Thomas Earl of Northumberland: And by her he had Issue seven Daughters, and one Son. She and her four Daughters, Arabella, Mary, Alice and Priscilla, are interred under a Monument in the Church of Walthamstow in the County of Essex. Thomas, her Son, dyed an Infant, and is buried in the County of Lancaster. The other three, Petronella, Frances, and Venetia, are living.

Another Stone, and two Brass Plates of a Man and Woman, with another Brass Plate underneath both, and these Latin Verses inscribed:

Filia PORTERI, Thalamis Sociata, sed HALO,
Granta me genuit, nunc tegor hoc tumulo.
Quatuor en! natos, natas totidemq; relinquo,
Nunc quoq; cum Christo, qui vocat, ecce, migro.

Terra fui, Cinis & Pulvis: tamen ista resumo,
Cum sanctis vivens iudice læta Deo.
Vos orate, pii Lectores, quilibet ergo;
Dicat quisq; pius, Propitiato Deus.
1588.

In the North Chancel, a Stone with a Brass Plate, and this inscribed on it:

Here lyes the Corps of Thomas Brown,
Esquire, engrav'd in Ground;
Whose cunning Skill and Conscience eke,
The Chequer Court doth found.
A Man who living fed the Poor,
And feasted Friend and Foe:
Did Good to many, Hurt to none,
And feared God also.
Yet dreadful Death bereft his Life,
His Body turn'd to Dust:
His Soul with God, I hope, doth rest,
And reign among the Just.

24th of Decemb. 1582.

Against the North Wall in this Chancel, on a Brass Plate, is this Memorial of Will. Rowe, of the antient Family of the Rowes of this Parish:

Gulielmus Rowe de Higham-Hill in Comitatu. Essex. Generosus, Thomæ Rowe Miles natu tertius, Oxonii in Collegio Merton. optimarum artium studiis præclare institutus, cum summa laude non solum domi Mag. in Artibus adeptus est dignitatem; sed etiam foris in Germania & Gallia, ob summam eruditionem & pietatem, viris eruditis, præcipuè autem Immanueli Tremellio, Beneficus erat in pauperes, & in omnes pro facultatibus suis hospitalis: Pacem & coluit ipse, & aliis, ut eam mutuis officiis confirmarent, author fuit. Cum pecunia ad usus publicos exigeretur, ne major quam pro rata portione vicinus suis imperaretur, diligenter curavit. Et Imperatæ ne tenuiores exhauriri sequeretur, bonam Partem ipse dissolvit. Deniq; & suis & alienis veræ pietatis & virtutis exemplar proposuit: Demum vitæ honestæ & piæ transactæ, parem sortitus exitum, ipsi jucundum, amicis & vicinis luctuosum, Junii 29^o die obiit 1596.

Thoma patre fatus Gulielmus Rous, eodem Qui Londinensi Prætor in urbe fuit, Notus homo patriis, externis notus in oris, Tanta doctrinæ cognitione fuit.

Pacis Amans, Pietatis amans, populôq; benignus, Cui locus nullo tempore clausus erat. Natis quinq; pater, natus quatuor: isto Commisit moriens ossa tegenda solo.

Against the East Wall is erected a fair white Marble Monument. The Arms, A Cross charged with five Cross Crosets, between four of the same.

The Inscription is:

On the West, for Capt. William Moulton, who departed Sept. 9, 1695 ; aged 63.

Adieu, great Soul, whose living Glories stand,
And proudly their own Monument Command :
Who never struggled to resign his Breath,
Tho' he, like Fate, could once distribute Death.
The Fierceness of his untam'd youthful Age,
Vertue and manly Reason did assuage.
Dangers to him such pleasing Forms did bear,
His Looks in Fight so unconcerned were,
That he possess'd a Peace, tho' deep engag'd in War :

And when his frozen Limbs had lost their Fire,
Spurr'd with a noble and a brave Desire,
Like Cæsar, with his Eyes could Victory inspire.

Another for Sarah Reeve, Daughter of John Reeve, Grocer of LONDON : Departed September 18, 1704.

In Hopes of a glorious Resurrection. Another for Dinah Beal, Widow, who departed Sept. 10, 1703. Unto whose Memory; her affectionate Brother, Mr. Anth. Compton, caused this Tomb to be erected, in Hope as above.

Obiit 11^o. Die Maii, 1733. Ætat. 33.

THE chief House in this Parish, is Wansted House, built by the Right Honourable the Earl Tilney, and is a most magnificent Structure, being 260 Feet in Length, and 74 in Breadth, raised in a most elegant Taste, by the late ingenious Architect Mr. Colin Cambel; the Hall is finely painted by Mr. Kent, and the Gardens belonging to it, are the Admiration and Delight of all Beholders. There is a Basen before the House, which has the Appearance of a River. The Situation is pleasant and healthful. It was formerly in the Crown; and here Queen Elizabeth sometimes came, as did King James I. in the Hunting Season.

IN the old House, pulled down to make Room for the present Building, did reside the Earl of Leicester in Queen Elizabeth's Reign; and from hence went General of the Queen's Forces to Tilbury Camp, when the Spaniards in the Year 1588, came with their Fleet to invade the Realm. Upon his Death (which was that Year) it reverted to the Crown. Before this it belonged to Richard Lord Rich, Lord Chancellor to King Henry VIII. And before him this House and Manor came to that King from Giles Heron, a great Man in that Reign, who (for some Crime, as is likely) made a Gift thereof to the King: Yet, notwithstanding, was executed then, or afterwards. For, in an old Writing, that gave Account of all the Manors and Revenues that came to King Henry VIII. from the 3d of his Reign, and so onward, among the rest, is an House and Estate thus termed: "A great Messuage, called Naked Hall Hawe, [i. e. Court] and "Lands in Wansted and Ilford in Essex, given "by Giles Heron, Esq; in the 23d Year of his "Reign, [Ann. 1531.]

Ann. Dom. 1540, Giles Heron was attainted of Treason, (no special Matter being mentioned) and executed at Tyburn.

In Little Ilford Church, which is the next Parish, bordering upon Wansted, there is, or lately was, an old Monumental Inscription for Thomas Heron, Son and Heir of John Heron, Kt. Treasurer of the Chamber, who dyed at Aldersbroke, Ann. 1517, which is an antient Seat hard by Wansted, now possessed by Sir John Le-thieulier, Kt.

If this Wansted Place be the same with that Naked Hall Hawe, it might antiently well be so called, lying so naked and open by Reason of its Advancement upon Hills, and so without the Covering and Shelter of Trees; but had it not lost that Name long ago, now it must; the vast and beautiful Plantation of Trees about it, having imparted Cover to it, as well as Ornament.

ABOVE an hundred Years before this, there is Mention made of a Citizen, and some Time Sheriff of LONDON, Owner of this Manor of Wansted, Anno 1442, one Robert Tatersal, who gave his Manor of Wansted in Essex, to his Wife Anne, for her Life; and after to his Son Job Tatersal; and bequeathed 20 s. to some of the young Men and Women in the Clothworkers Trade, to feast together, and to pray for his Soul: He was buried in St. Swithen's Church. See Vol. I. Book II. Page 480.

STOKE-NEWINGTON.

Stoke-Newington, and Newington-Green, are pleasantly situated, near the great Northern Road, replenished with fine Country Houses for Citizens, being about three or four Miles from LONDON. The Minister's Living has been much augmented by the Rent of certain Houses, given by Dr. Sympton, a late Incumbent there.

The Monuments that shew themselves in this Church, are these that follow:

In the Chancel:

Against the South Wall, a very handsome, large, and somewhat antient Monument, with Pillars of different Marble, presents a Knight kneeling, and a Lady facing him, kneeling also; and behind her a Daughter; a Head-Piece behind him. The Epitaph this:

Under him:

Vivo miles Christo ductore triumpho,
 Stix caro, mors mundus cuncta subacta mihi.
 Exivi terris fessus, velut histrio scenâ:
 Acta est ætatis fabula longa meo.
 Finis adest, clare spectantes plaudite, vixi,
 Et cum desisto vivere, viro magis.

Under her:

Vivo, sed absque meo, mors est mihi vita, marito:
 Cumque viro veris sum viduata bonis.
 Charus eras summis imisque benignus, at uni,
 O! mihi quam charus quamque benignus eras?
 Rara fuit Pietas; Genus & tibi nobile: Vixi:
 Tu cum desistis vivere, vivo minus.

Lower on the Base, are these Verses:

Vivo prius durus mutusque, sed undique mutor,
 Ore Loquax, mollis pectore fio Lapis.
 Me tua Mollivit (mi Dudlei) vivida Virtus;
 Quæ tam Sancta fuit vita perennis erit.
 Et quæ freta viro optato simul optima vixti
 Tu (neque desistis vivere) vivis adhuc.

Over his Head is writ:

Obiit 29 Decembr. Anno Dom. 1580.

On the East Wall, North of the Table, is this Inscription:

Johannes Taverner, natus in Comitatu Hartfordiensi Familia honesta, Parentibus piis & probis. A Prima Infantia Literis operam dedit; primò, sub privato magistro: Dein Wemonasterii institutus, Cantabrigiæ studuit per annos 8. Ubi etiam Magisterii gradum suscepit. Dein Oxonii per annos 5. Demumq; sacris ordinibus susceptis, Vicarius de Tillingham in Comitatu Essex. per annos 5, & Postremum hujus Ecclesiæ Rector annis 9. hic expleto Currículo subitus sepultus felicem resurrectionem sperat. Natus anno 1584. Denatus 1638. Vitam duxit cœlibem.

Middle Isle :

On a flat Stone before the Pulpit :

Deceased Septemb. Anno Dom. 1652.

Here was interred the Body of John Leigh, Gent. Son of John Leigh of Leigh Hall in the County of Lancaster, Gent. who was married to Talbot, Daughter of Benjamin Pigot of Gravehurst in the County of Bedford, Esq; By her Direction this Monument was made.

Two other antient flat Burial Stones, with Effigies and Inscriptions in Brass, but torn away.

On the South is a Chapel, some Time belonging to the Pophams, Lords of the Manor.

North Isle :

Against the North Wall, near the East, is an antient Table Monument without any Inscription. On the Side are some Shields. One bears the three Nails of the Cross; another, the Cross, with the Crown of Thorns hanging on it.

An antient flat Stone, with Saxon Capital Letters round it, hard to be read.

Under this Stone, in a Vault, lyeth the Body of James Porter of Newington-Green, Gent. who departed this Life the 26th of August, 1693, aged 67 Years; also of his Wife, and George his Son.

John Stocker, Esq; buried by his Fader in S. Thomas Chapel in the Church of Stoke-Newington in Middlesex; by his Will dated Sept. 13, 1500, gives several Lands in Newington and Crepulgate.

In the Church-Yard, are the following Inscriptions :

The Grave is but a Fining Pot

Unto believing Eyes;

For here the Fleih must lose its Dross,

And like the Sun arise;

Since none can see God's Face and live

For me to Dy is best.

Through Jordan Streams who would not dive

To Land at Canaan's Rest?

Lord let me praise thee whilst I live,

And praise thee when I dye,

And praise thee when I rise again

To all Eternity.

Had Heav'n commission'd Death to hold his Hand,

And Vertue could the Force of Death withstand;
This beauteous Virgin had been longer liv'd,
Nor we so soon of her rich Worth depriv'd.
Her Charming Youth, her Meekness, Wit, and Sense,

Her Charity, her Truth, her Innocence:
But ripe for God, her Soul ascending flew,
And early bid the sinful World adieu, &c.

The Honble AMEY CONSTABLE,
The worthy Daughter of Hugh Lord
Clifford of Chudley, and the much lamented Wife of Cuthbert Constable, of Burton Constable in Holderness, Esq;

A Lady

Who in the Flower of her Youth employ'd her whole Time and Thoughts
In the Care of her Soul, the Christian Education of her Children,
And an engaging Behaviour to her Husband and Friends :

She was agreeable without Art :
Chearful without Levity :
Grave without Affectation :
Witty without Censoriousness :
Obliging to all without Flattery :
Patient and Courageous without Ostentation :
An Enemy to nothing, but what was vicious or base :

A Friend only to Vertue and Truth.

God takes them soonest
That doth please him best.

In the Memory of Elizabeth, Richard and Edmund Thornton, the Daughter and two Sons of Richard and Elizabeth Thornton. Elizabeth dyed April the 7th, 1723, aged 11 Months. Richard dyed April the 26th, 1723, aged two Years and three Months. Edmund dyed August the 30th, 1726, aged two Years and seven Months.

Sleep, lovely Babes, enjoy your peaceful Rest,
God takes them soonest, that doth please him best.

Here lyeth the Body of Sarah, the Daughter of John and Sarah Willis of this Parish, who died June the 30th, 1730, aged four Years and four Months.

Here lyeth the Body of Frances, late Wife of Mr. Thomas Hartshorn, of Lisham-Green of this Parish, who died July the 19th, 1732, aged 45 Years.

Also the Body of the above-mentioned Mr. Thomas Hartshorn, who died Jan. 11, 1732-3, in the 33d Year of his Age.

WE are now come round into the Town again, for all that Part of it which lies on the North Side of Oxford Road, opposite to Hanover and Grosvenor Buildings are in this Parish, and not contained within the Bills of Mortality, namely, Cavendish-square, with the fine Streets about it. This Square has several fine Houses in it particularly, the late Lord Harcourt's, and the late Lord Bingley's. Duke Chandos had designed something very magnificent here, on the North Side, fronting Cavendish-square; but for some Reasons a Stop was put to it, and there are only the two Wings at present to be seen.

THIS new Part of the Town being chiefly the Estate of the Right Honourable the Earl of Oxford, most of the Streets and Places here are called after his own and Lady's Names and Titles, as, Cavendish-square, Henrietta-street, Wigmore-street, Mortimer-street, Holles-street, Harley-street; there are besides, Margaret-street, Queen-Anne-street, Chandos-street, &c. There is a Market-Place and Market-House built somewhat on the Eastward of Cavendish-square, and on the South West, a very neat Chapel for the Use of the Inhabitants, where Divine Service is performed on Sundays and Holidays, and Prayers twice every Day. It is computed that there are about 600 Houses in this Part contiguous to the Liberties of the City of Westminster, but out of the Bills of Mortality.

As we have before given a List of the Members who have served in Parliament for the City of LONDON, the following is a List of the Representatives for the City of Westminster.

THE first Return Westminster ever made of Representatives to Parliament, was after the Dissolution of Abbeys; for it is plain, that Anno 33 of King Henry VIII. there was no Return or Summons of Members from it, or Peterborough, or several Abbey-Towns; so we may date their sending Representatives to be undoubtedly in King Henry VIII's last Parliament, begun An. Reg. 33. aforesaid, or rather in the next convened Parliament; which was in King Edward VI's Reign.

C H A P. VII.

Of divers ROMAN, and other antique Curiosities found in LONDON, before and since the Great Fire.

THERE are preserved either in Publick Repositories, or private Collections, many antient Curiosities, found chiefly in digging Foundations for the Rebuilding of LONDON, after the Great Fire in 1666, and casually at other Times.

IN the Repository of the Royal Society in Crane-Court, there is a large Glass Urn, that holds about a Gallon, and hath a few Shivers of Bones in it; it was taken up since the Fire in Spittle-fields; the Glass is somewhat thick, bellying out, and contracting towards the Mouth with a Lip.

BUT the Collection made by the late Dr. John Woodward, Professor of Physick in Gresham College, is by much the most considerable of any: For besides an antient Marble Bust of Jupiter, a Marble Head with a Phrygian Tiara, a Grecian Basso Relievo, his famous Votive Shield exhibiting the Sacking of Rome by the Gauls; the Embossment of which is allowed by the greatest Judges to be the finest and most exquisite that all Antiquity hath left us: Several Icunculi of the Deities, both Egyptian and Roman: A considerable Variety of Amulets, Periapta, Phalli, Bulle, Scarabei: Gems with historical Sculpture, Heads, &c. graven upon them: Camei and Intaglia's of Egyptian, Grecian, and Roman Work: Many Roman, Greek, Syrian, and other Medals: Roman Weights: A Roman Semi-Connus: Urns, Lachrymatories, and other Things, procured from Alexandria, Constantinople, Rome, &c. And besides, an antient Roman Altar from the Picts Wall in Northumberland, with a considerable Inscription upon it: Several antient Weapons of Brass, Thuribula, Pataræ, Urns, &c. found in the remoter Parts of this Kingdom, Cumberland, the Isle of Man, Yorkshire, Wiltshire, Gloucestershire, Northampton, Devonshire, &c. He had a vast Variety of antient Instruments, Utenfils, Vasa, and the like, that have been discovered in several Places in and about this City: In particular, several Vessels of religious Use, and employed in the Sacrifices; as for Example, Præfericula, Simpula, Pataræ, Thuribula, Labra, digged up; together with Horns, Teeth, and other Parts of the Beasts that were offered in Sacrifice; above twenty sepulchral Urns, of various Forms and Sizes: Likewise, Lanxes, Amphoræ, Crateres, Scyphi, Gutti, Pocula, Ollæ nummarie clausæ; Parts of the Plasmata fictilia, in which the embossed Vasa were molded; and Lamps of various Sorts. The precedent Vessels are of Pot or Earth; several of them exceeding fine, well baked, some curiously glazed, and the Colours very beautiful.

As to their Forms, they are universally very elegant and handsome: And indeed the Doctor, the Possessor of them, well observeth, that the Remains of these Works of the Romans shew them to have been a People of an exact Genius, good Fancy, and curious Contrivance.

'TIS observable also in this Collection, that the Things are fair, well preserved, and intire; which, considering the great Number and Diversity of them, how brittle Pots and Glasses are, and how liable to be defaced, injured, and dashed in Pieces, is the more extraordinary.

THERE were likewise in his Cabinet of Antiquities, a Glass Urn, with a Cover; also a Scyphus; divers Ampulæ, Phialæ, and Lachrymatories of Glass, that are very fair and perfect. Then there are several Pieces of British Money, coined both before and after the Descent of the Romans upon this Island. As also Roman Numismata, coined here: (Besides Saxon, Danish, and Norman Coins, which, as well as others, are very fair, and happily preserved.) Likewise, Styles of Ivory, Bone, and Steel: Several Fibulæ, Aciculi, Bullæ, Claves, Armilleæ, Annuli, Beads of various Sorts; Aleæ, Tessaræ, Pectines, Calcæria, Spicula, Facula. Likewise Tiles, Pieces of Lithostrata, or tessellated Pavements of Earth, Glass, Paste, Enamel, and gilded.

So that Dr. Woodward's Museum is a Treasury of all Sorts of Commodities and Utenfils, sacred and profane, of antient Heathen Rome: As Vessels for Sacrifice, and for other subordinate Uses in Sacris. Vessels also for Uses Domestic, Sepulchral, Military, Personal, for wearing and dressing: Also divers Pieces of Art relating to Building, or Sculpture, explanatory of some Parts of Roman History.

BESIDES these Remains of Roman Skill and Workmanship, here are also repositied several Gothic historical Carvings, in Copper, Ivory, and Wood; the Work of some of them very good: Impresses on Lead, and Leaden Seals, that have been affixed antiently to Popes Bulls; with various other Things, all well chosen, of real Importance, and serviceable to some useful Design.

ONE great Intention of this learned Gentleman in amassing together so great a Number of these Things, and that with so great Diligence, Trouble and Expence, was in order to clear and give Light to those antient Writers who mention and treat of them, viz. the Greeks and Romans; which he hath read and studied with great Exactness. Another of his Ends herein was, to illustrate the History and Antiquities of this great and noble City; out of the Ruins of which these Things were retrieved, upon the Occasion of that great Digging, (greater indeed than ever happened from the Foundation of it before) and the Removal of Rubbish that was made in all Parts, after the late great Fire. And, indeed, the Medals and Coins, the various Figures, historical Embossments, and Inscriptions upon the Vases, contribute very much to that End. And farther, from the various Places in which the Urns were found repositied, (which, according to the Laws of the twelve Tables, were to be buried without the Walls) he is able to ascertain the antient Bounds of this City, whilst Roman: From several Things discovered in laying the Foundation of St. Paul's Church, to shew, not only that there was antiently a Temple there; but also, by some Instances to prove that it was dedicated to Diana, according to the antient Tradition, notwithstanding what a very learned Antiquary, as well as Divine, has lately offered to the contrary.

INDEED, the far greater Part of these Things is so very considerable, that it would afford much Satisfaction to inquisitive People, to see Icons graved of them; and that the Possessor could have spared so much Time, from his Business and his other Studies, as to have writ his own Observations and Reflections upon them.

IN Black Fryars, in clearing away the Rubbish, in order to building after the great Fire, they came to a thick Wall, very probably a Part of the Foundation-Wall of the old Fryery. In which Wall was placed somewhat like a Cupboard, shut; which being opened, in it were found four dead Mens Heads, repositied in fine Pewter Cases, made for them; round, only flat on one Side; and a thick Cover of Pewter, having a Ring fastened on the Top, for the more convenient taking it off, or putting it on. Three of these Heads are now lost, likely enough conveyed beyond Sea, where they may serve for Relicks. That which remained is, or was lately, in the Possession of Mr. Presbury, a Soap-maker in East-Smithfield, who had it in 1703.

THIS Head had been wrapt in black Silk, which was then grown rotten. The Skin was like a Piece of tanned Leather, or Bacon. The Hair of the Temples yellow, but upon the Head the Hair was red, short and thick, and would not be pulled off. There was a Tonsure, or round bare Place on the Crown of the Head, that bespoke him to have been in Holy Orders: The Nose flat, as tho' a Piece of it had been cut off; the Mouth gaping; the Teeth in the Head found, ten in Number; the rest had been pulled out; the Feature still discoverable. There remained a great deal of Dust of a brownish Colour in the Case. On the Side of the Cover was scratched this Name in a bad Character, I. Cornelius. There was one Corpse found near it under Ground, without a Head. These seem to have been Fryars of this Religious House, or some of their Benefactors, or their Saints or Martyrs; whose Heads, perhaps, were taken out and shewn upon extraordinary Days and Occasions: And upon the Dissolution of the House (it may be) here concealed.

NEAR the Foundation of Charing-Cross, at a great Depth, were Stones found, which seem'd to be a Sort of coarse Marble, of a blackish Colour, and cut into several plain Sides, but irregular. From whence, saith Dr. Grew, they may be argued to be very antient. These were given by Sir Joseph Williamson, to the Museum in Gresham College.

IN Mark-lane a strange Brick was found 40 Years before or better, about 28 Feet deep in the Ground, by Mr. Stockley, while he was digging a Foundation and Cellars for an House which he built for Mr. Woolly. On this Brick was formed Sampson, with the Jaw Bone of an Ass in his Right Hand, and his Left Hand lifted up, with two Foxes before him, running together, with Firebrands at their Tails, scaring them into high standing Corn hard by. This might have belong'd to the House of some Jew dwelling thereabouts; signifying, his Malice to some neighbouring Christian Merchant that dealt in Corn. For it's remarkable, that near this Place, where this Brick was found, was also digged up burnt Wheat, to the Quantity of many Quarters; very black, but yet found. Probably it was some Granary consumed by Fire.

BUT take what Mr. Bagford hath writ in his Letter to Mr. Hern of Oxford. "That this Brick was of a Roman Make, of a curious red Clay, and in Bass Relief, and was a Key-Brick to the Arch; and the burnt Wheat was conjectured to have lain buried ever since the burning of the City, 800 Years before; and that it is preserved in the Museum belonging to the Royal Society in Fleet-street; and that Mr. Waller's Conjecture of it was, that it had been made and set there by some Jew, settling here, in the Arch of his own Granary.

A Piece of Mosaick Work found deep under Ground in Holbourn, near St. Andrew's Church, inlaid with black, white, and red Stones in Squares, and other regular Figures; in the above-said Museum.

IN digging for the Foundation of St. Paul's Cathedral, at the West End, since the Fire, was found Variety of Roman sacrificing Vessels, whereof a great Quantity of the Fragments were digged up. They were made of a curious red Earth; the Glazing of them still remains, which is curious. They are of divers Shapes and Sizes, as Occasion should require them to be made Use of in their Sacrifices. And in many, the Potter's Name was stamped at the Bottom; some of these Mr. Bagford, a Citizen of LONDON, studious of Antiquities, and especially of such as relate to the said City, took up with his own Hands. Farther, on the South Side of the said West End was found a Potter's Kiln, the Shape of which was circular. In this the above-said sacrificing Vessels probably were made. It was near to the Temple where Diana was worshipped, for the more Convenience of the People that came thither to sacrifice, that they might be furnished with all Sorts of Vessels they had Occasion for, at the Time when they made their Sacrifices. And likewise thereabouts were found several Moulds of Earth, some exhibiting Figures of Men, of Lions, of Leaves of Trees, and other Things. These were used to make Impression of those Things upon the Vessels. These Moulds are also among the aforementioned curious Collections of Dr. Woodward. The Representation of the above-said Pottery, drawn with a Pen, is in the Possession of Sir Hans Sloan, Bar. M. D. of the Royal Society, with a Description of it added.

ALSO, at the South End of St. Paul's Church, at the beginning to build it after the Fire, were found several Scalps of Oxen, and a large Quantity of Boars Tusks, with divers Earthen Vessels, especially Pateræ, of different Shapes.

IN Cannon-street, nigh Busb-lane, was found pretty deep in the Earth, a large Pavement of Roman man Mosaick Work; Dr. Hook gave a Piece of it to the Repository in Gresham College.

IN Goodman's-fields, without Aldgate, was a Roman Burying-Place; for since the Buildings thereabouts, 1678, have been found there (in digging the Foundations) vast Quantities of Urns, and other Roman Utensils, as Knives, Combs, &c. which were likewise in the Possession of Dr. Woodward; some of these Urns had Ashes of Bones of the Dead in them, and Brasses and Silver Money; and an unusual Urn of Copper, curiously enamelled in Colours, Red, Blue, and Yellow.

IN Kent-street, all along the Gardens on the Right Hand Side of the Road, going out of Town, have been digged up several Roman Vessels, as Urns, Ampullæ, and other Things; and among the rest, an Head of Janus cut in Stone, that is still preserved, being placed over the Door at the Entry of one of those Gardeners Houses. Money was offered for this Janus's Head, but it would not be taken, being kept superstitiously, as though it were found by Revelation in a Dream; a Woman, about the Time it was found, dreaming she was brought to Bed of a Child with two Faces.

AT Peckham was a very large Urn of Glass digged up in the Highway, which is now in Gresham College.

IN April, in the Year 1707, divers Roman Antiquities were found in digging by the Wall near Bishopsgate within: Mr. Joseph Miller, an Apothecary, living near the Place, while the Labourers were digging for Foundations and Cellars for some new Houses to be built in Camomile-street, did first discover several of these Antiquities, which he communicated to Dr. John Woodward of Gresham College aforesaid, who, according to his wonted Exactness, gave this Narration of them in a Letter to Sir Christopher Wren; "About four Foot under Ground was discovered a Pavement consisting of diced Bricks, the most red, but some black, and others yellow, each somewhat above an Inch in Thickness. The Extent of the Pavement in Length was uncertain, it running from Bishopsgate for 60 Feet, quite under the Foundation of some Houses not yet pulled down. Its Breadth was about ten Feet, terminating on that Side, at the Distance of three Feet and an half from the Wall.

"SINKING downwards under the Pavement, only Rubbish occurred for about two Feet, and then the Workmen came to a Stratum of Clay in its natural State. In which, at the Depth of three Feet more were found several Urns; some of them were become so tender and rotten, that they easily crumbled and fell to Pieces. As for those that had the Fortune better to escape the Injuries of Time, and the Strokes of the Workmen, they were of different Forms, but all of very handsome Make and Contrivance, as, indeed, most of the Roman Vessels we find ever are; which is but one of the many Instances that are at this Day extant of the Art of that People of the great Exactness of their Genius, and Happiness of their Fancy. These Urns were of various Magnitudes, the largest capable of holding three full Gallons, the least somewhat above a Quart. All these had in them Ashes and Cinders of burnt Bones.

"ALONG with the Urns were found various other earthen Vessels, as a Simplus, a Patera of a very fine red Earth, and a bluish Glass Viol of that Sort that is commonly called a Lachrymatory; on this there appeared something like Gilding, very fine.

THERE were likewise found several Beads, one or two Copper Rings, a Fibula of the same Metal, but much impaired and decayed; as also a Coin of Antoninus Pius, exhibiting on one Side the Head of that Emperor, with a radiated Crown on, and this Inscription, ANTONINUS AUG. . . .

AT about the same Depth with the Things beforementioned, but nearer to the City Wall, and without the Verge of the Pavement, was digged up an human Skull, with several Bones that had not been burnt, as those in the Urns had; but for a larger and more satisfactory Account of these Antiquities, the Reader may see the said learned Doctor's Letter, now printed at large by Mr. Hearne, with Leland's Itinerary, in Octavo.

AN Elephant's Body was found in a Field near to Sir John Oldcastle's, not far from Battle-bridge, by Mr. John Coniers, an Apothecary, and a great Searcher after Antiquities, as he was digging there.

SOME Years ago, on the South Side of Ludgate, was taken up out of the Rubbish a Roman Inscription, taken Notice of by learned Men:

COMING in at Ludgate, in the Residentiary's Yard of St. Paul's, was discovered some Years ago an Aqueduct, close adjoining to the Wall of the City: And such another, was found after the Fire by Mr. Span in Holiday-yard in Creed-lane, in digging the Foundation for a new Building; and this was carried round a Bath, that was built in a Roman Form, with Niches at an equal Distance for Seats.

Anno 1716, in digging for the Foundation of a new Church, to be erected where the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth in Lombard-street stood, at the Depth of about 15 Feet, and so lower to 22 Feet, were found Roman Vessels, both for sacred and domestick Uses, of all Sorts, and in great Abundance, but all broken; and withal were taken up Tusks and Bones of Boars and Goats: As also many Medals, and Pieces of Metals; some tessellated Works, a Piece of an Aqueduct; and at the very Bottom a Well filled up with Mire and Dirt, which being taken away, there arose a fine Spring of Water. Dr. Harwood, of the Commons, has been very exact in taking Notice from Time to Time of these Antiquities, and has sorted and preserved a great many of the most curious and remarkable of them, and supposes, by probable Conjecture, that here was not only a Pottery, but also, that on this Place, or near it, stood the Temple of Concord, which our Roman Historians speak of to have been in this City, when called Trinobantum. These Sheards were in such vast Quantities, that many Cart Loads were carried away with the Rubbish; and the Roads about St. George's Fields in Southwark mended with them.

Anno 1718, in the Month of May, the Workmen pulling down a Wall at Bridewell Hospital, found a Gold Ring an Inch and Quarter broad, enamelled; having the Resemblance of CHRIST on the Cross engraved on it with a mourning Heart, and a Pillar with a Cock on the Top: The Inscription was in Arabick, and some Antiquaries, who saw it, reckoned it to be 1500 Years since it was made.

T H E A P P E N D I X.

WE shall now give our Readers, by way of Appendix, an Account of some Things which we think necessary to be added to the foregoing Books; and of some others that have been omitted in their proper Places.

C H A P. I.

Of the VILLAGE of HAMPSTEAD.

THIS Village is situated on a high Hill, and on a gravelly Soil, which makes the Air wholesome, and having likewise a delightful Prospect from most Parts about it, is much more frequented by good Company than can be well expected, considering its Vicinity to LONDON; but such Care has been taken to discourage the meaner Sort from making it a Place of Rendezvous, that it is now become, after Scarborough, Bath, and Tunbridge; one of the politest publick Places in England; and to add to the Entertainment of the Company, there is, besides the Long-Room, in which the Company meet publickly on a Monday Evening, to play at Cards, &c. a new Dancing-Room built this Year, (1735), by Mr. Vipand, the Owner of the other: This Room is 60 Feet long, and 30 Feet wide, well adorned with Chandeliers, &c. The Manner of being admitted into it is by a Ticket, of which every Gentleman who subscribes a Guinea for the Season, has one for himself, and two more for two Ladies; all those who have not Subscribers Tickets pay half a Crown each, at their Enterance every Night. And on Sunday Nights in the same Room is an Assembly, where the Gentlemen and Ladies who lodge in the Town, are entertained with Tea and Coffee, at 6 d. per Head; but no other Amusements are allowed of on those Nights. Here are about this Town, and on the Heath, a great Number of Houses belonging to Persons of good Fashion, and wealthy Traders of the City; To speak now of, what we ought indeed to have mentioned in the first Place, the Church here; it is the most ordinary, both as to Strength and Beauty of any in or about LONDON; it has no Monumental Inscriptions within, but in the Church-Yard are many, as follow:

In Hopes

Of a Blessed Resurrection

Underneath

Lies the Body

of

Henry Dottin,

A young Man

Of great Expectation.

For Probity of Manners, and Sweetness of Temper, much to be lamented,

Who was fervent and frequent in Praying

Whom God graciously heard.

In not taking away his Speech, or his Reason, 'till he took him to himself.

And who in his last Agonies, and the Pangs of Death,

Breath'd this Ejaculation.

All this, and more, can I suffer, to live with thee, O my God!

O God have Mercy upon him, and me,

He enter'd into this Life the XXII of May 1701. Departed out of it the XXI of June 1721.

A good Life hath but few Days; but a good Name endureth for ever.

Hampstead is no Parish, but the Minister of the Place is Chaplain to the Lord, or, as it now happens, to the Lady of the Manor. The Lady of the Manor at this Time is Mrs. Gomes, the Minister the Rev. Dr. Warren, who is likewise Rector of Stratford le Bow. his two Curates are the Rev. Mr. Watts, and the Rev. Mr. Wright.

HERE is likewise a Chapel on what is called the Wells Walk, which was formerly a Dancing Room, but being since consecrated, is let by Mr. Mitchell the Owner of it, to the Doctor who has Divine Service performed in it twice every Sunday, by himself or Curates, for which Trouble he is paid by the Advantage he makes of the Seats.

OF the Water here, some have a great Opinion; but the Place is but little resorted to upon that Account, and they are not much used at present.

Chap. vi. Pag. 581. In the Parish Church of St. Alphage, add this Monumental Inscription:

Here lies the Body of Jeremiah Copping, late of this Parish, Gent. who departed this Life the 22d of January, 1686, in the 72d Year of his Age.

He gave by his Will (to the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers, London, whereof he was Warden, for the purchasing of Lands to be settled for the Maintenance of nine or ten such poor Alms-men, as the said Company shall from Time to Time nominate for ever) 1800 l. and also an Annuity of 50 l. per Annum, which he had during a certain Person's Life.

Chap. viii. Pag. 696. Add what follows, to the Account of the Privileges of Black-fryars.

On Thursday the 10th of July, 1735, came on at the Guildhall, before the Right Honourable the Lord Hardwick, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, a great Cause, where John Bosworth, Esq; Chamberlain of the City of LONDON, was Plaintiff, and Daniel Watson, Shalloon and Drugget-seller, Defendant; the Action was brought against the Defendant by the City of LONDON, in the Name of their Chamberlain, for opening Shop in Black-fryars, and retailing his Goods there, without being a Freeman of the City of LONDON. The Counsel for the Plaintiff were Mr. Serjeant Hawkins, Mr. Serjeant Urling Deputy-Recorder, Mr. Common-Serjeant Garrard, Counsellor Noel, and Counsellor Moreton, who alledged, that Black-fryars actually belonged to the City of LONDON when it was a Monastery, and before Trades were ever occupied there; to prove which they produced several antient Records, viz. a Charter of King Edward I. calling it the Fryars of LONDON; a Record 11 Richard II. calling it the Fryary of LONDON; and another when the Parliament was summoned to meet in the City of LONDON, 21 Henry VIII. it was express, begun and held at the Fryars Preachers of the City of LONDON, Nov. 3, 1530, and again, 14 and 15 Henry VIII. the 15th of April, the King went to the Fryars Preachers of LONDON, and several other Records of this Kind: The Counsel for the Plaintiff likewise cited a Parallel Case to this, 15 Car. I. when an Action was brought against one Philpot, a Shoemaker of Black-fryars, for opening Shop and vending Shoes there without being made Free of the City; and after a fair Trial, by an equal and indifferent Jury of the County of Hertford, a Verdict was given for the City: They then called two or three Officers of the City to prove that they had executed Writs and other Processes in Black-fryars; and then the Counsel left the Issue to rest upon the Record before-mentioned. The Defendant's Counsel pleaded Custom Time out of Mind, and called 11 Witnesses, who declared they had known Black-fryars, some of them 20, 30 Years, and upwards, and that several Persons had kept open Shops there unmolested, and not Freemen; though some of them could not deny but that there had been People sued, particularly about a Year ago, when a Person suffered Judgment to go against him by Default. Upon the Whole, after a Trial of about five Hours, the Jury, who were all indifferent Persons, chose out of the County of Middlesex, after staying out near half an Hour, brought in a Verdict for the Plaintiff, with five Shillings Damage.

Some few Days after this, several of the Inhabitants of Black-fryars, that were Non-Freemen, petitioned the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, in Behalf of themselves and others, praying, that as they had settled there some Time, imagining they might lawfully do so, without being free of the City; but finding their great Mistake, offered each to pay 25 l. for the Freedom of the City, in the following Manner, viz. each of them 5 l. down, and 5 l. per Annum for four Years: But after a long Debate, the Court of Aldermen rejected their Petition.

Ditto Chap. Pag. 767. To the Monumental Inscriptions in the Church and Church-Yard of St. Andrew's Holborn, add the following:

Near the North East Angle of the Church, in the Coemetry, on a Grave-Stone, is the under Inscription:

Here lies the Body of Katharine Heather, Daughter of Edward Heather, who departed this Life the 7th of January, 1697, aged four Years.

O gentle Reader, why so late,
Didst thou knock at this stony Gate?
This Door must open unto none,
But to my Parents dear alone.
In my cold Bed I'll keep them room,
'Till Christ them call from Labour home,
And this long Night a Morning make,
And our dead Dust to Life awake.

Here also lies the Body of Anne, Wife of the said Edward Heather, who departed this Life July 31, 1704.

Close to the North Side of the Church is a neat Tomb of Stone fenced with handsome Iron Rails, and on the North Side thus inscribed:

Under this Place lie the Bodies of John, Mary, Benjamin, Elizabeth, and Anne, the Children of Benjamin Green, and Elizabeth his Wife; of this Parish, Anno Dom. 1704.

On a Grave-Stone in the Church, near the South Door is this inscription:

Here lies the Body of Margaret, late Wife of John Withie, Citizen and Painter-Stainer, Obiit 1665.

Here lies the cold Remains of her whose Life
Was the choice Pattern of a virtuous Wife:
But tho' her Body sleeps among the Dead,
Her Soul was unconfin'd and quickly fled.
Above the touring Regions of the Air,
Born by the Wings of Charity and Prayer,
And sealed now in her eternal Rest,
She sings her Hallelujahs with the Blest.

Against the Wall on the Front of the Church, is a neat Marble Monumental Stone, with this Inscription:

Chap. v. Pag. 661. To the Funeral Monuments in the Church-yard of St. James's, add the following Inscription, set up against the Church Wall, near the Entrance of the West Door :

Sacred
To the Memory of
EDWARD BROWNE
Esquire.

Who was several Years under House-Keeper of St. James's Palace ; also one of the Pages of the Bed-chamber to their Majesties Queen Anne, King George I, and II ; was always a careful, diligent, and faithful Servant ; he died the xvi Day of December, A. D. MDCCXXXIV. Aged LXXXV. and is interred near this Place.

By his last Will he gave to the poor Boys of this Parish C Pounds, the like Sum to the poor Girls of St. Martin's in the Fields, and the like Sum to the poor Boys of St. Clement Danes : Also to X poor House-keepers of the last named Parish, X Pounds to each ; and to X poor Inhabitants of St. Paul's Covent-Garden, X Pounds a-piece, in all the Sum of five hundred Pounds.

His Executors being desirous that these his good Deeds should be remembered, have caused this Monument to be fixed here.

Ditto Chapter, Pag. 663. Col. 1. Line 41. for gives a pleasant Prospect, read, have a pleasant Prospect.

In the same Page and Column, to the Account of the Prince of Wales's House and Garden, add, His Royal Highness has built an Octagon at the West End of his Garden, which is a curious Piece of Workmanship, and is likewise elegantly furnished.

The lower Part, descending by Stone Stairs, is a Grotto, or Bathing-Room, paved with Marble, and has a Marble Bath in it, the Roof is Looking-Glass, and Stucco hanging in Isicles.

Over this is a Dining-Room ; the Ceiling of which is gilt, Mosaick Work, extremely rich, from whence hangs a gilt Chandelier. The Pictures are fine, especially that over the Chimney, which is the Rotundo at Rome, exquisitely painted in Prospective. Here are two fine black veined Marble Tables on gilt Frames, and four Marble Busts of the four following most celebrated English Poets, viz. Shakespear, Milton, Dryden, and Pope. There is likewise a Settee of Crimson Velvet and Gold Point d'Espagne, on a gilt Frame ; one of the richest and most curious that is possible to invent.

On the Outside of this Building are placed (one on each Side the Door) the Busts of those two great Princes Alfred the Great, and Edward the Black Prince, carved by the masterly Hand of that fine Statuary Mr. Rysbrack. Under each is an Inscription in Gold Letters on a square Table of Marble ; under the first :

On the Right Hand of the Communion-Table,

A Memorial both of Daniel Clarke, Esq; who left this Life most comfortable the last of June, 1626. Anno Ætat. suæ 79, having been Master Cook to Queen Elizabeth, and to King James, 29 Years called to that Place, betimes for his Worthiness beloved there, and elsewhere, for his honest Heart and open Hand, and also for Catharine his good and loving Wife, who left this Life the 24th of June 1613. Anno Ætat. suæ 50.

Reader, before this Monumental Stone
Two Bodies lye interred that once were one,
Whom Death did for a Time divorce
And now hath married Coarse to Coarse,
Their Ashes meet in Death, and have
For their new Marriage Bed the Grave ;
A third they yet expect that Fate,
Nor Time nor Force shall violate ;
Where both shall married and unmarried be,
Not to themselves, but to Eternity.
Then sleep, ye happy Ashes, there,
Nor let a Groan, a Sigh or Tear,
Disturb your Rest 'till the glad Noise
Of the World waking Trumpet's Voice
Raise you from this dead Sleep, and call
Your Dust from this sad Funeral.
To wed their Souls, and Soul and Body bring Unto the Marriage of the Lamb their King.

On the Right Hand of the Communion Table is a Monument with the Effigies of a Woman cut in it, and a Child, with this Inscription :

If Youth, if Feature, Lowliness, or Ought
That in our Sex may Ornaments be thought,
Or those more heavenly Beauty's of the Mind,
As Chastity or Meekness in our Kind,
To God and Man so gracious and approved
Could any Ways impartial Fate have mov'd,

I had

I had not dyed, but Death (alafs too soon!)
Closed me in Night an Hower before my Noon;
Then fetch'd my Child, a Mate for me most fit,
A Payre of Sayntes that now in Heaven we sitt.

The thirteen Parishes following lie within the Limits of this Archdeaconry, but are Peculiars belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, and are wholly exempt from the Jurisdiction, both of the Bishop and Archdeacon of LONDON.

Alhallows Bread-street	St. Mary Le-bow
Alhallows Lombard-ft.	Mary Bothaw
St. Dionis Back-church	Michael Crooked-l.
Dunstan East	Michael Royal
John Evangelist	Pancras Soper-lane
Leonard Eastcheap	Vedaft Foster-lane
Mary Aldermay

The four following Parishes lie within the same Limits, but are exempt from the Archdeacon, being Peculiars belonging to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and wholly subject to their Jurisdiction, saving only when the Bishop visits Tam in Capite quam in Membris.

St. Giles without Crip.	St. Faith under St. Paul
Gregory by St. Paul	Helen near Bishopsg.

Note, That in some of the before-mentioned Parishes, which are subject to the Archdeacon of LONDON, there are certain Precincts which are also exempt from his Jurisdiction, and subject only to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, viz. the Precinct of Portpole, in the Parish of St. Andrew Holborn; and the Precinct of Hoxton, in the Parish of St. Leonard Shoreditch: In each of which Precincts they swear one Church-Warden, and prove Wills and grant Administrations.

Also in the Precinct of Norton-Falgate, near Shoreditch, (which the Inhabitants say, is in the Parish of St. Faith under St. Paul's) and the Precinct of Goswel-street, in the Parish of St. Botolph without Aldersgate; in both which they prove Wills, and grant Administrations: And lastly, in the Precinct of Islington, were they likewise prove Wills, and grant Administrations; and of late Years did swear one Church-Warden for that Precinct; but now he is sworn by the Archdeacon of LONDON.

CHAP. V.

Of the OFFICERS belonging to the Cathedral Church of St. PAUL.

The PRECENTOR.

THIS Officer is likewise called Cantor, or Chanter of the Church; his Office is chiefly to look after the Singing-men, and Singing in the Choir. He hath under him a Succentor, or Sub-Chanter, who is to officiate for him in his Absence: He is likewise to constitute the Master of the Singing-School. Of all which may be seen at large, in Hist. Paul. p. 244.

THE Precentor hath the Second Stall on the left Side of the Choir, and his Corps is in the Church of Stortford, in Hertfordshire, valu'd at 46 l. per Ann. which Church was of old, it seems, annex'd and appropriated to the Dignity of the Precentor of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, who is Rector and Proprietor of the same, and Patron of the Vicarage.

King John, in the Fifth of his Reign, gave to William de S. Mariae Ecclesia, Bishop of LONDON, the Church of Shoreditch, near the City, to the Office of Chief-Chanter, or Precentor of this Church, as appears by his Charter, dated at Westminster, the 26th Day of March, in that Year.

SOON after this, the said William Bishop of LONDON, having intituted Benedict de Sanctum into his Office of Precentor, confirm'd the said Church of Shoreditch, with its Appurtenances to him, and his Successors in the said Office.

AFTER this, it seems, this Church of Shoreditch, was alienated from this Office of Precentor and appropriated to the Archdeaconry of LONDON; but when, by whom, or upon what Occasion or Consideration is uncertain; however it it hath been of antient Time, and is still the Corps of that Archdeaconry.

Ralph, Bishop of LONDON, petitioned King Edward III. that he might have License to annex the Church of Hackney, valu'd at 50 Marks, to this Office of Precentor, instead of the Church of Stortford, valued at 20 Marks per Ann. for the better Maintenance of that Dignity; which Licence the King granted March 7, 36th of his Reign: But Newcourt says, he does not find that it was ever effected.

The TREASURER in the Cathedral Church of St. PAUL.

THE Treasurer of St. Paul's is to keep the Treasury of the whole Church, as the Reliques, Books, Vessels, Vestments, Chalice, &c. for the true Custody whereof he is bound by Oath to the Dean and Chapter.

UNDER him he hath a Sacrist for a Coadjutor, whom he is to present to the Dean to be approv'd, and admitted by him upon Oath, to be faithful and diligent in his Office, which is to open the Church-Doors at the first Ringing of the Bell, every Day, for Morning and Evening Service, and to do several Things about the Altar, and Things belonging thereunto, too long here to insert, which if he neglect, he is to be corrected by the Dean and Chapter.

THE Sacrist hath three Servants under him, called Vergers, which are likewise to have Servants under them; these are to make clean the Church, toll the Bell, blow the Organ-Bellows, and to do any other servile Office in the Church, at the Command of the Vergers, who are to answer for their Truth and Fidelity; what farther belongs to the Treasury, Sacrist, and those under him, may be seen at large in Hist. Paul. P. 212.

THE Treasurer hath the third Stall on the Right Side of the Choir; his Corpse is in the Church of Pelham and Aldebri, valued at 63 Marks, Secundum taxationem Norwicen.

Robert de Sigillo, Bishop of LONDON in King Stephen's Time, gave to one Godfrey certain Churches, namely, Sudminster in Essex, Aldbury, Pelham, Furnel and Pelham-arsa in Hertfordshire, which were said to belong to his own Table; after which, his, the said Bishop's next and immediate Successor, Richard de Belmeis II. founded and constituted this Office of Treasurer about the Year 1160, make the said Godfrey, to whom those Churches were given, the first Treasurer, and assigned the said Churches to the Use of him and his Successors in that Office for ever, which was confirmed to the said Godfrey, by Pope Alexander III.

The CHANCELLOR of the Cathedral Church of St. PAUL's.

THE Chancellor of this Church (in old Records, called Magister Scholarum) is Scribe or Secretary of the Church and Chapter; for to him it belonged to indict or write the Letters or Epistles of the Chapter, and to read before them such as are sent to them.

HE chiefly keeps the Seal, and Seals such Things as are to be sealed: He is to take Care that the Lessons be well and distinctly read in the Choir; to teach those that are Ignorant in that Kind; to encourage those that do well, and to correct those that do not. When the Bishop reads the last Lesson, he is to hold the Book to him.

IN the greater Festivals, Sexta Lectio is to be read by the Chancellor. He hath the Chief Authority and Charge Literaturæ (or the Grammar Learning) not only of the Church, but of the whole City, where all the Teachers of Grammar are to be subject to him, (whence it was, that in old Time he had the Title of Magister Scholarum,) in St. Paul's School, (not that long after founded by Dean Collet;) but that School, which in Old Time did belong to this Cathedral Church, and was endowed by Richard de Belmeis, First Bishop of LONDON, in the Reign of King Henry I. He is to appoint a fit Master, whom he is to present to the Dean and Chapter; and is to keep in Repair the House belonging to the School at his own Charge: He is to keep all the School-Books of the Church, and to give an Account of their Number, and of their being perfect and well kept, as often as he shall be thereunto required: He is to read to his Auditory, Holy Books, such as tend to the Knowledge of God, and the Institution of good Life and Manners.

THE Master of the Grammar School, is to be an honest Man, and well learn'd; he is to teach the Boys, especially those of the Church, Grammar and Good Manners, and is to be to them not only a Master of Grammar, but of Virtue also. In Place of the Chancellor, he is to write down in a Table, or Book, in Order, what every one is to read in the Church. This Master is to wear a Habit in the Choir, and to read the First Lesson.

THE Chancellor hath under him a Scribe, Clerk, or Under-Secretary, who is to register the Acts and Proceedings which concern the Church, keeping a due Order of the Things done, and the Times when.

THE Chancellor hath the third Stall on the left Side of the Choir. His Corps is in the Church of Borham and Telling, and is valued at 33 l. per Annum.

As to the Dignity of this Office of Chancellor, it is thus recorded among the Archives of the Archbishop of Canterbury, at LONDON, in the Vicar-General's Office.

“ Cancellariæ S. Pauli dignitas habet curam “ Disponendi & Ordinandi de Scholis Theologiæ “ & Grammaticæ, & de Rectoribus & Magistris

“ Marcarum ab Ecclesiâ de Fulham, Diac.
“ LONDON. eâ causis justis rite constitutæ
“ fuerunt, & sunt debitæ. Ab ipsis vero Cancellariis & Cancellaria una Annua Pensio Vingtiquinque Marcarum, Decano & Capitulo Ecclesiæ LONDON. fuerat & est debita, & solvi consueta.

THE Magister Scholarum, or Master of the Schools (the same originally who had afterwards the Title of Chancellor of the Church, as hath been intimated before) and the School of Saint Paul's, were doubtless the Chief Master, and School in the City; because, from this Magister Scholarum, the other School Masters therein, were to receive their Licence, or Authority, to teach.

To the Master of this School of St. Paul's, (namely) one Hugh, and to his Successors in that Employment; the First Richard de Belmeis, Bishop of LONDON, in the Time of King Henry I. by his Charter, granted the Habitation of Durandus, at the Corner of the Turret, (that is, the Clocheir or Bell-Tower) where William, Dean of St. Paul's, had placed him, by the said Bishop's Command, together with the Custody of the Library belonging to this Church.

To this Hugh, Henry, a Canon of the same Bishop's, that had been bred up under the said Hugh, succeeded, and to him the before-specified Bishop, besides the House, which the said Hugh enjoy'd, granted a Meadow at Fulham, together with the Tythes of Telling and Madely.

THIS was that Henry, from whom Henry de Blois (who was Bishop of Winchester from 1129, to 1171, and Nephew to the King) had such Respect, that by Virtue of his Legantine-Power, he commanded the Chapter of St. Paul's and William, the Archdeacon, and their Ministers, by Virtue of their Obedience, that after three Times calling, they should pronounce the Sentence of Anathema against all those, who, without Licence of Henry, the Master of the Schools, should presume to teach within the whole City of LONDON, except those who were Masters of the Schools of St. Mary-le-Bow and St. Martin-le-Grand.

IN farther Augmentation of the Revenues of this Office, Richard Fitz-Neal, Bishop of LONDON, considering, at his first coming to that See, that the Master of the Schools had but small Profits coming to support his Mastership, resolved to settle a farther Endowment on this Office, whereby the Master might receive some Benefit, with the Name of his Dignity, which he did soon after, by granting him Lands and Tythes of Lands.

AFTER this, Henry de Cornhill, that was possessed of this Dignity, by the Name of Chancellor, Anno 1217. left his House in St. Paul's Church-yard on the South Side of the Church, to his Successor in that Office for ever, paying a Mark on the Day of his Anniversary. Witness Galfrey, the Dean of St. Paul's, and William of St. Mary Church.

Richard de Gravesend, Bishop of LONDON, in the Reign of King Edward I. considering with himself, that tho', in divers other Cathedrals of this Realm, some learned Doctors in Divinity had antiently read in that Faculty, but not in this of LONDON, which was more famous than any; so that they were constrained to produce others from far to that Purpose; at his first Ordination, by the Consent of his Chapter, decreed, That the Chancellor of this Church, as a Man most proper for such a Service, by Reason of his Office, should perform the same Lecture, for the Time to come. And that thenceforth none might be ordained Chancellor there, unless he were a Master or Batchelor of Divinity, and who, by himself should perform that Task, or in Case he were lawfully hindered, procure another fit Person to do it. And for as much as the Revenues belonging to the Chancellor, were not sufficient Support for the undergoing this Duty, and that of this Office, it appears, that Ralph de Baldock the succeeding Bishop, by his Grant, bearing Date at LONDON, the Morrow after the Feast of St. Andrew the Apostle, 2 Edward II. by the Advice and Consent of this Chapter, in farther Augmentation of the Revenues belonging to this Office of Chancellor, gave, and appropriated thereunto, the Church of Yelling, excepting to St. Perchin, payable out of it, for the Maintenance of a Vicar.

PETTY-CANONS.

THE Petty-Canons are twelve in Number; they were called Minor-Canons, some of which ought to be Priests. They are to be chosen, if it may be, and if any are fit, out of the Ministers or Officers of the same Church. They are to be above all of good Life and Conversation; they ought to have a good Sound, and pleasant Voice, and to have good skill in Singing.

THESE twelve Petty-Canons had antiently their Habitations in distinct Houses, some within the Precinct of the Church-yard, and some without; but at length, through the Devotion to God's Service of divers particular Persons, were reduced together in a common Hall or Refectory, where they used to meet and dine, which Hall stood on the North Side of the Church, and formerly adjoined to a Place called Pardon Church-bagh.

TOWARDS the Maintenance of these to sing Divine Service in this Church of St. Paul, for the good Estate of King Edward III. and of Queen Philippa his Consort; as also for all their Children during their Lives in this World, and moreover, for their Souls after their Departure hence, and for the Souls of all the Faithful deceased; it appears that the said King in the 40th Year of his Reign, gave Licence to one Robert de Keteringham, then Rector of St. Gregor's, and others, to grant certain Messuages and Lands to the Value of vii. xiii s. iv d. per Annum, to the Dean and Chapter of Paul's. And in 18 Richard II. they obtained the King's Letters Patents to be a Body Politick for the Future, and called the College of the twelve Petty-Canons of St. Paul's-Church, whereof one to be the Warden; as also to have a Common Seal, &c. At which Time in Augmentation of their Maintenance, divers Lands and Rents were by the said King's Licence granted to them. And for their better Support, they had in 24 Henry VI. the Church of St. Gregory appropriated to them.

THE Sub-Dean is chosen by the Dean, with the Consent of the Chapter, out of the Minor-Canons; who, in the Absence of the Dean, is to supply his Place in the Choir, which Office was ordained Anno 1290. Ralph Baldock being then Dean. His Office is to observe and take Notice of the Officers of the Church, what every one does in the Choir, and admonish and correct those that do amiss.

THE next Petty-Canons are two Persons chosen by the Dean and Chapter out of the Minor-Canons, and are called Cardinals of the Choir; whose Office is to circumspect, and note daily all the Defaults and Offences in the Choir, viz. those that come too late, or go too soon out of the Choir; also those that are obstinate or negligent, and slothful; and to present their Names to the Dean and Chapter, on every Sabbath (or Saturday) to be admonished or corrected according to the Nature of their Offence. They are to administer the Sacraments as well to those who are in Health, as to those that are Sick, and in former Times to hear Confessions, and to enjoin Penances. And last of all to bury the Dead, and to receive such Oblations, and whatsoever shall be given them for their Pains.
